N.P. COUNCIL ORGANIZES

Mayor Townsend Addresses New Body and Appointments Made for the Year.

L. B. WOOLSTON IS PRESIDENT.

Salaries Are Fixed—Councilmanic Committees Are Named—Two New Members.

The 1909 Borough Council convened yesterday at noon, effected its organization, and after confirming the Mayor's appointments, adjourned until Friday night, January 8, when the regular business will be disposed of. All of the members were present.

The new Council is made up of these men: Mayor, Samuel Townsend; councilmen, Morris C. Van Arsdale, Brazilla R. Waldron, L. B. Woolston, C. L. Nichols, W. L. Smalley, Jr., and Julius J. Stahl. The two last named are the newly-elected ones.

Mayor Townsend, greeting the organization in a brief address, said:

"I welcome the new members. We are glad to have you with us. I think the people have made no mistake, and hope and expect to receive valuable aid from you. A year ago I was called to this office, not because of any seeking on my part, but having been called I cheerfully assumed the duty as presented. As I was elected there could be but one consideration to influence my acts. I was moved by one determination, to regard the borough government as a business organization, to be administered as a business house would be. The question of politics and personal feeling had no place in my thoughts. No act of mine during the past year has been influenced by anything except what I deemed for the best good of the borough.

"I have no political aspirations whatever. I want simply what is best for the borough. The last Council, I believe, was moved by the same spirit, and I believe the new Council will be. I ask your hearty co-operation and that all will work together. I will make no mention at this meeting of the borough works and plans but will leave that until some other time."

L. B. Woolston was re-elected president of the council.

These committeemen were appointed:

Audit and finance, C. L. Nichols, L. B. Woolston; laws, ordinances and taxation, W. L. Smalley, Jr., B. R. Waldron; streets, B. R. Waldron, W. L. Smalley, Jr.; fire and water, Julius J. Stahl, M. C. Van Arsdale; police, M. C. Van Arsdale, Julius J. Stahl; printing and stationery, L. B. Woolston, C. L. Nichols.

The Mayor's nominations for the principal offices were the same as last year and they were all approved and the men duly elected. They are:

Borough counsel, Charles A. Reed; borough clerk, Fred A. Martin; borough recorder, Charles M. Dolliver; borough physician, A. H. Dundon, M. D.; borough engineers, Frank J. Hubbard, H. C. Van Emburgh; overseer of poor, Fred Becker; street commissioner, John Y. Barrett.

The member of the Board of Health was not appointed, but the Mayor announced that it would be done in the near future and that Dr. A. H. Dundon would continue to serve until that time.

Police Department—Chief Marshal, George Weiss; marshals, Lemuel Pope, Charles Keller; marshals for special duty, William Kierman, John Johnson, Peter Bowers, D. C. Adams, H. Klinsman, William Gaub, Edward Terry, J. H. Smalley, Theodore Martin, Richard McDonald, Henry Johnson, F. M. Whitely, H. F. Woolsten, John Y. Barrett, H. Myers, John Reinman, Erick Sohl, Frank Webster.

Fire Department—Chief of fire department, Howard F. Woolston; captain Hose Co. No. 1, Edward Terry; captain Hose Co. No. 2, William McCullough; engineer, Frank Schuck; lieutenant and driver, William Gaub.

Callmen—Walter Chandler, William Daley, Clinton Conover, David C. Allen, John McCullough, P. McDonough, I. Rosenstiehl, Joseph C. Walker.

There was but one change in the salary figures, namely, the borough clerk, who will receive an increase of $100. This office has heretofore paid $500, but the present incumbent being inexperienced when he assumed the duties last year, his first year's salary was placed at $400.

These are the figures as approved:

Borough Counsel	$500.00
Borough Clerk	500.00
Recorder	200.00
Borough Physician	125.00
Overseer of Poor	150.00
Chief Marshal	900.00
Marshals	720.00

CLERGYMEN RECEIVE NEW YEAR'S CALLERS

The New Year's Day reception held yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Zelie at the parsonage, on Park avenue, was attended by more than three hundred people, including many members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and congregation. The decorations were appropriate to the day and were especially effective in the reception and dining rooms, the prevailing colors being red and white.

Dr. and Mrs. Zelie received alone, while those who were in charge of the dining-room included Mrs. Frank D. Warren, Mrs. John Doull Miller, Mrs. G. Herbert Condict, Mrs. A. V. Heely, Mrs. E. E. Parvin and Mrs. John P. Stevens. Those assisting were the Misses Frederica Mead, Marion Brown, Mary Grey Runkle and Frances Zelie.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, held his usual New Year's Day reception at his home on College place, and throughout the hours from 4 to 6, a large number of friends called. While Mr. Stevenson received alone, he was assisted in the dining-room by Mrs. Howard Fleming and Mrs. E. F. Feickert. The social features were delightful and there was a hearty exchange of the day's greetings.

Another New Year's Day reception was that given by Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nickerson at their home on Carlton avenue, where a large number of friends called to exchange greetings. They were assisted in receiving by Mrs. R. C. Leonard, while those who assisted in the dining-room were the Misses Osgood and Tolles, Mrs. G. M. Cross and Mrs. Gates Willard. The reception was held from 4 to 7 o'clock and during that time the home was thronged with people coming and going.

INTERESTING SESSION IN NEW POLICE COURT

Judge Runyon conducted his first session of the city court in the new police headquarters building, this morning and an interested delegation of citizens was on hand to occupy the high-backed pew-looking style of seats intended for spectators. Four prisoners and a number of probationers were there as a matter of compulsion rather than choice.

The first defendant to be arraigned before His Honor was John McQuade, found helplessly drunk on Richmond street, yesterday afternoon. He told the judge that his home is in Massachusetts but he had been working in this vicinity. He declared that he has been on a spree for a week or more and asked the judge to give him a sentence in order to be out of temptation. He was sent down for thirty days.

McQuade was followed by a man giving his name as John Smith, who was arrested by Patrolman Sweeney, last night, because he was so drunk he was unable to care for himself. He got off on suspended sentence by promising to leave rum alone for the next twelve months.

Andrew Benford, who was arraigned Thursday for drunkenness and was released until this morning with the understanding that he keep sober over the holiday, was the third defendant. "Andy" didn't have a chance to say he had a "dry" New Year's as the judge saw him reeling about the streets, yesterday, and gave him his choice of $5 or twenty days. He took the latter.

George Suydam, the boy charged by Harry Dencklau with collecting money from customers on his milk route, was arraigned for a final disposition of his case. Counsellor W. S. Angleman spoke in his behalf and His Honor held him for bi-monthly reports to the probation officer, warning him that a single breach of discipline would result in his going before the grand jury.

The session was concluded by the lining up of four probationers who have to report every Saturday as an evidence that they are keeping out of mischief and leading upright lives. The judge gave them some good advise.

Case Against Keeley Settled.

Settlement has been made and the proceedings discontinued in the action brought by Counselor John H. Van Winkle, as surviving executor of the estate of Catherine Webster, who filed a bill in Chancery at Trenton to foreclose a mortgage on property in the name of John E. Keeley. The property is located at Seventh street and Kensington avenue.

Anniversary Sermon.

Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preach his fifth anniversary sermon at the church, tomorrow morning, after which the communion service will be held.

ORGANIZE CITY'S COUNCIL

President Tolles and City Clerk Mac Murray are Both Unanimously Re-elected.

COMMITTEES ARE ANNOUNCED.

Buxton Leads Finance; Mygatt, Public Affairs; F. Randolph, Police and Hall Fire—Wean Stenographer.

Without any formalities the Common Council for 1909 met last night for organization and after transacting only such business as was of necessity adjourned to meet Monday night at 8 o'clock. City Clerk James T. MacMurray called the meeting to order, all of the members, except Messrs. Robert E. Hall and Frank DeWitt Randolph, being present. Frank L. Holt the successor of H. D. Hibbard, occupied his chair, while William W. Wilson, who was this week elected to succeed the late Harry B. Suydam was in his place.

The first business was that of electing a president and Ralph I. Tolles was chosen to succeed himself. Then Mr. MacMurray was elected city clerk for a term of three years in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton. George B. Wean was elected stenographer and city copyist at a salary of $500 a year.

Resolutions were offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, naming The Daily Press and Courier-News as the official newspapers and Mr. Buxton's motion that the rules of 1908 be the rules of 1909, with the amendment providing for a committee on laws and ordinances, was adopted. Jacob T. Dunham was appointed janitor and page for one year and the city clerk was authorized on resolution to obtain the usual supply of stationery for the Council.

In the makeup of the various committees for the year it is conceded by the members that President Tolles remembered all very well and made wise selections. There is only one new committee, that on laws and ordinances, and Frank L. Holt, the new member, who is a lawyer, is made the chairman. He has also been placed on the fire and buildings, public affairs and auditing committees, which is generous recognition for the first year.

As previously told in The Daily Press there are no changes in the chairmanships of the finance, police, streets and sewers, lighting and alms committees, the same members being reappointed. Robert E. Hall, who has been an active member of the fire and building committee, succeeds Mr. Hibbard as chairman, while Duncan W. Taylor is made the head of the license committee, succeeding the late Mr. Suydam. Mr. Wilson the successor of Mr. Suydam, drew the chairmanship of the auditing committee, which always goes to a first-year man.

President Tolles announced the committees as follows:

Finance—Herbert Buxton, chairman; Frederic E. Mygatt, Duncan W. Taylor, Frank DeWitt Randolph, William W. Wilson. Fire and buildings—Robert E. Hall, chairman; Herbert Buxton, Charles C. Randolph, Frank L. Holt, William W. Wilson. Police—Frank DeWitt Randolph, chairman; William L. Gloak, Robert E. Hall. Alms—Charles C. Randolph, chairman; Duncan W. Taylor, William L. Gloak. Laws and ordinances—Frank L. Holt, chairman; Frederic E. Mygatt, Francis L. Montgomery. Public Affairs—Frederic E. Mygatt, Herbert Buxton, Francis L. Montgomery, Frank L. Holt, Herbert Buxton, Frank DeWitt Randolph. Street lighting—Francis L. Montgomery, chairman; Duncan W. Taylor, Robert E. Hall. Licenses—Duncan W. Taylor, chairman; William L. Gloak, Charles C. Randolph. Auditing—William W. Wilson, chairman; Frank L. Holt, Charles C. Randolph.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, provided that the finance committee should have published in pamphlet form the Mayor's message; also the reports of the city treasurer, chief of police, chief of fire department, street committee and Board of Health.

In order to meet present contingencies, $5,000 was appropriated for the use of the street and sewer committee, $500 for the Shade Tree Commission and $1,000 for the Board of Health, until such time as the regular appropriations are made.

All of the 1908 petitions referred to the present body, as well as the bond of Constables P. V. Weaver, were turned over to the proper committees.

Elston M. French petitioned to have $2.10 refunded to him as that amount, it had been learned, had been paid twice on property formerly owned by him. It was referred to the finance committee. J. H. Albert, of East Fourth street, peti-

NEW JERSEY RED CROSS WORK.

Local Fund Now Amounts to $60—Newark Makes Good Showing Gov. J. Franklin Fort Issues a Proclamation.

Expressing New Jersey's sympathy for the Italian people in the terrible catastrophe that has engulfed the country, and calling upon the people of this State to aid the sufferers, Governor Fort has issued a formal proclamation. The fund started by The Daily Press on Saturday has received several additions since then and now amounts to $60.00. Many of the local pastors have signified their purpose of calling the attention of their congregations tomorrow to this paper's fund and therefore it is to be expected that on Monday many more contributions may be acknowledged.

J. Herbert Case has sent his check to this office for $10.00 and James T. Closson today sent his check for $25.00. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss has added $5.00.

Received to date:

E. R. Ackerman	$20.00
J. Herbert Case	10.00
James T. Closson	25.00
Rev. J. A. Chambliss	5.00

In Newark, already nearly $1,000 has been contributed through the Newark Star and in addition $2,000 has been cabled by Bishop O'Connor. The same liberality has been reported from many other centres in New Jersey.

DEATH INDIRECTLY DUE TO FOOTBALL ACCIDENT

Bernard W. Egel, the seventeen-year-old son of George Egel, of Somerset street, died at his father's home yesterday morning, shortly before 12 o'clock. The cause of death is given as meningitis and peritonitis said to have been indirectly caused by a slight injury which the young man received in a football game a year ago. It bothered him for a short time and was then evidently overcome but it returned six months ago in an aggravated form. Treatment failed to bring about any change and a month ago he was operated upon but his condition continued to grow worse.

The young man was a member of the Holy Cross Club, the Holy Cross church choir and the First Baptist Sunday-school. He was very fond of athletic sports and was very popular among the boys of his acquaintance. He is survived by one brother, George Egel, and two sisters, the Misses Carrie and Minnie Egel.

The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. It will be conducted by Rev. George A. Warner, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss.

NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION AT THE PARK CLUB.

The New Year's Day reception at the Park Club, yesterday afternoon, was largely attended. It was in charge of the entertainment committee, while the wives of the board of governors received the guests. Those who poured were Mrs. W. A. Abbott, Mrs. Edward T. Wilson, Mrs. A. B. Laing and Mrs. George D. Hallock.

A sketch, entitled "An Episode," was given in a clever manner by Effingham Pinto, Miss Florence Curtis and Miss Louise Curtis.

Took Involuntary Baths.

Among those who enjoyed involuntary baths at Tier's pond yesterday, where a large crowd was skating throughout the day, were William Hand, Jr., and Harry Ward. The former fell in near the ice-houses, while Ward broke through the ice near the Elm place bridge. Both dropped into shallow water and were able to get out without much trouble.

W. G. Debele's Rectption.

Debele hall was the mecca for the citizens of the borough yesterday afternoon, W. G. Debele being the host at a reception in honor of the new councilmen, Julius J. Stahl and W. L. Smalley, Jr.

Dollar Gas Now.

According to its promise the Public Service Corporation yesterday inaugurated dollar gas for Plainfield and nearby towns and hereafter that rate will prevail.

CHAS. BOGAN'S FUNERAL

Bishop and Many Priests Assist in the Celebration of Solemn Requiem Mass.

PROMINENT MEN PALL-BEARERS.

Service at St. Mary's Attended by Hundreds From This City, Newark and Elsewhere—Interment at Newark.

The funeral service of Charles Bogan, the father of Rev. Father B. M. Bogan, was held in St. Mary's church, this morning, when a solemn mass of requiem was said. The attendance was very large and included many priests from the Newark and Trenton dioceses, together with scores of friends from Newark, Elizabeth and other places.

Rev. Daniel F. Hogan was the celebrant of the mass, Rev. John E. Burke the deacon and Rev. E. P. Carroll, subdeacon. Rev. John E. O'Brien was master of ceremonies. Very Rev. Dean Smith and Rev. I. P. Whalen acted as assistants to Bishop John J. O'Connor, who pronounced the benediction.

Following the service, the body was taken to Newark for burial in Holy Sepulchre cemetery. The honorary pall bears were Former United States Senator James M. Smith, Jr., former State Senator Michael T. Barrett and Judge T. J. Lintall, of Newark; former Mayor P. J. Ryan, of Elizabeth; T. J. Ryan, W. F. O'Connor and David T. Kenney. The active bearers were Grand Knight John J. Hines, of the Knights of Columbus; Michael D. O'Keefe, president of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society; Thomas Moran, president of the Holy Name society; John Gallagher, president of Division No. 4, A. O. H., Daniel McCarthy and Cornelius McCarthy.

The following priests were present in the sanctuary: Rt. Rev. Mgr. O'Grady, Rev. John P. Callaghan, Very Rev. Father Gaffney, Rev. Father Tyrrell, Rev. Father C. A. Smith, Rev. Father William H. Miller, Rev. Father O'Brien, Rev. Father Farley, Rev. Father White, Rev. Father Stein, Rev. Father J. J. Quinn, Rev. Father J. P. Smith, Rev. E. A. Kelly, Rev. T. O'Neill, Rev. Father Frederici, Rev. Father Richmond, Rev. Father M. O'Keefe, Rev. Father Ryan, Rev. Father Brennan, Rev. Father A. M. Egan and Rev. Father Scidla.

LOCAL TRUST CO. HAS ABUNDANCE OF PROSPERITY.

Attention is called to the financial report of The Plainfield Trust Company printed elsewhere in this paper. Among other things, it shows an increase of profits in six months from June 30 of $11,000. The furniture and fixture account has been charged off, and its bond holdings have increased in value $21,000.

The Trust Company is to be congratulated on this splendid showing.

Franklin Council Elects.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., met Thursday night and elected these officers: Councillor, Charles S. Wilson; vice councillor, John Kliner; assistant recording secretary, Roy De Camp; conductor, [illegible] Ross; inside sentinel, H. A. Southers; outside sentinel, Ed Mosher; trustee, Russell Hazard; representative to State council, Roy DeCamp and T. E. Currin, Jr.; good welfare committee, Roy DeCamp, George D. Wilson, Harry M. Knolte, John Kline and William Firstbrook. Installation will take place next Thursday night.

Birthday Surprise Party.

In honor of the sixteenth anniversary of her birthday, which occurs today, Miss Ada Bennett, of East Second street, was given a surprise party at her home last night. The evening was spent playing games, while some of the guests entertained with vocal and instrumental music. Refreshments were served. Miss Bennett received a number of gifts.

Heavy Month at Hospital.

All the typhoid fever patients at the hospitals are now out of danger and a majority of them will leave the institution within the next couple of weeks. The past month has been one of the heaviest in the history of the hospital. At present there are about twenty-five patients there.

Will Talk About Earthquake.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss's theme at the First Baptist church tomorrow morning will be suggested by the recent earthquake in Italy and in the evening he will preach on "The Grace of Song." The choir will repeat the Christmas music.

Borough Police Take Oaths.

The regular members of the North Plainfield police department were sworn in yesterday afternoon by Mayor Samuel Townsend.

USUAL APPOINTMENTS MADE BY CITY'S MAYOR

In connection with the meeting of the Common Council for organization, last night, Mayor Charles J. Fisk made the usual appointments. Dr. B. VanDy Hedges, Charles H. Dunham and William C. Kinney were each re-appointed members of the Board of Health for two year terms. Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was re-appointed city physician for a term of three years and Patrick McNamara, John Dunlop, Thomas O'Gorman and Charles Anderson were appointed specials to do regular duty.

As to the appointment of the special policemen, Mayor Fisk explained that the men have been doing regular duty for sometime, and while the matter of a re appointment for another year had not been before the police board, he deemed it wise to take the action at this time, that being the sense of the board.

The same arrangement as to obtaining copies of bills presented to the Legislature, Senate and Assembly, was made through a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted. It appropriated a sum not to exceed $25 and R. J. Chapman, Assembly bill clerk, will be requested to send such bills as in the past; also furnishing the city with a calendar. These bills will be open to the public at the office of the city clerk, as heretofore.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, President Tolles appointed Councilmen Mygatt, Charles C. Randolph and Duncan W. Taylor as a special sewage commission with the president as a member ex-officio. This is the same commission that served last year and the members will continue to have the same powers as before.

MAYOR FISK'S MESSAGE CONTAINS BUT 235 WORDS

What is probably the shortest message ever presented to the Common Council was received by the 1909 body from Mayor Charles J. Fisk at the meeting for organizatioin held last night. The document, instead of being a long one and covering every department of the city, in adidtion to numerous recommendations, contains about 235 words and is noteworthy for the absence of suggestions and recommendations.

At the suggestion of Councilman Herbert Buxton, Mayor Fisk was requested to read his message, which he did. It is as follows:

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 1, 1909.

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

Gentlemen—It has always been the custom at the beginning of the year for the Mayor to transmit a message to the Common Council, giving a review of the work during the past year and making recommendation in regard to matters that should be taken up by the incoming Council. You have already received, or will receive, reports from the treasurer showing the financial condition of the city, and also from the various heads of departments and committees in regard to the work and needs of their respective departments.

These reports are so complete that a thorough examination of them will give you all the information required, and I therefore do not consider it necessary to go into details in regard to same at this time in a message. As to recommendations, I have found from past experience that in order to receive proper attention each matter must be taken up separately, at the proper time, and not in a general message. I have therefore decided to depart from the usual custom, and instead of making at this time any suggestions, to call your attention from time to time, in a special message, to such matters as after consultation with the members of your honorable body, seem to me, in my judgment, should receive particular attention.

Wishing the members of your honorable body, and all the residents of our city, a happy and prosperous New Year, I am,

Respectfully yours,
CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor.

Announce Approaching Marriage.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Alice Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Miller, of Indian Orchard, Mass., and Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's parents on Tuesday, February 2, and will be a quiet affair. The doctor and his bride have planned to take an extended trip to the Holy Land for their honeymoon.

BEHEADED BY A TRAIN

New Brunswick Resident Victim of the Rail on New Year's Afternoon.

MAY HAVE BEEN A SUICIDE.

Engineer Says Man Deliberately Threw Himself in Front of the Locomotive—Leaves Wife and 3 Children.

Joseph Garliskie, of New Brunswick, was struck and instantly killed by an east bound passenger train on the Central, near the Clinton Avenue station, yesterday afternoon. The engine passed over his neck, completely severing the head from the body.

Whether or not the man's death was the result of accident or design is a matter of conjecture. The engineer declares that Garliskie was walking along the track next the one on which his train was running and that there was nothing to obstruct his view of its approach. Just as the locomotive was a short distance away, the engineer says, the man turned suddenly and sprang directly in front of it. There was no possible chance to apply the brakes before he was beneath the wheels.

The train, which is due in this city at 2:44, was stopped and the body was brought to the North Avenue station. It was afterward removed to Cole's undertaking rooms and the police were notified. Through addresses in the pockets of the clothing, the man's name and address were learned by Detective-Sergeant Flynn and his relatives in New Brunswick were notified. He leaves a wife and three children.

Friends of Garliskie say that the report that he meant to kill himself must be a mistake. They assert that while he was out of work and had left home several days ago looking for a job he was not in the least despondent and was not of a temperament that would lead him to kill himself. They express the belief that he became confused when the train approached and walked toward it by mistake. He was thirty-five years old. At the time he was killed he wore clothing of good material and had a diamond stud in his shirt front.

LOCAL C. E. MASS-MEETING OF C. E. U. JANUARY 14.

The winter mass meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held in Trinity Reformed church on Thursday night, January 14, at 7:45 o'clock. Two able speakers have been secured for the occasion, the Rev. C. A. R. Janvier, of Philadelphia, and H. A. Kinports, president of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union and secretary of the Young People's department of the Reformed church in America.

Mr. Janvier spent a number of years in the Orient as a missionary and will speak on Mohammendanism. Those who have heard him know him to be an interesting and inspiring speaker. Mr. Kinports will briefly outline mission study and give suggestions for the organization of classes.

The Christian Endeavor Union attendance banner now in possession of the Temple Baptist church society, will be awarded to the society having the highest percentage of active and associate members present at the meeting. All interested are cordially invited.

KOTTCAMP WILL SPEAK AT THE Y. M. C. A. TOMORROW.

A. F. Kottcamp, religious work director of the great New Haven Y. M. C. A., will address the men's meeting in Association hall tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Kottcamp is one of the most successful association workers in New England. Under his direction the Yale University association and the city association have co-operated in undertaking a great work in the interest of New Haven's foreign-speaking men. He is also an evangelistic speaker of exceptional ability. The address he will give tomorrow on the subject "Binding the Strong Man" is one of his strongest.

Fine Display of Minerals.

The National Mining and Leasing Company, of 211 North avenue, have on exhibition the finest display of minerals ever shown in this city, at Cadmus Bros., druggists, which include specimens of pure copper and silver ore. Every color of the rainbow is shown as made by nature and is well worth of the inspectioin of those interested in mining. This company paid its twenty-second dividend on January 1, and stockholders are most jubilant over their prospects.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Lyall Mooney, who rescued Walter Demarest from drowning while skating on Marsh's lake Thursday afternoon, deserves a great deal of credit. But few people would care to dive into six feet of water at this time of the year and take chances with a drowning person. Lyall showed he was made of the right stuff and is deserving of a Carnegie medal.

Rev. Franklin Mathiews was unable to lead the weekly prayer-meeting Thursday night in the Baptist church on account illness, being confined to the house with a severe cold. The meeting was led by Charles F. Vincent, superintendent of the Sunday-school.

The younger members of the social set of the borough danced the old year out and the new year in Thursday night in the borough firehouse. The pleasant affair was well attended and one of the most enjoyable held this winter.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours, morning preaching 10:45, B. Y. P. U. meeting 3.30 p. m., vesper services 4:30. At the close of the morning services the monthly communion will be held.

Miss Margaret Reynolds, of Barties avenue, entertained a few friends at her home last night. The first night of the new year was spent by the hostess and her guests playing games and enjoying music.

The Township Committee met Tuesday night and organized for the year. Ira Gage Walker was made chairman and Scott Terry treasurer. W. R. Coddington was reappointed counsel.

The old year was passed out and the new one ushered in Thursday night in the usual noisy half-hour salute. It only happens once a year so no one can complain.

Miss Mamie Clark, of Barth avenue, entertained a few friends Thursday night at an informal New Year's eve party. Games and refreshments were enjoyed.

The public school reopens Monday morning at 9 o'clock after the ten days' holiday vacation.

Miss Edith Tice, of Westfield, has been visiting Miss Cora Miller, of Front street.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The following are the topics for the week of prayer suggested by the Evangelical Alliance, and which will be discussed at the Methodist church, beginning on Tuesday of next week when the topics for Monday and Tuesday will be combined: Monday, "The Bible—The Word of God;" Tuesday, "God's Faithfulness, Man's Responsibility;" Wednesday, "Missions, Home and Foreign;" Thursday, "Intemperance and Gambling;" Friday, "The Family and the School;" Saturday, "The Signs of the Times."

Rev. E. C. Dutcher will preach a New Year's sermon tomorrow night at the Methodist church, entitled, "The Mistakes and Successes of the Old Year." Communion services will be held in the morning, when a number will be taken into the church.

Wilbur A. Drake, teacher of Latin and Greek at the Holdners School for Boys at Plymouth, N. H., is spending vacation week with his sister, Mrs. M. J. Whitford.

The Oriole Club, which was organized a few weeks ago for boys, has suspended until more suitable location for its club rooms can be found.

Master Thomas Conley, of Glen Gardner, is spending vacation week with his grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Maier.

Miss Florence Winter is at her home in Cliffwood during the holidays.

Miss Dorothy Soast is spending the holidays week in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Richards announce the arrival of a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayers are visiting in Salem and Bridgeton.

Miss Ada H. Thompson is in South Amboy on a visit.

Master Alfred Day is visiting his aunt in Philadelphia.

NORTH BRANCH.

A pleasing feature of the recent Sunday-school entertainment, under the auspices of the Presbyterian church at Pluckemin, was the awarding of the five prizes that Rev. Thos. D. Wesley, the pastor, offered to the scholars of the public school of that place, who stood the highest in their studies and in department at the end of the fall term. Abram Powelson was the boy with the best record in the advanced grades, and he received a box of tools. Miss Sadie Walsh and Miss Gertrude Todd were first and second among the girls, and received, respectively, a watch and a locket. Among the primary scholars Miss Alice Mundy and Charles Walsh were first and second, and were awarded, respectively, a bracelet and a drum.

Rev. William Reese Hart, of West Farms, N. Y., has been visiting his parents, Rev. and Mrs. John Hart, at the Reformed church parsonage, at Neshanic.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lane, of Millville, are guests for a week of Mr. Lane's mother, Mrs. Margaret Lane, at Neshanic Station.

Mrs. Edith Melick, of Plainfield, has been spending several days with her sister, Mrs. Frank Carpenter, at North Branch Depot.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Lane, of North Branch Depot, are spending a portion of the holiday vacation with relatives in Newark.

Merrill Higgins, of Plainfield, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Higgins, in North Branch.

William P. Amerman, of Neshanic, has returned from a visit to his son, Walter R. Amerman, at Lodi.

RARITAN.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Long, of Jersey City, have been guests this week of Henry S. Long, above Raritan.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Turner have returned from Stroudsburg, where they spent Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gainor, of Raritan, are visiting Mrs. Gainor's mother, in Newark.

Frank Cox, of Princeton, is spending a week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Cahill.

Frederick Sisser, of Columbia, has been spending a week with his father J. V. Sisser.

Miss Pauline Smith, of Roselle, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. M. J. Hickey.

John S. Connelly, of Nebraska, spent Christmas with the Misses Gallagher.

Rezeau Amerman, of Lodi, is a guest of his uncle, F. F. Bridgewater.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCreary are entertaining friends from Plainfield.

M. Turner has been appointed sexton of the Methodist church.

SOME RECIPES FOR SEASONABLE CAKES.

Molasses Cookies—Put two quarts of flour into a bowl. Rub into it half a cupful of butter. Dissolve a level teaspoonful of baking soda intwo tablespoonful of bakihg soda in two tablespoonfuls of warm water; add this to a pint of molasses and then add the molasses gradually to the flour. When the flour is moist, not wet, roll out quickly, cut into round cakes and bake in a moderate oven until a gilden brown.

Gingersnaps—Rub half a cupful of butter into two quarts of flour. Add two teaspoonfuls of ground ginger, a dash of red pepper and sufficient New Orleans molasses to make a hard dough. Knead the dough, roll it as thin as a wafer, cut it in small cakes and bake until crisp These cakes will keep for several months if closed in a tin box in a dry place.

Sand Cookies—Beat two eggs without separating, with a cupful of sugar, until very light. Add four tablespoonfuls of soft butter, and work in sufficient flour to make a very hard dough. Dust the board thickly with granulated sugar. Cut out a portion of the dough, roll it as thin as a wafer, sprinkle the top with sugar, and give one light roll, to press the sugar into the dough. Cut with a small, round cutter, and bake in a moderate oven until a golden brown.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

PRINCETON PROFESSOR CONDEMNS ESPERANTO

The Modern Language Association of America closed its twenty-sixth annual convention at Princeton yesterday with the reading of several papers and the adoption of three resolutions, one petitioning Congress in the proposed revision of tariff laws to remove the duties on books printed in foreign countries, works of art, and scientific instruments intended for the private use of investigators.

Prof. Theodore W. Hunt of Princeton University declared that the mechanical artificial or purely conventional character of preferred universal tongues, such as Esperanto and Volapuk, prevents them from representing the most vital and essential relation of thought and language. He said:

"Whatever purely commercial or utilitarian purpose they may subserve, they can never rise to the plane of language as the expression of thought for the highest ends, the outward revelation of man's innermost mental and spiritual self. For this reason, if for no other, such language codes and schemes can never compass the area of universal speech and meet the deepest needs of man as a thinker."

FAVORS POLICE DOGS.

Mayor-Elect Mravlag Also Opposes New Saloon Licenses.

The use of dogs by the police department in Elizabeth will be one of the things advocated by Mayor-elect Mravlag in his inaugural message to the new Elizabeth Council. Dr. Mravlag has made a study of the system in use in Orange and New York.

He will also advocate the placing of several patrolmen, who are now on station duty, on the street, so as to strengthen the patrol force without adding expense to the city. He also favors fewer saloons and will recommend that no new licenses be granted. It is understood that he has several other radical recommendations which will cause surprise.

Vote to Call New Pastor.

The consistory of the Second Reformed church at New Brunswick, at a special meeting last evening, extended a unanimous call to the Rev. J. M. Vander Meulen, pastor of Hope church, Holland, Mich. The call has not been extended as yet, but is being prepared by Dr. E. B. Voorhees, Professor F. C. Van Dyck and Samuel C. Gowen, the pulpit committee. The Rev. Mr. Vander Meulen was educated at Hope College and Princeton University. The Second Reformed church is one of the oldest in this city and is closely connected with Rutgers College and the Theological Seminary of the Dutch Reformed church.

How About This?

Oh, athletic girl, where will you go in retreat? For retreat you must if you would be in style. The dressmakers have decided that about the best width for the modern clinging skirt is two yards or a few inches over. Street skirts cut above the ankles, made of rough fabrics, are not always this wide, but the two yards in unstiffened satin or tulle give enough fulness at footline.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The choir of the First Baptist church will repeat its Christmas music tomorrow night.

Communion services will be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow morning, following the sermon.

Communion services with reception of new members will be held at the First M. E. church, tomorrow morning.

Egerton R. Young, the famous writer of stories for boys and girls, will give a lecture before the Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church in Vincent chapel, Saturday night, January 9. The public is invited.

A HINT TO THOSE WHO DO BRAID WORK.

There are right ways to braid and wrong ways, and one will profit greatly to stop and study out the best methods.

Don't hurry and do think. If you do not use your brain you will not be able to braid successfully. Keep your mind on your pattern and on its careful development.

Remember that is is, to some extent, a work of art; anything well designed and thoughtfully executed by hand is a work of art.

In braiding, sew in the stitches so that the needle sticks back into almost the same thread of the braid from which it has been pulled, almost concealing the sewing; sew closely, so that braid does not "wabble." Use your mind at every turn of the braid, always remembering to make sharp corners if they are so designed, never forgetting to keep the shape of the long curves, and, above all, not losing sight of the spirit of the pattern. In selecting the braid have a thought as to its pliability, and don't take a match that doesn't match.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE STOUT.

Here is a new idea carried out by one of the bright, but stout girls:

A locket down the centre of the back when wearing a low-cut frock will make the neck look thinner. This is good news for the girl with a fleshy back.

If she thinks a locket too exaggerated she can wear a chain with a pendant fastener, whose ends hang down over the nape of the neck.

Another way to improve the appearance of the back is to wear the hair in a low knot on the nape of the neck.

The shape of the neck of the dress should be a V rather than round or square, if the shoulders are full and fleshy.

The tulle ruches that have the choux directly in the centre of the back, with several ends falling down from it, also have a knack of making the back look slimmer, though they are fatel to the appearance of a short neck.

Struck Senseless.

Tassels Are in Vogue.

We are arriving at the stage of fringes. Tassels have already arrived.

As the weeks go on, it seems as though there were no end to the use of tassels. They come in the new colors, made of floss, of beads, of metal threads and of crystals.

Some have the open cut top, which is very attractive; others begin in the closely woven balls of the floss.

The large ines are used for skirts, for tunis, for sleeves and shoulders.

There are also many varieties of small ones, which are used as a fringe around edges of bodice.

Among the most expensive ones are those about five inches long of tiny seed pearls, that are used at the front of bodice or at the top of double box plait, which is put down in the back of an empire frock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clifford Schorb and children, Lawrence and Ernest Schorb, of Cumberland, Md., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Schorb, of Watchung avenue.

PianoExtravagance

Consists Only in Buying the Wrong Piano at Any Price

As home entertainment is a necessity for the welfare of the family circle, and the act that a good piano is the best investment you can make for increasing the pleasure of your home, the only mistake you can make is in buying the WRONG PIANO AT ANY PRICE. The purchase of a

is economy personified. You want your dollars to go as far as possible. You want the best at the right price. This is what you get in a Hallet & Davis, to say nothing of the quiet joy and satisfaction that inheres in the ownership of good and beautiful things—this makes Hallet & Davis pianos true bargains.

Our small payment plan makes piano buying easy. Write for catalogues of pianos and special offerings in Player Pianos.

The Annual Special Sale

The most important trade event on the sales calendar of this store. A sale that thousands of thrifty shoppers look forward to every year, because of its value-giving character, its reliable merchandise and its ever increasing scope.

Begins Monday, January 4th, 1909

Every department will be involved and our entire organization will be united in making The Annual Special Sale of 1909, an achievement a record of all previous events.

Why It Is the Greatest Trade Event of the Year.

Because it is Clearance Time for Women's Tailored Suits, Coats, Skirts, Waists and Furs. Clearance Time for Men's and Boys' Clothing. Clearance Time for Winter Footwear, Millinery, Dress Goods, Blankets, Comforts and Men's, Women's and Children's Underwear.

Because stocks must be reduced to a minimum for inventory.

It brings Thousands of Dollars Worth of Reliable Merchandise to You at the Lowest Prices of the Year.

And besides the stocks of winter goods there is also the customary January Sale of White goods. A Sale of great importance to the women of Newark who have found, by experience, that the superb qualities of undergarments carried at this store give the greatest satisfaction.

The prices that prevail during the January Sale of White make it most profitable for you to lay in a year's supply.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Since the original applications for national championship tournaments were sent out by W. Fellowes Morgan, secretary of the United States Golf Association, the Merion Cricket Club has entered the field. The Philadelphia organization has applied for the women's tournament. Thus far the only other offer for the women's championship has come from the Lakewood Country Club, which has never held a national championship.

On the other hand, the Merion Cricket Club held this event in 1904, when an international flavor was lent to the affair through the presence of Miss Lottie Dod, at that time champion of Great Britain. Miss Georgianna Bishop, of Brooklawn, eventually won the tournament. Shortly after the last championship at Chevy Chase it was predicted in the Tribune that the women favored a Philadelphia course for next year's contest, and under the circumstances the Merion application is not surprising.

With regard to the Western suggestion to increase the prize money for the next open championship to such proportions as to attract the leading professionals of Great Britain, on the ground that the United States Golf Association could well afford the extra outlay, Mr. Morgan said yesterday that he did not care to discuss the question at this time further than to say it was a matter to be thrashed out at the annual meeting, to be held here next week.

Miss Myra Helmer's 82, with 6 at the first hole, over the links of the Midlothian Country Club late last season, will ever stand as one of the best scores returned by a woman golfer in this country. The course is 6,327 yards long. When the women's national championship tournament was held there in 1907 Miss Pauline Mackay made a 92, which was then a record.

Even snowclad links fail to keep the Forest Hill Field Club members indoors, and almost any afternoon sees a few enthusiasts playing. The course will probably be lengthened again in the spring.

"Golf Faults Illustrated," a new book by G. W. Beldam and J. H. Taylor, is written along different lines from most books of instruction. Great stress is laid on photographs as a means of teaching.

BASEBALL.

When the National Baseball Commission meets in Cincinnati next Monday it is believed that a club owner's right to abruptly terminate an ironclad contract with a player will be finally determined. Joe Kelley, who was recently released from the management of the Boston National League club by President Dovey, has taken his case before the commission, in addition to bringing a suit for damages and salary in the courts. Kelley's charges against Dovey, if substantiated, may place the Boston magnate in an odd predicament. Kelley sets forth in his complaint to the commission that last winter he signed a two years contract with Dovey for a salary of $5,500 a year. The contract was drawn by H. C. Pulliam, a member of the commission, who, acting under instructions from Dovey, eliminated the ten days release clause, which was intended to make it impossible for Dovey to discharge Kelley from his employ until the term of the contract had expired.

On the strength of this contract Kelley sets forth that Dovey had no legal right to release him and that he is entitled to $5,500, covering next year's salary. Dovey, in his defence, says that Kelley was an absolute failure as a manager last season and that he did not earn his salary. He asserts that he has tried to secure another job for Kelley at this salary for next year, but that nobody wants him. For that reason Dovey declares that he was compelled "for business reasons" to let Kelley go and that consequently he decided to terminate the contract. On paper it looks as if the commission would rule in Kelley's favor, as the contract is written clearly and in black and white.

If Kelley had broken this agreement he would have been blacklisted, for contract jumpers are not wanted in professional baseball. Simply because Dovey is a club owner does not give him the right to violate an ironclad agreement, baseball men say, and for that reason it is believed that he will emerge from the little end of the horn when the commission renders a decision. It is safe to say, however, that in future club owners will positively decline to remove the ten days release clause from ball players' contracts.

Why Babies Hate Light.

Light is one of the most stimulating and attractive things in the world to us; and the brighter the better. But to a poor, blinking tot of a baby it is as dazzling and irritating as it is grateful to us. He has neither pigment in his tender skin nor hair on the top of his pink little head to protect him against the light-rays.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., January 2, 1909.

TO THE CLERGY.

The Daily Press kindly asks the local clergy to call the attention of their congregations to the Plainfield fund being raised by this paper for the relief of survivors of the earthquake catastrophe in Italy. Already some have liberally contributed to the fund which when completed will be deposited with the New Jersey Red Cross Association, of which Governor Fort is presidest. Checks should be made payable to "The Daily Press, Account of Italian Relief Fund.

When San Francisco was visited by an earthquake Plainfield liberally responded to the call for help and as a result The Daily Press was able to acknowledge nearly $2,000 as the total contribution. Now, at the call of the Governor, another appeal is made for aid, stricken Italy having aroused the sympathy of the civilized world.

tioned for a light on that thoroughfare, between Washington and Richmond streets, and the matter was referred.

The Plainfield Union Water Company notified the Council that one two-way hydrant had been located at East Second street and Terrill road.

The L. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company petitioned to have an eighteen inch storm sewer constructed in Leland avenue to connect with one recently built by the Mutual Land Improvement Company. This was referred to the street committee.

CHARITY NIGHT EVENTS ARE WELL PATRONIZED

"Charity Day and Night" in Plainfield proved to be a great success and it is believed that a substantial sum will be realized for the various charities of the city from the different amusement places. Large crowds witnessed the performance of "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," afternoon and evening, at the New Plainfield theatre, while at Proctor's popular playhouse capacity audiences were the rule throughout the day and the standing room only sign was in evidence. The same was true at the Bijou and Park theatres, where excellent performances were given. The play at the theatre was thoroughly enjoyed and the company was a fine one.

The "Bachelors' Dance" at the Hartridge School auditorium, the profits of which were also given to Plainfield charities, was one of the best given by the unmarried men and the place was thronged with society folks.

Xmas at All Souls' Church.

The Christmas festival of All Souls' church Sunday-school was held Wednesday afternoon. The room was beautifully decorated with evergreens and red berries and a fine Christmas tree well laden with gifts. The children played "Going to Jerusalem," and other popular games. Then Santa Claus in red and white, appeared and delighted the children with gifts and cornucopias of candy. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches and cocoa, cake and ice cream, were served. The children recited Christmas poetry and at an early hour the party broke up and everyone departed to their homes. The entire arrangements were successfully planned and executed by Miss Laura Osgood's class of fourteen young men and women.

Hockey Teams Play Tie Game.

The Clinton Avenue hockey team played the New Market team at the latter place, yesterday afternoon, and while neither side scored, the Plainfield boys played a fast game from start to finish. At the end of the first half there was no score and during the second half Emery shot a goal, but for some reason there was no referee and New Market refused to allow the goal to count. A return game will be played at New Market on Saturday, January 16, and on January 9 it will play the Y. M. C. A. team in this city.

Miss Edna Cole Entertains.

Miss Edna Cole, of West Second street, entertained a number of friends at her home, last night. The evening was spent playing games and listening to an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, after which refreshments were served.

Facing THE Future

Facing the future! We have just started to write 1909 over our letters for we have begun a new page in history, not only a new page in the world's history and in our national history but in our own personal history. What shall we write on the page? The first thing that we write on the page is the balance that we carry over from last year and from all the preceeding years of our lives. The experiences and habits of a man are carried over into the new year, habits which have become a little stronger and a little harder to break away from, but there is something inspiring in the thought of writing on a new page. It seems like a new chance for a man to live better. It is refreshing to hear a man say, "I will by the help of God live a better life this year." That is a good resolution and good resolutions are always in order. The beginning of the year is as good a time as any to make them. They say that "hell is paved with good intentions." Perhaps it is, but some one remarks: "There is such a thing as paving and repaving that hot place as often as to fill it up to the top." If a man has not kept all the resolutions he made last year, but has kept some of them, why, the keeping of some of them is good. Let him try a few more this year.

Here are two good resolutions for this year.

First. You are a Christian. Are you the Christian you might be? The Bishop of London in an address before the students of Yale University said that he continutlly asked himself this question: "What would my Lord do if He were the Bishop of London?" Now ask yourself the same question today? What would your Lord do if He were incarnated again and in your place? Say to yourself then, "I will be a better Christian this year. I will use all the means within my power to make me a better Christian. My aim will be so to live that the Lord will approve my life. The second resolution is this. I will not worry about the future. I will believe the faith which I profess to believe. This is my faith. God is a living presence in my life and there are no circumstances or conditipns where His power is not available for me. In every place, in every circumstance, His hand leads me and His right hand holds me. With all my ignorance as to the outcome of this year, I place my confidence in God.

It is not well for a man to think of the possible difficulties that may confront him this coming year, for the chances are that the things he worries about are not going to happen. Dr. Walsh of Fordham University tells us of an old friend of his who used to say, "I am an old man and have had many troubles but most of them have never happened." He is not the only man who has had worries of that sort. There are some natures that look on the future as holding out for them nothing but unhappiness, and so instead of facing the future with a smile of hopefulness, they say, "Well, let us hope for the worst." Or they parody the optimistic thought of Browning and say, "Cheer up, the worst is yet to come." If one trains his mind to expect the worst, he will make pessimistic grooves in his brain and all his thought will run in these grooves. We put into our future by our pessimistic thinking a great deal of sadness that God never intended should never be in our lives. We worry about possible ills and we are thereby unfitted for the tasks God has marked out for us. The opportunities come that are meant to bless but men are unfitted to seize them because of their chronic melancholy. These great opportunities should be met with all the vigor of one's being but worry so saps the strength that there is no power left to realize God's purpose. The eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews is a Roll of Honor of the men who accomplished wonderful things because of their faith in God and His purposes.

Our confidence should be as Whittier has expressed it.

"I know not where His islands lift their fronded palms in air.
I only know I cannot drift beyond
His love and care.

No, I cannot drift beyond that love and care. For God will carry out the plan that He has for my life. Now take your Bible and turn to the first chapter of Joshua. Read the word of Jehovah to Joshua. "I will not fail thee nor forsake thee, only be strong and very courageous for Jehovah thy God is with thee withersoever thou goest." That was the message of God to Joshua as he faced the future. Now turn over to the twenty-third chapter and you will read the outcome of that promise. "Now Joshua called all Israel and said unto them, I am old and well stricken in years, and ye have seen all that Jehovah, your God hath done, and ye know in your hearts and in your souls that not one good thing hath failed of all the good things, which Jehovah your God spake concerning you, all are come to pass unto you, not one thing hath failed thereof." God has not changed. He has a plan for your life, so as you face the future with all its problems and perplexities, face it with the calm confidence Joshua possessed, and you will likewise discover that not one of His good promises will fail you.

OPEN HOUSE AT URSINO POLICE STATION OPENED

Senator John Kean's New Year's Reception Eclipses All Records.

ALL THE "BIG GUNS" THERE.

State Leaders from Sussex to Cape May Call to Pay Their Respects to the Senior Senator.

State political leaders from all parts of New Jersey were guests of United States Senator John Kean at his annual New Year's reception yesterday at his Ursino residence, near Elizabeth. Governor Fort was unavoidably detained at Lakewood.

The reception at Senator Kean's home yesterday was the occasion for heart to heart talks upon subjects that are likely to engage the attention of the State Legislature. The Public Utilities bill was one of the principal topics of conversation.

Just now Republican leaders are repairing their fences for the fight that is expected when Senator Kean's term expires. This subject was quietly discussed by some of the State leaders and furnished food for talk among many of the Senator's guests. There was no formality about the reception. All day long guests kept going and coming in automobiles, on foot and in cabs and carriages. A contingent came from South Jersey in the morning headed by David Baird, of Camden, Republican leader of the Shrewsbury. Accompanying him were Representative Henry C. Loudenslager, of Atlantic City; Vivian M. Lewis, of Paterson, clerk in Chancery, and Theodore Strong, of Middlesex county.

There was the usual large host from Union county, including the Republican county chairman, Frank Smith; County Clerk James C. Calvert, the Assistant Postmaster, of Elizabeth, James White; Andrew McCardell, of this city; Sheriff Robert Kirkland, the Director, of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Benjamin King, and all the Union county Freeholders, who went to Senator Kean's residence immediately after their reorganization meeting; Hamilton F. Kean and Surrogate George T. Parrott. There were thirty in the Plainfield delegation.

Among other visitors were State Controller Henry J. West, of Camden; State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county; Alfred N. Dalrymple, Republican county chairman of Essex; Judge Booraem, of Middlesex; State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris county; Dr. Britton T. Evans, of Morristown; John R. Flavell, secretary of the Essex County Republican Committee; Sheriff H. Cooper Hatch, of Camden; Postmaster Alexander Yard, of Trenton, and Senator Voorhees, of Middlesex.

Scores of persons, including politicians and business men, called at Representative Charles N. Fowler's mansion, in Salem avenue, yesterday afternoon in response to the invitation extended to the public to attend his annual New Year's reception. Many of the political State leaders who were present at the reception given by Senator Kean called on Mr. Fowler.

Every one who called was given a few minutes' conversation with Mr. Fowler. His callers were treated to luncheon.

New Year's Reception Marks Department's Entrance to the New Structure.

MAYOR FISK WAS IN CHARGE.

Six Hundred People Call During the Afternoon and Are Shown About—Building Completely Equipped.

Plaisfield's hasdsome new police station at East Fourth and Sycamore streets was formally opesed, yesterday, when the department took possession and conducted a public reception in the afternoon from 2 until 6 o'clock. Fully 600 people, many of whom were women, accepted the invitation to call and they were shown about the building by members of the force. The affair was somewhat akin to the customary reception conducted by Mayor Charles J. Fisk at his office on New Year's Day and took its place.

The callers at the station was first introduced to the mayor and Chief Kiely in the latter's office, after which they were shown about by Captain Frederickson, Sergeant Herbert Overbaugh, Detective-Sergeant John Flynn and Rourdsman Morris Higgins. The regular patrolmen were also in attendance and assisted them in various ways. After the visitors had inspected the building from top to bottom they were served with lunch in the assembly room by Caterer Timbo.

Practically all the city councilmen and other officials called during the afternoon asd the guests also included Mayor Samuel Townsend and Councilman Charles L. Nichols, of the borough. The inspection was a great treat to most of the women as but few of them had any idea as to how the police department is housed or how it is conducted.

The new structure represents an outlay of about $30,000 and is one of the most completely equipped buildings of the kind in the State. It is two stories is height and is of a Renaissance style from designs by Tracy & Swartout. The lower floor comprises the city court room, Chief Kiely's office, Judge Runyon's office, the sergeant's room and the cell room in an extension. On the upper floor is the assembly room and dormitory for the patrolmen, the detective sergeant's room, where the Rogue's gallery is kept, shower baths and lockers. Everything is in hard wood finish and the building is heated by steam.

Directly back of the station of the same style of exterior construction is a barn for the patrol wagon and horse. It is fitted with three stalls and it is possible that some time in the future the hospital ambulance may be kept in it.

The cell room is constructed along new lines and has a separate compartment for women. There are eleven cells and one of them is padded for violent prisoners.

The general contractor for the construction of the building was Alexander Milne, who did all the carpenter work. The sub-contractors were as follows: Masonry, William Pangborn's Son; plumbing, George J. Tobin; tiling, R. B. Van Arsdale; painting, Woolston & Buckle; cell construction, W. T. Kirk Company; cornice work, Robert Jahn's Sons. Evarts Tracy was the supervising architect, and Shirley & Johnston installed the greater part of the furnishings.

The Common Council has not yet formally accepted the building and it will not be done until several minor changes ordered have been completed. These will be finished within the next few days.

Sang at Wedding Anniversary.

Miss S. Etta Raybert, of this city, rendered soprano solos at the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eastep Dearborn Jackson, of Dudley avenue, Westfield, Thursday night, and she was well received. Other features of the program were instrumental selections by Miss Bailey and recitations by Miss Savitz. An elaborate supper was served during the evening.

Surprised on Her Birthday.

Mrs. L. C. Van Nest, of 116 Watchung avenue, was tendered a surprise party last night in honor of her birthday. There were present guests from Irvington, Newark and Plainfield. After supper was served there was an informal program of vocal and instrumental music, including selections by Hervey Van Nest of amateur fame. Mrs. Van Nest was the recipient of many gifts.

UNION'S FREEHOLDERS RE-ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

The Union County Board of Freeholders met at 12 o'clock noon, yesterday, and effected an organization for the coming year. The first business was that of choosing a director and Benjamin King was re-elected. S. R. Ryno was re-elected clerk, William R. Codington county attorney, Dr. F. W. Westcott county physician.

The board consists of sixteen Republicans and four Democrats. Freeholder J. Hervey Doane was placed on the committees for jail inspection and soldiers' monuments, while Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur was placed on the committees for collector's accounts, auditing and legislative.

Entertained Their Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Goez entertained a large number of friends at their home New Year's Eve, there being guests from New York, Elizabeth and Plainfield. Mr. Goez presented his wife with a handsome Mathushek & Son piano player. A supper was served.

Century Cycle Run.

With Trenton as their objective point, four members of the Plainfield Cycle Club started at midnight Thursday on the annual century run, arriving at Trenton at 6 o'clock Friday morning. Returning, the start was made at 11:30 and the riders reached this city at 7:30 last night.

Miss Mary E. Ten Eyck.

Miss Mary E. Ten Eyck, a former resident of this city, died yesterday at her home in South avenue, Westfield. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church and was a regular attendant. The funeral will be held at her late residence tomorrow afternoon at 5:45.

Birthday Surprise.

A birthday surprise party was tendered Miss Ada I. Dennis, of East Second street, last night, and proved to be complete in every way. Instrumental and vocal music, games and refreshments were features.

Will Support a Bed.

The sum of $200 was received at All Souls' church on Sunday with which a bed will be maintained at Muhlenberg Hospital for the coming year.

Don't Overwork Nature

Your Kidneys Will Complain

Each organ of nature can do its own work, but no more. Healthy kidneys filter the blood, draining off all poisoning impurities. But when the are overtaxed trying to keep step with the demands made upon the rest of the system—by overwork, unwise eating and drinking, etc., they sopn fail to do their work as nature planned. Then it is that the slightest thing starts a general breakdown, and Bright's disease grips the system. Prompt treatment of the kidneys (the seat of the trouble) with the remarkably successful Menk's Reno Pills, a remedy expressly for kidney ills, is about the only way to cure and check such disorders and ward off dreaded diseases of the kidneys and bladder. To be had at all drug stores or a box of Reno Pills will be sent postpaid on receipt of fifty cents by CHARLES W. MENK, Newark, N. J.

May Robson in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," at New Plainfield Theatre tonight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," as played by May Robson, is a big surprise to theatre goers; it is not the tame mediocre comedy that one might be led to expect from the posters of "Aunt Mary," but a breezy and different sort of comedy that makes one laugh with a whole-souled spirit; the lines just scintilate with wit and humor and Aunt Mary "probably most likely" is the cause of it all; a big hearted woman of generous impulses, all bound up in her scape goat nephew. Miss Robson comes to the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

Miss Annie Russell will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night under the management of the Wagenhals and Kemper Company, in "The Stronger Sex," a new comedy by John Valentine. "The Stronger Sex" was a great success across the water, with a run of 285 nights in London and comes here direct from Weber's theatre, New York, where it ran for upwards of 150 nights. The scenery, costumes, company and accessories are the same as those used during the New York run and the performance here will be identical with the metropolitan production. Miss Russell's tour of the country will be mostly confined to the principal cities, and the preparations for the transportation of her company and production will be most elaborate. The magnitude of her scenic effects, wardrobe, properties and electrical apparatus will require special transportation, and she will travel in her own special car. The play deals with the subject of international marriage. The American heiress (Miss Russell) falls in love with the impecunious young Englishman of high degree. The Englishman at first more in love with the money than the girl is rash enough to let her find it out, and from that time on his troubles begin. By the means of heroic treatment the husband is brought to his senses and his knees at the same time and the bride makes a self supporting man out of what at first seemed unpromising material. Miss Russell's charm and delicacy of manner when in repose, and her fire and passion in dramatic scenes are well known and in the character of Mary Barrington she has ample opportunities for their display. She also has more than usual chances to exhibit some unusually stunning gowns, the creations of Madam Louise. She first comes in as a bride and her wedding dress is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. So is her dainty little "going away" gown which she dons for the honeymoon. Then there are house gowns and auto costumes in bewildering profusion. The company includes Oswald Yorke, Helen Tracy, Alma Kruger, Dore Davidson, William Wadsworth and many others of reputation.

Robert Edeson as Fred Trent in "The Call of the North," at New Plainfield Theatre on Monday, Jan. 4.

No explorer since Stanley has penetrated the uttermost fastnesses of the jungle tribes to the extent traversed by Fred Niblo and pictured by him in color and motion in his absorbing and entertaining "Travel-Talk" on "Africa." He will be at the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday night.

Unnecessary Question.

"Did Jarboy marry for money?"

"My dear fellow, evidently you haven't seen her."—Baltimore American.

DO IT NOW.

Plainfield People Should Not Wait Until It Is Too Late.

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due in most cases to the fact that the little kidney troubles are usually neglected until they become serious. The slight symptoms give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer goes gradually into the grasp of diabetes, dropsy, Bright's Disease, gravel or some other serious form of kidney complaint.

If you suffer from backache, headaches, dizzy spells; if the kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. Help the kidneys at once.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney disorders—they cure where others fail. Over one hundred thousand people have recommended them. Here's case at home:

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull aching in the small of my back and sharp pains when I stooped or lifted. I was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and getting a supply, I began their use. Two boxes fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended the remedy since to other persons suffering as I did."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

The boundary of the church is the world. Every church that lives for itself ought to die.—Rev. T. H. Marsh, Baptist, Aurora, Ill.

Success In God's Work.

Our personal success in work for God depends much upon our methods, for we hope to deal with men as we find them and not as we would desire them to be.—Rev. George Adams, Methodist, Brooklyn.

Noblest Virtue.

The noblest of virtues is that which impels one to stretch out the hand to save a fellow being and put him in the right path on which he can be of use to himself and his kind.—Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters, Baptist, New York.

Man's Life Chance.

A man's chance in life must not be determined by where he was born or by his inheritance, but by his personal worth. Every man must have a full chance to be all the man there is in him to be.—Rev. Dr. N. McGee Waters, Congregationalist, Brooklyn.

True Religion's Business.

It is the business of a true religion to restore society to its pristine patriarchal state, in which the family suggests the principle and brotherhood the spirit of the associated life of humanity.—Rev. Dr. C. Elwood Nash, Universalist, Los Angeles, Cal.

Fear of Life.

As people are afraid of death they are still more afraid of life, with its varied experiences. In almost every face there is written the story of trial in mind and soul. Only the fewest men and women show by their serene looks that they met the hard facts of life in a living faith.—Rev. George R. Gebauer, Unitarian, Duluth, Minn.

Abiding Greatness.

There is no such thing possible as abiding greatness where there are not within the man a tender, a quickly responsive and a loyal heart and a burning affection for God and for all humanity. Unless a man can love much and love as did the apostle, he can never fill any but a small and obscure place.—Rev. Henry Mottet, Episcopalian, New York.

Marks of Christ Within Us.

The power of attracting and the power of being attracted, the sense of unutterable joy that we find in being about our Father's business—these are some of the marks of the Christ within us. But there is one that overpasses and overmarks them all, which is the distinguishing mark of the Christ spirit in the man. It is the joy he feels in daily laying down his life for others.—Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, Unitarian, Washington.

Backbone Religion.

There are qualities in religion that appeal more directly to a man than to a woman. The first is hand grip. It must recognize human brotherhood. The second is backbone. It must have a surplus of courage. It must dare to do the right thing, however unpopular it may be. It must look sin between the eyes and not flinch. The religion that will appeal to the man who thinks must also be wide. It must be as impartial as the sun and as tolerant as summer.—Rev. Alan Hudson, Congregationalist, Brockton, Mass.

The Best Things.

A man can leave to his son a good farm, splendidly stocked and perfectly improved, and he can leave to his daughter a full bank account that will grow by itself if she leaves it alone. He can leave his children all his fortune of money and property at its full face value. But the best things in the world, the things that are beyond all estimate of money value, the priceless, everlasting things of life, the things that enrich the mind and endow the soul, no man or woman can inherit. We have to learn them and earn them, every one for himself in his own generation, in the same old way, beginning at the beginning.—Rev. Dr. Robert J. Burdette, Baptist, Los Angeles, Cal.

A Singing Religion.

If we are melancholic and gloomy, pessimistic and fault finding, we may be sure we are not in proper connection with the source of strength. God yearns to make us strong, and if we open our souls to the incoming of his power that will enable our spirit to sing. It is a singing religion, a religion that sings while it serves, a cheering, musical religion, that the world needs. And Christianity is that. There are enough grumblers and fault finders in the world, and it was intended that every Christian's life should be a song of cheer. Many an individual and many a home is enveloped in gloom, and if my life is a song I can drive away some of the world's sadness. It is a beautiful thing even to try to do that, and it is well worth living for.—Rev. Dr. John H. Prugh, Reformed, Pittsburg.

Can Never Escape God.

There are two beings that man can never escape. One is God. God is a tremendous fact in man's life. It is so now. It will be so forever. Man lives and moves and has his being in God, as the birds in the air, as the fish in the sea. Man can never escape God. The other being that man cannot escape is himself. Every man has to live with himself, whether he wants to or not. Some men would be very happy if they could get away from themselves, but they cannot. As man cannot escape God or himself, he can never know blessedness except as he gets in harmony with himself, and he comes to such harmony only as he gets right with God by surrendering himself to Jesus Christ, so that he will come to think as Christ thinks and to will as Christ wills and to love as Christ loves.—Rev. John Reid Shannon, Methodist Episcopal, Washington.

THE LION'S SHARE

By OCTAVE THANET

Author of: The Man of the Hour

(Copyright, 1908, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

Then, without preface, in brief, nervous sentences, spoken hardly with a quiver of a muscle or a wavering cadence of the voice, yet nevertheless instinct with a deadly earnestness, Mercer began to talk. He told of his struggling youth on the drained plantation, mortgaged so that after the interest was paid there was barely enough to set the meagerest living for mother and sister and little brother; of his accidental discovery of iron ore on the place; of his working as a common laborer in the steel mills; of his being "rooster," "strand-boy," "rougher," "heater," "roller," during three years while he was waiting for his chance; of his heart-draining toil; of his solitary studies.

"I never was the kind of fellow to make friends," he said, in his soft, monotonous voice, "so I expect I was the fonder of my own kin. I'd a mighty good mother, sir, and sister; and there was Phil—my little brother. We were right happy all together on the old place that's been in our family for 100 years, and it was all we asked to stay there; but it had every dollar of mortgage it could stand, and the soil all worn out, needing all kinds of things; and I wish you could have seen the makeshifts we had for machines. I was blacksmith and carpenter and painter—just 16, and not an especially bright chap, but mighty willing to work; and my mother and sis and I—we did a heap. When I stumbled on the ore I couldn't be sure, but I wrote to Aunt Rebecca Winter. She sent a man down. He looked up things. It would take a heap of money to work the mines, but it might be a big thing. She paid off the mortgage and took another. First to last, she's been mighty kind to us. She would have done more had we let her. So I went to Pittsburg and learned my trade, and I made enough to pay interest, and the people at home got a fairly good living. When I was 21 I was back home, and got a company started and put up a mill. You know how those things have to creep up. But there was ore, all right, and I understood my business and taught the hands. We'd a right sweet little mill. Well, I don't want to take up your time, suh. Those next 10 or 12 years were right hard work, but they were happy, too. We prospered; we helped the whole county prosper. We paid Aunt Becky. We were in good shape. We went through '93 paying our dividends just as regular and making them, too, though we didn't much more—it was close sailing. But we were honest; we made a mighty good article; and everybody trusted us. Then came the craze for mergers, and a number of us got together. Still we weren't very big, but we were big enough to be listed. I didn't want it, but some of the men thought it was a terrible fine thing to be 'Iron Kings.' That was how. Keatcham was looking over the country for fish for his net; he somehow heard that here was a heap of good ore and new mills. The first intimation we had was his secretary coming as a northern invalid—why, he stayed at our house because we were so sorry for him, the hotel being in new hands and not right comfortable. He seemed so interested in our mills, and bought some stock, and sent presents to Phil and my mother after he went."

"That was Keatcham's private secretary, you say?"

"Yes, suh, Atkins. You met him on the train—as sleek and deadly a little scoundrel as ever got rich quick. Oh, he's deep. Well, suh, you know the usual process. Convinced of the value of the property, Keatcham and one or two others set out to buy it. They got little blocks of it here and there. Then Atkins wrote me in confidence that some men were after the controlling interest and meant to squeeze us all out—offered to lend me money to buy—of course, on a margin. And I was plumb idiot enough to be tolled into his trap! I, who had never speculated with a dollar before, I didn't borrow his money, but I took all I could raise myself, and I bought enough to be sure I could control the next election. Then—the slump came, and after the slump the long, slow crumbling. I controlled the election all right, of course, but before the next one came I was ruined, and Keatcham put his own men in. I went desperately to New York. I didn't know how to fight those fellows; it was a new game. I didn't find Atkins. Maybe because that wasn't his name when I had known him. I was so sure that the property was good—as if that mattered! As if anything mattered with these gamblers who play with loaded dice and dope the horses they bet against! Phil had all his property in the mills; we all had. We mortgaged the house; we had too, to protect our stock. You know how the fight ended, and what happened at Cambridge. That isn't all. My wife—" He stood a little straighter, and the light went out of his eyes. "I told you I don't make friends easily, and I am not the kind of man women take to; all the same, the loveliest girl in the south loved me ever since I jumped over the mill-dam to save her rag doll, once, when she was visiting her aunt near us. I'd married, when we seemed prosperous. Now, understand me, I don't say it was my ruin and Phil's death that killed her and the baby; she had pneumonia, and it may be that seeing that paper by accident didn't turn the scale; but I do say that she had her last hours embittered by it. That's enough for me. When I got home with—with Phil, she was dead."

"Tough," said the colonel. He began to revise his impressions of Mercer.

"Wasn't it?" the other asked, with a simplicity of appeal that affected the listener more than anything he had heard. He jumped out of his chair and began pacing the room, talking more rapidly. "You're a man; you know what I wanted to do."

"Kill somebody, I suppose. I should."

"Just that. I ran Atkins to cover after a while through Endicott Tracy. That boy is one of the noblest fellows that ever lived; yes, suh. He was going to help poor Phil, Phil's roommate had told him. All those boys—look a-here, Col. Winter, if ever anybody talks to you about Harvard fellows being indifferent—"

"I shall tell him he can't get under the American surface. A Harvard boy will do anything on earth for his friends."

"They were mighty good to me. It was Endy found out about Atkins, just from my description of him. I found out about Keatcham for myself. And you are quite right—for a little while I wanted to kill them both. Looked like I just naturally had to kill them! But there was my mother. There was nobody to take care of her but Sis and me, and a trial for murder is terribly expensive. Of course, anybody can get off who has got money and can spend it; but it takes such an awful heap of money. And we were all ruined together, for what little was left was all in the company, and that promptly stopped paying dividends. I couldn't risk it. I had to wait. I had to go to work to support my mother, to pay Sis and her back; don't you see? We came here. I got a job, a well-paid one, too, through Endy's father, reporting on the condition of the mills—a kind of examiner. And the job was for Keatcham."

"Why did you take it? I know, though. You did it to familiarize him with your appearance, so that he would not be warned when your chance came."

"How did you know that?"

"A man I knew in the Philippines—a Filipino—was wronged by a white man, who took his wife and threw her aside when he tired of her. The girl killed herself. Her husband watched his chance for a year, found it at last—thanks to that very fact that his victim wasn't on guard against him—and sent his knife home. He'd been that fellow's servant. I picked the dead man up. That Filipino looked as you looked a minute ago."

"What became of the Filipino?" inquired his listener.

The colonel had not told the story quite without intention. He argued subconsciously, that if Mercer were a good sort under all, he would have a movement of sympathy for a more cruelly wronged man than he; if not, he would drive ahead to his purpose, whatever that might be. His keen eyes looked a little more gentle as he answered: "He poisoned himself. The best way out, I reckon. I should hate to have had him shot after I knew the story. But there was really no option. But I'm interrupting you. You did your work well and won Keatcham's confidence?"

"He isn't a very confiding man. I didn't see him often. My dealings were with Atkins. He didn't know that I had found him out; he thought that he had only to explain his two names, and expected gratitude for his warning, as he called it. He is slimy; but I was able to repay a little of my score with him. I was employed by more than Keatcham, and I saw a good many industrial back-yards. Just chance, I came on a clew, and Endy Tracy and I worked it up together. Atkins was selling information to Keatcham's enemies. We did not make out a complete case, but enough of one to make Keatcham suspect him, and at the right time. But that happened later—you see, I don't know how to tell a story even with so much at stake." He pulled out his handkerchief, and Winter caught the gleam of the beads on his sallow forehead. "It was this way," he went on. "At first I was only looking about for a safe chance to kill him, and to kill that snake of an Atkins; but then it grew on me; it was all too easy a punishment—just a quick death, when his victims had years of misery. I wanted him to wade through the hell I had to wade through. I wanted him to know why he was condemned. Then it was I began to collect just the cases I knew about—just one little section of the horrible swath of agony and humiliation and poverty and sin he and his crowd had made—the one I knew every foot of, because I'd gone over it every night I wasn't so dead tired I had to sleep. God! do you know what it is to have the people who used to be running out of their houses just to say howdy to you, curse you for a swindler or a fool or turn out of one street and down the other not to pass you? Did you ever have a little woman who used to give you frosted cake when you were a boy push her crape veil off her gray hair and hand you the envelope with her stock, with your handwriting on the envelope, and beg you—trying so hard not to cry, 'twas worse than if she had—beg you to lend her just half her interest money—and you couldn't do it? Did you—never mind. I said I waded through hell. I did! Not I alone—that was the worst—all the people that had trusted me! And just that some rich men should be richer. Why should they have the lion's share? The lion's share belongs to the lion. They are nothing but jackals. They're meaner than jackals, for the jackals take what the lion leaves, and these fellows steal the lion's meat away from him. We made honest money; we paid honest wages; folks had more paint on their houses and more meat in their storehouses, and wore better clothes Sunday, and there were more schoolhouses and fewer saloons, and the negroes were learning a trade instead of loafing. The whole county was the better off for our prosperity, and there isn't a mill in the outfit—and I know what I'm talking about—there isn't a shop or a mine that's as well run or makes as big an output now as it did when the old crowd was in. You find it that way everywhere; and that's what is going to break things down. We saw to all the little affairs; they were our affairs, don't you know? But Keatcham's new men draw their salaries and let things slide. Yet Keatcham is a great manager if he would only take the time; only he's too busy stealing to develop his businesses; there's more money in stealing a railway than in building one up. Oh, he isn't a fool; if I could once get him where he would have to listen, I know I could make him understand. He's pretty cold-blooded, and he doesn't realize. He only sees straight ahead, not all around, like all these superhumanly clever thieves; they have mighty stupid streaks. Well, I've got him now, and it is kill or cure for him. He can't make a riffle. I knew I couldn't do anything alone; I had to wait. I had to have stronger men than I am to help. By and by they tried their jackal business on a real lion—on Tracy. They wanted to steal his road. I got on to them first. I see a heap of people in a heap of different businesses—the little people who talk. They notice all right, but they can see only their own little patch. I was the fellow riding round and seeing the township. I pieced together the plot and I told Endy Tracy. He wouldn't believe me at first, because his father had given Keatcham his first start and done a hundred things for him. To be sure, his father has been obliged as an honorable man to oppose Keatcham lately, but Keatcham couldn't mean to burn him out that way. But he soon found that was precisely what Keatcham did mean. Then he was glad enough to help me save his father. The old man doesn't know a thing; we don't mean he ever shall know. We let him put up the best sort of a fight a man can with his hands tied while the other fellow is free. My hands are free, too. I don't respect the damned imbecile laws that let me be plundered any more than they do; and since my poor mother died last summer I am not afraid of anything; they are; that's where I have the choice of weapons. I tell you, suh, nobody is big enough to oppress a desperate man! Keatcham had one advantage—he had unlimited money. But Aunt Rebecca helped us out there. Colonel, I want you to know I didn't ask her for more than the bare grub-stake; it was she herself that planned our stock deal."

"For If You Find Him, You Will Find Him Dead."

"She is a dead game sport," the colonel chuckled. "I believe you."

"And I hope you don't allow that I was willing to have her mix herself in our risks. She would come; she said she wanted to see the fun—"

"I believe you again," the colonel assured him, and he remembered the odd sentence which his aunt had used the first night of their journey, when she expressed her hankering to match her wits against those of a first-class criminal.

"We didn't reckon on your turning up, or the complication with Archie. I wish to God we'd taken the boy's own word! But, now you know all about it, will you keep your hands off? That's all we ask."

"Well,"—the colonel examined his finger nails, rubbing his hands softly, the back of one over the palm of the other—"well, you haven't quite told me all. Don't, unless you are prepared to have it used against you, as the policemen say before the sweat-box. What did you do to Keatcham to get him to go with you so like Mary's little lamb?"

We'll Start You "Housekeeping"

—or if you're already "started," we'll help you refurnish! We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.
2nd—Whether purchase is one, or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!
3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.
4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.
5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

BRYAN SENDS GREETING TO THE FARMER-ORATOR

Among the New Year's greetings received yesterday by James E. Martine, none, says the farmer-orator, is more cherished than one from William Jennings Bryan. The letter, which has taken its place beneath the covers of a scrap-book containing letters from famous Democrats during the past four decades, contains this cheering message to the optimistic Jerseyman:

"We cannot give up the fight even if we wanted to, and I have no desire to. We must continue to do battle for Democratic principles and for Democratic policies, and I shall find just as much pleasure in co-operating as a private citizen with other Democrats as I would have found in being President. I hope we may have many opportunities to renew our very pleasant acquaintance."

THE CLASS OF 1908, P. H. S., HOLDS ITS FIRST REUNION.

The class of 1908 of the city high school held its first reunion at the Fanwood Fire hous last night. Forty young people were present and twenty dances were on the program. A collation was served after the tenth dance and William Lambert the class president, made a short speech in which he told of what every member of the class is now doing.

Miss Sara Sanderson, the vice-president, was the chairman of the committee in charge of the affair.

1009 FORD, 4 Cylinder, 20 H. P., with Magneto and 3 Lamps, $850; Roadster $825; Landaulette $950. F. o. b. DETROIT

SPECIFICATIONS.

ENGINE—Four-cylinder, 3¾ bore x 4-inch stroke, 20 H. P. conservative rating.

CYLINDERS—Cast in one block, top removable, affording easy access to all parts of the engine. In case you should let your engine freeze and crack a cylinder, you can buy the entire block of 4-cylinders for the very low price of $25.00. This price is less than most factories charge for one cylinder, and removes the only possible objections a man could have against this method of construction.

IGNITION—Ford low tension magneto generator, built as part of the fly wheel. No gears, belts, brushes or contact points to give trouble. So simple in construction and so positive in operation, that it looks as though it would last forever without any attention from the owner. This system removes all battery trouble, one of the most annoying and expensive troubles.

STEEL—Heat treated Vanadium steel throughout. No car at $5,000.00 has higher grade, for none better can be bought. We defy any man to break a Ford Model T spring, axle, shaft, gear, or other part with any test less than 50 per cent more severe than would be required to put any other steel in the junk pile.

It has taken Ford two years and cost him $200,000.00 to acquire the analysis and the heat-treating and quenching formulas of this wonderful steel, as they are his own secrets.

LUBRICATION—No pumps, tubes or glasses to give trouble. The fly wheel acts as the distributing agent, and as long as there is a drop of oil in the tank your engine and transmission is sure to be taken care of.

TIRES—Ford Model T weighs only 1,200 pounds, therefore will take you more miles and cost you less for tires than any other five-passenger car in the world. The tire cost is really about the only expensive part of the running of an automobile. Be sure and give this subject your most critical examination before buying a car, as it means a good many DOLLARS in your pocket every time you wear out a set of tires.

HERE ARE THE FACTS—If a manufacturer designs and makes his car so heavy that he must equip it with a 32x4-inch tire,
It will cost you for a set of four tires.....$120.00
Four tires for a Model T Touring Car will cost..... 74.50
Difference saved every time you must buy a set of tires....$ 54.50

This will buy a lot of gasoline and oil. All tires, regardless of size, are guaranteed by the tire manufacturer to run the same number of miles. So do not let anybody tell you differently. Ask them to show you the tire guarantee and it will show for itself.

DELIVERIES—We are booking orders for deliveries in rotation as received, or by placing a small deposit with your order we will deliver you a car when you want it in the spring.

BE SURE TO SEE the Ford exhibition at the Grand Central palace auto show January 1 to January 7.

SERMONS ON THE 'QUAKE

Rev. Dr. Chambliss, Rev. L. R. Howard and Others Talk on the Catastrophe.

THE LESSONS IT TEACHES.

Ministers Tell of the Terrible Need of the Survivors and Urge Their People to Help in Relief Work.

In many local pulpits yesterday, the pastors dwelt at length of the Italian earthquake, picturing the catastrophe and telling of the urgent need of funds with which to pursue relief work.

At Hope Chapel.

Rev. L. R. Howard preached a sermon at Hope chapel last night suggested by the great calamity in Sicily and Southern Italy. The text was from Luke 13:4; "Those eighteen upon whom the tower in Siloam fell and killed them, think ye that they were offenders above all the men that dwell in Jerusalem? I tell you nay; but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

"How to reconcile the belief in the unfailing goodness of God with occasioned terrible calamities is a very real problem to many sincere men and women," said Rev. Mr. Howard. "They cannot see how a good God who loves his people could send thousands of them to a sudden and horrible death. Among the ancient Hebrews, as among certain portions of our people, there was the comparatively simple explanation of this difficulty, namely, that all who suffered thus must have done wrong and were being punished.

"Such a view is impossible today, especially impossible to those who have learned anything from the words and life of Jesus. They realize that God permits suffering to come to men entirely without its being an evidence of moral weakness in them. In other words, the life and death of Jesus has taught them that God is not himself unjust, although permitting things that are unjust and things that are terrible to happen. The unjust and terrible occurrence is overruled by God's goodness, so as to accomplish greater good.

"In places where the life and death of Christ have not given their testimony to the loving character of God, such terrible calamities are naturally regarded as an outburst of Divine indignation. Surely if it were the way of the Most High to be moved by fierce passions, it would be hard to imagine any means by which it could be more terribly displayed. But to Christians, God is not one who would shift the working of the mighty order of the Universe to his petty caprice, or alter its regular course in a fling of spiteful anger, to bring a physical punishment upon his helpless creature, man. To Christians, God is one who by the ways of his orderly government of the Universe, causes his rain, whether of water or of fire, to fall alike upon the just and the unjust.

"The cross of Christ, with its patient acceptance of bitterness and death, as a part of a loving Father's will, is the main ground of this Christian assurance. As another has said: 'This is not the best of all possible worlds, except as the training ground of immortal spirits. Christ never pretended that it was, and especially warned men that trouble awaited them.' The lesson is that every life is in danger of a destruction of which this is merely typical, if it be without faith in God. Life in this world is always liable to suffering and only those have learned to live it well who have learned by faith to bear whatever comes with a brave and reverent heart. A man with faith in God's goodness sees the things which seem bad changed for him, and a certain good in them that he did not suspect is made his own. Life is intolerable without such faith. Especially is it intolerable to the mind which is contemplating such scenes of destruction. Great disaster always turns many hearts to God and one of the purposes of pain and death, for individuals and for the race, is surely to teach the need of more complete dependence upon God and fuller development of the life of the spirit.

"With this lesson learned, the second and even greater lesson, which like this, is a lesson of the death of Christ, as well as the lesson of great calamities, is that all men are brothers under the Father in Heaven and there is at all times a crying need of sympathy and helpfulness from man to man. The death of Christ has taught thousands upon thousands to live life without fear because of faith, and to live a life of service to mankind, because of common kinship with God in Christ. So the great lessons of the disaster are those lessons also, man cannot live satisfactorily without faith and with-

IN DEFAULT OF PAYMENT, TAKEN TO COUNTY JAIL

Failure on the part of John H. Kimball, of Westfield, to settle the judgment of $250 obtained by Sidney E. Frazee, in the District court for damages resulting from the attacks of a bulldog owned by the former, led to his incarceration in the county jail this morning. The arrest was made by Constable John Manley, of this city, at the instance of Isaac P. Runyon, counsel for Mr. Frazee.

The action was in tort and in view of the fact that Mr. Kimball is not a freeholder, it is said, a capias was issued against the body. Mr. Kimball was arrested this morning while on his way to business and taken to Elizabeth, where he is still detained. It is said that he is financially unable to settle the judgment of $250, but that he owns some very fine chickens, which he values at $400 and which, it is said, he is willing to sacrifice to settle with Mr. Frazee. Up to noon today no efforts had been made to secure Mr. Kimball's release, but it is understood that his friends expect to arrange for this before night.

DESCRIBES SATAN AT Y.M.C.A. MEN'S MEETING

The picture of Satan showing him as having horns, cloven hoofs and a spear shaped tail is a misconception, according to the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting yesterday afternoon, A. F. Kottcamp, religious director of the association of New Haven, Conn. His own idea of Satan was that he is a being of power, one of high dignity, and quoted the Scripture to show that Christ considered the devil as possessed of highest intelligence, and an enemy to be reckoned with accordingly.

"Binding the Strong Man" was the subject of the discourse. The speaker said that Satan himself was responsible for the popular conception for he desired to make himself absurd in order to throw men off their guard, and cause them to disconnect his power. Sin was declared to be Satan's armour, for it was the most natural thing for men to be sinful and to do things displeasing to God, therefore the devil's greatest advantage lay in the folly of men. Scorning ordinary weapons, he works through the natural inclinations of men and for that reason it requires great effort to cast out this "strong man;" to become a Christian one must possess strong character because of the many evil temptations.

Series of Special Sermons.

Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, announces a series of special sermons for Sunday evenings, continuing until the last of March. The first one was delivered last night on the topic "What does it mean to be baptized with fire?" The other themes follow: January 17, "What is the Unpardonable Sin?" January 24, "Is it Possible to Live Without Worrying?" January 31, "Why Should I Make a Confession of Faith?" February 7, "How Can a Man Love His Enemies?" February 14, "Do Temptations Come From God?" February 21, "How Can we Account for the Universal Longing for Some Kind of Religion?" February 28, "Am I Dealing Fairly With God?" March 7, "How Rich is it Right To Be?" March 14, "How May I Know That I Have Been Born Again?" March 21, "What is it to Live?" March 28, "Is Jesus Christ Coming Again?"

Special Services at Hope Chapel.

Week of prayer services will be held at Hope chapel every night this week, but Saturday. The leaders will be as follows: Tonight, F. H. Andrews; Tuesday night, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie; Wednesday night, Frank Rimmer, assisted by Christian Endeavor Society; Thursday night, Judge W. N. Runyon; Friday night, W. H. Webster, assisted by Boys' Club. The church choir will render special music at each service, including solos.

Will Celebrate Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Dixon, formerly of this city, but now of Newark, will celebrate their tenth wedding anniversary tonight at the residence of Mrs. B. Ellison, 25 Chestnut street, Newark. Guests will be present from Albany, N. Y.; New York, Philadelphia, Perth Amboy, Newark and Plainfield. The floral decorations will be red and green.

At House Party in Adirondacks.

Among the guests in a large house party spending the holidays at Saranac Inn, Saranac Lake, who are entertained by Cleveland H. Dodge, under the supervision of George W. Perkins, of New York, is Dr. Norman H. Probasco, of West Seventh street.

ANNIVERSARY DISCOURSE

Rev. A.E.Finn Preaches Special Sermon Marking Completion of 5 Years Labor.

"TOUCH OF A MASTER HAND."

"Before the Church of God There Lies a Continent of Opportunity," the Pastor Says.

The completion of the fifth year of the pastorate of Rev. A. E. Finn at the Park Avenue Baptist church occurred yesterday, and in the morning he preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion, as has been his custom every year. Mr. Finn's theme was "The Touch of a Master Hand." In part he spoke as follows:

"Five years ago today we began our work together as pastor and people. It is not my purpose this morning to review the work of these years, what has been accomplished can readily be seen by a careful reading of the annual report printed in our church paper. We would indeed be most ungrateful if we did not pause to acknowledge our gratitude to God for what He has permitted us to accomplish. During these five years tasks have been undertaken which to many seemed impossible of accomplishment but by the grace of God success has been attained and we give God the praise and the glory for it.

"But what of the future? This is what concerns us more than the past. The past has an inspiring message for us in that it tells us that the same God who helped us to mount seemingly impossible barriers is still with us to help us to do great things for the Kingdom of God. And so in the words of William Cary let me say to you this morning, 'Expect great things from God. Attempt great things for God.

"Before the church of God there lies a continent of opportunity. A continent bounded on the north by the goodness of God on the east by the command of God, on the south by the promises of God, and on the west by the judgment day. A continent whose topography consists of mountains of exaltation, valleys of humiliation, oceans of love, rivers of grace, and fields white for the harvest. This continent God commands us to possess. How shall we possess it? How shall the Christian bring his fellow man to the feet of Jesus Christ?

"Can it be done through legislation? There is nothing that has been longer or more thoroughly tried. Tacitus said, 'When the state is most corrupt then the laws are most multiplied.' God gave Moses the most perfect code ever written upon which all good laws have since been founded. Alfred the Great incorporated the ten commandments and the Golden Rule in the English laws a thousand years ago but they are far from being the basis of English character. Laws are necessary, without them living would be intolerable, but Christ recognized the fact when He came to fulfill the law that man could not be saved by a legislative act.

"Can it be done by Education? Education is doing much toward it. Education puts a new phase on everything, it lends diction to the pen of Longfellow and Dickens; beauty to the brush of a da Vinci and a Raphael; creation to the chisel of Phidias and Angelo; magnetism to the oratory of a Sumner and a Gladstone and victory to the sword of Wellington and Grant, but education while aiding man very much in his upward climb cannot give to man that moral culture which comes only by contact with Jesus. The educated Paul said 'The world by wisdom knew not God.'

Jesus Christ solved the problem of reaching mankind and showed the method at the same time, when the leper appealed to him for help he touched him and his leprosy was cleansed. When the blind men cried out, 'Have mercy on us He touched them and their eyes were opened. His was the touch of a master hand. The way to reach the world today is the same as it was then, by touching it. There is no other substitute. Political theories, philosophical vagaries, ethical systems, sociology or anything else cannot be substituted for the personal touch.

"Your field of operation is the life that lies next to you and you cannot delegate that work to anyone else. There was a time when the world and the church did business by the circularizing method. But today the world has adopted Christ's method of doing business and the best and most prosperous firms are now depending upon the personal touch of their representatives to sell their goods and to do their business. And this is the method that will bring success to any church. The method of personal touch."

The following members have died during the past five years: Mrs. Martha Moss, Mrs. Nelson Runyon, Mrs. Mary J. Hawkins, Mrs. Nellie J. Weeks, Miss Isabella Van Winkle.

NEW POSTAGE STAMPS ONE OF MANY COLORS.

Books of stamps containing many of the new issues are now ready according to word received by Postmaster Monfort, at Cincinnati, O. The colors are: one cent, green; two cent, red; three cent, purple; four cent, brown; five cent, dark blue; eight cent, olive; ten cent, dark blue; six cent, orange. These will be issued as follows: Ten cent, yellow, Jan. 5; thirteen cents, sea green, Jan. 9; fifteen cents, light blue, Jan. 13; fifty cent, lavender, Jan. 9; one dollar, pink, Jan. 9.

At a conference with philatelists at Washington on Jan. 1, Postmaster General Meyer announced that he is heartily in favor of a special issue of Lincoln centenary stamps. The new stamps will all bear the portrait of Washington except the penny variety, which will have a picture of Franklin.

McLaughlin Spilled Some Chatter.

Peter McLaughlin, who hails from South Plainfield, got fresh on Park avenue, Saturday night, and handed out a line of talk to passersby that made him a nuisance. He was with a party of friends but they skipped at the approach of Patrolman Sweeney and the cop ran him in. He was penitent in the city court, this morning, and Judge Runyon told him to hike it back to the village on the Lehigh Valley.

Week of Prayer Services.

The week of prayer will be observed at the Park Avenue Baptist church, this week, the topics will be as follows: Monday, "A Question of Ability;" Tuesday, "A Question of Agreement;" Wednesday, "A Question of Missions;" Thursday, "A Question of Willingness;" Friday, "A Question of Daily Bible Reading." The services will begin each night at 8 o'clock.

Eleventh Straight Game.

The Y. M. C. A. Boys team smothered the Elizbeth boys Saturday at Elizabeth in a 40 to 14 score. This was the elevents straight victory for the Plainfield youngsters. In all of their games they have made big scores against their opponents. Goals: Walker 3, Manley 3, Ulmer 6, Neylor 3, Campbell 5, Wales 1, Gerber 2, Galladet 2, Dolsen 2. Referee, W. E. Canns.

Gun Club Shoot.

John Wirth captured the sweep takes at the Independent Gun Club shoot Friday afternoon. In his trap shooting at 200 yards he made 28 out of a possible 30 and again 27 out of a possible 30. Elmer Cooley, a new member, who recently came here from New York, scored best in the pistol shooting at 50 yards. He used a Colt's 19-9.

Temple Sends Greetings.

At the close of the morning service at the First Baptist church, yesterday, the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, received, and read a greeting from the Temple Baptist church, signed by its pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson. It was crafted at the first service of the Temple Baptist church as an independent body.

Township Committee Organizes.

The Fanwood Township Committee has organized for the coming year by electing I. G. Walker chairman and W. S. Terry treasurer. The other member of the committee is H. C. Meyer.

Fire Committee Meeting.

The North Plainfield fire committee will meet tomorrow night in the fire hall at which time the call men will be sworn in. Mayor Townsend and other borough officials will be present.

Schools Re-open.

All of the public schools in both the city and borough resumed the work today, following the Christmas vacation.

WHAT'S AT THE THEATRE

Bill for the Coming Week at the New Plainfield Sure to Please Patrons.

INTRODUCES POPULAR STARS.

Robert Edeson and Annie Russell in New Plays and Frederic Thompson's Big Circus Production Among Bookings.

The dramatic menu as prepared by Manager Counihan for local playgoers the coming week, is again replete with alluring attractions and the appetite of New Plainfield theatre patrons is sure to be satisfied. The list of offerings is even still better than that of the week just passed and beside introducing two well known stars for their first local appearance embodies one of the Liberty theatre's greatest successes. Altogether the bookings would be hard to improve upon.

The boards will be held tonight by Robert Edeson, late star of "Classmates," and "Strongheart," who comes to Plainfield for the first time in the virile play by George Broadhurst entitled, "The Call of the North." It is based upon Stewart Edward White's widely enjoyed novel, "Conjuror's House," and only recently completed a long run at the Hudson theatre, New York. The fact that Mr. Broadhurst is the author of "The Man of the Hour," "An International Marriage" and that side-splitting comedy of other days, "What Happened to Jones," is certain to convince the skeptics that the play is all that is claimed for it. The production is under the direction of Henry B. Harris, who has spared no expense in the scenic equipment. The company of players supporting Mr. Edeson comprises several actors and actresses well known to Plainfielders.

Tomorrow night, another star who appears annually on Broadway in a big production, will come to Plainfield for her initial appearance. Miss Annie Russell's popularity in the metropolis and elsewhere is unquestioned and in her presentation of "The Stronger Sex" she will undoubtedly become a local favorite. The play completed a long engagement at Joe Weber's theatre, Saturday night, and is now making a brief tour of the principal eastern cities previous to locating in Chicago. The production also has the prestige of a year's run in London and will be given here with the original cast, scenery and accessories which were seen there. The scenery is especially elaborate, requiring three handsome "sets." The first act shows the interior of Claridges Hotel in London; the second, the heroine's town house in Park lane, and the third, her summer villa at Cowes. The costuming is especially noteworthy, Miss Russell wearing several gowns of great beauty.

Fred Niblo, the humorist-traveler, who delighted an audience at the playhouse last week with his lecture on "Africa," will return Wednesday night in another of the series entitled, "Egypt." These travelogues are superbly illustrated with motion pictures and highly colored views and should not be missed by anyone, especially those who have a fondness for travel and desires to see what the Old World looks like.

Thursday night at the theatre will be devoted to another of the popular "try-out" performances that are drawing big crowds. The bill of "would-be thespians" will be augmented by high class moving pictures and illustrated songs. Friday night, the successful fun show, "Hello Bill," will be the attraction.

The week will be closed on Saturday with matinee and night performances of Frederic Thompson's mammoth production of Margaret Mayo's love romance, "Polly of the Circus." It ran all last season at the Liberty theatre and since beginning a tour outside the metropolis has been drawing packed houses. Miss Fay Wallace will be seen as "Polly" and the management has provided an exceptionally strong supporting cast. The big circus scene, which is one of the most accurate ever put on the stage, will be presented here in its entirety.

A Two Hours' Show.

Owing to the popularity due to the inauguration of refined vaudeville the management of the Park theatre have added another vaudeville feature beginning today and put on another reel of the latest motion pictures making six pictures in all. The performance is now extended to two hours.

Represents the Kalkhoff Company.

Charles B. Morse, of Franklin place, who has lately been associated with the Robert L. Stillson Company, and who was for five years publication manager of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, now represents the Kalkhoff Company, printers, 251 William street, New York city.

LIEUT. ROGERS MEETS WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Friends in this city received word today of a serious accident that befell Lieutenant N. Pendleton Rogers, Jr., while coasting, yesterday, at Tuxedo, N. Y. The bob on which he was riding with some friends upset suddenly and threw the party into the roadway. Lieutenant Rogers was rendered unconscious and when picked up and carried to a nearby house was found to have sustained severe injuries.

An examination brought out that the former Plainfielder had a compound fracture of the thigh and a severe fracture of one leg, both bones being broken. His parents were summoned from Fort Hamilton, where they have been living in order to be near him while at his post, and they telegraphed to this city for Dr. Endicott. The latter dressed the injuries and left the patient in a comfortable condition.

Lieutenant Rogers has hosts of friends in Plainfield as the family resided on East Front street until after his graduation from West Point and appointment to Fort Hamilton.

TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL GRADUATION EXERCISES

The Sunday-school session at Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon was of special interest, it being marked by the annual graduation exercises in the various departments. Twenty-four children were promoted from the beginners' department, of which Mrs. H. E. Gayle is the superintendent, to the primary department, of which Mrs. J. M. Tier is the superintendent; twenty-three from the primary department to the junior department of which Miss Mabel Wilson is the superintendent, and twenty-two from the junior department to the intermediate.

In connection with the graduation exercises the children recited verses of Scripture, the Apostles' Creed, books of the Bible, etc., comprising a review of the past year's work. The graduates each received a diploma, while those going from the primary department were presented with Bibles. The presentations were made by Superintendent F. E. Smith and Assistant Superintendent H. J. Martin, Sr. An additional pleasure was the interesting address by the pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, who congratulated the graduates upon their past achievement and wishing them a bright and happy New Year. The attendance at the school yesterday was 440, one of the largest in its history, and in addition there was a large number of friends of the school present.

FUNERAL OF BERNARD EGEL.

Service at His Father's Home Attended by Delegation from Holy Cross Boys' Club.

The funeral of Bernard Egel, the young son of George Egel, of Somerset street, was held at the home of his father yesterday afternoon. It was attended by many relatives and friends and a large delegation from the Holy Cross Boys' Club, of which he was a member. The service was conducted by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church. Ten choir boys from the former's church, assisted by four men, in charge of H. Raymond Loder, sang three selections: "The Strife Is O'er," "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Paradise, O Paradise." There were many handsome floral pieces.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: David Weiss, a cousin of the young man; Herbert Stine, Victor Tillotson; Aaron Higgins, Edward Schorb and Bertram Miller, members of the Holy Cross Boys' Club.

Large Audience at Y. M. C. A.

The musical services at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday drew an audience which more than filled the spacious rooms of the association building. Mrs. John Gray Foster led the meeting and in a short address extended new year's greetings. Dr. Waldo accompanied the singing of hymns with his 'cello, besides rendering several solos. Miss Ursula Rowland and Miss Sarah Schuyler sang Christmas solos, and five children from Warren chapel Sunday school formed a quintette, singing "the Child Jesus."

All Attendance Records Broken.

All records of attendance were broken at the Proctor theatre last week. There was not a single day during the holidays that the beautiful new playhouse was not crowded from pit to gallery. New pictures will be offered this week and the Cameraphone sketches will include "Amateur Night," "Are'nt You the Girl," "Dr. Cure-All."

FOR STRICKEN ITALIANS

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph to Lecture at First M.E. Church, Thursday Night.

BIG BENEFIT IS PLANNED.

Local Church People Co-operate with The Daily Press in an Effort to Raise Funds for Relief of Earthquake Victims.

To augment the already rapidly increasing relief fund for the benefit of the destitute in Messina, Riggio and other towns in Southern Italy affected by the recent earthquake disaster, The Daily Press has arranged for a benefit lecture and musical entertainment to be given at the First M. E. church Thursday night. Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, who has traveled extensively in the earthquake regions, will give an illustrated talk. His subject will be "The Earthquake Zone of Italy," and his remarks will be illustrated by a series of excellent stereopticon slides. In connection with this lecture, there will be appropriate Italian music, both vocal and instrumental.

The suggestion for this benefit lecture and concert comes from A. E. Moore and he has been made chairman of the active committee on arrangements. Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, when seen at his home Saturday night, immediately consented to give the lecture, and the application for the use of the First Methodist church auditorium was granted yesterday, when the trustees of that church unanimously voted the use of the edifice for the benefit fund lecture. The request was made through Rev. Dr. Abel C. McCrea, pastor of the church.

Announcement of the lecture was made at the various churches of the city and borough by the pastors at the services yesterday, and further announcement was made at the schools and theatres today. Tickets are fifty cents and may be secured at The Daily Press office and various other places to be announced tomorrow. A feature of the sale which will allow for anonymous contributions to the fund, is that no change will be given to ticket purchasers unless at their request. The donation relief fund now amounts to $150. The expense of the lecture will be borne by this paper, so that every penny secured by contributions and the sale of tickets will be sent by The Daily Press direct to the New Jersey Red Cross Society, of which Governor Fort is president.

The Daily Press acknowledges these contributions to the fund being raised through this paper.

Previously acknowledged:

E. R. Ackerman	$20.00
J. Herbert Case	10.00
James T. Closson	25.00
Rev. J. A. Chambliss	5.00
Received today:
Dr. P. J. Zeglio	25.00
Park Avenue Baptist Sunday Communion offering	24.00
Alexander Millar	10.00
Mrs. F. W. Runyon	5.00
Rev. W. E. Honeyman	5.00
S. R. Struthers	1.00
A. Friend	30.00

The first contribution to the local fund was made on Saturday by Ernest R. Ackerman, president of the Lawrence Cement Company and State Senator from Union county, who wrote as follows:

"The appalling calamity in Italy prompts a world wide sympathy for those who are suffering from the effects of the great disaster. At a time when our own country experienced, in California, a similar catastrophy, all the nations of the world, including Italy, stood ready to render aid.

"It occurs to me it is most appropriate for our nation to lend a helping hand and with that thought in mind I gladly take this occasion to start a fund in Plainfield for the relief of the afflicted, and enclose with this a check for $20.00."

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

At the meeting of the Township Committee held Friday in Thornton's hotel, in New Market, these officers were elected: Chairman, William Hamilton; treasurer, George Harris; township physician, Dr. W. J. Nelson; counsel, Reed & Coddington. Another meeting will be held the first Thursday in January.

A. L. Burdick, of Brookside avenue, has removed to Roselle to resume his position as tax collector, to which he was elected in November.

Miss Julia Richards has returned to her home after a long visit with her aunt, Mrs. Frank Gregory, of Bound Brook.

Robert Horn, of Brooklyn, has returned to his home after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horn.

Miss Marjorie Fullerton, of Perth Amboy, has returned to her home after a visit with friends in the village.

John Tingley, of Dunellen, spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. George Arrowsmith, of Church street.

One of the largest crowds seen skating on the lake this season enjoyed the sport Friday.

Peter Gregory, of Bound Brook, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. William Richards, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. McDonough visited friends in North Plainfield Friday.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mayor Harry J. Swackhamer received a hearty welcome when he appeared at the meeting of the borough Council New Year's Day, it being the first time since his recent illness that he had been out of doors. John C. Dilts, the liveryman, took the Mayor in one of his comfortable closed carriages. The new councilmen seated were Firman Gise and George Huff. Abner Coriell was appointed borough clerk. These officials were reappointed: David S. Campbell, recorder; W. L. Hetfield, Jr., counsel; J. Sliner, marshal and Wilson S. Frederick, Edward Pennock and Dr. Thomas H. Platt, Jr., members of the Board of Health. The committeemen will be named later.

The music rendered at the New Year's services at the Methodist church was especially good. A quartette was composed of these singers: Miss Ella Dutcher, alto; Miss Elizabeth Herlich, soprano; W. W. Giddes, tenor, and Ray W. Dutcher, bass. Miss Ethel Tinsman and W. W. Giddes sang solos. The instrumentalists were Miss Stella Eich, piano, and John W. Dutcher, violin.

Sixteen probationers were taken into the Methodist church at the communion services yesterday morning. Twenty others were accepted on probation and there were several confessions of faith. The pastor, Rev. E. C. Dutcher, preached an excellent sermon at night, his theme being "The Successes and Failures of the Past Year and How They Should be Utilized."

The two lots on North avenue now occupied by George Huff's express office, have been sold by the Todd's estate to Michael Gallagher, who expects to erect a brick store building. Space will be left at the side for a driveway to the livery stable in the rear.

A suite of six rooms has been fitted up in the Brakeley building on North avenue for the Oriole Boys' Club. The original quarters in the Ratti building did not prove suitable for the purpose.

The corner lots now occupied by the Dunellen Coal Co. are reported to have been purchased by the Jersey Central. The piece is said to have been sold at a liberal advance.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry preached a New Year's sermon at the Presbyterian church yesterday.

NORTH BRANCH.

Already the congregation of the Reformed church at Middlebush is planning for the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of its organization, which will be held on March 19. The edifice has recently been greatly improved and thoroughly renovated at a cost of about $1,500. Of this amount $1,320 was raised by subscription at one service.

Miss Ethel Waldron, Charles Waldron and William Bunn, of North Branch, went to Plainfield Wednesday evening to attend a party given in honor of the twenty-first birthday of Irving Waldron, formerly a resident of this place. He was presented with a handsome gold watch fob by his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Derbeek, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hall and Miss Bessie Hall have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Phillips at South Branch.

Mrs. Charles Barker entertained the Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church at her home at Pluckemin Friday afternoon.

John E. Bush, of this place, has rented the farm of County Engineer Grant Davis, near Whitehouse, for the ensuing year and will move there soon.

Mrs. Henry Layton, of South Branch, has gone to Long Branch to care for her sister, Mrs. C. Housel, who is very ill.

Miss Elizabeth Field, of North Branch, has returned from Paterson, where she spent the holiday vacation with relatives.

Miss Anna L. Case, of Plainfield, has been spending a few days with relatives at South Branch.

Miss Mabel Duyckinck, of Lamington, is suffering from a severe attack of tonsilitis.

WESTFIELD.

Week of prayer services commenced in the Westfield churches last evening with special services at each church, and services will be held each evening up to next Saturday. After that there will be a series of union meetings at the various churches.

Mrs. J. H. Wells, of Elm street, Westfield, died Thursday evening after an illness of several months. She leaves a husband and two small children.

NO TRADING STAMPS, BUT MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

January White Sale Begins Wednesday Morning

SPECIALS---Muslin Underwear, Embroideries, White Goods

Thousands of Pretty Fresh Garments of Undermuslins, Eight Thousand Yards Embroidery, Fifteen Cases White Goods

These were collected the past several months, at intervals whenever we were able to secure something better than usual; for we intended months ago that this white sale should attract your attention and its values that we meant to attract it with, such values as will call to your attention and impress you with our motto—No Trading Stamps but more for your money.

The low grade merchandise, the unworthy kind, that are made up especially for sales to catch the eye and not for wear, finds no room here. We recommend everythng we sell, and stand back of our recommendation. The white goods and embroideries will especially commend themselves to those who purchase now—because of the economy and the variety of the first selection.

FIGHTING TO RESTORE THE LINCOLN STAMP

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman is much encouraged over the situation of the crusade started by him some weeks ago to have Abraham Lincoln's portrait preserved on the Federal postage stamps, believing that the battle is as good as won, despite the fact that the new issue contains the portrait of Washington solely on all stamps except the penny variety which contains the picture of Franklin. President Roosevelt's letter to Mr. Ackerman notifying him that, inasmuch as Postmaster General Meyer had already had the new plates made, it would be impossible to do anything to restore the Lincoln likeness, has not dampened the State Senator's ardor. Since that time he has been in communication with Grand Army posts and other civic and patriotic associations as well as prominent men of the country who have written congratulatioins on the movement he inaugurated.

In Congress today, Representative Dawson, of Iowa, will introduce a bill to have a special issue of Lincoln stamps made for the centenary celebrationis. The plan is to have some picture of or incident in the life of the martyr-president on each variety of the special stamps.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Sun sets 4:42, rises 7:21; moon sets 6:28 a. m.

Plainfield, N. J., January 4, 1909.

Brooklyn Team Wins.

Brooklyn secured revenge on the local Y. M. C. A. team Saturday night in the Brooklyn association gym for the beating that they received a week ago, by defeating the Plainfielders 29 to 16. It was really the second Y. M. C. A. team that they met, however, as four of the regular men did not go. Goals from field: Joseph 2, Hoagland 2, miner 1, Gilmore 1, Little 1, Howard 4, O. Kappes 5, Krause 1, Meyre 2; goals from fouls: Cahoone 2, Gilmore 1, E. Kappes 1, O. Kappes 2. One point allowed in four shooting goal. Referees, Theodore Kendall and G. L. Listman.

Encountered a Wild Cat.

Friends of Justice Clark Mundy, of North Plainfield, are congratulating him upon his narrow escape from an encounter with a wild cat. His friends calling at W. L. Smalley's market on Park avenue, this morning, were surprised to see his disfigured countenance and when they asked for the reason, Justice Clark simply pointed at the carcas of the great cat, hung up near the door and he said with deep emotion, "It nearly finished me Friday night."

B. P. Flory's New Position.

B. P. Flory, of 1216 Putnam avenue, who has been the chief assistant of Chief Engineer Joseph O Osgood, of the New Jersey Central, has been appointed superintendent of motive power of the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad, with offices at Middletown, N. Y., and has entered upon his duties. He succeeds the late George Wear. Mr. Flory's family will remove to Middletown as soon as arrangements can be completed.

Illness Interferes with Service.

Owing to the illness of several members of the First M. E. church choir, J. Edmund Skiff, organist, was obliged to postpone the rendition of the Christmas music, last night, as announced. Among the members of the choir detained by illness are Bertram Tallamy, Mrs. H. R. Moyer, Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis, Miss Florence Conroy and Miss Helen Hall.

Announce Engagement.

Announcement is made today by Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Gullberg, of South avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Clara Gullberg, to William T. O'Loughlin, of West Second street. Mr. O'Loughlin is a popular member of the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club and both he and Miss Gullberg have many friends in this city.

Spoke on Local-Option.

An interesting discourse on the regulation of the liquor traffic was delivered yesterday morning at Warren chapel by J. Frank Burke, superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League.

Miss Ethel Searing, of Park avenue, who has been detained at home for three months with a serious attack of typhoid fever, was able to be out a short time on Saturday.

out love. The terrible need of the survivors in Sicily must cry out to the hearts of all peoples touched at all by the spirit of Christ. The cry has already been heard, thank God, and from all over the world the response is being made by subscriptions to meet the sad need of those who survive. In Plainfield such subscriptions can be sent to the office of The Daily Press and whatever expression of sympathy we can make in this way will be an evidence that we have learned one lesson of the disaster, which a good God means us to learn."

First Baptist Church.

"A Kingdom That Cannot be Shaken," was the theme of a discourse by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, yesterday morning, it being suggested by the recent earthquake in Southern Italy. The pastor referred to the disaster as a calamity more appalling than any in history, where 200,000 people were destroyed in one of the fairest parts of Southern Europe.

"This section was torn into fragments by earthquake and engulfed by water and destroyed by fire," said Dr. Chambliss. "In our own country we know something of earthquakes our minds recalling the one at Charleston twenty-two years ago and the one in San Francisco of more recent date which was sufficient to shock the nation and show the strength of the bond of national union. Instantaneously everyone rushed to help the sufferers. At the time of the Charleston earthquake I remember how the people of the North rushed to the assistance of the South, thereby closing a deep chasm left by a bloody war.

"We find the brotherhood of man accepted wherever the Fatherhood of God is embraced. In faminine stricken India, among the oppressed Jews in Russia or among the slaves of the Congo we do not find the helping hand coming from Mohammed, but from the Christian nations, where the hearts of the people are led to feel another's woe and human brotherhood is recognized.

"Today the cry comes from beautiful Italy. Already the President has sent a ship of relief, thousands of individual gifts are pouring in and our Governor has issued a proclamation asking for funds, while the newspapers of our city are receiving contributions. The help required is beyond computation. I need not urge upon you at this time the necessity of giving for I know that you will do all that you can.

"The Bible lands are known as earthquake lands. They lie in that great volcanic belt stretching from the Caspian Sea west to the Mediterranean Sea to the Azores the West Indies and Southern Europe. We have records in the Bible of earthquakes, but Christ pointed all to a Kingdom that cannot be shaken. Earthly things are perishing. There is no such thing as terra firma in the absolute sense.

"Every now and then some one prophesies the end of the world and people laugh such a one to scorn. We are as foolish as they. The Bible declares that this world shall pass away. When, no scientist can tell. The earthquake belt that encircles the globe may be widened. Our wisdom is to admit that we are living on a trembling old planet that is passing away. It will probably outlast our time. Probably is all that we can say, but we should be ever ready and watching. Every foot of this earth can be shaken and some day it will be. The immovable Kingdom is His. He is the heir of God forever. That Kingdom is for those who will serve the King. We are all answerable to His service. We all pray, I am sure that 1909 may see the church of God lifted to a higher plane through patience and continuance in well doing."

McIntyre Chamber Concert.

The third McIntyre Chamber Music Concert of the season will be given at the Hartridge School auditorium, Thursday night. Vladimir Dubinsky, 'cellist, will be the soloist of the evening, and Francis Rogers, of New York, baritone, who has been heard here before with much pleasure, will be the assisting artist.

Returns Here to Business.

William Jeffery, formerly of 136 Park avenue, re-opened his real estate offices here today, occupying rooms on the second floor of 136 Park avenue. He will continue his residence, however, in the Berkeley Heights bungalow, and his office at that place will be in charge of a competent man.

Special Officers Sworn In.

Joseph Dunlop, Charles Anderson, P. J. McNamara and Thomas O'Gorman, who were appointed special officers at the last meeting of the Common Council, were sworn in by Judge Runyon in the city court room this morning. The first three men are doing regular patrol duty on probation.

Received Five Prizes.

A. C. Bechstein, of Oak Tree Poultry Farm, exhibited four orpington chickens and four cameaux pigeons at the Madison Square Garden Poultry Show last week, receiving five prizes.

—The Owl Social Club attended a ball given by the Norway A. C., at Elizabeth, New Year's Eve.

SHOPPING by TELEPHONE.

"Telephone your orders"

is a phrase found in the advertising of nearly all stores. Business establishments of all descriptions, large and small, advertise telephone connection as one of the important features of their service. These establishments appreciate the importance of catering to telephone shoppers.

Have you tried telephone shopping? Are you aware of the convenience and saving of time that this method of shopping effects?

Do you realize that a telephone order involves no street car trip or carriage ride, no crowds, no bad weather, and saves an hour or more?

You will soon be doing your holiday shopping. Why not employ your telephone for this purpose? You will save time, temper and energy.

Robert Edeson and Ann Murdock in "The Call of the North," at New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Robert Edeson, in the stirring play, "The Call of the North," direct from the Hudson theatre, New York, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Miss Annie Russell, the most charming of American actresses in a peculiar line, will present her new comedy, "The Stronger Sex," at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. Miss Russell will have the role of Mary Barrington, the daughter of a Texas millionaire, whose millions have gained her entree into London's smart society. Her native American wit and strength of character carry her triumphantly through all the perplexing vicissitudes which arise and she finally finds happiness in her new home.

Frederic Thompson's "Polly of the Circus" with Miss Fay Wallace, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. This highly interesting and captivating romance of the little circus rider and the minister forms one of the most pleasant and entertaining plays of the season. The story of the play is rather novel and it has that which holds the heart-strings and invites even jaded taste to a simple revel in romance. It is a piece that one can see and go away happy with laughter and tears. Its little story is well told and beautifully framed. The scenic production is most elaborate and the circus scenes, true to life, with acrobats, tumblers, clowns and trainers. Miss Fay Wallace as "Polly" has won her way into the hearts of her audiences with her sweet and tender manner and exquisite acting. The many characters of the play are all in capable hands.

"Polly" and Her Horse in "Polly of the Circus," at New Plainfield Theatre Saturday Matinee and Night.

The performances of "An International Marriage" at the New Plainfield theatre, Friday afternoon and night, were the best of any holiday attraction yet seen at the house. Digby Bell has the best role of his career and he is surrounded by a splendid company of players. The production is mounted on a lavish scale and the settings evoked applause from the big audiences. The play goes into the Weber theatre, New York, tonight for a long run.

PERSONAL.

Miss Belle Barron, of this city, is visiting friends in Arlington.

Mrs. William VanDuyn of this city, has been visiting relatives at Somerville.

Mrs. Magdalene Van Arsdale has returned to her home in Pluckemin after a visit to relatives in town.

Miss Emily P. Gould, of New York, has been spending the week with Miss Carolin S. Martin, of Hillside avenue.

Halloway Waldron, of Grove street, who has been at the hospital under treatment for typhoid fever has been discharged cured.

William L. Smalley, Jr.'s handsome new house on Greenbrook road is nearing completion and he expects to take possession of it early in the new year.

Miss Martha Brown, who has been the assistant telegraph operator at the Western Union office, has left for her home at Wanamie, Pa., having resigned her position here.

Mrs. Marin I. Cooley, of Rockview avenue, left Thursday for Havana, Cuba, where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. Patrick, wife of Major Patrick, who is stationed at Camp Columbia.

Among the guests at the dinner and dance given at the Westfield Golf Club, Friday, were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Deal, Miss Lelia Druse, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hickman, of Plainfield, and John Bar, of New York.

Mrs. Laura Wiley Ruttkay, widow of Albert Ruttkay, who was a nephew of Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, died at her home in Brooklyn on Tuesday, aged fifty-eight years. Mrs. Ruttkay, previous and subsequent to her marriage resided in this city, where she had many friends. She is survived by two sons.

Annie Russell in "The Stronger Sex," at New Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday, January 5.

THE LION'S SHARE

By OCTAVE THANET
Author of The Man of the Hour

PICTURES BY A. WEIL

(Copyright, 1907, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"I learned of a little device that looks like a tiny curry-comb and is so flat and small you can bind it on a man's arm just over an artery. Just press on the spring and give the least scratch, and the man falls down in convulsions. I showed him a rat I had had fetched me, and killed it like a flash. He had his choice of walking out quietly with me—I had my hand on his arm—or dropping down dead. He went quietly enough."

"That was the meaning of his look at me, was it?" Winter thought. He said only: "Did Endicott Tracy know about that?"

"Of course not," Mercer denied. "Do you reckon I want to mix the boy up in this more than I have? And Arnold only knew I was trying some kind of bluff game."

"I will lay odds, though," the colonel ventured, in his gentlest tone, tone, "that Mr. Samurai, as Haley calls him, knew more. But when did you get rid of Atkins?"

"Mr. Keatcham discharged him at Denver. I met Mr. Keatcham here; it was arranged on the train. We had it planned out. If that plan had failed I had another."

"Neat. Very neat. And then you became the secretary?"

Mercer flushed in an unexpected fashion. "Certainly not!" he said, with emphasis. "Do you think I would take his wages and not do the work faithfully? No, suh. I assumed to be his secretary in the office; that gave me a chance to arrange everything. But I did it to oblige him. I never touched a cent of his money. I paid, in fact, for our board out of our own money. It would have burned my fingers, suh!"

"And the valet? Was he in your plot? Don't answer if you—"

"He was, suh," replied Cary Mercer. "He is a right worthy fellow, and he thought, after he had seen to the tickets—which he did very carefully—and given them to me, he could go off on the little vacation which came to him by his master through me."

"That's a little bit evasive. However, I haven't the right to ask you to give away your partners, anyhow." He was peering at Mercer's face behind his glasses, but the pallid, tired features returned him no clew to the thoughts in the head above them. "What have you done with Mr. Keatcham?" he concluded, suddenly.

The question brought no change of expression, and Mercer answered readily: "I put him off by himself, where he sees no one and hears nothing. I read a good deal about prisons and the most effectual way of taming men, and solitary confinement is recommended by all the authorities. His meals are handed to him by—by a mechanical device. He has electric light some of the time, turned on from the outside. He has a comfortable room and his own shower-bath. He has comfortable meals. And he is supplied with reading."

"Reading?" repeated the colonel, his surprise in his voice.

For the first time he saw Mercer smile, but it was hardly a pleasant smile: "Yes, suh, reading," he said. "I have had type-written copies made of all the cases which I discovered in regard to his stealing our company. I reasoned that when he would get absolutely tired of himself and his own thoughts he would just naturally be obliged to read, and that would be ready for him. He tore up one copy."

"Hmn—I can't say I wonder. What did you do?"

"I sent him another. I expected he would do that way. After a while he will go back to it, because it will draw him. He'll hate it, but he will want to know them all. I know his nature, you see."

"What are you going to do with him?"

"Let him go, after he does what we want and promises never to molest any of us."

"But can you trust him?"

"He never breaks his word," replied Mercer, indifferently, "and besides, he knows he will be killed if he should. He isn't given to being scared, but he's scared of me, all right."

"What do you want him to do?"

"Promise to be a decenter man and to let Mr. Tracy alone in future; meanwhile, to send a wire in his secret code saying he has changed his mind. It will not surprise his crowd. He never confides in them, and he expects them to obey blindly anything in that code language. I reckon other telegrams are just for show, and they don't notice them much."

The colonel took a turn around the room to pack away this information in an orderly fashion in his mind. Mercer waited patiently; he had said truly that he was used to waiting. Perhaps he supposed that Winter was trying the case in his own mind; but in reality Rupert was seeking only one clew, as little diverted from his purpose as a bloodhound. He began to understand the man whose fixed purpose had his own quality, but sharpened by wrong and suffering. This man had not harmed Archie; as much as his warped and fevered soul could feel softer emotions, he was kindly intentioned toward the lad. Who had carried him away, then? Or was he off on his own account, really, this time? Or suppose Atkins, the missing secretary discharged at Denver, coming back for another appeal to his employer, finding Keatcham gone, but, let one say, stumbling on some trace of mystery in his departure; suppose him to consider the chance of his having his past condoned and a rosy future given him if his suspicions should prove true and he should release the captive—wouldn't such a prospect spur on a man who was as cunning as he was unprincipled? Mightn't he have watched all possible clews, and mightn't he have heard about Archie and plotted to capture the child, thinking he would be easily pumped? That would presuppose that Atkins knew that Archie was at the Arnolds' or—no, he might only have seen the boy on the street; he knew him by sight; the colonel remembered that several times Archie had been with him in Keatcham's car. It was worth considering, anyhow. He spoke out of his thoughts: "Do you think Keatcham could have told the truth, and that code of his be lost or stolen? Why couldn't Atkins have stolen it? He had the chance, and he isn't hampered by principle, you say."

Mercer frowned; it was plain the possibility had its argument for him. "He might," he conceded, "but I doubt it. Why hasn't he done something with it? He hasn't. They wouldn't have postponed that meeting if he had wired his proxy and his directions in the code. He'd have voted his employer's stock. He's got too much at stake. I happen to know he thought it a sure tip to sell short, and he has put almost all he has on it. You see, Keatcham was banking on that; he knew it. He thought Atkins wouldn't dare give any of his secrets away or go against him in this deal, because they were in the same boat."

"Still, I reckon I'll have to see Keatcham."

Mercer shook his head, gently but with decision. "I hate to refuse you, colonel, but unless you promise not to interfere, it is impossible. But I'll gladly go with you to see if we can find any trace of Archie. I'll risk that much. And if you will promise—"

"Such a promise would be impossible to an officer and a gentleman," the colonel urged lightly, smiling. "Besides, don't you see I have all the cards? I have only to call in my men. I'd hate to do it, but if you force me, you would have no chance resisting."

"We shouldn't resist, colonel, no, suh; your force is overwhelming. But it would do no good; you couldn't find him."

"We could try; and we may be better sleuths than you imagine."

"Then it would be the worse for him; for if you find him, you will find him dead."

There was something so chilling in his level tones that Winter broke out sharply: "Are you fooling with me? Have you been such an incredible madman as to kill him already?"

Mercer's faint smile made the colonel feel boyish and impetuous. "Of course not, suh," he answered. "I told you he was alive, myself. I reckoned you knew when a man is lying and when he is telling the solemn truth. You know I have told you the truth and treated you on the square. But, just the same, if you try to take that man away, you'll only have his dead body. He can't do any more harm then, and a dead man can't vote."

The colonel, who had taken out his cigarette case, opened it and meditatively fingered the rubber band. "Do you reckon," he suggested, in his most amiable voice, "do you reckon young Arnold and Endicott Tracy will stand for such frills in warfare as assassination?"

"I do not, suh," replied Mercer, gravely, and as he spoke he pushed back the heavy tapestry hiding a window opposite the colonel's head, "but they can both prove an alibi. Mr. Arnold is in Pasadena, and there goes Mr. Tracy now in his machine—to try to find Archie. Do you see?"

The colonel saw. He inclined his head, at the same time proffering his case.

"I rather think, Mr. Mercer, that I was wrong. You have the last trump."

CHAPTER XI.

The Charm of Jade.

It was no false lure to distract pursuit, that hurried sentence of Randall's which had met the colonel's angry appeal for information. The woman was not only repeating Mrs. Winter's message; the message itself described a fact. As she stood at her room telephone, Aunt Rebecca had happened to glance at Randall, supplementing the perfunctory dusting of the hotel maid with her own sanitary, damped, clean cloth; Randall's eyes suddenly glazed and bulged in such startling transformation that, instead of questioning her, Mrs. Winter stepped swiftly to the window where she was at work to seek the cause of her agitation.

"Oh, Lord! Oh, Mrs. Winter!" gasped Randall. "Ain't that Master Archie?"

Mrs. Winter saw for herself; the face at a cab window, the waving of a slim hand—Archie's face, Archie's hand. Brief as was the space of his passing (for the two horses in the cab were trotting smartly), she was sure of both. "Give me my bonnet," she command, "any bonnet, any gloves! And my bag with some money!"

It was as she flung through the door that she threw her message to the colonel back exactly as Randall had submitted it. Miss Smith was coming along the loggia. "Don't stop me!" said Mrs. Winter, sternly. "I've seen Archie; I'm after him."

"Stop!" cried Miss Smith—but it was to the elevator boy who was whizzing below them in his cage, not to her employer; and she boarded the elevator with the older woman. "I'll go with you," she said. There was no vibration in her even tones, although a bright red flickered up in her cheek.

But Rebecca Winter caught savagely at her breath, which was coming fast. "It is not with the running; you needn't think it, Janet," she panted, sharply, in a second. "It was the sight of his face—so suddenly; I never expected any face would make my heart pump like that again. All of which shows"—she was speaking quite naturally and placidly again—"that women may grow too old for men to make fools of them, but never for children. Come; it was a shabby sort of hack he was in, drawn by two horses with auburn tails. Here's the office floor."

Not a word did Janet Smith say; she was not a woman of words in any case. Moreover, the pace which Mrs Winter struck was too rapid for comments or questions; it swept them both past the palm-filled patio into the side hall, out on the noisy, dazzling, swaying street. Looking before her, Miss Smith could see the dusty body of hack a block away. Mrs. Winter had stepped up to a huge crimson motor car, in the front seat of which lounged the chauffeur, his forehead and eyes hunched under his leather visor. The machine was puffing, with the engine working, ready to leap forward at a touch of the lever.

"Twenty dollars an hour if you let me get in now!" said Mrs. Winter, lightly mounting by his side as she spoke.

"Hey, me? what?" gurgled the chauffeur, plucked out of a half-doze. "Oh, say, beg your pardon, lady, but this is hired, it belongs—"

"I don't care to whom it belongs, I have to have it," announced Mrs. Winter, calmly. "Whoever hired it can get another. I'll make it all right. You start on and catch that hack with the auburn-tailed horses—"

"I'll make it right with your fare!" Miss Smith cut in before the chauffeur could answer. "It's a case of kidnaping. You catch that cab!" She was standing on the curb, and even as she spoke an elderly man and his wife came out of the shop. They stared from her to the automobile, and in their gaze was a proprietary irritation. This was instantly transfused by a more vivid emotion. The woman looked shocked and compassionate. "Oh, pa!" she gasped, "did you hear that?"

The man was a country banker from Iowa. He had a very quick, keen eye; it flashed. "Case of kidnaping, hey?" snapped he, instantly grasping the character of the speakers and jumping at the situation. "Take the auto, madam. Get a move on you, Mr. Chauffeur!"

"Oh, I'm moving, all right," called the chauffeur, as he skillfully dived his lower wheels under the projecting load of a great wagon and obliquely bumped over the edge of a street car fender, pursued by the motorman's curses. "I see 'em, lady; I see the red tails; I'll catch 'em!"

His boast most likely had been made good (since for another block they bore straight on their course) but for an orange wagon which had been overturned. There was a rush of pursuit of the golden balls from the sidewalk; a policeman came to the rescue of traffic and ordered everything to halt until the cart was righted. The boys and girls in the street chased back to the sidewalk. The episode took barely a couple of minutes, but on the edge of the last minute the cab turned a corner. The motor car turned the same corner, but saw no guiding oriflamme of waving red horsehair. The cross street next was equally bare. They were obliged to explore two adjacent highways before they came upon the hack again. This time it was in distant perspective, foreshortened to a blur of black and a swish of red. And even as they caught sight of it the horses swung round into profile and turned another corner. In the turn a man wearing a black derby hat stuck his arm and head out of the window in order to give some direction to the driver. Then he turned half around. It was almost as if he looked back at his pursuers; yet this, Mrs. Winter argued, hardly could be, since he had not expected pursuit, and anyhow, the chances were he could not know her by sight.

It was a mean street, narrow and noisome, but full of shipping traffic and barred by tramways—a heart breaking street for a chase. The chauffeur was a master of his art; he jumped his great craft at every vacant arm's length; he steered it through incredibly narrow lanes; he progressed sometimes by luffs, like a boat under sail when the forward passage much be reached in such indirect fashion; but the crowd of ungainly vehicles, loaded dizzily above his head, made the superior speed of the motor of no avail. In spite of him they could see the red tails lessening. Again and yet again, the hack turned; again, but each time with a loss, the motor struck its trail. By now the street was changed; the dingy two-story buildings lining it were brightened by the gold-leaf and vermilion; oriental arms and garbs and embroidery spangled the windows and oriental faces looked inscrutably out of doorways. There rose the blended odors of spice, sandalwood and uncleanliness that announce the east, reeking up out of gratings and puffing out of shops.

"Ah," said Mrs. Winter, softly to herself, "Chinese quarter, is it? Well." Her eyes changed; they softened in a fashion that would have amazed one who only knew the surface of Mrs. Winter, the eccentric society potentate. She looked past the squalid, garish scene, past the shining, sandhills and the redwood trees, beyond into a stranger landscape glowing under a blinder glare of sun. Half mechanically she lifted a tiny gold chain that had slipped down her throat under the gray gown. Raising the yellow thread and the craven jade ornament depending therefrom, she let it lie outside amid the white lace and chiffon.

"We're making good now," called the chauffeur. "Will I run alongside and hail 'em, or what?"

She told him quietly to run alongside. But her lips twitched, and when she put up her hand to press them still, she smiled to discover that her hand was bare. She had forgotten to pull on her glove. She began to pull it on now.

"The road is narrow," said she. "Run ahead of the back and block its way. You can do it without hitting the horses, can't you?"

"Well, I guess," returned the chauffeur, instantly accomplishing the maneuver in fine style.

But he missed his deserved commendation; indeed, he forgot it himself; because, as he looked back at the horses rearing on the sudden check and tossing their auburn manes, then ran his scrutiny behind them to the hack, he perceived no life in it; and when his own passenger jumped with amazing nimbleness from her seat and flung the crazy door wide open, she recoiled, exclaiming: "Where are they? Where did you leave them?"

"Leave who?" queried the hackman. "Say, what you stoppin' me fur? Runnin' into me with your devil-wagon! Say!"—then his wrath trailed into an inarticulate mutter as he appreciated better the evident quality of the gentlewoman before him.

"You may be mixed up in a penitentiary offense, my man," she said, placidly. "It is a case of kidnaping. Where did you leave that boy who was in the cab? If you give us information that will find him, there's five dollars; if you fool us—well, I have your number. Where did you leave the boy?"

"Why, there was a cop with 'im—a cop and a gentleman. Ain't you got hold of the wrong party, lady?"

"A brown-haired boy in a gray suit with a blue cravat—you know he was in your cab. And how do you know it was a real policeman?"

"Or he wasn't helping on the devilitry if it was?" sneered the chauffeur, who had now become a full-fledged partisan. "Ain't you lived in this burg long enough to find out how to make a little mazuma on the side? You're too good for 'Frisco. Heaven is your home, my Christian friend."

"Cut it out!" retorted the man. "I guess I know how to find my way round as well as the next man—"

"Certainly you do," soothed Mrs. Winter, who was fingering a crisp new five-dollar bank note, "and you are no kidnaper, either; you made no bargain with those men—"

"Sure I didn't" agreed the hackman, "nor I ain't stakin' for kidnaping, neither. Why, I got kids of my own, and my woman she'd broom me outer the house if I was to do them games. Say, I'll tell you all I knows. They got off, them three, at that there corner, and I was to drive fast 's I could three blocks ahead and then git home any old way. And that's God's truth, I—"

"You didn't see where they went?" Mrs. Winter was quietly insistent.

"No, I didn't. I guess I was a dumb fool not ter notice, but they paid me well, and I'd a bad thirst, and I was hiking to a place I know for beer; and that's—"

"Did the boy seem willing?"

"He didn't do no kicking as I seen."

A few more questions revealed that the man had unpacked his full kit of information. He had never seen either of the men before. The gentleman—yes, he was sure he was a gentleman; he wasn't no swell confidence guy; he was the regular thing—gentleman engaged him to take a party to the Chinese quarter; he'd tell where to stop; didn't need a guide; only wanted to make a few purchases, he said, and he knew where the things was; yes, ma'am, that was all; only down there on Market street, or maybe—why, somewhere near by—he stuck his head out and told him to turn the corner, and then he kept telling him to turn corners, until finally he told him to stop and they got out.

Mrs. Winter gave the man the bank note, counseling him to keep his eyes open for the two men and the boy, and to report to her at the Palace hotel, giving his number, should he see either man or boy. It would be very well worth his while.

GANO FAMILY REUNION A SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

The home of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Gano, of 170 Grove street, was the scene on New Year's Day of a most enjoyable family reunion. The guests numbered fifty, forty-four being members of the family whose ages ranged from that of the mother at eighty-four to that of a great grandson at three months. The members of the family present were: Mrs. Ann Mathews, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. M. F. Gano; Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Mathews, Mr. Raymond Mathews, Mr. LeRoy Mathews and Mr. Arthur Mathews of Roselle; Mrs. John H. Mundy, Miss Laura Mundy, Miss Mary Mundy, Mr. Fred Mundy, of Dunellen; Mrs. Emma R. Mathews, Miss Minerva B. Mathews, Miss Anna S. Mathews, Miss Mary E. Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dent, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Mathews and daughter Marie, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Gano, Miss Cora B. Gano, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Caleen, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Mathews, Mr. William Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raymond and infant son Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Mathews and daughter Myrtle, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Mathews, William Mathews, Eugene Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver B. Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Kinsey Mathews, John Mathews of South Bound Brook.

Guests not members of the family were: Miss Flossie Chamberlain, of Plainfield; Mrs. Minnie McCall and daughter, Claire and son, George, of Newark; Miss Grace Gregory, of Lansdown, and Mrs. Mary Slack, of Frenchtown. Members of the family not present were a son and his family Mr. and Mrs. Irving Mathews, Miss Lucile Mathews, Miss Anne Mathews, Mr. Arthur Mathews and Mr. Cecil Mathews, of Tarkie, Mo.; a son-in-law, Mr. John H. Mundy, of Dunellen; a granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Hartpence and daughter, Wilhelmena, of Phillipsburg; another granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith and son Oscar, and daughter Thelma, of Bernardsville; a grand son, Mr. Irving Bennet, of New York, two others, Mr. Harry Mathews and Mr. Fred Mathews, of Bound Brook, and two little great grand daughters, Olive and Beatrice Raymond, of Newark.

Special features of the event were the serving of a sumptous dinner and supper, piano selections by Miss Myrtle Mathews, who while only twelve years of age is an excellent performer, the singing of popular songs which the voice of Miss Grace Gregory made exceptionally pleasing, she being a singer of acknowledged ability, also a vocal solo by little Miss Elsie McCall which won applause and finally a chorus singing grand old hymns of ages past and ages to come filling the minds of nearly all with memories both sad and sweet, recalling those whose faces are no longer seen and whose voices are now silent also causing thoughts to dwell with more intensity upon those stil living but at two great a distance to be present. Too soon came the time of separation and all went their several ways mingling their good nights and farewells with many hearty wishes for a Happy New Year for all.

SPECIFICATIONS.

ENGINE—Four-cylinder, 3¾ bore x 4-inch stroke, 20 H. P. conservative rating.

CYLINDERS—Cast in one block, top removable, affording easy access to all parts of the engine. In case you should let your engine freeze and crack a cylinder, you can buy the entire block of 4-cylinders for the very low price of $25.00. This price is less than most factories charge for one cylinder, and removes the only possible objections a man could have against this method of construction.

IGNITION—Ford low tension magneto generator, built as part of the fly wheel. No gears, belts, brushes or contact points to give trouble. So simple in construction and so positive in operation, that it looks as though it would last forever without any attention from the owner. This system removes all battery trouble, one of the most annoying and expensive troubles.

STEEL—Heat treated Vanadium steel throughout. No car at $5,000.00 has higher grade, for none better can be bought. We defy any man to break a Ford Model T spring, axle, shaft, gear, or other part with any test less than 50 per cent more severe than would be required to put any other steel in the junk pile.

It has taken Ford two years and cost him $200,000.00 to acquire the analysis and the heat-treating and quenching formulas of this wonderful steel, as they are his own secrets.

LUBRICATION—No pumps, tubes or glasses to give trouble. The fly wheel acts as the distributing agent, and as long as there is a drop of oil in the tank your engine and transmission is sure to be taken care of.

TIRES—Ford Model T weighs only 1,200 pounds, therefore will take you more miles and cost you less for tires than any other five-passenger car in the world. The tire cost is really about the only expensive part of the running of an automobile. Be sure and give this subject your most critical examination before buying a car, as it means a good many DOLLARS in your pocket every time you wear out a set of tires.

HERE ARE THE FACTS—If a manufacturer designs and makes his car so heavy that he must equip it with a 32x4-inch tire,
It will cost you for a set of four tires $129.00
Four tires for a Model T Touring Car will cost 74.50
Difference saved every time you must buy a set of tires .... $ 54.50

This will buy a lot of gasoline and oil. All tires, regardless of size, are guaranteed by the tire manufacturer to run the same number of miles. So do not let anybody tell you differently. Ask them to show you the tire guarantee and it will show for itself.

DELIVERIES—We are booking orders for deliveries in rotation as received, or by placing a small deposit with your order we will deliver you a car when you want it in the spring.

BE SURE TO SEE the Ford exhibition at the Grand Central palace auto show January 1 to January 7.

WE guarantee all new cars sold by us free of repairs for three months.

SOLVING WATER PROBLEM

Bi-municipal Commission, in Its Report, Presents all Phases and Add Its Finding.

AS TO MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Independent Plant Not Feasible and Many Difficulties are Found in Public Control—The Alternative.

After months of hard work, the bi-municipal commission to investigate the feasibility and desirabilty of public control of the water supply, last nght, filed a report with the Common Council.

Here are its findings:

No other source of water supply for the city and borough should be considered so long as the underground water which the Plainfield-Union Water company now taps with its wells is sufficient for the needs of the community.

This water supply can be drawn upon by wells located outside the grounds of the Water company, but it is evident that to establish independent works and leave the Water company where it is, free to draw to the present or future capacity of its works from the underground water would be very hazardous experiment.

What is needful is a restriction of the drafts of the present plant, to the amount needed for our immediate community rather than an additional plant still to further deplete the supply.

It is, therefore, desirable, for the community, city and borough, if it is to own its water works, to acquire the plant of the water company. It is assumed that this can be done by condemnation if not by amicable purchase.

What the price would be cannot now be fairly estimated and must depend not only upon the present value of the structures and property making up the physical plant, but also upon the net earnings of the property as a going concern. In regard to the earnings of the plant we have no information.

No condemnation or purchase of the property, which left the Water company free to continue to draw on the underground waters of the basin from which it now pumps, would be a satisfactory adjustment of the matter.

It is entirely practicable to eliminate the present hold of the Water company on the waters of the underground supply and the works and mains required by the community by condemnation proceedings. It is important, however, that the permanence of the supply shall be insured and its purity guaranteed for the future.

The underground water extends under portions of Scotch Plains and Fanwood and is made use of by both those communities, which have the same general interest in its preservation as do Plainfield and North Plainfield.

An arrangement under which the local governments interested would unite in acquiring the water works and pipes within the boundaries of Plainfield and North Plainfield and townships of North Plainfield and Fanwood and in securing the control of the water supply for the joint benefit, would seem to offer the best results for the community as a whole.

So long as the ground water is not drawn down by excessive pumping to supply other towns, the supply will probably be sufficient for the needs of the community for many years to come or until there is a large addition to the population.

In years of large rainfall, the record indicates that there will for some time to come be an excess of water, but the whole supply is not likely to be more than sufficient for the future needs of the larger community and may ultimately have to be supplemented from outside sources.

It has been suggested that the Water company stands ready to make a long time contract under which the first use of the water now tapped by its works would be guaranteed to Plainfield and North Plainfield, and that such a contract, if on sufficiently favorable terms as to rates and services, would, for many years to come, be more economical for the community than to go to large expense necessary to acquire the works and control the water supply.

The difficulties of providing in a contract against all the complications which might arise in the future between the parties would seem to be very great, and to secure an agreement which would be thoroughly satisfactory to the community would require extended negotiations much skill and ability on the part of the representatives of the community and radical concessions on the part of the Water company.

Whether such an alternative would

The employees of the United States Express Company here have contributed $10, and "A Friend" has given $20. Philip Swain donates $1, and George H. Beiser has added $10, which he sent with the following letter:

"I enclose my check for $10 to help swell your list for the Earthquake Fund.

"I am sorry I did not know, sooner, that you were starting this subscription, otherwise I would have withheld an amount donated elsewhere, and placed same to the credit of Plainfield. This is a cause that every citizen of New Jersey, in fact the United States, should contribute something, however small, to quickly alleviate the intense sufferings of stricken Italy.

"Let us hope that you will become so busy taking in cash, you will not find time to publish your paper, except to notify oru citizens that the good work is going on at a tremendous speed.

"Cordially yours,
"GEO. H. BEISER."

January 4, 1909.

Edwin S. Hooley, who has always given handsomely to every similar fund raised by The Daily Press in the past, has swelled the fund in his customary manner by a check for $100. William M. Sandford contributes $10; the Plainfield Union Water Co., $5, and a sympathizer 1.

GLEASON GOT A SHOCK.

Expected the Usual Suspension of Sentence But His Honor Fooled Him.

Mike Gleason, who has been arrested more times than he has fingers and toes, got a big shock in the city court, this morning. He was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness preferred by Patrolman Saffron, who found him down and out at Fifth street and Plainfield avenue yesterday afternoon, and came before the desk all smiles. Judge Runyon has always been lenient with him because of his wife and family and he evidently expected that he would be allowed to go without any sentence.

"H'm," the magistrate said when he looked at the prisoner's battered face, "you were down and out, were you."

"Yes, Your Honor," said Mike, "but if you'll let me go this time—"

"Yes, if I let you go this time you'll never dring again. I know that old story by heart," the judge broke in; "I'll make it $8 or twenty days.

The unexpected sentence brough a look of consternation to Mike's face that was a sight to behold. It left him in such a dazed condition that a cop led him away before he had a chance to say whether or not he could raise the money.

Planning Big Turkey Supper.

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church was held in the church parlors, yesterday after noon, at which time it was decided to hold the annual turkey supper on Thursday and Friday, January 28 and 29. This event has been postponed for the past two years owing to various reasons, but the women can see nothing in the way this year of making the supper a big success. Four new members were elected by the society yesterday.

AGLI ITALIANI DI PLAINFIELD.

L'immane catastrofe che ha colpito l'Italia la piu grande che ricorda la storia in cui le vittime si contano a centinaia di migliaia e che pre i superstiti tutto il mondo civile fa la gara nel prestare aiuto e conforto dando esempio di una sublime umana solidarieta che—e lo notiamo con dolore vorremmo non nascesse soltanto dalla mostruosa grandezza di questi fenomeni distruggitori, deve essere sprone agli italiani a maggiore attivita e sacrifizio nel raccogliere fondi per i danneggiati del terremoto; diciamo sacrifizio perche ricconosciamo che proprio ora la maggioranza dei lavoratori Italiani si trova sprovista di danaro. Intanto facciamo appello alla generosita dei "business men" Italiani del luogo.

Il Daily Press ha di gia' ricevuto circa' $300 a favore dei danneggiati. Ogni soldo contribuito dagli Italiani sara inviato alle vittime del terremoto. Il nome dei contribuenti Italiani al fondo di soccorso sara' publicato in questo giornale con l' ammontare della somma contribuita. Le contribuzioni si portanno inviare a Donato Di Lonardo, 1219 West Front street, Ralph D'Armiento e Frank Caruso, 213 West Front street, o al Daily Press direttamente.

CITY FATHERS CONSIDER MANY MINOR MATTERS

The Board of Health certified to the Common Council at its meeting last night, that it would require $7,500 for the year. The Board of Assessors requested the Council to provide the necessary books, taxbills, etc., for the coming year, and also recommended the reappointment of Frank Dunham as clerk of the board. These requests were referred to the finance committee.

A resolution requested the committee to ascertain the advisability of opening West Fifth street, between Grant and Darrow avenues, was referred to the street committee. The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company was requested to remove the telephone from the old to the new police headquarters' building. On motion of Mr. Buxton the rules of order for 1908 were adopted as such for 1909.

Councilman Herbert Buxton and Charles C. Randolph were appointed members of the Board of School Estimate from the Common Council.

LOVELL AGAIN HEADS BOARD OF EDUCATION

The first meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education for the new year held last night in the high school building, was brief but important. President L. N. Lovell was re-elected to that office; Charles F. Abbott was elected vice-president; Floyd T. Woodhull was again chosen secretary and Frank B. Clark, clerk of the board. There were present, besides these, William S. Tyler and James F. Buckle, the newly elected member.

These standing committees were appointed by the president:

Teachers and text books—L. N. Lovell, Charles F. Abbott and William S. Tyler.

Books, stationery and supplies—F. T. Woodhull, James F. Buckle and L. N. Lovell.

Buildings and repairs—C. F. Abbott, F. T. Woodhull and James F. Buckle.

Finance—William S. Tyler, C. F. Abbott and L. N. Lovell.

Fuel—James F. Buckle, F. T. Woodhull and William S. Tyler.

Members of board of school estimate—L. N. Lovel and C. F. Abbott.

Bills for the month of December amounting to $1,275 were ordered paid.

The custodian's report showed that $93,957.39 is held to the credit of the board.

The collector's report showed that during December $2,363.03 had been received.

According to the medical inspector's report, 100 pupils were examined during December.

The applications of Joseph Randolph for the position of janitor at the Washington school and C. Marion Blake as assistant janitor, were read.

UNION CO. COURT OPENS

Smallest List in Recent Years Comes Before Justice James J. Bergen.

CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.

Automobile Fatality Case Referred To by the Court— Local Grand and Petit Jurors.

The January term of the Union county court opened at Elizabeth this morning, with Justice James J. Bergen on the bench. The list of causes is the smallest in the history of the court in recent years. Justice Bergen charged the Grand Jury in reference to the circumstances surrounding the death of Jonathan Randolph, of this city, due to an automobile accident, in which Floyd Cooper, of Westfield, was driving the machine.

He declared that if it was found that the automobile was managed in a reckless manner without regard to persons on the highway an indictment for manslaughter should be presented, and if the driver was in a position to see a trolley car and was running the machine without lights he was guilty of neglect. Justice Bergen did not mention Cooper's name, but everyone knew to whom he referred and the charge was considered particularly strong. Cooper is now out on $10,000 bail.

The Plainfield members of the Grand Jury are H. C. VanEmburgh, Marion S. Ackerman and H. W. Marshall. The Plainfield members of the petit jury are Cyrus F. Hoice, Wiliam S. Campbell, Patrick Casey, John W. Dent, Morris J. Dumont, Frederick H. Freeman, Charles H. Hand, Charles A. Hazeltine and Joseph T. Vail.

There are but very few Plainfield cases on the list, including that in tort of Helen Meyers against the P. S. C.. This case has been transferred from the local District court.

WILLIAM H. BULLOCK ENTERTAINS HIS FRIENDS

William H. Bullock entertained nineteen of his young friends at his home, 427 West Sixth street, last night. The evening was spent with music and games. Among those present were the Misses Jane and Susan Bennett, Edith Hamilton, Annie Manger, Alma McCormick, Dorothy Merrill, Ethel Neuman, Agnes Van Norden, Thyra Stites and Huston Durar, Theodore Hamilton, Otis Hovey, William Sittle, Russel Miller, Ira and James Vail.

Mr. Bullock was assisted in entertaining by his sister, Miss Ruth Bullock, who returns to Wellesley Colleeg today, where she is a junior. The guests were quite delighted to know that the back porch thieves who thought they were stealing the ice cream and the labor of carrying off the tub of ice and salt—which was found turned upside down on the lawn, for naught, as the coveted delicacy had been removed a few moments previously.

RED MEN BOWLERS SWAMP THE BIBLE CLUB.

The Plainfield Bicycle Club's bowling team was swamped by the Miantonomo tribe of Red Men five in the Fraternal league series at Campbell's alleys, last night. The latter delegation took all three games by big margins, ranging from 98 to 221. The aggregate scores of the Red Men were all over 800, while the best tallied by the bike boys was 633.

Double centuries were made by Harry Radin and Louis Skelly, of the winning team and Frank Willett rapped out a 196. The best work for the Bicycle club was done by Adams who had an average of 152.1.

Had a Rathskeller Supper.

Local Union, No. 480, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, held an enjoyable New Year's supper at the home of the secretary, John E. Mathews, of Rockview Heights, Friday night. Forty members of the organization were present. The supper was served in rathskeller style, the dining-room being appropriately decorated for the occasion. At its conclusion, dancing was enjoyed for several hours and there was also an informal program of music given by some af the guests.

Consolidation Talk.

Mayor Fisk explained to the Common Council last night what had been accomplished by the Consolidation Commission. He added that it is now up to the respective governing bodies to expend $500 in having the proposed law drafted if they so desired.

HEALTH BOARD'S REPORT

Work of the Past Year Reviewed in a Thorough and Concise Manner.

TYPHOID OUTBREAK DISCUSSED

Investigation Conducted Shows It May Have Had Its Origin in Two Different Ways.

The feature of the City Board of Health's report presented to the Common Council last night is a thorough discussion of the recent epidemic of typhoid fever in the city and the probable cause as a result of an exhaustive investigation. While no direct allegation is made as to the source of infection, the conclusion is reached that it might have had its origin in two ways, from the improged cleaning of bottles used by a milkman in supplying customers or the prevalence of typhoid germs in milk secured from two dairies. Both the city and state boards conducted their investigations on independent lines but were unable to definitely state that either one had anything to do with the spread of the disease. There were two distinct outbreaks, one in August which had a total of eight cases and the other in the latter part of September with a record of thirty cases extending over a period of eight weeks.

With the exception of the large number of typhoid fever cases, the health of the city during the year has been remarkably good, very few contagious diseases being reported. The following summary shows the number of cases and deaths from each communicable disease during the year: Scarlet fever, thirty cases, no deaths; diphtheria, twenty cases, four deaths; typhoid fever, fifty cases, nine deaths; chicken pox, eighteen cases, no deaths; tuberculosis, forty-seven cases, forty-two deaths; measles, 222 cases, no deaths.

The vital statistics for the year were as follows: Marriages, 121; births, 429; deaths, 330. The death rate based on an estimated population of 20,344, was 16.22 per thousand. Compared with that of the past twelve years, this rate is a normal one, and is somewhat lower than that of 1907. Nearly fifty five per cent of the deaths were of persons over forty years of age.

The large number of deaths from tuberculosis, in comparison with other causes, calls for considerable comment from the health officer relative to the board's supervision of the patients. Each case is closely watched and the treatment of the attending physician is aided in every way possible. Circulars are placed in the household detailing information in regard to the treatment of the disease, its possible cure and the precautions necessary to prevent the infection of others. When a room is vacated by a patient, either because of death or removal, the health department is notified and the proper disinfection is done.

The report goes on to speak of the milk and ice supply and the ice cream sold in Plainfield, taking up each one separately. The city requires 11,000 quarts of milk daily, it states, supplied from two creameries and eighty-three dairies. There are fifteen bottling places. During the year, 500 samples of milk were taken for analysis, ninety-nine of which were brought to the office or taken for special analysis. The average bacterial count for all samples collected was 51, 887 per cubic centimeter, a decided reduction over the average for 1907, which was 90, 911 per cubic centimeter.

Referring to the ice supply, the report states that the source was the same as in 1907—Watchung lake and Seeley's pond. The ice is of good quality.

The results of an investigation of the ice cream supplied in the city shows it to be of good quality with the exception of that sold in cones at a penny each. On account of the low price, the ice cream must be of an inferior grade and it contains a large number of bacteria. The premises where the trade cream is manufactured were found to be in good condition. While improvements could be made, there are no dirty, unsanitary places. The creams used were of good quality but unnecessarily high in bacteria.

At the beginning of the year, the report states, there were twenty-three complaints of nuisances under way; during 1908, 302 complaints were received, making a total of 225. Of this number, 169 were abated; in fifteen instances there was no cause for complaint; the remaining forty-one are underway. The present method of garbage disposal is still unsanitary and unsatisfactory and a menace to the health of the community. The report expresses the hope that this problem may soon be solved by proper mu-

SAUNDERS TO PRESIDE AT 'QUAKE FUND BENEFIT

Father Bogan and A. V. D. Honeyman to Make Brief Addresses at the Lecture and Entertainment.

ORCHESTRA OF 12 PIECES

The Daily Press Fund Now Amounts to $287.00—Hooley Gives a $100 Bill—Great Public Interest.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders will preside and introduce the speakers. Other speakers will be Rev. B. M. Bogan and A. D. V. Honeyman. Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph has secured a large number of sterioptcon views, which will be shown in connection with his lecture.

An orchestra of ten pieces, has voluntered its services. It comprises Dr. T. Hervey Buchanan, bass viol, leader; Whitney Frazee, cornet; Garrett Dunham, trombone; Elmer Wheeler, flute; Dr. J. F. Bird, 'cello; Arthur Mosher, Ernest Higham, G. W. V. Moy and Herbert Smith, violins; H. J. Harold, piano. There will be other instrumental and vocal music.

The interest of the local Italians has been aroused for their fellow countrymen, and Donati Di Lonardo and Frank Caruso are circulating subscription lists. The Daily Press today prints an appeal in Italian for co-operation with the circulation of the lists, and the names of the Italian contributors will be published from day to day. The money from the Italians is to be sent along with the rest of the fund, which has reached nearly $300.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Here is the Governor's proclamation:

"To the people of the State of New Jersey:

"The people of New Jersey in common with all humanity sympathize with the people of southern Italy in the desolation, destruction and death that has come to them. Two cities lie in ruins and fully one hundred thousand people are dead. Sympathy is of little avail unless it is timely and extended in a practical way. The people in New Jersey, aside from their interest in the inhabitants of Italy, have a further incentive to aid upon the fact that thousands of our citizens and residents are Italians, some of whose friends and kindred have gone to death or terrible loss or both in the great calamity.

"I recommend that contributions be made through the New Jersey State Branch of the American National Red Cross, which is in communicatioin with the Italian Red Cross, and has undertaken to receive and forward all sums for relief.

"All moneys raised in New Jersey should be forwarded to Daniel S. Voorhees, State Treasurer, at Trenton, who is treasurer of the New Jersey State Branch of the Red Cross.

"Let me express the hope that the generosity of all our people will find quick expression as there is terrible suffering and great need.

"Given under my hand and the privy seal of the State of New Jersey, at Trenton, this thirty-first day of December, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and eight, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and thirty second.

NO TRADING STAMPS. BUT MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

January White Sale Begins Wednesday Morning

SPECIALS---Muslin Underwear, Embroideries, White Goods

Thousands of Pretty Fresh Garments of Undermuslins. Eight Thousand Yards Embroidery. Fifteen Cases White Goods

These were collected the past several months, at intervals whenever we were able to secure something better than usual; for we intended months ago that this white sale should attract your attention and its values that we meant to attract it with, such values as will call to your attention and impress you with our motto—No Trading Stamps but more for your money.

The low grade merchandise, the unworthy kind, that are made up especially for sales to catch the eye and not for wear, finds no room here. We recommend everything we sell, and stand back of our recommendation. The white goods and embroideries will especially commend themselves to those who purchase now—because of the economy and the variety of the first selection.

prove to the ultimate advantage of the community is a serious problem, which cannot well be determined until it is known what can be done in combining the communities interested for the control of the water supply needed by them, and what the cost would be of eliminating the Water company from the territory by purchase or condemnation, and on the other hand, the character and extent of the benefits which would be afforded by a contract with the Water company.

It is evident that to combine the communties and directly control the water supply requires much work on the part of the people and their representatives and will involve a large expenditure of money. Such a plan, however, would permanently solve the question.

THE DELICIOUS AND HALF-KNOWN CRANBERRY.

There is no fruit on the market that contains more acid than the cranberry. It has a large per cent. of salicylic acid, which is very beneficial to rheumatic persons. But one should always cook these berries in granite, agate or porcelain-lined vessels, because the acid, if cooked in tin, copper or a metal vessel of any kind will cause a chemical action that makes the berries unfit for food. They immediately should be poured into a stone or glass vessel. Unless the first water in which they were cooked is poured off, they will be too tart.

Using the pinch of soda recommended in all good recipes not only removes the "wild" flavor but makes less sugar necessary to sweenten the berries. Cranberries, chopped tart apples and seeded raisins, mixed with spices and sugar, make a very good imitation mince pie.

Cranberry frappe is a delicacy that many prefer to cream. Boil one quart of cranberries, strain through a fine sieve or a white muslin bag, add two cups of sugar and the juice of two lemons and one orange. If too tart, sweenten to taste and freeze to a soft cream. This can be served with chopped pineapple, and isi very nice for a dinner ice.

THE GLOVES WE SHOULD OR SHOULD NOT WEAR.

Conservative women, with care for beauty rather than the latest style, still have many elbow-sleeved gowns, and for these the long gloves are required. But, no matter what their length, if they do not fit easily, the hands appear short and clumsy. The fingers of the glove should be quite as long as the fingers of the hand.

Besides, tight gloves do not last, which is an econimical consideration. Refined and thoroughbred women never wear gloves too small for them. Kid gloves wear much longer when they are properly put on the first time. "It is quite a science," said a charming woman. "The hand should be perfectly clean, dry and cool. Never put on gloves when the hands are moist or too warm."

First push in the four fingers, leaving the thumb out and the rest of the glove turned back over the hand. When the fingers are on, thanks to the gentle movements of the other hand, draw on the thumb with great care, placing the elbow on the knee. After this, draw back the wrist of the glove and button the second button, continuing this all the way up. Then return to the first button, and you will see how easily it fastens without cracking the kid, which often happens if buttoned first. Besides this, the button hole will not be stretched, which is of great importance if one wishes the glove to look well as long as it lasts. Never pull gloves off by the finger tips, but by the wrists. They will thus be removed wrong side out, and the moisture communicated from the hand be quickly evaporated. When they are dry, put them carefully away in a proper place. Otherwise they will shrink, split easily and become useless. Never roll up gloves. Place them at full length in a box or perfumed sachet. Light gloves should be put away between two pieces of white flannel to preserve them from contact with dark gloves, which might stain them.

Black kid gloves are renewed by applying with a feather a few drops of good black ink in a spoonful of olive oil and drying in the sun. Light gloves, if only slightly soiled, may be cleansed with flour. If much soiled, use neufafine.

In buying gloves examine the seams well. If the stitching shows a drawn white place on the kid they will be easily torn, will last only a short time and never look well.

HELPFUL HINTS TO ADD TO THE SCRAPBOOK.

At bit of glue dissolved in skim milk and water will restore old crepe. Dip the crepe lightly into the mixture and hang to dry in the open air.

Vinegar will take out ink spots. Wash the stain in vinegar, changing it every time it becomes discovered. Inf any stain remains in the cloth it will be removed by washing in the ordinary way.

Water bottles which obstinately remain stained may be ereated with a solution made of tea leaves, water, vinegar and a lump of salt. After this has stood for a couple of hours the bottle should be rinsed and left to drain, neck down.

Varnished paint can be kept looking as bright as when new by cleaning it with whole linseed. The method is to soak a bag containing the seed for some time in water and then to use it as a cloth to clean the paint.

To destroy worms in flower pots do not water the plant for two or three days, then turn it out of the pot and the worm will be found at the bottom. When it is not desirable to disturb the plant water it with weak lime water, which will cause the worm to come to the surface.

Gold or silver lace can be cleaned if it is dropped in a pint of boiling water containing a quantity of white soap and ammonia. Do not attempt to rub lace, but rinse it carefully and pin to a towel to dry. Warm spirits of wine will remove the tarnished appearance should it remain, though usually ammonia will remove the dull lustre, but it may injure the color of a silk thread, should it be interwoven in the lace.

TRINITY REFORMED MEN PLAN AN ASSOCIATION

At a meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, last night, there was further discussion regarding the proposition to form a men's association in the church. Edgar F. Sheppard and Charles M. Dolliver were appointed a committee to arrange for a meeting of the men of the church, possibly next week, when Rev. Alburtus Broek, of Newark, brother of Rev. John Y. Broek, will be invited to address the meeting.

Mr. Broek is expected to tell about the celebrated "Dutch Arms' Club," which he had in his church at Newburgh, N. Y., while Rev. John Y. Broek, who had a similar men's association in his church at Asbury Park, before coming here, will tell about that organization. A model constitution will be presented and it is the intention of those in charge of the affair to effect an association at that time. The men are quite enthusiastic over the proposition and it is the belief that a strong association will result.

FOR THE HOME SCRAPBOOK.

The easiest way to sprinkle clothes is to use a whisk broom, which should be kept for the purpose.

To freshen blue serge, sponge it with blue water. Afterward hang the garment in the air to dry.

To clean doormats, turn them up side down and stamp upon them vigorously with the feet. This frees the dust better than shaking the mat.

To clear a pipe of soap from lavatory basin or bath, take a handful each of common salt and soda, mix, and force down the pipe. Leave all night and in the morning pour down plenty of hot water.

Muslin sash curtains are sometimes torn by passing a rod through their hems. This accident is easily prevented. Put a thimble on one end of the rod, then pass it through the hem. With its end thus pointed, you will find it slides through quite easily.

VeVlvet, even of delicate colors, can be cleaned with a piece of flannel slightly damped with paraffin. Of course, the flannel must be perfectly clean, and it must be passed lightly over the pile of the velvet.

FOR THE HURRIED COOK.

In making a cake in a hurry for a meal, the icing can be made of white pulverized sugar mixed with milk. Have it thick and creamy and put it on the cake after the cake begins to cool. If a cooler is desired, drop a little fruit juice into the milk to tinge it. If a two-layer cake is made, it can be made even more palatable by mixing ground nuts in this icing.

A quick way to cut fancy-shaped cookies is to first cut the cakes round and then use the same cutter to cut the cakes in half. This makes an oval and crescent shape from one cake. A teaspoonful of clean snow can be added to a layer cake, and it is claimed that it will make the cake light. Cakes can be tested with French toothpicks much better than with broom straws. Grate orange peel, mix it with granulated sugar and run through a sieve. This makes an orange powder very nice to add to an icing, candy or puddings.

Wanted Father's Advice.

An eminent painter was once asked if he thought art students did well to go to the Continent to study. He said that undoubtedly the atmosphere was more artistic in Europe than anywhere else, but that Paris, as a city to study and work in, was overrated.

To illustrate his meaning, he said that a certain rich man's son, after three years in Paris, wrote home to his father:

"Dear Father—I have made up my mind to set to work. Please let me know at your earliest convenience whether it was painting, architecture or music I came to Paris to study."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

For Place Cards.

We are ever on the lookout for novelties in place cards.

For a boy's party, or even a girl's one can make celever place cards in this manner: Select cards about four inches square, any color, but white is the neatest. Cut from the funny section of the paper the colored bodies of men and women, and attach the half-shell of an English walnut for the head. Glue the walnut on the edge, press it against the card, when dry paint the mouth red with a spermaceti pencil, or use red ink, and color the eyes and nose with black India ink. One can make some very original and laughable cards in this manner.

Inconsistency.

"Isn't that Jones over there—the man who writes the bitter articles about abolishing the tipping nuisance?"

"Yes, that's Jones."

"What's he talking about?"

"He is raising a sarcastic howl over the fact that a noted millionaire is alleged to have given a waiter a nickel tip."—Cleveland Leader.

DAINTY TABLE DECORATIONS.

What can we have to decorate our dinner tables that is original and effective?

Even the dinner tables surrender to the fascination of motor cars. The new centrepiece is in the shape of a large automobile made of willow in white, crimson and black or deep yellow.

Those basket motors are wonderfully well made and will last for a season when one entertains a great deal.

The florists sell them, but they are filled by the fruiterer. The new fashion is to put pomegranates and oranges or hothouse grapes in it. The first fruit is always used in the far South for decoration as well as for eating, but has never been taken up to any extent in the North. It should be cut open to show the crimson seed if one wants to get a good decorative effect.

If purple hothouse grapes are heaped up around the pomegranates the effect is luxurious and inviting.

If one cannot afford these costly fruits for a dinner party flowers may be substituted. The scarlet poinsettias make the best floral note, and they can be mixed in with plenty of ferns and a few small roses.

Sashes and Streamers.

Streamers, tied and fringed, are deservedly in vogue, and always give a dainty finish, to the gown.

A novelty in costumes is the two long sash ends starting in a flat bow made of six-inch galloons.

These are put on the back of handsome gowns whether they are for evening or afternoon. Galloon is chosen that has a solid body with much embroidery in floss and metal.

On some gowns these streamers are lined with net or liberty satin to keep them from turning and twisting.

A Braid Arrangement.

Upon a dress of pale green satin was a soutache arrangement providing a lace front, shoulder pieces and a long plastron that gradually narrowed to the hem. With the wider proportions at the top, it certainly accentuates the long effect so eagerly sought in one-piece frocks.

THE FIRST of the YEAR is a good time to open a new account or to transfer funds without loss of interest, from an out of town bank to the Savings Department of the FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PLAINFIELD. We will arrange the transfer for you if you will bring us your book. Interest 4 Per Cent.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

The opinions expressed of professional ball players by some of the college men at the Intercollegiate Athletic Association meeting in New York last Saturday, were almost as bad as the opinions some professionals hold of college players. "Picture, if you can, a professional ball player foreswearing tobacco and liquor for the good of his team," said one of the delegates to the convention in his paper anent summer baseball. Well, that is exactly what not a few professionals do do, and there are those among them who work quite as hard for the good of their organization as a whole as do college players. As to bad language on the ball field, it is not confined to professional diamonds, as some of the delegates seemed to think. "Put it over, you blankety blank stiff, and I'll knock the cover off," exclaimed a batter of a college team to a pitcher of the opposing team on one occasion. In another college game of importance a coach was sent up to the line with instructions to "get the third baseman's goat." There are motes in the college player's eye to be removed before descanting on the beam in the professional's. One result of a good many college players entering professional baseball has been toward an uplift in the whole professional ranks rather than the corrupting of the collegian.

GOLF.

Selecting places for the championships and voting on the proposed amendments to the constitution probably will be the most important business to be transacted at the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association Friday night at Sherry's. There is little chance that the amendment to do away with the nominating committee will be passed, nor is there any evident reason why it should unless one is brought out in the arguments.

This year's nominating committee has prepared a strong ticket if the disappointment over the non-retention of Leighton Calkins on the executive committee is overlooked. Herbert L. Jacques, the nominee for president, is an enthusiastic player who has done much to promote the game at the Country Club and about Boston. He has not missed a meeting since being elected to the executive committee of the U. S. G. A. in 1907 nor a championship, journeying many thousands of miles on golf business in the two years. His son is the Harvard cross-country runner. Before making a choice the nominators, C. B. MacDonald, G. H. Windeler and F. S. James, first sought for a Chicagoan and offered the office to James B. Forgan, Robert Lincoln and David R. Forgan.

To end many rumors pro and con Jerome D. Travers, the amateur champion, said at the Montclair Golf Club last Saturday that he would go abroad in April and enter for the British amateur championship, to begin at Muirfield on May 24.

The decision of the faculties that the Intercollegiate Golf Associaition championships must hereafter be held in the summer vacation will add a formidable rival to the midsummer tournaments. At the annual meetinig at Brae Burn in October the college men voted to play next at Aqawamis if the course could be obtained. The league is now of eight members—Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia, Williams and Dartmouth.

Pinehurst will be a scene of competitive golf next week, the sixth annual midwinter tournament being played on January 11, 12 and 13, and the winter tournament of the Advertising Men's Association will follow on January 14, 15 and 16. A large entry is assured for both tournaments.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Annie Russell in her new comedy, "The Stronger Sex," has won a generous share of the public attention and she deserves it. Her play contains many striking scenes and Miss Russell rises to them all with the dignity of a well seasoned player. Miss Russel has just closed a run of 150 nights in New York at Weber's Theatre, and will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

a comfortable home cannot realize, and perhaps never give a thought to the lives of those who are known as "the women of the circus." Around them and their being hangs a veil of mystery, which unlike that of the stage has never been lifted for the gaze of the curious multitude. Outside of the glimpse caught of them in the passing parade through town and city, and the applauding of their feats under the big white tent, what do we know of them? Not as much as we know from reading and lectures of the women of far off Asia. To us they seem a race almost as alien as the gypsy, and we are apt to dismiss them with that familiar phrase "women of the circus." Never knowing or caring that they too are creatures of feeling and possess the attributes associated with the women of ease and breeding although living in an environment generally considered non-conducive to high ideals, developing to a high degree all that is best in womanhood. Among them spring into existence sweet flowers of femininity sometimes rivalling in mental and physical fragrance their sisters—offsprings of luxury's conservatory. Always a devotee, from boyhood up, of "the tan bark ring," Frederic Thompson, "the wizard of Luna Park" for years, had in his mind, the skeleton of a play which dealt with this subject. Meeting Margaret Mayo, the dramatist, he told her of his ideas, and she wrote for him "Polly of the Circus," which comes to this city next Saturday afternoon and night. Dainty, winsome Fay Wallace plays the role of Polly. This play comes to Plainfield with the endorsement of New York's critical theatre going public, and deals with the life of a sweet little flower of the ring, whose mother was killed while performing on horseback. It shows the efforts of the clown and his friend to bring the child up, and who despite their hard lives know that out beyond their ken is a life of better things, and for which they strive to give Polly. Finally after she has been hurt while performing in a small town and she has been taken to the parson's rectory, the two make up their minds that this is the first step in the right direction for Polly's future, and they leave her there sorrowful in their leave taking yet conscious that she is something apart from the life of paper hoops and painted clowns, and must be given every chance to attain the splendors which they plan shall come into her life. How they did and Polly's joys and sorrows in her new life form the theme of the beautiful play which the theatregoers, young and old, of Plainfield should not fail to see. The management has carefully selected a strong cast of capable players and the scenic production is very elaborate.

THE LION'S SHARE

By OCTAVE THANET

Author of The Man of the Hour

PICTURES BY A. WEIL

(Copyright, 1908, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

The chauffeur did not interrupt, but he shook his head over the departing hack. "He'd ought to have known it wan't on the square, but these hack drivers ain't got good sense even when they're, so to speak, sober, which ain't often," he soliloquized. "Well, lady, if they've took to the Chinese quarter, we'd better be looking up a Chink to help us, I guess. I know a fairly decent one—"

"I think I know a better," interrupted Mrs. Winter, with a faint smile. She had detected a suppressed pity in the man's regard. "Motor slowly along the street. There is a shop, if I can find it, where there ought to be a man—"

"Man you know? Say, lady, I guess I better go in with you, if you don't mind—"

"No; stay in your car. You don't know how safe I am. Not only my gray hair protects me, but I have only to say a few words and any of these men will fight for me if necessary. But this is in confidence—just between us, you understand. You are not to repeat it, ever."

She looked at him with a frank smile, and involuntarily his hand went up to his cap. "What you say goes, lady. But jest remember I'm right here, spark going all the time, ready to throw her wide open when you step in; and"—his voice sank—"I ain't absolutely unprepared for a scrap, either."

"I understand," said she, looking at him keenly, and a few moments later she stepped briskly into the shop before which he halted with a little lightening of the heart because of this uncouth knight of the lever. The shop itself was like any one of a score on the street, crowded with oriental objects, bizarre carvings of ivory and jade, daggers and strings of cash, swords, gorgeous embroidered robes of silk and gold in a huddle over a counter or swinging and gleaming in the dusky background, squat little green and brown gods with puffy eyelids, smiling inscrutably amid shoes and fans and Chinese lanterns of glass and bronze, glittering with beads—in all these, like the score about it; yet the clean windows and a certain order within gave it a touch out of the common. A man and a boy served the shop, both in the American dress, with their pigtails tucked under the visorless caps. Both greeted her in the serene oriental fashion, bowing and smiling, their obsequious courtesy showing no smallest sign of the surprise which the sight of an unattended woman must have given them.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Winter was aware that both, under their lowered eyelids, took cognizance of that soft-carven disk of jade among the laces on her breast. She asked the man if he had seen a lad and an older man, or it might be two older men, one a policeman, come into that or any other neighboring shop. She explained that the lad was her grand-nephew and was lost (she eschewed the harsher word, for she had no desire to set afloat a rumor which might bring the police upon her). She named a sum large enough to kindle a sudden gleam in the boy's eyes, as the reward awaiting the lucky man who might put her on the right track. But her words struck no responsive spark from the Chinaman's veiled gaze. In perfect English and a very soft voice he avowed ignorance and sympathy with the same breath.

And all the while she could feel his glance slant down at the jade ornament.

"Send the boy to look in the shop next door," said she. As she spoke she raised the charm between her thumb and her first two fingers, looking at him directly. Her tone was that of command, not request. He frowned very slightly, making an almost imperceptible gesture, to which she returned a single Chinese phrase, spoken so low that had he not expected the words they had been indistinguishable to his ear. Instantly he addressed the boy rapidly in their own language. The boy went out. The master of the shop returned to Mrs. Winter. His manner had utterly changed; the tradesman's perfunctory deference was displaced by an almost eager humility of bearing. He would have her sit—there were a few cane-seated American arm chairs, in grotesque contrast to all their accompaniments—he prostrated himself before her; he put himself at her service; still to her trained eye there was a corner of his mind where incredulity wrestled with a stronger emotion.

"Do not fear," she said, gently. "It is really my own, and he gave it to me himself, almost 30 years ago. He was hardly 30 years old himself then. You see, my husband had been so fortunate as to do him a kindness. It was he who had it first. When he died it came to me, and now for the second time in my life I am using it. I knew you belonged. I saw the sign. Will you help me find my boy?"

"Did your ladyship know he is he'e.

We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.

2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!

3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.

4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.

in San Francisco?"

If she had not already dissipated any doubt in his mind, her evident relief blew the last shred away now. "Haven't you such a thing as a telephone somewhere?" cried Rebecca Winter. "Time is precious. Can't you speak to him—have him come here?"

It appeared that there was a telephone, and in a moment she was put into communication by the shopkeeper. He stood in an attitude of deep respect while she talked. He heard with unsmiling attention her first Chinese words; he listened as she returned to English, speaking very quietly, but with a controlled earnestness, explaining that she was Archibald Winter's widow, giving dates and places, in nowise alluding to the service which had won the charm about her neck. Yet as he listened, insensibly the Chinaman grew certain that she had spoken the truth. Presently she turned to him. "He wishes to speak to you," she said, and went back to the shop. She sighed as one sighs from whose heart a great burden rolls. "To find him here, and still grateful!" she was thinking. "What wonderful good fortune!"

She sat down, and her face grew dreamy. She was no longer thinking of Archie. Her vision was on another face, another scene, a time of peril, when almost against her reason her instinctive woman's recoil of pity for a fellow-creature in danger of unthinkable torture had been so intense that she had more than acquiesced in her husband's plan of risking both their lives to save him; she had impelled him to it; she had overcome his terror of the risks on her account. "It is only death we have to fear, at worst," she had argued. "We have the means to escape in a second, both of us, from anything else; and if we run away and leave this poor wretch, who hasn't done anything but love his country, just as we love ours, and be too civilized for his trifling, ornery, pusillanimous country-people to understand, to get slashed to pieces by their horrible ling-ling—whatever they call it—Archibald Winter, don't you reckon we shall have nightmares as long as we live?"

Thirty years ago—yet it seemed like yesterday. Distinctly she could hear her husband's voice; it had not come back to her with such reality for years; it was more real than the cries of the street outside; and her heart was beating faster for his words: "Becky, there never was a woman like you! You could make a dead man hop up and fight, bless you!"

"Your ladyship"—it was the shopkeeper back again; he had lived in England, and he offered the most respectful western title of his knowledge—"your ladyship may be chee'ful. All will be done of the best. The young gentleman will be back fo' tonight. If your ladyship will now le-tu'n to the hotel."

Mrs. Winter bowed slightly; she was quite her self-possessed self again. "I will go certainly," she said, "but I shall hope to see you, also, to-night; and meanwhile, will you accept, as a token from a friend who trusts you, this?" She took a little gem-crusted watch from her fob and handed it to him. Her manner was that of a queen who rewards her general. And she left him bowing low. She entered the motor car. It was no longer a lone motor. Another car steamed and snorted near by, in which sat the amiable banker from Iowa, his wife and Janet Smith.

It took only a moment to transfer a passenger, to explain that she hoped to find the boy who had been lost—no, she would not use such a strenuous word as kidnaped—and would they complete their kindness by not mentioning the affair to any one? One hated so to get into the papers. And would they let her see them again to thank them? Then, as she sank back on the cushions, she remarked, as much to the expectant chauffeur as to Janet: "Yes, I think it is all right. I think we shall see Archie to night."

The Latest Coiffure.

Almost boyish in its front aspect is the newest coiffure arrangement heralded from Paris. The hair is emphatically parted on the left and brushed softly and flatly over the right. In back it is dressed low and flat, with a curl or two on the neck. This mode has already made its appearance in Philadelphia operaboes this season. To a certain type of face the left part is becoming—but it might be whispered that it is not the ordinary face.

1909 FORD, 4 Cylinder, 20 H. P., with Magneto and 3 Lamps. $850; Roadster $825; Landaulette $950. F. O. B. DETROIT

SPECIFICATIONS.

ENGINE—Four-cylinder, 3¾ bore x 4-inch stroke, 20 H. P. conservative rating.

CYLINDERS—Cast in one block, top removable, affording easy access to all parts of the engine. In case you should let your engine freeze and crack a cylinder, you can buy the entire block of 4-cylinders for the very low price of $25.00. This price is less than most factories charge for one cylinder, and removes the only possible objections a man could have against this method of construction.

IGNITION—Ford low tension magneto generator, built as part of the fly wheel. No gears, belts, brushes or contact points to give trouble. So simple in construction and so positive in operation, that it looks as though it would last forever without any attention from the owner. This system removes all battery trouble, one of the most annoying and expensive troubles.

STEEL—Heat treated Vanadium steel throughout. No car at $5,000.00 has higher grade, for none better can be bought. We defy any man to break a Ford Model T spring, axle, shaft, gear, or other part with any test less than 50 per cent more severe than would be required to put any other steel in the junk pile.

It has taken Ford two years and cost him $200,000.00 to acquire the analysis and the heat-treating and quenching formulas of this wonderful steel, as they are his own secrets.

LUBRICATION—No pumps, tubes or glasses to give trouble. The fly wheel acts as the distributing agent, and as long as there is a drop of oil in the tank your engine and transmission is sure to be taken care of.

TIRES—Ford Model T weighs only 1,200 pounds, therefore will take you more miles and cost you less for tires than any other five-passenger car in the world.. The tire cost is really about the only expensive part of the running of an automobile. Be sure and give this subject your most critical examination before buying a car, as it means a good many DOLLARS in your pocket every time you wear out a set of tires.

HERE ARE THE FACTS—If a manufacturer designs and makes his car so heavy that he must equip it with a 32x4-inch tire, It will cost you for a set of four tires.....$129.00
Four tires for a Model T Touring Car will cost..... 74.50

Difference saved every time you must buy a set of tires....$ 54.50

This will buy a lot of gasoline and oil. All tires, regardless of size, are guaranteed by the tire manufacturer to run the same number of miles. So do not let anybody tell you differently. Ask them to show you the tire guarantee and it will show for itself.

DELIVERIES—We are booking orders for deliveries in rotation as received, or by placing a small deposit with your order we will deliver you a car when you want it in the spring.

BE SURE TO SEE the Ford exhibition at the Grand Central palace auto show January 1 to January 7.

WE guarantee all new cars sold by us free of repairs for three months.

Kimball Secures His Release.

John H. Kimball, of Westfield, who was arrested and taken to the county jail at Elizabeth yesterday in default of satisfying a judgment of $250 obtained in the District court by Sidney E. Frazee, secured his release last night under the provisions of the credit law, which allows a man $200 personal property. It is now the opinion of lawyers that the plaintiff in the action is not likely to receive damages. Kimball, it is said, has admitted his inability to pay the judgment.

According to the annual custom, the Common Council, last night, confirmed the usual number of special policemen.

BOROUGH SCHOOL VACANCY FILLED BY MISS DAILY.

The vacancy in the staff of teachers at Somerset school, caused by the resignation of Miss Rita S. Dalley, has been filled by the North Plainfield Board of Education by electing to that position, Miss Leila Daily, who has been doing substitute work at Westfield.

Miss Daily is a graduate of the Plattsburg, N. Y., State Normal School and of Syracuse University. She has taught two years.

Miss Clara Van Fleet, of Jackson avenue, is substituting this week for Miss Margaret Hudson, teacher of the seventh grade, who is ill at her home at Rouse's Point, New York.

Reports from Miss Myrtle Montague, who is absent on leave this year, indicate that her health is showing satisfactory improvement. She is at present at Henderson, N. Y.

GAY TIME FOR EXEMPTS AFTER BUSINESS MEETING.

The Exempt Firemen's Association of North Plainfield enjoyed a social time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Allen last night, following the regular monthly business meeting. Mrs. Allen had prepared a collation and after that had been enjoyed a number of toasts were given. President L. Feiring acted as toastmaster. Thos responding to toasts were: Chief H. F. Woolston; former fire chief and new Councilman I. J. Stahl spoke on "The Future of the Borough;" Geo. Schlereth, "The Busy Man;" A. Feiring, "What to do With Bill's Donkey;" J. C. Walker, "The Cheapest Way of Raising Chickens;" D. C. Allen, "A Royal Welcome;" J. D. Anderson, "A Fireman's Life."

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB HAVE INTERESTING MEETING.

The members of the Monday Afternoon club were treated yesterday to a delightful program at their meeting in the Hartridge School auditorium, when Mrs. J. P. Stevens, who had charge of the entertainment, read a carefully prepared paper on "American Composers," some of whose works were illustrated with selections on the piano by Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, Miss Corey, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard and Mrs. William C. Hubbard.

A second interesting paper on the life Edward MacDowell was read by Mrs. Edward V. Cox and several songs were sung effectively by Miss Susie Goddard.

Miss Katharone C. Manning.

Miss Katharine C. Manning, daughter of Catharine C. and the late Jeremiah Manning, died this morning at the home of her mother on Dunellen avenue. She had been suffering for a long time but had been confined to her bed only for the past few days. Beside her mother, Miss Manning is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Clara Locap, of Dunellen avenue, and Mrs. Margaret Smith, of Newark; also one brother, James C. Manning, of Dunellen avenue. The funeral will be held at her late home on Thursday afternoon at 2:30.

Wyckoff-Brimble Nuptials.

Miss Mary A. Wyckoff and Lewis Brimble, Jr., were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Metuchen by Rev. B. S. Crocroft, pastor of Trinity church there. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage, in the presence of two friends, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Kinney, of North Plainfield. The bride wore a gray traveling costume. The young couple will begin housekeeping immediately at 7 Jefferson avenue, this city, in a newly furnished house. They are members of Trinity Reformed church.

GEORGE WHARTON EDWARDS' ARTISTIC COVER DESIGN.

The current issue of The Literary Digest contains a handsome cover design, the work of George Wharton Edwards, the artist, of Franklin place. The design represents the flight of Mercury, the messenger of the gods, himself one of the gods of the winds, the god of commerce, and the special patron of heralds, messengers and newsmen. He bears tidings from all parts of the world. Mercury is seen leaving the temple of the gods accompanied by swift sea-birds, the companions of his voyage.

The wandering albatross, possest of wondrous powers of flight, herald of Mercury's approach, may be seen in the distance. Interpreted allegorically, Mercury, as the disseminator of news, represents The Literary Digest, the swift herald which carries to the world at large messages from all points of the compass. In his right hand Mercury carries the Caduceus, or golden wand of commerce. On his feet are the talaria, or winged sandals.

New Feature at Park Theatre.

The Park theatre was well-filled last evening with patrons, notwithstanding the inclement weather prevailing. A novelty was introduced by Richard Chawner, who gave a descriptive lecture from a remarkable motion picture entitled "The Queen of the Arena." This new feature was a decided hit of the performance and will be repeated today. Vaudeville attractions were "Marty," the comedy juggler; Charles Anderson, song and dance artist, illustrated songs and the moving pictures. This show will continue all the week with daily change of program.

The Press Found His Dog.

The Boston bull terrier owned by Howard A. Colby, of Evergreen avenue, which strayed away from home a few days ago, has been returned to Mr. Colby through The Daily Press. A family residing in the West End of the city, readers of this paper, found the dog and seeing the advertisement, took it to the owner.

Board of Trade to Elect.

The January meeting of the Board of Trade will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The program will include the annual reports, election of officers, membership campaign and a discussion of the annual banquet.

MISS RAFFERTY TALKS ON SIAM'S PROGRESS

An interesting paper on Siam was read before the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, whose meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. Miss Rafferty referred to the meagre historical facts concerning the early days of Siam. Most of the knowledge being confined to the past 200 years. The progressive spirit of the rulers was an interesting fact brought out by Miss Rafferty and the large number of telegraph, telephones and appliances of modern industry was commented upon. The introduction of the liquor traffic by pioneer traders was spoken of, the two kinds of Americans known to them being Americans, who christianized and Americans who liquorized.

Miss Rafferty told of the early efforts in mission work carried on by the Congregationalists, Presbyterians and Baptists, closing with the prophetic hope of the coming dawn of the day when "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Christ is God."

The paper was preceded by devotional services led by Mrs. James L. Manning and expressions appreciative of the late Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson and Mrs. Scarborough were given.

BISHOP J. J. O'CONNOR'S APPEAL FOR STRICKEN

The Rt. Rev. John J. O'Connor, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Newark, yesterday sent out letters to all of the rectors of the diocese, in which he asked them to make an appeal for a collection and prayers to aid the surviving sufferers in the Italian earthquake disaster. The letters will be read in all of the churches next Sunday, and on the following Sunday collections will be taken up. Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, received this letter:

"Bishop's House,
"552 South Orange Avenue,
"South Orange, N. J.
"January 5, 1909.

"Rev. Dear Father:

"The awful disaster which a few days ago visited the people of Southern Italy and Sicily, and which is described to us in all its harrowing details in the daily press, has appalled the civilized world and aroused the sympathy of every nation of Christendom. The extent of the havoc caused by the earthquake both to property and life and the need of immediate assistance to the survivors who are practically destitute, urge us to prompt measures of relief so that those whom the earthquake spared may not perish of want.

"We have already cabled to the Holy Father $2,000 in anticipation of the collection which is hereby ordered to be taken up in all the churches of the diocese on the Sunday following the receipt of this letter.

"It is needless for me to impress upon the faithful the urgency of the situation which appeals to their charity. Your sympathetic heart will, I am sure, move you and your people to send a generous contribution to this relief fund, the balance of which will be forwarded by cable to Rome when the returns have been made to the Chancery.

"Commending the sufferers also to the charity of your prayers, I remain,

'Sincerely yours in Christ,
"J. J. O'CONNOR,
"Bishop of Newark."

SOME ITEMS OF INTEREST TO GOLDEN EAGLE KNIGHTS.

The Past Chiefs' Association of the Knights of the Golden Eagles, District No. 10, will hold its annual banquet at New Brunswick on Saturday, January 16.

The degree team of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, has accepted an invitation to visit Yonkers Castle, Yonkers, N. Y., on Saturday, January 23, and exemplify the work. A large delegation will accompany the team. The Castle will journey by special trolley to Perth Amboy, on Tuesday night, January 26, to witness the installation of Castle officers there. Several grand castle officers will be present.

"Reading Journey in Hollow-Land."

The Christmas number of "The Chautauquan," contains an artice of exceptional interest by George Wharton Edwards, the artist, of Franklin place, it being "A Reading Journey in the Hollow-Land." The subject is "The Island of Walcheren and Zeeland—The Dead Cities—Rotterdam." The articles are finely illustrated throughout. This story began two months ago and will continue until early summer.

M'ALL CONVENTION HERE

Local Branch Will Invite American Auxiliary to Hold Sessions in Plainfield.

FIFTY BRANCHES IN ALL.

Speakers of National Importance to Attend—Busy Session of Plainfield Branch.

At the monthly meeting of the Plainfield branch of the McAll Auxiliary held at the Public Library this morning, it was decided to invite all of the American branches of the Auxiliary to hold their annual meeting in this city the first week in May. This will be a two days' session and will be an important gathering. There are about fifty American branches and fully that number of representatives would attend the meeting coming from Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, New York and other large cities.

Speakers of national importance will address the gathering and review the work being accomplished by the McAll Auxiliary in this country, which has now grown to such large proportions. If the annual meeting is held here the delegates would be entertained by the members of the local branch.

Another important matter of business this morning was the announcement that Rev. George Berry, of Englewood, general secretary for the McAll Auxiliary in the United States, has been secured to address a meeting to be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Wednesday night, January 27, and it was decided to invite the members of all the churches of the city and borough to be present. The meeting will be followed by a social hour and refreshments will be served. Mr. Berry will bring a full and complete report of the work being done by the auxiliary through the territory covered by him.

Two letters of special interest received from Limoges, France, where the Plainfield branch supports a mission, were read this morning, telling of the progress being made by the missionaries in charge. This was most encouraging to the Plainfield members.

JERUSALEM LODGE F. & A. M. INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., at its regular meeting last night, installed its officers, Past District Deputy Theodore B. Townley, officiating. Worshipful Master William G. Hutchcroft was presented with a gavel and Past Master Samuel W. Fish received the gavel and apron of the retiring official. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the business session.

These are the ne wofficers: Worshipful Master, William G. Hutchcroft; senior warden, George E. Herring; junior warden, George Zimmerman; chaplain, Rev. A. C. McCrea; senior deacon, Henry G. Kline; junior deacon, C. A. Lee; treasurer, Clarence Goss; secretary, Robert E. Kinney; senior master of ceremonies, William D. Coriell; junior master of ceremonies, J. Harry Cook; stewards, Albert Jackson, Robert H. Lowrey; tyler, Kasper Bolsterly; marshal, R. A. Meeker.

McIntyre Chamber Concert.

The McIntyre Chamber Music Concert at the Hartridge School auditorium tomorrow night, promises to be one of the best of the season. Valdidimir Dubinsky, 'cellist, will be the soloist, and the appearance here of Francis Rogers, baritone, will be of exceptional interest to lovers of music. He has on several occasions sung for President Roosevelt and his guests and has received many flattering comments. The program will comprise Mendelssohn's beautiful "Trio in B Minor," a solo, songs by Francis Rogers.

Funeral of Mrs. Hartpence.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Hartpence, widow of Absalom Hartpence, was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Lemuel Pope, of Westervelt avenue. Rev. Dr. McCrea conducted the service in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends. Burial was made in the Methodist cemetery.

Men's Club Speaker.

The Men's Club of the First Baptist church meets on Monday evening, January 11, in the lecture room of the church. The feature of the evening will be a lecture by Rev. E. A. Woods, D. D., of Somerville, subject, "A Tenderfoot Minister in California."

FIVE YEARS' SENTENCE FOR COPPER WIRE THIEF

Charles Wilderman, who, together with Antonio and Nicholas Saritella, pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing copper trolley wire belonging to the Public Service Corporation, was this morning sentenced in the Union county court to five years at hard labor in State prison. The Saritellas will be arraigned for sentence on Wednesday, January 13.

The trio was arrested by the Newark police and County Detective Gallatian after a long and persistent search. The gang operated extensively throughout the county and more especially at Kenilworth, Westfield, Rahway and in the suburbs of Elizabeth. Time and again the Public Service Corporation trolley service was crippled for hours through the stealing of wire and was put to no end of trouble and expense. The gang after taking the wire would melt it and then sell it for a big price.

GOLDEN EAGLE CASTLE INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

District Deputy G. L. Moore of New Brunswick, with staff, installed the officers-elect of Freedom Castle, No. [illegible] Knights of the Golden Eagle, last night. After the installation the Castle initiated two candidates. The report of the finances showed the Castle to be in excellent condition, there being not only a good balance, but a steady increase in membership.

During the evening William Day was the recipient of a handsome gift, in recognition of his work as captain of the degree team. These officers were installed:

Past Chief, Arthur B. Caleen; noble chief, Clark Lowrie; vice chief, Frank Neidig; sir herald, L. A. Martin; high priest, Frank Runyon; venerable hermit, Walter Butz; clerk of exchequer, R. V. Kinney; keeper of exchequer, W. W. F. Randolph; master of records, A. R. Vail; worthy bard, L. A. Hummer; worthy chamberlain, N. I. Wiley; first guard, G. E. Church; second guard, Walter Randall; esquire, Casper Waglow; ensign, John Dickson.

Watchung Court Installs.

Watchung Court, I. O. F., at its monthly meeting last night, installed the newly-elected officers. The annual reports were read and two candidates were initiated. These officers were installed: District Deputy Superintendent Chief Ranger, D. T. Titsworth, officiating: Treasurer, A. M. Vanderbeek; orator, Charles A. Haring; senior woodward, M. L. Clawson; junior woodward, H. L. Black; senior beadle, N. J. R. Chandler; junior beadle, Thos. B. Dickerson; trustees, H. L. Black and Thos. A. Hayes. The re-elected officers, for whom installation ceremonies were not necessary, were court deputy, John R. Naylor; court physician, M. L. Clawson, M. D.; junior past chief ranger, Charles S. Hayes; chief ranger, John M. Lewin; vice chief ranger, John Knight, Jr.; recording secretary, Geo. E. Volk; financial secretary, James D. Macnab; apothecaries, D. S. Miller and P. B. Hodge.

Henry Biske Denied a License.

The application of Henry Biske for a liquor license at the hotel at Dog Corners was refused by the Union County court, yesterday, a strong remonstrance being presented by Winfield S. Angleman, who appeared as counsel for those who protested against the hotel being licensed. The application of Howard Davis for a license at the Berkeley Heights Hotel was also presented, but J. Henry Crane appearing as counsel for fifty people from Berkeley Heights, succeeded in having the matter laid over until Friday.

Noted Missionary to Speak.

Rev. C. A. L. Janvier, who will address the local Christian Endeavor Union at Trinity Reformed church, Thursday night, January 14, has chosen as his subject, "The Prophet of Arabia and His Religion." He is well qualified to speak on this subject and of Mohammedism and oriental religions. His parents were missionaries in Allahabad for fifteen years. The fact that his son is ill in this country caused Mr. Janvier's return. He is the guest of Dr. Ellis W. Hedges.

Plainfielder in Peru.

Miss Alice C. Page, a former Plainfielder and a graduate of the Metropolitan Hospital, New York, who left in November to assume the duties of superintendent of Cerro De Pasco Hospital at Cerro De Pasco, Peru, S. A., writes to Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Wikoff, of West Fourth street, that she arrived at her destination on December 15, safely, and at once assumed her duties.

BRICK PAVE NO BENEFIT

So Says Interested Property-Owners Who Object to Being Assessed.

HAD PAID FOR MACADAMIZING.

Real Estate Owners Attend Commission Meeting and Offer Some Suggestions.

City Engineer A. J. Gavett, Thomas J. Hughes and H. B. MacDonald, commissioners appointed by the Court of Common Pleas, to assess benefits for the brick pavement and other recent macadamizing in the city, granted the first of a series of public hearings to interested property-owners in the Common Council last night. It was announced by the commissioners at the outset that the hearing was solely for the purpose of receiving suggestions which might help them in their work, but that no decision could be reached at this time. There were about a dozen property-owners present to express their opinions.

A protest against the payment of any assessment for the brick pavement was presented by J. Fred MacDonald, J. A. Staats, Dr. Albert Pittis, Powlison & Jones, Schwed Brothers and George J. Finger. They objected on the ground that several [illegible] the property owners were [illegible] for the permanent improvement of the streets included in the territory in Park avenue, from the railroad bridge to Front street and from Somerset street to Watchung avenue, and they declared that they did not consider that they were morally or legally bound to again pay for the improvement of the streets. The improvements of the streets referred to were made in 1870-74.

Henry Leifke appeared in behalf of his West Front street property, stating that in his opinion the brick pavement is no especial benefit to the owners on that thoroughfare. L. W. Randolph claimed that there should be no special assessment, except the general one in retiring the bonds.

Others who spoke against the assessment were Charles P. Sebring, William F. Arnold, J. Fred MacDonald, Herman Schwed and Fred Endress, who objected on the same grounds as previously set forth. Some claimed that the brick pavement is more of a public benefit than individual. Another objection was that the flats and apartments along the thoroughfare where the brick pavement has been laid are not as desirable on account of noise and dust. Fred Endress called the attention of the commissioners to the loss sustained by the merchants during the construction of the pavement.

In levying an assessment for the brick pavement there is a legal point to be decided. The commissioners presented all of the old city maps and ordinances referring to the improvement of the streets in the business section as far back as 1870 and later and it appears that in the early days the property-owners in nearly every instance stood the entire expense for macadamizing, even for the laying of the wooden pavement in October, 1870. Park avenue, or Cherry street as it was known in the early days, was improved several times and the maps show that practically the whole expense for the work was borne by the property-owners. This seems to be true of other street work.

Noticeable among the assessment levied for this work was one for $670 against W. L. Jones and another for $109 against I. W. Pangborn, while an assessment of $660.75 was levied against the Martin property at Park avenue and Second street, now owned by W. R. Codington. In view of these facts the commissioners informed the property-owners last night that they would consult with Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh concerning the legal points raised before making their report. The meeting adjourned to Tuesday night, January 12, when another opportunity will be given anyone to appear and express an opinion.

Court Plainfield to Install.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting on Friday night, will initiate candidates and install the officers-elect for the year. The entertainment and other committees will report. A vocal and instrumental program has been arranged and a smoker will be an added feature. Deputy High Chief Ranger Charles J. McCarthy will install the officers.

Complete Change of Pictures.

Proctor's theatre will offer a complete change of Cameraphone selections and moving pictures today, the subjects being among the best yet seen in this city.

PLAINFIELD CAUSES IN UNION'S COURTS

The list of causes for the January term of the Union county courts of interest to Plainfielders include the following: Supreme Court—Helen Meyers against Public Service Corporation, in tort, Robert Newton Crane for plaintiff and A. A. Clark for defendant; Lebbeus L. Manning and Walter F. Manning, partners, doing business as L. L. Manning & Son, against Annie Cawley, on contract, Codington & Swackhamer for plaintiff and Charles F. Herr for defendant; Annie M. Matthews and Leslie Matthews against the Public Service Corporation, in tort, Codington & Swackhamer for plaintiffs and A. A. Clark for defendant; Honan H. Beals against David S. Dunavan, on contract, William Newcorn for plaintiff and Robert Newton Crane for defendant; William Chamberlain against the Public Service Corporation, in tort.

Circuit Court—J. S. Irving Company against Theodore Apgar, et al., builders, and Herbert C. McVoy, owner, on contract, on mechanic's lien, Paul Q. Oliver for plaintiff and W. S. Angleman for defendants. The general list of causes is unusually small for the term and it is the belief that the courts will not be heavily burdened.

SPLENDID RECORD OF O. A. H. BENEVOLENCES

At the annual meeting of Division No. 4, A. O. H., the following officers were elected: President, J. J. Gallagher, vice-president, Patrick Connelly; recording secretary, James McCann; financial secretary, Albert Matthews; treasurer, Patrick Harrington; inside sentinel, Thomas Farrall; sergeant-at-arms, Patrick Griffin. The reports showed the division to be in splendid shape in every way.

During the meeting, the officers touched upon the work of the A. O. H. throughout the country and the following figures were given to show its extent: Sick and funeral benefits paid out by the A. O. H. and the Ladies Auxiliary in the past twenty years, $7,174,156; charitable donations to churches, schools and orphanages, $4,481,146; donations to funds for the Charleston, Kansas City and Galveston flood and earthquake disasters, $10,000; donations to Gaelic league in Ireland, $15,000; San Francisco earthquake sufferers, $44,000; west of Ireland famine sufferers (1908), $1,000; Boer war ambulance corps, $10,000; endowment of chair of Celtic languages at the Catholic university of America, $50,000; Trinity College scholarship, Washington, D. C. endowed by the Ladies Auxiliary, $10,000; Grosse Isle monument to fever ship famine victims, $5,000; American Church Society $20,000; estimated outlay for the purchase of Irish histories for parochial schools, $10,000.

This makes a total expenditure for educational and charitable purposes during the past twenty years of $11,803,302. When it is considered that the A. O. H. is not an insurance organization, the record is one of which the members might justly feel proud.

MISS MADELINE MILLER BRIDE OF J. A. CEARNS

Miss Madeline Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, of Prescott place, and John A. Cearns, of Somerset street, were married New Year's Eve at Scotch Plains by Justice Charles Clark. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Henry Cearns, and the best man was Henry Cearns, brother-in-law. The bride was gowned in blue silk and Mrs. Henry Cearns wore a maroon colored gown with hat to match.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a number of friends gathered to offer congratulations. The couple are now enjoying a trip to Niagara Falls and Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Cearns will reside on Somerset street, in a house recently built by the groom. Mr. Cearns has resided here all his life. He is employed by William Sharkey, of Somerset street.

Reception to Supreme Chief.

Elliott G. Stevenson, supreme chief ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, will be tendered a big reception by the United Courts of Essex and Union counties at the Colosseum, Springfield avenue, Newark, on Tuesday night, January 12, at 8 o'clock. The reception committee with the co-operation of the High Court officers has arranged an elaborate program of music and entertainment for the occasion. Foresters of Plainfield, Dunellen and South Plainfield are invited to attend and give the supreme chief a hearty welcome.

BIG RELIEF BENEFIT TOMORROW EVENING

Mr. Randolph's Lecture to Be Illustrated by Scenes of the Destroyed Italian Cities.

AN ALL FEATURE PROGRAM.

Prominent Citizens Act as Honorary Committee—School Children Selling Tickets in City and Borough.

In order that their people may attend the big lecture and entertainment for the benefit of the quake relief fund, at the First M. E. church, at 8 o'clock, tomorrow night, several local pastors have announced that that on that night there will be no meeting in their churches notwithstanding previous announcements for the week of prayer. Tickets are selling rapidly at fifty cents each and a big crowd is expected.

Both Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city schools, and H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the borough schools, are deeply interested in the benefit entertainment. This morning, Mr. Krebs sent this communication to this office:

"When a convulsion of nature hurls hundreds of thousands of our fellow men to death, injuries an equal number in body and destroys their property, all in a few minutes, it appeals to all mankind in a peculiar manner. Your paper deserves great credit for its enterprise in arranging at its own expense to make contributions speedy and convenient."

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, who will deliver the lecture, has a large number of pictures of Messina and the other cities destroyed in the catastrophe. These pictures will be thrown upon the screen and should prove interesting to everyone, particularly as they have been seen here before. He will take his audience with him to the scenes of the disaster as it were and will point out the grandeur, beauty and wealth of the ill-fated places.

A. V. D. Honeyman, who has frequently visited Messina and the other Italian cities during his travels abroad, will give a vivid picture of them during his talk, as will also Rev. B. M. Bogan, who has also visited them. Father Bogan has abandoned a trip South in order to accept an invitation to speak on this occasion.

Arrangements for the entire program at the church, which will be announced tomorrow, are well under way. Percy Mygrant, of Fanwood, has consented to render a cornet solo in the course of the evening. His selection tomorrow night will be "There is a Green Hill Far Aaway," by Gounod.

J. Edmund Skiff, organist of the First M. E. church, will render two organ selections, Chopin's Funeral March, and "The March of the Israelites," (Costa), from the oratorio "Eli."

Former Mayor Wm. L. Saunders will preside. The honorary committee consists of Edwin S. Hooley, L. W. Randolph, William L. Saunders, Rev. B. M. Bogan, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Jamse W. Jackson, H. C. Krebs, Francis J. Blatz, George H. Beiser, James R. Joy, David E. Titsworth, Ernest R. Ackerman, J. Herbert Case, Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, Alexander Millar, George Wharton Edwards, James T. Closson, Henry M. Maxson, P. J. Zeglio, Thomas S. Armstrong, William M. Sandford, George P. Mellick.

The pupils of the high school and grammar grades of the city and borough public schools today showed their interest in the benefit lecture and relief fund work by taking lecture tickets to sell. F. Clyde Doane, Guion Fountain and G. Stanley Robins, three P. H. S. seniors today visited the various local schools, explained the object of the lecture and left tickets with many pupils to take to their parents for sale.

The doors of the church will be opened at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night. F. Clyde Doane, of the Plainfield High School, has consented to act as chief usher, and will be assisted by Arthur Bingamin, Russell Morris, Charles Prior, G. Stanley Robins and John W. Riffert, all high school pupils.

Mrs. Helen M. Wells, of Boston, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hoagland, of West Front street.

Positive Proof of Muslinwear Superiority

There are white sales and white sales, but that this is best of all we want you to know as positively as we. To make sure of our position we made comparisons with best values obtainable at sales in Newark, New York and Brooklyn, which proved that we, as always, are giving the public newest styles, best make, best materials, fullest lengths and best values of three great cities—an unbroken record. Do not judge a sale by price alone, but compare every point that goes to make up a perfect garment. We like such comparisons, for they are sure to result in our favor. And that this sale is our most successful one shows how comparisons are winning for us. The following are only suggestions from hundreds of items. Come, you cannot fail to be suited.

Women's 25c. Drawers—Muslin trimmed with deep cambric flounce, tucked and hemstitched, well made; when you see the quality of materials and trimming, and note the excellence of workmanship, you will wonder how they can be made even at 25c. .19

Biggest Suit Selling Event in Many Years!

Our Entire Winter Stock Involved in This Sweeping Movement.

Likely Newark has never known the equal of the garment clearance which we will inaugurate tomorrow. We are going to make the most decisive reductions in the prices on all the winter garments in the stock, sparing none, cutting right and left to effect an immediate and thorough reorganization of the stocks and to clear every rack and case of suits now on hand that we may have a clear field for action a month hence when the early battalions of spring garments will be coming in. The importance of this suit sale cannot be exaggerated. The advantages to our patrons are really extraordinary. No house that we know of has ever faced a situation more courageously, and the results should be exactly what we aim for.

We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.

2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!

3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.

4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.

5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

The New York National League Baseball Club, through Secretary Knowles, has given to the Yale-Princeton and Harvard-Yale baseball managements options on two dates at the Polo Grounds for their respective games next summer. In accordance with the time honored custom Yale and Princeton will meet there in case a third game is necessary to decide their series, and Harvard and Yale will do likewise. The date of the third Yale-Princeton game is June 15, which falls on a Tuesday, and the date of the third Harvard Yale game July 3, which falls on a Saturday.

The first Yale-Princeton game is generally played at New Haven on a Saturday and the second in Princeton on the following Saturday. If this arrangement obtains this year Yale will meet Princeton at New Haven on June 5 and at Princeton on June 12. Harvard meets Yale at Cambridge on June 29 next season and the second game is to be played at New Haven on July 1.

Manager Chance is said to be willing to bet $25,000—not stage money—that Jeffries can whip Johnson.

Ty Cobb says his brother Paul will make a hit in fast company. If he's like Tyrus he'll make several hits.

It is a coincidence of note that two New York managers lost a pennant on the last day of the season, McGraw last year and Griffith in 1904.

Manager Chance of the Cubs says Evers is not bluffing when he declares he is going to quit the game, and Chance has signed Danny Shay as utility man.

It is reported that Ban Johnson as a member of the National Commission will oppose the reinstatement of James Sebring, who is wanted by the Brooklyn club. But the matter may be compromised if Player Joe Ward can be restored to good standing, as the latter is slated for one of the American League clubs.

The Cleveland Americans have offered $10,000 cash for Pitcher Bill Burns of the Washingtons. Lajoie thinks he can win the pennant if he lands Burns. But at least one other American League club will make a powerful bid for this promising boxman.

GOLF.

The Merion Cricket Club is an added applicant for the women's championship. Regarding the new rules from St. Andrews it will have to be decided at the meeting whether to accept them as a whole, or as in other years to appoint a committee to annote them for American players. The new arrangement makes the code easier to comprehend, yet there are many points on which a committee should pass before the rules are accepted by the U. S. G. A. to govern all its clubs. As an example the new definition of a hazard omits to include both railways and fences. Yet there is a specific mention of "road or path," and although not mentioned this should include a railway. The "recommendations for local rules," however, suggest that one should be framed for railways.

These recommendations open the way for a U. S. G. A. expounding committee. Also permanent grass is not excepted in defining a hazard. Yet a sub-committee will have to decide whether the St. Andrews rules committee has not reverted to the British principle that permanent grass is never part of a hazard. This is how they always faced the complication over there for years before the definition formally excepted permanent grass.

Guiding the Children.

It is very necessary to teach children early how to gargle the throat. It is not a difficult thing to teach a child, if taught before the throat becomes sore and the act becomes a necessity. The teaching may be made a pastime, and the knowledge so gained may save much trouble and suffering, and perhaps life itself. The benefit arising from frequently washing the mouth and throat with salt and water cannot be over-estimated. It is recommended by physicians as a preventive of contagious throat diseases.

Our Bows.

If a small gum elastic is stitched to the silk bow, the elastic being passed under the flap of the collar and attached to the collar button at the back, it will keep the tie in place much better than the usual metallic clasp.

Miss Ada Fredericks, of Morristown, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. W. Corbin, of West Fourth street.

Miss Emily P. Gould, of New York, who has been visiting Miss Caroline Martin, of Hillside avenue, has returned home.

Miss Minnie M. Carpenter, of New Market, for a number of years missionary in Japan, returned to that country last month to be associated with Miss Kidder at Tokyo.

CHEMICAL WORKS PLANT DESTROYED BY A FIRE.

A fire that started yesterday morning in the Anatron Chemical Works, Elizabethport, entirely destroyed the plant. The loss will probably reach $25,000 or more.

The selling agents of the concern are Kalbfleish & Co. The works were at the foot of Baltic street.

A general alarm brought nearly all the Elizabeth fire department to the scene.

Arranging for Committee Work.

Unless there is an urgent need for it the Common Council not meet again this month. The various committees are arranging now stated times of meeting and before the regular February session is held it is expected that the members will be well acquainted with the business before them. Chairman Herbert Buxton of the finance committee has fixed the last Friday night in the month as the time for its regular meeting. That will allow sufficient time to get the financial matters in shape for the regular Council meeting.

Unity Lodge Installation.

Deputy Grand Chancellor Smalley and staff, of Bound Brook, will visit Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., tomorrow night for the purpose of installing the recently elected officers. During the business session, the third degree will be conferred upon one candidate and the deputy grand chancellor of District No. 20, for the coming year, will be selected from Unity membership. The installation ceremonies will be followed by a social period.

Veteran Seal to be Retired.

The seal that has been in use at Police headquarters for the past thirty-nine years is to be retired on half pay within a few days. It was so old and decrepit this morning that Judge Runyon had difficulty in getting commitment papers properly affixed and he gave notice to Chief Kiely that a new one would be acceptable. The seal bears the date of 1869 as the beginning of its service.

Services at Warren Chapel.

Charles Place conducted the week of prayer service at Warren chapel, Monday night, and Charles Windham was the leader, last night, and the subject was "God's Faithfulness and Man's Responsibility." Tonight L. N. Lovell will talk on "Missions," tomorrow night, E. E. Parvin will discuss "The Bible," while on Friday night W. D. Murray will speak on "The Family and the School."

Taking Divorce Testimony.

In the case of Albert Kurzhals, who has applied for divorce from his wife, Katherine Kurzhals, testimony is being taken before Special Master Charles A. Reed at his office. Wilful and continued obstinate desertion is the charge made by the petitioner through his attorney, William G. De Meza. Mrs. Kurzhals is at present living in Binghamton, N. Y.

Board of Managers Grateful.

The Board of Managers of the Children's Home is deeply grateful to all who in any way assisted to make Christmastide so enjoyable at the Home, for all the many gifts or provisions, articles of clothing and money, as well as the Christmas tree. The children were generously remembered this year, especially with shoes, rubbers, gloves and derwear.

Persian Missionary to Speak.

Rev. Y. H. Shahbar, of Persia, pioneer in the mission work in that country, will speak of his experiences at the Park Avenue Baptist church tonight. He was educated at Peddie Institute, and for many years has been doing a great work in Persia. The public is invited to hear him.

Crowds Continue at Proctors.

The inclement weather during the past few days has had little effect upon the crowds that attend the Proctor theatre. All the afternoon shoppers seem to make the attractive house a rendezvous for at least a couple of hours.

Sesame Club to Meet.

The Sesame Club will meet with Mrs. John H. Doane, of 423 East Seventh street. The subject will be "Miscellaneous."

STUNNING GOWNS WORN BY "THE STRONGER SEX" STAR

Miss Annie Russell, the popular and accomplished actress who lately starred as "Puck" in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," was seen at the New Plainfield theatre, last night, in her latest comedy success of English life by John Valentine, entitled "The Stronger Sex." With New York's stamp of approval upon it, having just completed a long run at Weber's theatre, and the interest in the leading woman, it drew a large audience despite obstinate weather conditions that enjoyed it to the utmost.

As "Mary Barrington," an American girl wooed and wedded by an Englishman of birth for her money but who she teaches to love and respect her, Miss Russell gave one of the best portrayals of her career. There are several situations calling for dramatic strength and she proved equal to the requirements on every occasion. She was supported by an unusually strong and well balanced company that included Oswald Yorke, Miss Helen Tracy, Miss Alma Kruger and William Wadworth.

Miss Russell wore a number of beautiful and elaborate gowns during the course of the play. In the first set the atmosphere of a wedding is in the air and the star makes her first entrance as a bride in her white flowing robe, bridal veil and wreath of orange. Then in a bewildering sequence of traveling, street, auto and house dresses, she affords delightful subject of conversation between each act on that topic of costume, so dear to all feminine hearts.

MISS ROBSON PLEASED WITH LOCAL AUDIENCES.

Miss May Robson, the popular character actress who appeared at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, conferred a compliment upon local playgoers before leaving the city. She declared that her audiences here were so appreciative of the finer points of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" and that she was accorded such an enthusiastic reception by large houses that she would return at her earliest convenience. Miss Robson was decidedly refreshing in her portrayal of "Aunt Mary" and the comedy was one of the best seen in her portrayal of "Aunt Mary" and the comedy was one of the best seen at the theatre this season.

A notable feature of the production was the fact that while Miss Robson is an artist of exceptional ability she was surrounded by a strong company of players, everyone seeming to fit his or her part like a glove. "Aunt Mary" will certainly be welcomed back at any time.

During her stay in Plainfield, Miss Robson was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pinto, of West Eighth street.

SECOND NIBLO TALK AT THE THEATRE TONIGHT.

At the New Plainfield theatre tonight, Fred Niblo, the celebrated traveler, explorer, author and humorous entertainer will give the second of his illustrated "Talks of Travel in Distant Lands." Last week he told of "Africa" in a delightful manner and this week he will take his audience through "Egypt, from Cairo to Khartoum." The Plainfielders who attended his first talk declare it to be the most entertaining and instructive description of the dark continent they ever heard.

All of Mr. Niblo's talks are illustrated in a novel way by means of motion pictures and highly colored views taken especially for him. The series comprises three additional talks that will be given on succeeding Wednesday nights.

In the City Court.

James Edwards, a young looking man of good appearance, was arraigned before Judge Runyon, this morning, charged with soliciting. He wept copious tears while telling the magistrate that his indiscretion was the result of drinking and declared that he would go back to his home in Roselle Park and stay there if let go. His Honor suspended sentence.

1909 FORD, 4 Cylinder, 20 H. P., with Magneto and 3 Lamps, $850; Roadster $825; Landaulette $950. F. O. B. DETROIT

SPECIFICATIONS.

ENGINE—Four-cylinder, 3¾ bore x 4-inch stroke, 20 H. P. conservative rating.

CYLINDERS—Cast in one block, top removable, affording easy access to all parts of the engine. In case you should let your engine freeze and crack a cylinder, you can buy the entire block of 4-cylinders for the very low price of $25.00. This price is less than most factories charge for one cylinder, and removes the only possible objections a man could have against this method of construction.

IGNITION—Ford low tension magneto generator, built as part of the fly wheel. No gears, belts, brushes or contact points to give trouble. So simple in construction and so positive in operation, that it looks as though it would last forever without any attention from the owner. This system removes all battery trouble, one of the most annoying and expensive troubles.

STEEL—Heat treated Vanadium steel throughout. No car at $5,000.00 has higher grade, for none better can be bought. We defy any man to break a Ford Model T spring, axle, shaft, gear, or other part with any test less than 50 per cent more severe than would be required to put any other steel in the junk pile.

It has taken Ford two years and cost him $200,000.00 to acquire the analysis and the heat-treating and quenching formulas of this wonderful steel, as they are his own secrets.

LUBRICATION—No pumps, tubes or glasses to give trouble. The fly wheel acts as the distributing agent, and as long as there is a drop of oil in the tank your engine and transmission is sure to be taken care of.

TIRES—Ford Model T weighs only 1,200 pounds, therefore will take you more miles and cost you less for tires than any other five-passenger car in the world.. The tire cost is really about the only expensive part of the running of an automobile. Be sure and give this subject your most critical examination before buying a car, as it means a good many DOLLARS in your pocket every time you wear out a set of tires.

HERE ARE THE FACTS—If a manufacturer designs and makes his car so heavy that he must equip it with a 32x4-inch tire,
It will cost you for a set of four tires.....$129.00
Four tires for a Model T Touring Car will cost..... 74.50
Difference saved every time you must buy a set of tires....$ 54.50

This will buy a lot of gasoline and oil. All tires, regardless of size, are guaranteed by the tire manufacturer to run the same number of miles. So do not let anybody tell you differently. Ask them to show you the tire guarantee and it will show for itself.

DELIVERIES—We are booking orders for deliveries in rotation as received, or by placing a small deposit with your order we will deliver you a car when you want it in the spring.

BE SURE TO SEE the Ford exhibition at the Grand Central palace auto show January 1 to January 7.

WE guarantee all new cars sold by us free of repairs for three months.

NIGHT SCHOOL IN PRISON.

Just Started in Trenton Institution —Nearly All Convicts Attend.

The night school idea for convicts, a pet measure of ex-Governor E. C. Stokes, of New Jersey, opened last evening at Trenton, for the first time. The instructors are Harry C. Large and Edward C. Lanning and a corps of tutors from among the convicts themselves.

Governor Stokes was impressed with the fact that some convicts managed to pick up an education while in prison and believed that to give the men an education would help their reformation when they returned to society.

Almost every convict in the prison asked to be enrolled in the night school.

Electors to Meet Monday.

New Jersey's Republican Presidential electors will meet at the State House, Trenton, Monday at 3 p. m. to cast their votes for Taft and Sherman. As soon as this is done a special messenger will be dispatched with the vote to aWshington. The Jersey electors are Frederick T. Frelinghuysen, Moses Taylor Pyne, Thomas E. French, Walter E. Edge, Lewis S. Thompson, Grant B. Schley, Alexander Gilbert, J. Hull Browning, Peter Campbell, George R. Howe, Henry J. Melosh and Alvin Hunsicker.

2-Cent Newspapers in Trenton.

Announcement was made yesterday by all of the newspapers of Trenton that beginning with February 15 the price of each would be increased from 1 cent to 2 cents per copy. The increased cost of white paper and general increased cost of production are the reasons advanced for the change. Trenton has had penny papers for half a decade or more.

Previously Inexperienced.

"Since Miss Ann Teek has had her electric phaeton she drives at such a rate that she keeps the police trappers busy."

"Why does she do it?"

"She says it's so exciting to be chased by a man!"—Tid Bits.

Real Hostilities.

"What's become of that trouble in the Balkans?"

"Seems to be completely overshadowed by the New York taxicab war."—Washington Post.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Fred Niblo will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tonight in the second of his travel talks. "Egypt" will be his subject and it will be illustrated with beautiful colored views and motion pictures.

It is with pleasure Manager Coughlan of the New Plainfield theatre announces that on next Friday afternoon and night he will present for the first time in this city Willis Maxwell Goodhue's famous farcical comedy, "Hello Bill," which had such a phenomenal run at the Bijou theatre, New York, a few seasons ago, and which comes here for the first time with a large portion of the original company. A few years ago a company playing a piece styled "Hello Bill," which was not Mr. Goodhue's comedy, or anything faintly resembling it, played through this part of the country, but Frank Holland, who controls the Goodhue comedy, was compelled to close this aggregation to prevent their trading upon the name and reputation of his highly-successful property. The company which plays here Friday is the one and original "Hello Bill" company, rehearsed and produced by the author, Willis Maxwell Goodhue, and includes such well-known and popular people as Ferdinand B. Ashbey, Charles Kellnar, Charles H. Douglass, James S. Murray, Bert Whitehead, Robert Watt, Minnie Lee, Fannie Ferris, Vivian De Wolfe, Marion Kirby Elizabeth Jamieson and others equally well-known.

That delightful love romance, "Polly of the Circus," in which the management has provided a strong cast with Miss Fay Wallace for the "Polly," will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. It contains as pretty a story as could well be put on the stage in play form. Its incidents and sentiments both continuing to give it special charm. The way in which the little circus rider winds herself around the heart of the minister is her directest appeal to the sympathies.

"Jane Eyre," Rowland and Clifford's most recent production, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. "Jane Eyre" is a story which can be rightfully classed as a classic. It has, in spite of the old stilted style of its writing, by the very essence of its power held the reading public to the present day. The keynote of its strength is humanity. There are none of those ridiculously tiresome "perfect" characters in the book. They all have their shortcomings, even the heroine, and so we love them because they are human. The dramatist has succeeded in brightening the gloom of the book by comedy and has discarded the style of the past generation for the more concise construction of present day English, so that the play becomes a bright interesting affair, without however sacrificing any of the plot or strength found in the book.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR TIRED HOUSEKEEPERS.

If comforts and quilts are dried in a good stiff breeze they will be as light and fluffy as when new.

Colored French handkerchiefs not fade if they are dipped in salt water before the usual washing.

Salts of ammonia mixed with lime will take out stains of wine from silks. Spirits of turpentine is equally good for the same purpose.

Gum arabic starch is obtained by pouring boiling water over the gum arabic, then diluting it to the right consistency. It is an excellent starch for pieces that are starched to dry and must not not be ironed.

Instead of trying to "cream" sugar and butter for a cake with a tiresome spoon or knife blade, try using a wire potato masher. This chops the butter finely and blends the two with little trouble in a comparatively short time.

Japanned trays should never be touched with boiling water, for that would cause the varnish to crack and peel off. To clean these trays rub them over with a little olive oil and then polish with a piece of flannel, which will absorb the superfluous oil.

If you are housekeeping in an apartment and don't want to get an icebox you can make one of your laundry tubs answer the purpose. But be careful not to let the drain pipe get stopped up. You had better dissolve a couple of handfuls of washing soda in a kettle of boiling water about twice a week and pour it down the pipe, or, better still, keep a fine wire over the hole.

Acknowledge Gifts at Once.

All presents should be acknowledged at the recipient's earliest convenience. Never write a formal note of thanks, but be as natural as if you were speaking to the person. If it is necessary for a young woman to refuse a gift from a man, she should do so in a very cordial gracious manner, stating she is either not permitted to accept the gift or thinks it too expensive. It may offend the donor, but a man should be certain of his ground before sending a valuable gift. No difference what the gift is, do not acknowledge it by calling the person on the telephone. Write a note of appreciation. Even if the gift be ever so trival, thank the donor. To neglect this courtesy often causes a big heartache.

COLORS OF LAST SEASON AND NOW.

One of the most popular colors with fashionable women this season seems to be purple in its almost innumerable shades. Even last winter purple found favor with society women, and everyone thought then that particular color had had its day. The old-fashioned prunelle and prune colored cloth has made its appearance in Directoire suits and they, too, have found favor in the eyes of well-dressed society women. Mauve gray shade is quite fashionable.

With black and white gowns just now women, young and old, are wearing jet jewelry. The blondes and brunettes are wearing his ornaments of jet,, and all forms of jewelry seem to be popular with fashionable society women. The old-time prejudice against jet has vanished, and one today sees jet aigrettes, earrings, brooches, dog collars, combs, fillets and strings of jet beads. Belts of jet, too, are popular, and so are bracelets made entirely of jet. There was a time when ornaments of jet were considered fit only for the elderly and those wearing mourning.

BLOCKADED.

Every Household in Plainfield Should Know How to Resist It.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

Mrs. Anna Holmes, New Market, N. J., says: "Some years ago I gave a statement for publication regarding what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me and I now willingly confirm what I then said. Sharp pains in my head, back and sides made me miserable. If I sat down for any length of time or attempted to rise quickly from a reclining position, the trouble would always be more severe. I gradually gre wworse and my work became a burden. Having Doan's Kidney Pills brought to my attention, I procured a box from Randolph's Pharmacy and was helped from the beginning of their use. I improved steadily from that time on and was soon entirely relieved."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

You Invite Illness
By Neglecting Weak Kidneys

Keep the kidneys in perfect condition and they will keep you. When they are well they do their work well filtering the blood thoroughly and keeping it pure. But if they are diseased they only partly purify the blood. By neglecting sick kidneys you are liable to uric acid poisoning, gravel, stone in the kidney, heart trouble, diabetes, Bright's disease and many other ills originating in some form of kidney weakness. Just as soon as any urinary or backache troubles start, remember the most sensible and safest known kidney cure, Menk's Reno Pills. They relieve quickly, stimulate and strengthen, banish backache and regulate things generally. At all drug stores or sent postpaid on receipt of fifty cents by CHARLES W. MENK, Newark, N. J.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS
are the new Records that play twice as long as the regular Edison Records. Thus Amberol Records can be used on your present Edison Phonograph by the addition of a simple attachment or gear, and you can still play the Records you have.
Amberol Records not only play longer than any other Record now made, but they play better, their tone quality being richer, clearer and more delicate than has been possible in the past.
Let us put an attachment on your Phonograph or sell you an Edison Phonograph that will play both Records.

NO TRADING STAMPS, BUT MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

January White Sale Begins Wednesday Morning

SPECIALS---Muslin Underwear, Embroideries, White Goods

Thousands of Pretty Fresh Garments of Undermuslins, Eight Thousand Yards Embroidery, Fifteen Cases White Goods

These were collected the past several months, at intervals whenever we were able to secure something better than usual; for we intended months ago that this white sale should attract your attention and its values that we meant to attract it with, such values as will call to your attention and impress you with our motto—No Trading Stamps but more for your money.

The low grade merchandise, the unworthy kind, that are made up especially for sales to catch the eye and not for wear, finds no room here. We recommend everything we sell, and stand back of our recommendation. The white goods and embroideries will especially commend themselves to those who purchase now—because of the economy and the variety of the first selection.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society resumed its weekly meetings yesterday afternoon.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church met Monday afternoon and enjoyed a special program.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the W. C. T. U. hall. There will be preaching by Rev. Mr. Beck, of Brooklyn.

Miss Isabel Crawford, a returned missionary of exceptional talent, will address the Junior Society at the First Baptist church, Friday afternoon.

The week of prayer service at the Park Avenue Baptist church Friday night will take the place of the regular Christian Endeavor Society meeting.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a special business meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. J. Shreve, on Grove street.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will resume its weekly sewing meeting at the chapel this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and will meet weekly hereafter.

The social committee of the Young People's Association of the First Baptist church is planning for a fine entertainment to be given soon. It will be musical in character and well-known artists will appear on the program.

The mid-week prayer-meeting at the First Baptist church tonight will be of special interest. The pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, will be in charge, and the topic will be "How much a builder will you be this year? What part of the work will you try to do?"

The men of Trinity Reformed church will meet at the church Thursday night, January 14, at which time steps will be taken toward forming an association. Invitations have been issued to all the men of the church and congregation. It will then be decided whether to revive the old association or form a new organization. Refreshments will be served during a social hour.

BOUND BROOK AND VICINITY.

William Foley, who had been suffering with a complication of diseases, died Monday at his home in Canal street, South Bound Brook. Mr. Foley, who was seventy years old, leave a widow and the following children: Mrs. Frank Vail, of New York; Mrs. William Powers, of New York; Mrs. Albert Cushion, of Carbondale, Pa., and John Foley, Jr., of South Bound Brook.

Mrs. Rose Devlin and granddaughter, Miss Ethel Daly, of Main street, South Bound Brook, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Devlin's son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Devlin, in Brooklyn.

Thomas Farmer, sixteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Farmer, died at their home in East street, Bound Brook, Monday, after a short illness of diphtheria.

Miss Ester Corcoran, of Raritan, and Miss Agnes Masur, of Sayreville, were lately guests at the home of Miss Margaret Donohue, in Franklin street, South Bound Brook.

George Powers, of East Main street, Bound Brook, has been spending several days at the home of his parents at Worcester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John Donohue, of Franklin street, South Bound Brook, have returned from a visit to friends at Sayreville.

Mrs. Christopher Favere, of East Second street, Bound Brook, has been spending several days with relatives in Elizabeth.

Miss Lillian Donovan, of Franklin street, South Bound Brook, is spending several days with relatives in New York.

Philip Biles, of Main street, South Bound Brook, spent yesterday with friends at Peapack.

WESTFIELD.

A. C. Fitch, of Westfield, closed his grocery business Monday and made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. He attributes his trouble to slack work at the factories in Garwood, many of the operatives there being his customers.

An automobile in charge of Frank Hubert collided with a carriage being driven by W. H. Bartire on North avenue Monday. The carriage was damaged, but the people in both the carriage and automobile escaped injury.

The County Principals' Association will meet Thursday night at Westfield High School.

Miss Jennie D. Lyons, of this city, is visiting friends in East Rutherford.

Miss Emily Staats, of Brooklyn, who has been spending the holidays in Plainfield, has returned home.

James M. Smith, of Grant avenue, has returned from a hunting trip in Maryland. He also spent a few days with friends in Washington.

Francis Foster, of East Seventh street, a student at Andover, who has been spending the holiday season at home, will return to his studies the latter part of the week.

Bowling and General Sports

PARK BOWLERS KEEP UP THEIR WINNING STREAK

The Park Club five resumed bowling in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament, last night, when it met the Elizabeth club on the alleys of the latter and took two of the three games, by big scores. The first game was won by a score of 946 to 911 and the Parks lost the second by a score of 866 to 921, and then took the third by a score of 933 to 798. The general team work as well as the individual bowling of the Parks was good, but a couple of centuries in the second game was more than they could overcome.

In all the Parks put up four scores over the century mark, Long rolling 221 in the first, while Barlow put up a 201 and Long reached 212 in the third, and Mulford, the veteran, helped his team along with a 201. Long also put up a 198 in the second game. Another high score, 192, was rolled by Ball in the first game, while Daniel rolled a steady game throughout.

The Parks have now won fifteen out of eighteen games and they are almost a sure winner, as Elizabeth is second with only ten victories out of eighteen games rolled. There are twelve more games to roll. Last night's scores:

Park Club.

Barlow	169	177	201
Daniel	185	177	166
Long	221	198	212
Mulford	179	158	201
Ball	192	156	153
	946	866	933

Elizabeth Club.

L. Wheelwright	199	144	146
Ryan	198	201	162
Datesman	178	217	142
Tenney	190	158	159
E. Wheelwright	146	201	189
	911	921	798

BASKETBALL.

Preston Dunning has been elected manager and Harry Smith captain of the N. P. H. S. second basketball team.

An important game is scheduled for tonight in the Interscholastic League, when the Plainfield High School five plays Leals.

An athletic meet will be held at Y. M. C. A. gym between the Orange, and the local associations on January 15.

On Saturday the Y. M. C. A. plays its second major league game. It will be played at Montclair.

The best winning team in town is the Y. M. C. A. Juniors. These boys have won twelve out of thirteen games played and in some of them their opponents were older and larger.

N. P. H. S. Beats Alumni.

A basketball game between the N. P. H. S. five and the Alumni at Debele hall last night was won by the High School by a score of 77 to 26. The line-up:

N. P. H. S.		ALUMNI.
Conroy		Van Arsdale
Stein		Woodland
	forwards.
T. Overton		A. Overton
Parsons		Heath
Steiner		Webster
Becker, A. Overton		Peacock
	guards.

Goals: Conroy 20, Stein 4, T. Overton 4, Steiner 2, A. Overton 2, Becker 1, Parsons 5, Van Arsdale 2, Woodland 3, Heath 3, Webster 1, Peacock 4. Referee, Webster; timekeeper, Dunning; scorer, Percy Bailey.

Football Team Honored.

The members of the football team of the Borough High School were presented with the insignia of the school this morning after the chapel exercises in recognition of their good showing in the season's games. Principal B. J. Pheips made the presentation. The members of the team so decorated were: Russell Conroy, Preston Dunning, Leon Zeglio, Clarence Steiner, Fred Becker, Allan Overton, Carlton Smith, Percy Bailey, W. L. Powlison, George Parsons, D. Corey Adams, Jr., H. B. Smith, Claramus Wolf and Tone Overton.

K. of C. Bowling Series.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will roll its first home series in the Knights of Columbus League tomorrow night at Johnny Campbell's alleys, having for their opponents the team representing Hope Council of Jersey City. The local team presents a strong front and will undoubtedly finish well up in the race.

Seventh-Day Baptists Win.

The Seventh-Day Baptist five defeated Crescent Avenue Monday night by a score of 39 to 16.

Win Close Game.

The First Baptists won from the First Presbyterians, 26 to 20, at Y. M. C. A. gym Monday night.

RELIEF FUND OVER $500

Checks for $50. are Received Elks' Lodge and from Alexander Gilbert.

OTHER LIBERAL CONTRIBUTORS

More Than $159 Added to the Fund Since Yesterday—Marked Interest Shown.

The motive that actuates contributors to the fund for the relief of the earthquake sufferers in Italy is concisely stated in a note accompanied by a contribution received today by The Daily Press. That note was as follows:

"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

This is the spirit that is impelling people from all walks of life to contribute generously and speedily.

True to the principles of the order, Plainfield lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., last night appropriated $50 for the cause, and a check for that amount was received by this paper today. The Elks are deeply interested in the Plainfield fund and many of them will be present tonight at the benefit lecture and entertainment.

A like amount received today from former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House, was accompanied by this letter:

"Herewith find my check for $50 to be credited to the account of the Red Cross fund for the relief of the sufferers by the disaster in Southern Italy.

"Yours very truly,
A. GILBERT."

Former Councilman George P. Mellick, a New York banker, has sent his check for $20. Other donations include $10 from J. Doull Miller and $10 from J. H. Wright.

Mrs. George W. F. Randolph today contributed $5; M. Abrams, $5; Mrs. E. T. DeForest, $2; Anonymous $2; P. A. McVoy, $3; for charity, from a little boy $2.

The Daily Press acknowledges these contributions to the fund being raised through this paper.

Crossed Wires Sound Alarm.

Crossed wires caused the fire gong to sound this morning in the borough at about 10:15. Though there was no fire, the accidental call seemed to demonstrate how quickly the department can respond. The hose cart team was out for exercise at the time four blocks away, but were back to the fire house in a quick dash, where Chief Woolston and nearly a dozen call men were already on hand.

Formed a Fencing Club.

Several prominent young men of the city have formed a fencing club and meetings are held in the Babcock building at stated intervals. Within a short time officers will be chosen and a definite program adopted for the season. At a meeting of the club last night a number of new members were elected.

CONNOLLY PRESIDENT OF BAR ASSOCIATION

City Attorney James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth, was selected president of the Union County Bar Association at the annual meeting in the Union county courthouse, at Elizabeth, yesterday, just before the opening of court for the January term. Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Charles A. Reed, of the borough, formerly Senator; treasurer, Nathan R. Leavitt, of Elizabeth, county collector and secretary, Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield. It was decided to hold the annual dinner in New York, at the Hotel Manhattan. Welcome W. Bender and Raymond W. Parrot were elected members of the association.

A communication was read from William Magie, formerly chancellor, in reply to a request from the Bar Association, stating that he would deliver an address before the association at the courthouse, Tuesday evening, February 9.

POLICE FIND HIDDEN WEALTH ON PANHANDLER

Answering a telephone call from an East Sixth stret resident, yesterday afternoon, Detective-Sergeant Flynn arrested Pasquale Borrelli, an Italian, for begging money from residents. He was taken to police headquarters, and when searched a tobacco bag containing $7.60 in small change was found in his pocket. He was about to be taken back to a cell when Doorman Thomas McCue noticed him trying to get something out of the top of his shirt, and the officers decided to search him over again. He was practically stripped down to his birthday suit and this is the wealth that was brought to light:

Twenty dollars in bills sewed in the side of an undershirt, two $1 bills sewed in the lower part of his underclothing and $1.20 in nickles and dimes in his shoes. The money aggregated $31.20.

Borrelli was arrainged before Judge Runyon and pleaded that he had been sick and that he had tried to collect money to send to his wife and children in Italy. The bills, he said, were given to him by an Italian woman who took pity on him and wished to help him get back to Italy. He was unable to explain his reason for carrying several papers with appeals on them bearing different names and also stated that while he could speak good English he had only been in this country thirteen months. The magistrate sent him to jail for thirty days.

PLAINFELD KENNEL CLUB DISCUSSES SOME PLANS.

The Plainfield Kennel Club met at Truell Hall, last night, and discussed in an informal way several matters pertaining to the club's interests. There were about twenty members present and a number of applications were favorably acted upon. Details regarding the proposed first annual bench show were discussed and while not definitely settled, it will probably be held just before or immediately following the annual horse show in June at the show grounds on Woodland avenue. In the opinion of the club that is the best and most convenient place for the exhibition and valuable prizes will be offered in the various classes.

As an incentive to increase the membership the club last night decided to offer a handsome silver sup to the one securing the greatest number of members during the year. In this way it is hoped to make the organization one of the strongest and best in this part of the country. The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

Littered Borough Streets.

Four young colored ge'mens were arrested in the borough this morning for littering up the streets with hand bills. Two of them, Walter Jones, seventeen and William Jones, eighteen, were fined one dollar each because it was the second time they had been before Recorder Dolliver on the same charge. The other pair, John Wilson, seventeen, and Frank Schultz, fourteen, received suspended sentences.

Miss Crawford to Speak.

Miss Isabel Crawford, for fourteen years a missionary to the Kiowa Indians, Oklahoma, will address the Junior Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the lecture room. Miss Crawford is a unique speaker, full of charm and interesting.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, accompanied by his wife and sister, Mrs. John F. Huntsman, of Providence, R. I., are planning an extended trip abroad, expecting to sail January 16.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Hundreds of Friends Join With Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl in Celebrating Event.

A PURSE OF $500 IN GOLD.

Rev. Mr. Shoop Officiates at Ceremony Whereby Couple Are Married Again—Twelve Children Present.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl was celebrated last night at their home on Grove street. Among the 250 relatives and friends who gathered from far and near to honor the aged couple, were seven who were guests on that other happy occasion half a century ago and there were four generations of the family.

Standing in a baw window underneath a large bell of holly and mistletoe, at 9 o'clock last night, the same hands met and the same vows were given; the bride looked just as lovely and the groom was just as happy. The minister who performed the ceremony fifty years ago could not be present last night on account of illness, and Rev. J. O. Shoop acted in his stead. Mrs. Voehl wore a black silk gown. Henry A. Voehl, a grandson, was best man. There were no bridesmaids. The ushers were: F. T. Merritt, Benjamin Schuck, R. E. Miller and Elliott A. Taylor.

Those present who had attended the marriage were: Richard Shade, of Ridgewood; Casper Bosterli, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. George Mantz, of Martinsville; Henry A. Voehl, of Martinsville; Henry A. Voehl, a brother, of Elizabeth; and Theodore Brogely, of Somerville, a nephew, who at that time was a small boy.

Mr. Voehl presented his wife with $500 in gold. To the ushers he gave each a signet scarf pin. Many handsome gifts were received by the couple, among them being a large gilt clock with candelebra, from the Plainfield Building and Loan Association and a gold headed cane from Plainfield Savings Bank, both of which concerns Mr. Voehl is a director.

The holly and mistletoe with which the rooms were decorated came from the South Carolina plantation of an old time friend and former Plainfielder, August Trust. Large yellow janquils added to the beauty of the interior. Suhr's orchestra rendered music during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Voehl were married at Somerville, January 6, 1859, by the Rev. Fowler, now of Kingston, Monmouth county. Mrs. Voehl was born at South Orange sixty-nine years ago, July 6, and Mrs. Voehl at Franklinberg, Germany, seventy-one years ago, on October 5. He came to this country in 1853. From Somerville the couple moved to Raritan, then to Jersey City, where they lived eleven years, and to Plainfield in 1872, having lived here thirty-seven years. Mr. Voehl was engaged in the baking business until his retirement eighteen years ago. Though not actively engaged at the present time he still is director in the Plainfield Savings Bank and Plainfield Building and Loan Association and owns real estate and other property.

All of the twelve children were present at the golden jubilee. They were: Henry A. Voehl, of Somerset street; Mrs. E. J. Carney, of West Sixth street; George Voehl, of West Front street; Jacob Voehl, of Netherwood; Mrs. I. F. Kulp, of Sullivan county, N. Y.; John Voehl, of Bayonne; and Misses Della and Tina Voehl, who reside with their parents; also Mrs. Arthur Austin, a grandchild, and her daughter, Miss Loi Austin, a great grandchild.

Cycle Club Elects Officers.

The Plainfield Cycle Club elected new officers last night at the regular meeting in its rooms on Front street. Following the busines session refreshments were served and several of the club's orators made brief speeches, which were received with enthusiasm. The club is enjoying prosperity as was shown by the annual reports of the various officers. Those elected were: President, Sherman Haberle; vice-president, A. B. Dunham; recording secretary, Jack Horner; financial secretary, Robert Wood; treasurer, Raymond Mantz.

Will Guard Rear of Homes.

Mayor Charles McQuoid, of Roselle, has issued special orders to the members of the police force, who do duty at night in the borough. The Mayor has informed the men to keep in the rear of the residences and to be seen on the street as little as possible at the late hours of the night. The Mayor believes that lawbreakers are more apt to work in the rear of residences and that the police, under the new order, can thus make it more difficult for them to operate.

WANTED $500 DAMAGES

Arthur S. Giles Defendant in Suit as a Result of Auto Crashing Into Gig.

THE JURY CANNOT AGREE.

Much Conflicting Testimony in Case Before Judge Newcorn in the District Court Today.

The case of Lawrence Carrar against Arthur S. Giles, in which the former seeks to recover $500 damages as the result of a collision between an automobile and a rig on May 9 last, was tried before a jury in the District court this morning. The jury retired at 12 o'clock and at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon informed the court that it could not agree on a verdict and asked to be discharged.

The plaintiff claimed that on the night of May 9 last, while he and a friend, Larzaro Sarti, were returning from Plainfield to their home at Watchung in a two-wheel gig, they met the defendant in the "Noteh" returning home in an automobile and that he ran into the gig, wrecking it, injuring the horse and throwing the two men out. The two men declared that Mr. Giles was running his machine at a speed of thirty miles an hour, while the latter insisted that the speed was not over three or four, that it would be impossible for a person to operate an automobile at such a high rate of speed on that mountain road with any degree of safety.

According to the testimony, Carrar and his friend had been shopping in Plainfield and were returning home, while the defendant, who was accompanied by Mrs. Mary Faroat, of this city, was on the way home from Pedeflous, where the two had had dinner. Mr. Giles and his companion stated that they heard the horse driven by Carrar before they could see it and they were sure the animal was running away. Both testified that the reins were dragging, that Carrar and his friend were intoxicated and they were hugging each other and shouting; that the instant the collision occurred Mr. Giles stopped his machine as far to the right of the road as he could with safety. He also claimed that the rig collided with his auto, breaking the front and rear fenders, the running board and cracking the body.

The testimony given by Mr. Giles was corroborated in every particular by Mrs. Faroat, who was positive that the machine was not travelling over three or four miles an hour. She said that she had never ridden with Mr. Giles at a speed of thirty miles an hour.

Both the plaintiff and his friend declared positively that they were not intoxicated and denied having had any drinks. The former's sister was a witness and she testified as to the return of her brother and his friend about an hour after the accident, and as to the injuries of the horse. She said that the two men were not intoxicated. Carrar's specific claim for damages included $20 for the gig, the loss of the services of his horse, as well as his own for from ten to fourteen days at $5 a day, as well as injuries to himself.

The plaintiff was represented by Winfield S. Angleman, while W. G. DeMeza was counsel for the defendant. The members of the jury were J. Fred MacDonald, Dr. L. S. Pocock, Joseph Sattels, Daniel F. Dugan, Clarence D. Rittenhouse, Albert Raymond, Joseph Morrison, John Ross, James Clarkson, Jeremiah Cash, H. D. Corsa, and Frank A. Neal.

PLANNING INAUGURAL TRIP FOR UNION COUNTY G. O. P.

James White, chairman of the Republican city committee of Elizabeth, has ben named as chairman of the inaugural committee from the Union County Republican organization, to arrange for the trip of the county notables to Washington in March.

Mr. White will go to Washington on Monday to confer with United States Senator John Kean and others in reference to caring for the county delegation while at the Capitol City and he will report the result at a meeting of the county committee to be held within a short time.

Hope Chapel Services.

The week of prayer services at Hope chapel, last night, were conducted by Frank Rimmer. During the evening, Miss Edna Eckert sang a solo. City Judge William N. Runyon will lead the meeting tonight and there will be special music.

Among the Plainfielders who have recently gone abroad is Lemuel W. Serrell, of West Seventh street, who has gone to Europe to join his wife who has been sojourning there some months.

FIRE THREATENS VILLAGE

Lower Part of South Plainfield in Danger When Big Grist Mill Burns.

CITY DEPARTMENT SENDS HELP

Chief Doane's Men Aid in Saving Nearby Residence—Loss Placed at $12,000.

The village of South Plainfield experienced a big fire scare shortly after 9 o'clock, last night, when the five-story grist mill located at the turn of Plainfield avenue, the largest structure in the place, became ignited in a mysterious way and was burned to the ground. A high wind was blowing at the time and showers of sparks and blazing bunches of hay and straw were scattered over the residential district as far as the Lehigh Valley station, a half mile distant. Three buildings were in the immediate danger zone and fearing a general conflagration, the Plainfield fire department was telephoned for help. Chief Doane responded with No. 2 hose truck, the steamer and a dozen men and rendered assistance that undoubtedly saved the home of Patrick F. Kaine, directly opposite the mill. The loss is placed at $12,000, partially covered by insurance.

The destroyed building was owned by the Middlesex Water Company, which has its pumping station less than 100 feet away in the rear and which escaped damage because of the wind blowing from it. The property is leased by Frank R. Kellogg, who opened a grist mill in it in connection with a flour, feed, grain and hay business as partner of the Consumers' Coal Company, of this city. Kellogg had been working about the place all evening and at about 9 o'clock stepped out to the pumping station to talk with Samuel Shields, the engineer. When he returned ten minutes later, the entire upper part of the mill above the second floor seemed to be ablaze. He had barely time to rescue his office effects and throw out some grist near a door when he was forced to flee.

Kellogg and Shields spread the alarm through the village and the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Department responded but was unable to do much because of having no apparatus. A bucket brigade was formed and the Kaine residence and Washington Hall, a short distance away, were kept wet down. The men worked amid sparks and blinding smoke and were frequently driven back by the heat but kept at the job until the outside assistance arrived. The Plainfielders were unable to get through because of the flames sweeping across Plainfield avenue and the pond being on one side and the lowlands on the other, but they managed to get 1,000 feet of hose around back of the mill. This was attached to the water company's pipe line and the stream was sufficient to place the adjoining property out of danger.

The steamer dropped its suction pipe in the pond and soon had an effective stream on the blazing mill. The flames died down quickly but it was after midnight before Chief Doane thought it was safe to withdraw his men.

The property was valued at about $10,000, and this loss will fall upon the Middlesex Water Company, which carried but a small amount of insurance. The contents were worth $2,000, of which over one half was in hay, straw and grain belonging to the Consumers' Coal Company. Kellogg operated this part of the business on a commission basis and it will be continued by the concern from its Plainfield mills. Kellogg's individual loss comprises grist and equipment, on which there is practically no insurance. The Consumers Company carried about $1,000 insurance.

Kellogg was interviewed by a Daily Press reporter shortly after the fire started but he was unable to assign any definite cause for the origin. He had two lighted lanterns in the place and left one of them on a stairway on the second floor when he stepped out to talk to Shields and it is possible that the jarring of the grist-grinding machinery may have caused it to topple over. Beyond this there is no theory. He used no matches upstairs, he said, and no one else had been about the structure.

The mill was erected in 1865 and was one of the best known in this vicinity. It has been operated continuously by different men ever since its construction for grist grinding, having both steam and water power, and at one time it was known as the Lactose factory. It was then leased by a company of which Stephen R. Struthers, of this city, was one of the incorporators. Kellogg has been the lessee for the past two years.

HE FOUND DAGGER STICKING IN DOOR

John Carrar, of this city, a Frenchman who was employed at the Groszmann school and recently employed as foreman of Hastings' mushroom farm, on Pompton Turnpike, near Montclair, found a large stiletto sticking in the door of his bedroom a few nights ago. The stiletto had a rabbit's foot handle and was silver mounted. It bore an Austrian stamp and had a blade nearly seven inches long. From the appearance of the bed, which had not been occupied on the night the attack was made, it is believed that the intruder thought Carrar was asleep and had attempted to murder him as he lay in bed.

There were gashes in the bed clothes, which heightened this suspicion. Tracks in the mud and snow led to Pompton Turnpike, where they were lost. Carrar told Mr. Hastings that he does not know that he has an enemy, and he has reported the case to the Prosecutor.

AUTO FATALITY CASE BEFORE GRAND JURY

The Union County Grand Jury is today considering the automobile fatality of last month, when Jonathan Randolph, of Jefferson avenue, died as the result of injuries inflicted by an machine driven by Floyd Cooper, of Westfield. The witnesses who testified at the inquest held in this city, including Miss Matilda Schenck, Miss Jessie Cregar, Mrs. Sarah Robinson, her daughter, Miss Nettie Robinson; also Chief P. S. Kiely, Roundsman Maurice Higgins and Patrolman Daniel McDonald as well as Charles Hendershot and Charles Hyde, motorman and conductor of the trolley car from which Randolph alighted when he was struck.

It is the belief that the Grand Jury will find an indictment for manslaughter against Cooper and that he is quite likely to serve time as a result of his alleged recklessness. He is now out on $10,000 bail furnished by Tuttle Brothers, of Westfield. William A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, assisted by Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh is Cooper's counsel.

MRS. CORMACK CAULFIELD DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Maria A. Caulfield, wife of Cormack Caulfield, the well-known contracting mason, died at her home on West Front street, opposite Washington avenue, at 6:30 last night. She had been ailing for the past two years with heart trouble and complications and was confined to her bed at intervals for the greater part of the time. Mrs. Caulfield was born in Ireland forty-two years ago but had lived in Plainfield since she was a young woman. Beside her husband she is survived by one son, John Caulfield, and a daughter, Miss Mary Caulfield. There are also one brother and two sisters living in Ireland and another sister, Mrs. John Welsh, who lived with her.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Saturday morning at 9 o'clock when a solemn high mass will be said. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Change in Meeting Place.

The meeting of the Mothers' Association, which was announced to take place in the Plainfield High School tomorrow night, will be held in the public library instead.

AGLI ITALIANI DI PLAINFIELD.

L'immane catastrofe che ha colpi to l'Italia, la piu grande che ricorda la storia, in cui le vittime si contano a centinaia di migliaia e che per i superstiti tutto il mondo civile fa a gara nel prestare aiuto e conforto dando esempio di una sublime umana solidarieta che—e lo notiamo con dolore-vorremmo non nascesse soltanto dalla mostruosa grandezza di guesti fenomeni distruggitori, deve essere sprone agli Italiani a maggiore attivita e sacrifizio nel racco gliere fondi per i danneggiati del terremoto; diciamo sacrifizio perche riconosciamo che proprio ora la maggioranza dei lavoratori Italiani si trova sprovvista di danaro. Intanto facciamo appello alla generosita dei "business men" Italiani del luogo.

Il Daily Press ha di gia' ricevuto circa' $300 a favore dei danneggiati. Ogni soldo contribuito dagli Italiani sara inviato alle vittime del terremoto. Il nome dei contribuenti Italiani al fondo di soccorso sara' pubblicato in questo giornale con l' ammontare della somma contribuita. Le contribuzioni si potranno inviare a Donato Di Lonardo, 1219 West Front street, Ralph D'Armiento e Frank Caruso, 213 West Front street, o al Daily Press direttamente.

A rare treat is in store for those who will attend the big benefit lecture and entertainment, tonight, at the First M. E. church, for the benefit of the relief fund being raised by this paper on behalf of the New Jersey Red Cross Society; which is vitally interested in the relief of the Italian earthquake sufferers. The program as may be seen is an excellent one and should prove thoroughly enjoyable and instructive to all Plainfielders.

For this who have not purchased tickets in advance arrangements have been made to have them on sale at the door. They are fifty fifty cents apiece and every penny of the gross receipts will be sent direct to the State Red Cross, of which Governor Fort is president. Members of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and members of Plainfield Lodge, B. P. O. E., are selling tickets as are also the school children in both city and borough. The druggists also have them on sale.

The sale of tickets shows that Plainfield is interested heart and soul, and is resolved to have a substantial fund sent in to the New Jersey Red Cross Society for the relief of the stricken. Those who have purchased tickets at The Daily Press office have in many cases refused change due them. J. W. Jackson, who has already made a liberal contribution through the Red Cross Society, tendered a five dollar bill in payment for two tickets. "Keep the change," he said. In a siliar way J. M. Bettman refused "change," as did also a woman who declined to give her name, paying a dollar

BASEBALL.

The baseball war is over—not a shot fired and never a bit of anything like human blood spilled. The eight hour session of the minor league magnates of Monday was followed by another lengthy talk Tuesday, at which all the kinks in baseball's wrinkled front were deftly eradicated.

The minor leaguers were quite magnanimous to the two prospective bolters, the Eastern League and the American Association. On only one proposition did the two beligerent leagues slip up, and that was on the matter of getting out of the clutches of the National Association and forming an association of their own, which should be a third party to the national agreement. This proposition was vetoed.

The Eastern and the American association were given the privilege of appealing to the National Commission from any decision rendered by the National Association and were elevated to class AA, which allows them to draft from the Southern and Western leagues, after the National League has exercised its one man draft on these circuits. As they will be allowed to enact certain rules to govern their own affairs the victory of the bolters was pretty thorough.

The only question left unsettled was that of extending the territorial draft right to the Eastern and American association. The details of this question were referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. Herrmann, Bruce and Farrell, and it is expected that their verdict will prove satisfactory to all concerned.

As Hal Chase's application for reinstatement has not yet reached the National Commission, being evidently somewhere en route between here and California, no action will be taken in the case during the present meeting of the National Commission, which probably will adjourn today. Frank Farrell has been ready to come forward and tell just why Chase should receive lenient treatment at the hands of the commission for his desertion of the team last summer and his subsequent affiliation with the California outlaws. This will be denied him unless by a long chance the document forwarded by Chase should be delivered before noon.

Mike Donlin is trying hard to secure that month's respite from training for which he has so earnestly importuned Manager McGraw. To date the immunity has not arrived. Mike is putting in an hour every day during his engagement in playing handball. The Cincinnati club has purchased Catcher Frank Roth, of Milwaukee, and First Baseman Dan McGann, of Boston. McGann will go to Milwaukee as part payment for Roth.

BOWLING.

The Knights of Pythias by their victories last night must be looked upon as contenders for Fraternal League honors.

The Elks, Woodmen and Miemtonomo teams are tied for the first place in the Fraternal League, and the situation is somewhat interesting.

Elks vs. Saengerbund in the Fraternal League tomorrow night.

Local bowling interest is centured on the Knights of Columbus League which opens tonight at Campbell's alleys. The local team will be composed of Kiely, Blatz, Shannon, O'Keefe and Connolly.

The Park Club bowling team will roll its next game in the Central Journal Bowling League tournament with the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. five at the latter place Wednesday night, January 13.

M. B. Long, Jr., is one of the best bowlers on the Park Club five. His work in the game with Elizabeth, Tuesday night, when he put up scores of 221, 198 and 212, was remarkable work. It was quite largely through his efforts that the Parks took two of the three games.

SOMERVILLE.

Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, K. of P., has elected the following officers: C., Charles Van Cleef; V. C., James Masker; prelate, William Hardgrove; K. of R. S., William D. Quick; M. of W., L. D. Drake; M. of F., John Gernert; M. of E., Jas. V. Smith; M. of A., Fred Van Wagoner; inside guard, A. A. Brogaw; representative to grand lodge, Joseph Fitzga; alternate, William D. Bauer; trustee, Joseph Fitzga.

Miss Laura Couse was called to her home in Halsey yesterday by the sudden death of her father, Edward Couse.

J. H. Derby, of Sebring, O., has rented the Southwicke property on South Bridge street and will move in at once.

The engagement is announced of Miss Grace Pauline Crater and Armstead Wilson, of Brooklyn.

Miss Helen Brokaw is the guest of Miss Marion Moreau, at Freehold.

Miss May Frittz, of Somerville, has been visiting her sister in York, Pa.

Jan. 7 In History.

1718—General Israel Putnam born in Danvers, Mass.; died 1790. Putnam won laurels as a gallant soldier before he became "Old Put" of the Revolutionists. After ten years of service, filled with adventure, he returned home with the rank of colonel. He joined the "Sons of Liberty" in Connecticut and was among the first to march against the invaders. Connecticut gave him command of all her forces.

1768—Joseph Bonaparte, eldest brother of Napoleon, king of Naples and Spain, born; died 1844.

1892—Tewfik Pasha, khedive of Egypt, died; born 1852.

1902—Baron Jean de Bloch, author of "The War of the Future," the book which led to the peace congress of 1899, died; born 1843.

BIG BENEFIT IS TONIGHT

apiece for tickets.

That the children of city and borough are working earnestly for the cause is shown by the sale of tickets by pupils of city and borough schools. An envelope heavy with silver coins and coppers was left at this office yesterday afternoon with the explanation that it was the contents of a little boy's savings bank. Tickets were sent to him. The coins were worn black in some cases, showing that they had been for many weeks in the lad's savings bank.

In many cases where people have other engagements, the price of tickets and "change" has been received, with the instructions to give out tickets for the amount sent.

A piano was moved into the church today, for the use of the orchestra, the leader of which is Arthur Mosher. A feature of tonight's program will be the singing of the hymn, "Come Thou, Almighty King" the music of which is by an Italian composer. The entire audience will take part, and J. Edmund Skiff will be at the organ.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of schools, heartily endorses the benefit entertainment. He said today:

"The movement to raise funds for the relief of stricken Italy, is most worthy of commendation. The whole world is akin, although we do not know them and cannot see them, the suffering people in Southern Italy are indeed our brothers and should receive our help in their great need. I wish the movement full success."

Bequeathed Valuable Timepiece.

H. B. Sanderson, of Cranford, who is a partner in the management of Proctor's theatre in this city, is in possession of a timepiece which he prizes highly. It is a gold watch which on March 11, 1878, was presented to the late Tony Pastor by the members of his company. Ever afterward Mr. Pastor carried the watch and he never forgot the sentiment expressed by his company through the gift. Following the death of Mr. Pastor, when his will was read, it was learned that he had bequeathed the watch to Mr. Sanderson and it is one of his most cherished treasures. Mr. Sanderson was associated with Mr. Pastor in the theatrical business for a great many years and the two were the closest of friends.

COURT UPHOLDS THE FORESTERS NEW RATES

Justice Marcus handed down a decision at Buffalo on December 31 in the case of Richard Humphreys and others against the Independent Order of Foresters. The decision vacates the temporary injunction secured by the plaintiffs, by which the order was restrained from enforcing its schedule increasing the assessment rates of the so-called "old members." This will interest the thousands of members in New Jersey and throughout the country. Had the injunction been made permanent, the order would have been restrained from collecting assessments and the embarrassments would have been serious.

Justice Brown granted the injunction in special term about two months ago. the Supreme Court of the order in Toronto was restrained from collecting the higher rates, which were put into effect at a meeting of the Supreme Court last June. Counsel for the plaintiffs contended that the increase in rates was a violation of the contract made with the members, and that the old rates should be maintained and additional funds raised, if necessary, by extra assessments. Counsel for the order argued that the Supreme Court had a legal right to increase the rates by amending its constitution.

Justice Marcus accepted the claims of the defendant's counsel in vacating the injunction. He held that the order has the right to increase its assessment rates by an amendment of its by-laws, and that in so doing it does not violate the contract made with the policyholders. The right to make such changes is held to be acknowledged by members upon application and admittance to membership; and the duty to do so, when necessary, to enable the society to meet its obligations to all its members when they mature, is imposed by the charter of the society.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

A Model Grand Jury.

Union county has a new sheriff, and to judge from the first grand jury he has called, it is his intention to live up to the spirit as well as to the letter of the law. A few of the names of those who compose the grand inquest for the January term will give some idea of the character of that body: Calvin B. Orcutt, president of Newport News (Va.) Shipbuilding Company; Albert B. Carlton, Joseph Gales, warden of St. John's Episcopal Church; Augustus S. Crane, elder First Presbyterian church; Rev. Dr. Sleeper, of Grace Episcopal church; George W. Rogers, bank director and large contractor; Augustus S. Young, wealthy citizen and business man; Miller F. Moore, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens of Roselle.

These are a few of the names that might be mentioned, and they indicate fairly the class of men that have been called on the Union Grand Jury and constitute a majority of that body. There will be no question that conscientious, aggressive work will be done, and that there will be no shielding of lawbreakers for political reasons. Even saloon-keepers will have a square deal. They will be indicted if the evidence calls for indications; but they will not be indicted unless it does.

The new sheriff of Union has stood the test of a proper selection of grand jurors. He has picked men of the higheest grade, morally and intellecually. The next, and indeed the severest test, will be in the make-up of the panel of petit jurors and their ability to render verdic's according to the evidence. There have, in former days, been sweeping charges that Union county petit jurors were selected for special purposes, to protect certain interests and in payment of political debts, but that time seems to have passed away. Union County's new sheriff is keeping the pledges he made before election.—Newark News.

SCRIBES VISIT STATE CONSUMPTIVES' HOME.

Representatives of newspapers from various parts of the State were the guests of the board of directors of the State Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Patients at Glen Gardner, yesterday. The guests were met by the superintendent of the institution, Dr. Samuel B. English. Other members of the board who were present were Dr. William S. Jones, president of the board of directors; Abram L. Beavers, secretary and treasurer, and Frederick L. Wild and W. B. Smalley.

The guests were shown over the whole institution, which at present is crowded. There are now 104 patients at the sanitarium, sixteen of whom are from Essex county.

The board of directors will at the coming session of the Legislature take some steps to have the State give an additional appropriation to ward the sanitarium as they want to build several more shacks. Each shack shelters about twenty patients. During the past years the directors added one more shack to the sanitarium.

Declines a Call to Albany.

Rev. Dr. Fred Clare Baldwin, pastor of Calvary Methodist church, East Orange, for the past eight years, has declined a call to the Trinity Methodist church at Albany, having already accepted a call for another year from Calvary church. Dr. Baldwin is well-known here and when the Newark Conference met here he made many friends among the Plainfielders and others attending. At that time there was some talk of his being given a Plainfield pastorate, but the call from Calvary church was so urgent that he was returned. During his pastorate Dr. Baldwin increased the membership of Calvary church by one-third and doubled the attendance of the Sunday-school.

Van Horn Generous.

The will of Amos H. Van Horn, millionaire furniture dealer of Newark, who died December 26, was admitted to probate yesterday. It provides for donations of $150,000 for three monuments to be erected in Newark parks, thirty-five donations to charitable institutions in Essex county and gifts of from $500 to $7,000 to twenty olds and faithful employes. The bulk of his fortune is given to charity and every organization of importance in the city, including all Methodist churches, is remembered. Three lawyers named as executors, receive $7,000 each.

Suggestions.

In sweetening acid fruit a little soda put in first will lessen the amount of sugar required, and will not injure the flavor of the fruit unless too much is used. Half a teaspoonful to a quart of fruit is usually about right.

To Brighten Bicycle Enamel.—Beeswax and turpentine is excellent for this. Melt half an ounce of wax in half a pound of turpentine in a cool oven, and use cold. It must be rubbed on with a soft cloth, and the enamel then polished with dry dusters, finishing off with chamois.

ASK FOR THE FISHER HOLDBACK

The old style holdback for blinds affords a roosting place for birds and causes ugly stains to disfigure the sides of the house under the blinds. Notice this carefully and then you will want

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph gives a lecture tonight in the First M. E. church, of Plainfield, upon "The Earthquake Zone of Italy." The entire proceeds will be devoted to The Daily Press Earthquake Relief Fund being raised by this paper. No concerted action has been taken as yet by the residents here to do their part in this great work. The admission is only 50 cents. All who can should attend the lecture and do their little part in helping to relieve stricken Italy.

Thomas M. Paff, Sr., who recently sold his property on Park avenue, will remove shortly to one of the Meyer cottages on Westfield avenue.

Franklin Lee, who has been spending his Christmas vacation at his home, has returned to his studies at the Madison Boarding School.

Charles Cottrell, a former resident here, died at his home in New York Tuesday morning, after a lingering illness with typhoid fever.

Recorder Joseph Clark suspended sentence on Robert Mown, of Fanwood, who was arraigned before him yesterday on disorderly charge.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., holds election of officers at its regular meeting tonight. A full attendance of members is desired.

Fanwood Bucket and Engine Co. held its regular monthly meeting last night in the company's rooms.

Rev. T. Moore Smith, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is reported as improving slowly.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education last night, the proposition of erecting an addition to the Whittier school received favorable consideration. The committee was authorized to accept plans from architects for an L addition, which would cost not more than $5,000, including furnishings.

"Home and Foreign Missions" was the topic discussed at the Methodist church last night. Tonight the subject will be "Intemperance and Gambling." Much interest is being taken in these nightly meetings during this, the week of prayer.

Miss Wormster is teaching this week in the place of Miss Ada Thompson, who is ill at her home in South Amboy.

Mayor Harry J. Swackhamer continues to improve but is keeping in doors during the disagreeable weather.

The New Market Volunteer Firemen's masquerade ball will be held tomorrow night in Friendship hall.

The Whatsoever Mission Band of the Presbyterian church will meet tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. G. W. Delheim, of Por Chester, N. Y., is visiting friends here this week.

Miss Florence Winter has returned from a visit to Cliffwood.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The washout on the county bridge on Lehigh avenue was filled in yesterday by order of Township Committeeman William Hamilton.

Mrs. William Harrison has returned to her home in Elizabeth after a pleasant visit with Samuel Manning.

Mrs. Morris Higgins was buried from St. Mary's church in Plainfield this morning.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

Fine Collection of Postals.

Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, has probably one of the best collections of souvenir postcards in the city, a majority of them being sent to him by John Galvin, formerly of this city, but now of Arizona. One received today shows a view at Chase Clift, Clifton, Arizona, the population of which is about 25,000, although the picture gives one the idea that the place is about the size of Dunellen.

Candidates on Tonight.

Another "try out" night will be held at the New Plainfield theatre tonight when aspiring thespians will be given a chance to demonstrate their ability. The management has secured ten candidates for footlight initiation and the chances for a barrel of fun are exceedingly good. Moving pictures and illustrated songs will make up the regular part of the bill.

Large Attendance.

At the prayer-meeting in Trinity Reformed church, last night, over 200 persons were present, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor-emeritus, was able to be present and pronounced the benediction. The meeting was in charge of the pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek: Tonight, Rev. James T. Schock, of Prospect avenue, will have charge of the meeting.

Proud of Them.

"Pardner," said the tall tramp at the water tank, "yer don't seem much worried about dem openings in de under part of yer shoe."

"I guess not," chuckled the short tramp as he warmed his feet on the hot cinders; 'dey are de windows of me sole."—Chicago News.

PRETTY W. U. OPERATOR SOON TO BE A BRIDE.

Miss Martha M. Brown, who until January 1, was the assistant telegraph operator at the local Western Union office, will be married to George A. Herman, of Wanamie, Pa., on Friday, January 18. The ceremony will take place in the Lutheran Reformed church at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and will be witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bride elect is a native of Bethlehem, Pa., and she is the daughter of W. W. Brown, who is agent and operator for the New Jersey Central at Wanamie. Miss Brown learned telegraphy with her father and last summer took a position as operator at Scranton, Pa., and on August 1 was transferred to the Western Union office in this city. During her residence here she made many friends and filled her position with satisfaction.

The groom is in business at Wanamie, and the friends of the couple are planning to give them a large reception upon their return to Alden, Pa., where they will reside in a newly-furnished home.

A CATECHISM FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Did you ever try to discover the easiest method of accomplishing household tasks?

Did you ever clean vinegar bottles with crushed eggshells in a little water?

Did you ever have occasion to clean paint brushes in which the paint had partly hardened? First soak them in turpentine, then clean with soap and water.

Did you ever want to tint the cake frosting? Lemon-juice will whiten it, the grated rind of an orange strained through a cloth will give it a yellow tint, and strawberry or cranberry juice will produce a pretty shade of pink.

Did you ever realize the importance of salting the steak after it is broiled, not before? Every housewife should know the reason why.

Did you ever notice the difference between old and new flour when used for pastry? The old is always preferred.

Did you ever have baking dishes or cups spoiled by remaining too long in the hot oven? The brown discolorations may be rubbed off with flannel dipped in whiting.

Did you ever brush pie-crust over with the white of an egg before putting the fruit in? It will keep it from becoming "soggy."

Did you ever make excellent iron-holders and at the same time utilize the tops of a pair of worn-out boots or shoes? Cut the leather into squares and cover it with some suitable material, using as many thicknesses of the leather as desired, and whipping it closely in places. These will prove very serviceable.

KEEP PIECES OF SEWING FOR FREE EVENINGS.

Lingerie is such, interesting pick-up work that women never tire of hearing new ways and means, particularly for January, when the winter evenings are long and the afternoons invite us in the direction of the sewing basket.

There is a most convenient narrow scalloped edge of embroidery, sold in twelve-yard lengths, resembling so closely the French hand embroidery that it is to be recommended to even the discriminating sewer for making dainty corset covers.

It has one selvage edge, which is to be laid along the low neck of the batiste cover after the raw edge of the garment has been turned over on to the right side. Two rows of machine stitching hold it neatly in place, and, when the ribbon has been run through eyelet holes an inch below the scallops, the general effect will suggest a little French article.

Choosing Winter Materials.

Most persons suppose that fabrics made of coarse wool are the warmest and most durable. This is not ture. Coarse, heavy woolens insure less warmth in winter than the fine wool which feels pleasant and soft to the touch, and has the appearance of velvet. For underwear, the finer woolens, mixed with silk, are considered the warmest. They are not bulky and one can wear them with genuine comfort. One of the gravest mistakes in woman's dress is the failure to provide proper covering for the arms and chest. A woman may be warmly clad, when her arms will be freezing cold. Can this lead to anything but illness? Low slippers, a lace-yoked dress and a heavy jacket are strangers to good, sound judgment and health.

For the Hair.

Countless and in endless variety are the chic little hair ornaments, to be worn with the new spangled robes and the fine messaline, chiffon and soft satin gowns. Gauze butterflies covered with spangles, which nestle on the hair and glitter under the electric lights, are most effectlive. They come in bronze, steel, silver and gold effects and often match the tint of the gown.

Keep Enamel Handy.

A box of the ready-mixed white enamel is a household friend. An old bathtub takes on a new lease of life with one or two coats of the paint, and it is excellent for freshening old tin cake boxes, spice boxes and other kitchen utensils. The enamel prevents rusting.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Duke Mampton, a young man of Mantua, is missing. He left home ten days ago.

Henry C. Garrison, of Swedesboro, known far and near as "Garry," began the forty-second year of his official life in Gloucester county New Year's, serving now as constable.

Pink and white decorations will be hung in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Webster, of 1010 Park avenue, Hoboken, this evening, for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Kate Webster, to Frank B. Stanton, of Philadelphia.

James Clement, of Woodbury, has found a rabbit and an owl together. The nest is well up in a tree. The rabbit, a full-grown one, occupies the bed of the nest, while the owl, perched alongside, acts as sentinel.

Herbert Pervis, twenty years old, a student at the Ironsides School, Bordentown, was struck by a freight train on the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday afternoon. He was thrown to one side of the track, but walked off uninjured.

Miss Mary Vermeulen, who lives at 230 Fifth avenue, Paterson, was badly injured while about to get aboard a Riverside trolley car at Main and Ellison street, that city, last evening. The woman was just putting her foot on the platform when the car started and she was thrown to the pavement. Miss Vermeulen sustained a broken ankle.

Application made by Max Reinberger, an Atlantic City merchant, for the insurance on the life of his son, who was supposed to have died somewhere in the far West, led to an investigation that resulted in the discovery that the boy was in jail in Pendleton, Ore. The information which came to the police told of the lad having unsuccessfully attempted suicide.

Death suddenly terminated the romance of Mrs. Flora May Wingate, of Burlington, who was wedded three weeks ago to a young conductor on the Camden and Trenton trolley line. Taken ill within a week after her marriage, the young bride was removed to the Burlington County Hospital. An operation was performed, but blood poisoning developed and death resulted Monday.

The staff of constables of the Passaic county sheriff's office has been increased from thirteen to fourteen. John F. Kearney has been reappointed. After the trouble about Tapack, whom he allowed to leave the city when he was wanted by his bondsmen, it was announced that he would not be reappointed, but since the investigation by Judge Scott the constable was practically vindicated.

A party of notables from Japan, who are visiting Atlantic City as part of a tour of the world, are attracting attention on the Boardwalk and at the St. Charles, where they are making their stay. In the party are Jiro Abratani, editor of the Osaka Manachini, one of the big newspapers of Japan; Dr. Ono, special financial agent of the Bank of Japan, and several Japanese of this country who are with them on the tour.

Arrested on a charge of misdemeanor, Mrs. Ida Schablein, of 214 Friends avenue, and Harry Flood, an upholsterer, of 313 West street, were committed to the county jail by Justice of the Peace Schmitz, in Camden, and, unable to furnish $300 bail each, were locked up last night. The charge was made by the woman's husband, who, with several officers, surprised the couple at Flood's home. They admit their guilt.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In "Hello Bill," which Manager Counihan announces for the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Friday with a special matinee at 2:30, theatre-goers of this city will have an opportunity of witnessing what has been pronounced as the best farcical comedy from the pen of an American writer. It is now nearly ten years since Willis Waxwell Goodhue's merry farce was first produced at the Bijou theatre, New York, during which time it has been seen in nearly every quarter of the civilized world, far-off Australia, Tasmania and South Africa joining with America in giving homage to the author's ability to write the most mirth-provoking effort of the twentieth century. During its American tours the quality of the company has never been allowed to decline, and the company today is as strong as it was the first year. The company this season comprises the Messrs. Ferdinand B. Ashbey, Charles Kellnar, Charles H. Douglass, James S. Murray, Bert Whitehead, Robert Watt and the Misses Minnie Lee, Fannie Ferris, Vivian De Wolfe, Elizabeth Jamieson and Marion Kirby. Nothing which could fail to lend success to the offering has been left undone, and Plainfield theatre-goers can assure themselves of the comedy treat of the year.

The mystic world of red wagons and the contents are told in the majestic production of "Polly of the Circus," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. The play is presented with Miss Fay Wallace in the leading part and a pretty love story is woven into Margaret Mayo's story. The play which is in three acts and six scenes, shows in sequence the study of a minister, a bedroom above the study, the rear garden of the parsonage, the interior of the big tent, and the circus lot after the performance. The story tells of the loves of Polly, the pet of the circus, who, having suffered a severe injury in a fall from her horse, is carried into the parsonage adjoining the circus lot, and the young parson into whose heart she has been carried as well. It is a deliciously interesting tale and beautifully conceived. The management has provided a very strong cast and a magnificent stage investiture. The cast includes Fay Wallace, Herbert Barrington, Edward Saxon, Walter V. Milton, Clint G. Ford, Carolyn Lee and Betty Huston.

Something different in the way of a comedy-drama production will appear at the New Plainfield theatre when "Jane Eyre" makes her first bow next Monday night. This is a clean-cut comedy in the broader sense, with a dramatic story threaded through so intense in its telling that it compels attention. There is not a dull moment or incident from rise of the first curtain. Every reader of good literature has read Charlotte Bronte's great work (Jane Eyre) and after its first production in Chicago so great was the demand for the book that the publishers were compelled to put out several new editions.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS

are the new Records that play twice as long as the regular Edison Records. Thus Amberol Records can be used on your present Edison Phonograph by the addition of a simple attachment or gear, and you can still play the Records you have.

Amberol Records not only play longer than any other Record now made, but they play better, their tone quality being richer, clearer and more delicate than has been possible in the past.

Let us put an attachment on your Phonograph or sell you an Edison Phonograph that will play both Records.

CHAPTER XII.

A Blow.

There was no one but Mrs. Winter to welcome the colonel when, jaded, warm and dusty, he tapped on Aunt Rebecca's parlor door. Mrs. Millicent was bristling with a sense of injury; one couldn't touch her conversationally without risk of a scratch. The colonel put up the shield of his unsuitable appearance, his fatigue and his deplorable need of a bath, and escaped into his own apartment. But he made his toilet with reckless haste. All the time he was questioning his recent experience, trying to sort over his theories, which had been plunged into confusion by Mercer's confession. "I suppose," he reflected, "that I had no right to give Mercer that hint at the door." The hint had been given just as they parted. It was in a single sentence:

"By the way, Mercer, if that pillar in the patio is of importance in your combination, you would better keep an eye on it; it has a trick of crackling."

"The devil it has!" grunted Mercer. Then he thanked him, with a kind of reluctant admiration in his tone.

"You are sure you don't object to my detective's staying?" questioned the colonel.

"No, suh; prefer to have him. You told him to have his men in and overhaul the house?"

"I did. I warned you I should have to. You promise there shall be no racket? But I—I think I'll take Haley."

"Thank you. That's right kind of you, suh. Good-by, suh."

This had been the manner of their parting—assuredly a singular one, after the sinister suspicions and the violent promises which the soldier had made himself in regard to this very man. After leaving, he had motored into town, down to the police courts, to discover no records of the arrest and no trace of Archie. Thence, discouraged, perplexed and more worried than he liked to admit, he had repaired to the hotel. His aunt was gone, Miss Smith was gone, and Randall could only relate how Mrs. Winter "had flewed like a bird, sir, into a big red motor car and gone off, and then Miss Smith and a lady and gentleman had got into a white car and gone off in the same direction."

He was meditating on his next step, when Birdsall was announced below. The detective looked as warm and as tired as the colonel had felt an hour before. Rupert was not eager to see him, but neither was he anxious for the tete-a-tete with Millicent which awaited him in the parlor. Between the two he chose Birdsall.

"Well," he greeted him, "did you find any trace of the boy?"

"Of course I did," growled Birdsall. "They didn't try to hide 'im. They had him lodged in a dandy room with his own bath. Of course, he left his tooth-brush. They'd got him some automobile togs, too, and he'd left some leggings when he packed, and a letter begun on a pad to Miss Smith—'Dear Miss Janet,' it begins, 'I am having a bully time. I can steer the machine, only I can't back'—that's all. Say, the young dog has been having it fat while we were in the frying pan, for fear somebody was bothering him."

"But he is not in the house now?"

"No, nor nothing else."

"Nobody hidden away? Where did the groans you heard come from?" queried the colonel, politely.

Birdsall flushed. "I do believe that slick deceiver you call Mercer put up a game on us out of meanness—just to get me guessing."

"That sort of thing looks more like the college boys."

"Say, it might have been. This thing is giving me nervous prostration. Say, why didn't you see the thing out with me?"

The colonel shamelessly told the truth to deceive. "I was called here. I was told that Mrs. Winter, my aunt, had seen Archie in the street."

"She was just getting out of a machine as I came up. Miss Smith was with her, and they had their hands full of candy boxes. They were laughing. I made sure the boy had been found."

"Not to my knowledge," said the colonel. But in some excitement he walked into the parlor. The ladies had arrived; they stood in the center of the room while Randall took away the boxes.

"Candy for Archie," explained Aunt Rebecca, and these were the first words to reach Rupert Winter's ears. "I expect him to dinner."

"Aunt Rebecca," proclaimed Millicent, "I never have been one to complain, but there are limits to human endurance. I am a modern person, a civilized Episcopalian, accustomed to a regular and well-ordered life, and for the last few days I seem to have been living in a kind of mediæval mystery, with kidnapers, and bloodstains, and, for anything I know, somebody ready to stick a knife into any one of us any time! You people may enjoy this sort of thing—you seem to—but I don't. And I tell you frankly that I am going to apply to the police, not to any private detective inquiry office, as like as not in league with the criminals"—thus ungratefully did Mrs. Millicent slur the motives of her only truly interested auditor—"but real policemen. I shall apply—"

She did not tell where she should apply, the words being snapped out of her mouth by the sharp tinkle of the telephone bell.

Aunt Rebecca responded to the call. "Send him up," was her answer to the inaudible questioner.

She laid down the receiver. Then she put it back. Then she stood up, her silver head in the air, her erect little figure held motionless.

Janet Smith's dark eyes sought hers; her lips parted only to close firmly again.

Even the detective perceived the electric intensity of the moment, and Rupert shut his fists tight, with a quickened beating of the heart; but emotional vibrations did not disturb Mrs. Melville Winter's poise. She continued her plaint.

"This present situation is unbearable, unprecedented and un—un—unexpected," she declaimed, rather groping for a climax which escaped her. Aunt Rebecca raised her hand.

"Would you be so very kind, Millicent," said she, "as to wait a moment? I am trying to listen."

Like a response to her words, the knob of the door was turned, the door swung, and Archie entered the room, smiling his odd little chewed-up smile.

Janet uttered a faint cry and took a single step, but, as if recognizing a superior right, hung back while the boy put his arm about his great-aunt's waist and rather bashfully kissed her cheek.

She received the salute with entire composure, except for a tiny splash of red which crept up to each cheekbone. "Is it really you, Archie?" said she. "You are a little late for dinner day before yesterday, but quite in time for to-day. Sit down and tell us where you have been."

"Quite so!" exclaimed Mrs. Millicent. "Good heavens! Do you know how we have suffered? Where have you been? Why did you run away?"

But Archie, who had surrendered one-half of him to be hugged by Miss Smith and the other to be clapped on the shoulder by his uncle, seemed to think a vaguely polite "How-de-do, Aunt Millicent. I'm sorry to have worried you!" to be answer enough. Only when the question was repeated by Mrs. Winter herself did he reply: "I'm awfully sorry, Aunt Rebecca, but I've promised not to say anything about it. But, truly, I didn't mean to bother you."

Millicent exploded in an access of indignation: "And do you mean that you expect us to accept such a ridiculous promise—after all we have been through?"

"Quite so," remarked Aunt Rebecca, with a precise echo of her niece's most Anglican utterance—the gift of mimicry had been one of Mrs. Winter's most admired and distrusted social gifts from her youth.

Rupert Winter hastened to distract Millicent's attention by saying, decisively: "If the boy has promised, that ends it; he can't break his parole. Anyhow, they don't seem to have hurt you, old son?"

"Oh, they treated me dandy, those fellows," said Archie. "Miss Janet, I know how to run an electric motor car, except backing."

"I'll bet you do," muttered the detective.

Here the colonel came to the boy's relief a second time and drew Birdsall aside. "Best let me pump the chap a little. You get downstairs and see how he got here, who brought him. They'll get clean away. It is late for that as it is. You can report to-morrow."

It was the colonel, also, who eliminated Mrs. Millicent by the masterly stratagem of suggesting that she pass the news to Mrs. Wigglesworth. He artfully added that it would require tact to let the lady from Boston understand that the lad had been found without in any way gratifying her natural curiosity in regard to the manner of finding or the cause of disappearance. "I'll have to leave that to you," he concluded. "Maybe you can see a way out; I confess my hands are in the air."

Millicent thus relegated to the ambassador's shelf, the colonel slipped comfortably into his pet arm-chair, facing his nephew on the lounge between Aunt Rebecca and Miss Smith. Miss Smith looked frankly, charmingly happy. Aunt Rebecca looked rather tired.

"Of course," he remarked, "I understand, old man, that you have promised secrecy to the Fireless Stove gang, as we'll call them; but the other kidnapers, the crowd that held up your car and then switched you off on a side track while young Fireless was detained—they haven't any hold on you?"

"No, sir," said Archie; "but—you see, that strange gentleman and Aunt Millicent—I was scared lest I'd give something away."

"They're not here now. All friends here. Suppose you make a clean breast of your second kidnaping. It may be important you should."

REFORMATORY SALARY INCREASE IS TALKED

The possibility of securing legislative action which will allow for an increase in the salary of the Superintendent of the Rahway Reformatory is being considered at the meeting of the Board of Commissioners this afternoon. It has been announced that George Morris, the present superintendent of the Bloomfield schools, who has been tendered the position, will not accept at the present salary, $3,000 a year, and it is argued that a competent official cannot be secured to succeed the late Captain Martin at the salary now in effect.

Attorney-General Wilson has stated that the board must not exceed the salary paid Captain Martin and that any extension to be made will have to be provided for by a legislative revision. Such a measure will probably be presented during the coming term of the Legislature.

Under the present statutes the superintendent's office carries with it only the salary of $3,000, and there is no additional allowance for expenses. Mr. Morris now receives $3,100 as superintendent of the Bloomfield schools, and he has stated that he cannot accept the offer of the commissioners unless his living expenses are provided for aside from the salary mentioned. It has been suggested that the salary should be $5,000, and those in authority assert that an amendment to the statutes along this line would be approved by Governor Fort.

MRS. HIGGINS' FUNERAL HELD IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

Attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends, the funeral of Mrs. Alice Higgins, wife of Morris Higgins, of South Plainfield, was held in St. Mary's church, this morning. The mass was said by Rev. Father E. J. Dunphy, rector of St. John's church, Dunellen, and was followed by burial in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Higgins, who died Tuesday afternoon, was fifty-five years old and had lived in this country since 1874. Her husband was proprietor of Higgins' hotel at South Plainfield until last fall when he retired from business. She is survived by one son, John Higgins. Her only other relatives are two cousins living in South Plainfield, Mrs. Thomas Saverd and Mrs. Dennis Harlow.

BLOW AT ELECTION NOISES.

Trenton Council to Pass a Law Fining Persons Who Make Them.

The Republican Council of Trenton, objects to noises made by Republicans in celebrating the election of William H. Taft last November. Wednesday night in Council an ordinance went in which will be passed, and it aims to stop such noises.

One enthusiastic manufacturer started his whistle going at 10 o'clock on election night and let it blow continuously until 6 o'clock in the morning, with a fireman on watch all night to keep up the steam. Citizens protested against such exhibitions of joy, and the Republicans have promised that it will not occur again and persons responsible escape without a fine.

The manufacturer in question said that he was willing to pay a $10,000 fine for the chance of committing such an offense.

Work Among the Sailors.

Captain George Benn, who is in charge of the Mission Yacht Work in New York, has communicated with Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, chairman of the soldiers and sailors work of the W. C. T. U. thanking her for the donations received from Plainfielders and also giving a summary of the articles received and distributed among the sailors. In all there were five thousand gifts and during the past year 164 barrels of clothing, etc., 203 boxes, 62 sacks, 78 express packages and seven tons of literature from libraries and associations.

Reconsidered Sentence.

Charles Wilderman, one of the trolley wire thieves, who yesterday was sentenced to five years at hard labor in State prison, was rearraigned in court this morning, when the sentence was re-considered. In view of the fact that there is now an uncompleted sentence of eight months hanging over him on another charge and that he materially helped the State in finding the wire thieves, led the court to change his sentence to three years, instead of five. He will serve in all three years and eight months.

Bowling and General Sports

LEAL'S BEATS P. H. S. IN LAST FEW MINUTES

In the last five minutes of play Leal's school turned what looked like defeat into victory yesterday afternoon at Y. M. C. A. gym. They were opposed to the P. H. S. five and the low score, 18 to 16, is sufficient proof that both teams were fighting hard. Always when these two schools get together there is war.

One of the biggest crowds of the season filled the spectators gallery as the two teams have many friends and they got all that they came to see for the game was snappy and rough enough to arouse enthusiasm in the quietest co-ed.

At the end of the first half Plainfield was leading by 11 to 3. In the latter part of the second half C. Lawrence, who had been playing guard, went back to his regular place as forward and immediately Leal's team work underwent a change like magic. It was after this change that the game was won for this team.

There was much fouling; 14 fouls were called against Leal's and 13 against P. H. S. After the game it was said that P. H. S. would protest the decision because it was claimed the timers had no whistle and play was not stopped immediately on time. No points were made, however, in the narrow margin of time, so that it is doubtful if the protest will stand.

The lineup:

HORSE "SWAP" CASE IN LOCAL DISTRICT COURT.

Wilford Woodruff, who instituted suit against Hyman Mintz, was given a verdict in the District court, this morning, the title to the property being found in the plaintiff. The action arose over a horse trade, the men swapping horses. When the plaintiff received the horse owned by Mintz it was said to be all right, but the following day he refused to be hitched to a wagon and the new owner could do nothing with the horse.

Claiming that he had the worst of the bargain he secured a writ of replevin, and today recovered his own horse. R. N. Crane represented the plaintiff.

Proctor's Theatre.

Friday and Saturday the cameraphone will reproduce the well known and very popular monologist, James J. Morton, known as "the one and only boy comic." Mr. Morton is one of the highest salaried artists in vaudeville and this presentation is so life-like it is credited as being the best record produced by the cameraphone. On Monday and Tuesday the famed English comedienne, Miss Alice Lloyd, will be the cameraphone feature, in her great specialty, "Won't You Come and Splash With Me?" Do not forget on Saturday there is no intermission, the show runs continuously from 2 until 11 p. m.

Sent to Rahway Reformatory.

Judge Atwater in the Union county court, yesterday, sent James Coleman, colored, and Richard Fairclough, aged 18 and 19 years, respectively, to the Rahway Reformatory for an indefinite term. The lads who live in this city, were found guilty of breaking and entering Samuel Thornton's pool room on Watchung avenue on the night of December 22 last, stealing $20 worth of pipes. Both boys have bad records.

Birthday Anniversary Party.

In honor of the tenth anniversary of her birthday, Erma G. Dobbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, of West End avenue, was given a party by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Dobbins at their home on Elmwood place. The guests included a number of playmates and the afternoon was spent in playing games. Refreshments were served. The young celebrant received a number of gifts.

First Anniversary Service.

The first anniversary of the conversion of William Wright, will be celebrated at the Plainfield Rescue Mission, tonight. Howard T. Sceckler, superintendent of the Elizabeth Rescue Mission will assist John LeMatty, the local superintendent and there will be other speakers together with special music.

Presented Oratorio "Elijah."

The oratorio, "Elijah," was presented by the Cranford choral club at the First Presbyterian church, that place, last night, under the direction of William E. MacClymont, of this city. It was attended by a large audience.

1909 FORD, 4 Cylinder, 20 H. P., with Magneto and 3 Lamps, $850; Roadster $825; Landaulette $950. F. O. B. DETROIT

SPECIFICATIONS.

ENGINE—Four-cylinder, 3¾ bore x 4-inch stroke, 20 H. P. conservative rating.

CYLINDERS—Cast in one block, top removable, affording easy access to all parts of the engine. In case you should let your engine freeze and crack a cylinder, you can buy the entire block of 4-cylinders for the very low price of $25.00. This price is less than most factories charge for one cylinder, and removes the only possible objections a man could have against this method of construction.

IGNITION—Ford low tension magneto generator, built as part of the fly wheel. No gears, belts, brushes or contact points to give trouble. So simple in construction and so positive in operation, that it looks as though it would last forever without any attention from the owner. This system removes all battery trouble, one of the most annoying and expensive troubles.

STEEL—Heat treated Vanadium steel throughout. No car at $5,000.00 has higher grade, for none better can be bought. We defy any man to break a Ford Model T spring, axle, shaft, gear, or other part with any test less than 50 per cent more severe than would be required to put any other steel in the junk pile.

It has taken Ford two years and cost him $200,000.00 to acquire the analysis and the heat-treating and quenching formulas of this wonderful steel, as they are his own secrets.

LUBRICATION—No pumps, tubes or glasses to give trouble. The fly wheel acts as the distributing agent, and as long as there is a drop of oil in the tank your engine and transmission is sure to be taken care of.

TIRES—Ford Model T weighs only 1,200 pounds, therefore will take you more miles and cost you less for tires than any other five-passenger car in the world.. The tire cost is really about the only expensive part of the running of an automobile. Be sure and give this subject your most critical examination before buying a car, as it means a good many DOLLARS in your pocket every time you wear out a set of tires.

HERE ARE THE FACTS—If a manufacturer designs and makes his car so heavy that he must equip it with a 32x4-inch tire,
It will cost you for a set of four tires.....$129.00
Four tires for a Model T Touring Car will cost..... 74.50
Difference saved every time you must buy a set of tires....$ 54.50

This will buy a lot of gasoline and oil. All tires, regardless of size, are guaranteed by the tire manufacturer to run the same number of miles. So do not let anybody tell you differently. Ask them to show you the tire guarantee and it will show for itself.

DELIVERIES—We are booking orders for deliveries in rotation as received, or by placing a small deposit with your order we will deliver you a car when you want it in the spring.

BE SURE TO SEE the Ford exhibition at the Grand Central palace auto show January 1 to January 7.

WE guarantee all new cars sold by us free of repairs for three months.

LECTURE SWELLS FUND

Relief Contributions Largely Increased by a Most Instructive Entertainment.

LARGE AUDIENCE IS PRESENT.

W. L. Saunders Presides—Messrs. Randolph and Honeyman and Revs. Bogan and McCrea Speak.

A fresh and vigorous impetuous was given the fund for the Italian earthquake relief fund at the big benefit lecture and entertainment at the First M. E. church last night when an ordinance of nearly four hundred people listened to the vivid descriptions of the awful calamity and heard the appeals of distinguished citizens for aid in this noble cause. Enthusiasm marked the meeting and the attendance was especially gratifying inasmuch as other big entertainments had been previously arranged in the city for the same night. As a result of the affair, the fund being raised by this paper has been considerably augmented. The receipts amounted to $170.00, and as some have not reported as to tickets sent to them the profits may still be larger.

There was not a dull moment during the two hours entertainment and from start to finish the program was afterwards conceded to be splendid in every particular. People in all walks of life were there and lost no opportunity to show their enthusiasm in the undertaking.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the church, after announcing the purpose of the meeting, asked the audience to join in singing "The Italian Hymn," which they did in a hearty way. J. Edmund Skiff, the church organist and choirmaster, had previously rendered most beautifully "The March of the Isralites" from the oratorio "Eli," by Costa, as an organ prelude, following it with Chopin's Funeral March.

Dr. McCrea introduced former Mayor William L. Saunders as the chairman for the evening. Mr. Saunders gave a brief talk in which he declared that it was a mistake to think that one is doing a favor when he gives his time or money to such a cause. It is his duty, for the cause of humanity, he said, for one to help at such times and on such occasions. He impressed upon the audience that its duty had not been discharged simply by attending such a meeting but that to discharge their moral obligation they should give of their means. During his short address, the chairman gave an interesting description of the coast of the destroyed country and of the catastrophe. He also told of the other earthquakes in the world's history particularly one in Japan during the last century in which 190,000 lives were lost. These quakes of the earth, he explained, have occurred in all parts of the world but their cause still baffles science.

Especially instructive was the address of A. V. D. Honeyman, who has often visited Messina and the other destroyed cities. Mr. Honeyman's subject was "Reminiscenses of Some Earthquake Countries," and his word pictures of them were extremely entertaining. He told something of the great outbursts of lava from Mt. Aetna, Vesuvius and other volcanoes from time to time. While he spoke briefly he imparted a large amount of information and his remarks were well received.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph as the lecturer for the evening delivered a brilliant address in a forceful way. It was undoubtedly one of the ablest speeches along such lines ever made in this city, and he was warmly congratulated after the meeting for his splendid presentation of his subject, "The Earthquake Zone of Italy." Subsequently the lecturer showed many interesting pictures of Italy by means of the stereopticon.

Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, the much-beloved and scholarly priest of St. Mary's, was the last speaker and his remarks made a most fitting climax to the evening's entertainment. "One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin" was his theme. He took only five minutes for what he had to say and the way he said it caused general regret that his talk was so brief. When asked to take part in the meeting, Father Bogan willingly consented foregoing a trip south for the benefit of his health in order to do so. After expressing his pleasure at being able to assist in the cause on this occasion, he commended the view that it is a duty and not a favor for all to help in such an undertaking and made an eloquent appeal to his hearers to do all in their power to relieve the sufferers in stricken Italy. Brotherhood was the keynote of his address which was most impressive.

During the evening Miss Anna L. Case, accompanied by Dr. J. H. Buchanan, sang as a soprano solo "Ave

RED CROSS OFFICERS SEND THEIR GREETINGS

As chairman of the relief fund meeting at the First M. E. church last night, former Mayor William L. Saunders read telegrams received from Governor J. Franklin Fort and Hamilton F. Kean. They follow:

Lakewood, Jan. 7, 1909.

The Daily Press:

The movement for relief of earthquake sufferers has my earnest commendation and I trust the meeting tonight will be a big success.

J. FRANKLIN FORT,
President of the New Jersey Red Cross Society.

Elizabeth, Jan. 7, 1909.

The Daily Press:

New Jersey sends $4,000 to treasurer of National Red Cross Society as a partial contribution to fund for Italian earthquake sufferers.

HAMILTON F. KEAN,
Chairman Executive Committee New Jersey Red Cross Society.

WANT A SPECIAL COP FOR COUNTY ROADS

The question of employing a special policeman to patrol the country roads and those most frequented by automobiles with a view to putting a stop to speeding, came before the Union County Board of Freeholders, yesterday. It was suggested by the automobile fatality in this city last month, when Jonathan Randolph, of Jefferson avenue, was killed, the result of the alleged reckless running of an automobile by Floyd Cooper, of Westfield.

The members of the board consulted County Attorney W. R. Codington and he informed them that there is now no law on the statute books that would give the board the right to make such an appointment and a committee was named to secure the necessary legislation that will permit the appointment of such a police official.

From time to time there have been numerous complaints about automobilists running at a high rate of speed over the county roads and the board feels it a duty to take such steps as will effectually stop the practice.

The reports of the warden, sheriff as well as that of the State Board of Health, were received showing the condition of the county to be excellent. This was especially true of the county jail, according to the board of health report.

BIG CROWD AT CONCERT

Third in Series of Mc Intyre Musical Events Proves a Brilliant Success.

ARTISTS ROUNDLY APPLAUDED.

Vladimir Dubinsky and Frank Rogers Both Given Enthusiastic Receptions.

The third McIntyre Chamber Music Concert of the season attracted another capacity audience to the Hartridge School auditorium, last night, and Mr. McIntyre, who has given Plainfielders the very best in music, scored another triumph of which he must feel proud. The artists left nothing to be desired by the most exacting, while it would have been exceedingly difficult for Mr. McIntyre to have presented a program that would have been more pleasing to the audience. The various numbers were particularly well adapted and the rendition was perfect throughout.

Aside from the brilliant work of the trio, which has always been a feature of these concerts, the appearance of Francis Rogers, the famous baritone, was perhaps the most noteworthy. He was heard here last year at a private musical, but this was the first opportunity that music lovers had of hearing him in public and he measured up to every expectation.

He was in fine voice and with perfect control he sang a group of songs that appealed to everyone in the large audience. He displayed a remarkable enunciation, every word being heard with clearness and strength, while the purity and sweetness of tone won for the artists the highest tribute. In all Mr. Rogers was announced to sing nine selections, but before he concluded the audience succeeded in persuading him to give one encore, while his rendition of "In a Garden," by Hawley, aroused such enthusiasm that he consented to repeat it to the delight of all.

Another gem in the program was the 'cello solo by Vladimir Dubinsky, who is a favorite in the trio. It is seldom that this noted artist is heard in solo parts, but his rendition of Boellman's "Variations Symphonique," brought out the best music in his instrument in a masterful way, that did not want for true appreciation. It was greatly regretted that Mr. Dubinsky denied his audience an encore.

As for the work of the trio, only the highest praise is due. In the selection of Mendelssohn's beautiful "Trio op. 49 in D Minor," there was an exceptional opportunity for piano, violin and 'cello. The number comprises a variety that never fails to please the student of music and every line was rendered perfectly. Although individual mention seems hardly necessary in speaking of this trio, it would be unfair not to accord to each one the praise due. Mr. McIntyre, always a delight in his piano work, did not fail to sustain his reputation, both in the trio selection and in accompanying the soloists. As for Mr. Dubinsky's work and that of Hans Letz, the violinist, there was perfect harmony in every line and the interpretation was true.

The program follows:

"Trio op. 49 in D Minor," Molto Allegro agitato. Andante con moto tranquillo. Scherzo (leggiero e vivace). Finale (allegro assai appassionato). Piano, violin and 'cello. Songs—"I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly," Purcell; "Lungi del Caro Bene," Sarti; "Serenade," Brahms; "Feldeinsamkeit," Brahms; "Widmung," Schumann, Francis Rogers. 'Cello solo, "Variations Symphonique," Boellman, Vladimir Dubinsky. Songs—"Little Red Lark," Old Irish; "Turn Ye to Me," Old Scotch; "In a Garden," Hawley; "Ballad of Little Billee, (Thackeray), Graham Peel, Francis Rogers.

Entertained Bible Class.

U. B. Crane, teacher of the Philathea Bible Class of Temple Baptist church, entertained the members of the class Tuesday night, when the newly-elected officers were installed as follows: President, Mrs. Charles Griffin; vice-president, Mrs. George Staats, Sr.; secretary, Mrs. C. S. Meyers; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Peck; assistant teacher, Miss T. M. Hodgin. After the installation a musical program was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

James J. Morton at Proctor's.

Beginning this afternoon at Proctor's there will be seen the camerephone act of James J. Morton, the famous vaudeville star. No man in vaudeville today has a greater following than the well known star. New pictures are being put on every day, while the new song and travelogue lectures are one of the great features.

BOARD OF TRADE'S ANNUAL

H. W. Marshall Again Elected President at the Yearly Meeting.

ORGANIZATION HAD GOOD YEAR.

Banquet Committee Reports That the Coming Affair Will be the Most Elaborate Yet Conducted by the Board.

The Plainfield Board of Trade held its annual meeting, last night, and beside closing up the business of the past year and electing officers for the coming term, several matters of importance were considered. The attendance was quite large and much enthusiasm was in evidence. Judge William Newcorn presided in the absence of the president.

In the election of officers, H. W. Marshall was again made president for his third consecutive term, it being stated that the board had been very active under his leadership and the members were unanimous for his retention. The other officers elected were as follows: First vice-president, Edmund Rushmore; second vice-president, B. F. Coriell; secretary and collector, A. S. Herr; treasurer, E. M. Laing; counsel, H. C. Runyon; executive committee, J. F. McDonald, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, F. A. Duttenhoefer and Francis K. Anderson.

The treasurer's report showed that the total receipts for the year had been $538.65 and the disbursements $268.29, leaving a balance of $270.36. The secretary's report briefly reviewed the work of the past twelve months and stated the organization to be in better shape than ever before.

Reporting for the banquet committee, Chairman Newcorn stated that the date or place had not yet been selected as the former was being left to several speakers to fix at their convenience, in order to make sure of securing them. Mr. Newcorn added, however, that the affair will be the most elaborate the board has yet held and that before the next meeting all arrangements would be made.

A communication was received from the Newark Board of Trade in which it was stated at its last meeting, a resolution had been passed declaring the present automobile laws in the State antagonistic to the trade. A committee of ten had been appointed to confer with committees from other boards with the idea of urging the Governor and legislators to bring about a change and the communication asked that the Plainfield organization act with them. The appointment of a committee of ten was suggested and after a discussion a resolution to this effect was passed. The members will be named by the president.

Another communication was received from Vice-President Besler, of the New Jersey Central, in which he stated that the board's complaint about the poor lighting at the North Avenue and Netherwood station was being investigated by the proper department. He called the attention of the board to the fact that the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission prohibited the erection of lights on stations that would any way blind the eye of engineers. For this reason, the proper illumination of platforms frequently proves to be a difficult proposition. The letter was written on December 21 and Mr. Besler added:

"You will note that this is the shortest day of the year. Inside of three months the days will be longer and the trouble will probably be forgotten by then."

The following new members were elected: W. F. Wilson, H. E. Parker, Thomas Melick and Charles Wright.

Before the meeting adjourned, the privilege of the floor was granted to A. A. Densmore, the representative of a combined typewriter and adding machine which is to be put on the market. Mr. Densmore stated that it is the desire of his concern to build a factory in Plainfield and he wished to explain the contrivance in order to interest any one who might care to subscribe for stock. He declared that only enough would be sold to erect the plant and that he was certain dividends would be paid the first year.

Annual Meeting and Supper.

The annual meeting and parish supper of the First Unitarian Society will be held at All Souls' church, Park avenue, Monday night, January 11. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock. All members of the parish are invited.

CONFERENCE ON CHARITIES

Plainfielders to Take Part in Annual Sessions of State Association.

AT TRENTON, FEB. 18, 19, 20.

Prominent Jerseymen to Serve as Chairman—Rev. A. C. Nickerson on Executive Committee.

The New Jersey Conference of Charities and Corrections will hold its annual meetings at Trenton Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 18, 19 and 20. The conference represents the charitable activities and the correctional institutions of the whole State It also represents its ambitions for better methods and more inclusive helpfulness in dealing with the needy and the offending classes. Hugh Fox, Rev. A. C. Nickerson and Leon R. Thurlow, of this city, are active in this organization and will be among the Plainfielders to attend the sessions.

The interest in the conference and the attendance have both greatly increased in recent years, as the public has discovered the able and disinterested character of its services. The ablest experts in all fields, where correctional work is done, are drawn upon for speakers and the best individual advice possible is obtained concerning the most humane and remedial treatment of our poor. Anyone who signs the attendance roll becomes a member of the conference. There is no membership fee.

The program follows:

Preventive Work by the State, chairman, Former Governor Franklin Murphy; Preventive Work by the City, chairman, Chandler Riker; The Poor and Alms, chairman, Mrs. E. E. Williamson; Reformatory Education, (a) Educational Conditions in Our Reformatories; (b) Pathological Conditions that Obstruct Mental Development, chairman, James M. Green, Ph. D.; Organized Charity, chairman, Rev. Henry R. Rose; Labor's Attitude Toward Charities and Corrections, chairman, Cornelius Ford.

The following exhibits have been arranged for: Essex County Park Commission, Play Ground Commission, School Gardens, Tenement House Commission, Charity Organization.

The officers are: President, Mrs. F. C. Jacobson, Newark; secretary, Mrs. E. V. H. Mansell, Trenton; treasurer, John A. Cullen, Newark; vice-presidents, Governor J. Franklin Fort, E. C. Stokes, Franklin Murphy, Mrs. E. E. Williamson, Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, Rt. Rev. Edwin S. Lines, Marshall Van Winkle. Assistant secretaries, Miss Mary F. Van Leer, L. R. Thurlow, Mrs. Anna Reed.

APPRECIATE FATHER BOGAN'S GENEROUS CO-OPERATION.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It was very handsome on the part of Father Bogan to join hands in the meeting-house of the Methodist society with other Christian people in the cause of charity. His address had the true ring of kindness and of sympathy, and of fraternal desire to join hands in humanitarian movements with generous people of all religious faiths. When we all stand on this broad platform of toleration and co-operation and mutual respect we shall be well on the way toward the millenium.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH.

Will Talk on Home Missions.

At the quarterly meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, this afternoon, Mrs. Frazer, one of the secretaries of the Presbyterial Society, will tell of her recent visit to the schools for the Freedmen and Mountaineers in the South. Also letters of interest from missionaries will be read.

Baskeball Tonight.

A game of basketball between the N. P. H. S. five and the second team of Laurel A. C., of Bound Brook, will be played tonight at Debele Hall, starting at 8 o'clock.

REALTY CONCERN BUYS LAND FOR DEVELOPMENT

The Shields stock farm at South Bound Brook was sold yesterday by M. F. Gano, real estate broker, of this city, to the Equator Realty and Investment Company, of New York, and the beautiful tract will be cut up into building lots after the buildings thereon are disposed of. In the sale of this property there passes away another one of the famous stock breeding farms where many noted horses have been raised and trained for the track. Among the best known, possibly, is Hermis, one of the most valuable in the string owned by the late Alexander Shields.

The farm was owned by Mrs. Alexander Shields, but she not caring to continue to look after the place and her son, John Shields, being away from home most of the time, is was decided to sell. The consideration was about $40,000. A portion of this large farm was at one time owned by Dr. D. C. Adams, of Grove street, he disposing of it to the late Mr. Shields. Practically all of the stock has been sold.

BOYS ARRESTED FOR SLOT MACHINE THEFTS

The continued disappearance of automatic peanut and chewing gum machines, placed at convenient points about the city, led to complaints by the owners to the police a few days ago and subsequent sleuthing on the part of Detective-Sergeant John Flynn. He followed up a couple of clues and last night fixed upon three boys, George Martial, white, and Walter Foster and Howard Scott, colored, as the culprits.

Martial and Scott were arrested at 10:30 as they emerged from the gallery of the New Plainfield theatre and Foster was taken from his class in school this morning. When they were arraigned before Judge Runyon, Martial and Scott both claimed that Foster had been taking the machines from their fastenings and breaking them open to get the money they contained, while Foster declared the other two were the guilty parties. He told the detective Sergeant where a machine could be found that they had stolen but which had not been opened. Scott and Martial stuck to it that Foster had taken something like seven machines in two weeks and that he had gotten as high as $3.65 out of one of them. The judge sought in vain to get the boys to tell the truth about the matter but failed so remanded all three back to cells for the probation officer tomorrow. Martial was afterward released on his own recognizance as he is not in good health and his father is seriously ill.

The arrest of Scott and Martial attracted the crowd of youths and boys pouring out of the theatre and something like 'steen thousand of them followed the officer and his prisoners all the way to headquarters. They surged about Flynn like a human sea and on Park avenue he was compelled to take to the middle of the street in order to make any progress.

OWL SOCIAL CLUB HAS A MEETING AND SOCIAL.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Owl Social Club, last night, it was decided to hold the annual ball the latter part of February. A preliminary committee was appointed to make the necessary plans and a report will be submitted as soon as possible. Two applications for membership were acted upon favorably and the candidates will be initiated at the next meeting.

After the meeting, a smoker was enjoyed during which piano selections were rendered by Frank Jellig, the club quartet gave several numbers and George Smith sang a comic song, "The Somerset Trolley for Mine, or the Man That Rides Behind." Another feature was a speech by Jacob Schlick, the West End grocer, that was greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served at the close.

Fanwood Council Meets.

Mayor Burton P. Hall and the Fanwood Council met last night, when that body received Mr. Hall's annual message, outlining the work for the year. The report of Collector Charles Sheelen showed the borough to be in good financial condition and the recorder's report showed that in 1908 fourteen arrests were made, of which five were fined, three committed, five held for the Grand Jury and one dismissed. A new police station will be erected soon. Mayor Hall made these appointments: Recorder, Charles Sheelen; marshals, William J. Logan and William Lidgate; borough clerk, Samuel W. McAneny; attorney, W. R. Codington.

Flag Pole Raising.

A flag pole raising at the Darrow avenue school this morning was attended by an appropriate ceremony, during which John Barnhardt, Jr., the contractor, spoke. Dr. Charles Smith, of Trenton, raised the flag, which floats fifty feet from the ground. About twenty-five citizens were present. Refreshments were served in the office. The walls of the school building have just been completed and roofed in. The structure will be ready for occupancy in about a year.

Ice Crop Safe.

The ice pond of Debele and Stahl, which was emptied of water by the breaking of the dam, caused by the burrowing of musk rats a few weeks ago, was filled to overflowing by the heavy rains the first of the week and already ice is forming over the surface, thus insuring a heavy crop. The firm faced a thousand dollar loss, if the pond could not have been filled with water.

Gave the Plaintiff $65.

After announcing its inability to agree on a verdict at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the jury in the Carrar-Giles case, tried in the District court, returned to the jury room and within a half-hour returned a verdict of $65 for the plaintiff. This includes the damage to his two-wheel gig and the injuries to his horse and himself. Owing to the nature of the testimony that of the plaintiff being directly opposed to that of the defendant in every particular, it was believed by those who attended the trial that the jury would disagree.

Byron McClintock, who has been visiting his parents on Fairview avenue, has returned to Michigan, where he is employed by the Standard Oil Company at its plant there.

CORNS AND BUNIONS AND THEIR TREATMENT.

They are extreme forms of callosities, and the abnormal pressure against the scarf skin forms into a horny layer. This forms in time into many layers, causing the most acute pain as it presses more against the nerves of the skin.

To relieve this pain the first step is to relieve the pressure. The feet should be soaked for twenty minutes in as hot water as the foot can stand. But one thing must be remembered, the corn should never be cut, it should be loosened around the edges by the pointed tip of a nail file, working gently and carefully. It can then be easily lifted if it has not become in a too hardened state.

After the hardest part of the skin has been removed paint it with the following lotion, which is also good for bunions: Borate of sodium, one drachm; fluid extract of cannabis indica, one scruple; collodion, one ounce.

Apply this on the corn every night until the callous softens and it can be scraped away.

The following lotion may be applied to a bunion with good effect: Glycerine, two drachms; carbolic acid, two drachms; tincture of iodine, two drachms. Paint the inflamed part with this lotion several times during the day. Tincture of iodine alone is good, applied with a camel's hair brush.

FOR COOK AND HOUSEKEEPER.

A cold Spanish onion, if it has been boiled till quite tender, may be sliced and then dressed with oil and vinegar, pepper and salt. It makes a very acceptable winter salad.

Pickled Beetroot — Take some large beetroots and boil them till tender, peel and slice into a jar. Boil sufficient vinegar to cover the beetroot with a blade of mace, twelve peppercorns and four cloves. Pour this over while boiling and tie over the jar with bladder.

The best and cheapest floor stain that I know is made by dissolving half an ounce of permanganate of potash in crystals in one quart of boiling water. Apply this hot to the boards and it will sink in and make a very good stain. For the second application add a little more permanganate if you think the color is hardly dark enough.

Cooking Dried Eatables.

Fresh fruits we have not always with us, and we are driven to none at all, or the dried and preserved kind.

During the winter season a great many dried fruits and dried vegetables are used. Always remember that some foods are aslest cooked if first soaked. Lima beans, navy beans and dried corn must be soaked over night. Oatmeal cooks in less time if soaked over night. Dried raisins, currants and small fruit such as apricots and peaches should be soaked. This not only makes the fruit plump, but it also releases dust. Dried red peppers can be soaked until tender, then filled with bread crumbs and baked with the roast. If used to hold a chopped salad, soak the peppers and wipe the outside of each one with olive oil to give a bright color.

Do You Clean Your Furs?

Everyone knows that if a woman has a handsome set of furs she will wear them whether the day be cold or uncomfortably warm, and regardless of whether or not they harbor germs and dust and soil the garments with which they are worn. If one will wear furs, they should be frequently cleaned and frequently aired. Some furriers clean furs, to free them from moth eggs and germs, by washing them in a solution of corrosive sublimate (a deadly poison).

No Honey in Juvenile Truth.

Little Percy—Is your wound sore, auntie?

Auntie—What wound, dear?

Little Percy—Why, I heard father say he cut you at the dinner party last night.—London Oponion.

The Old Umbrella.

Do not throw away a discarded umbrella. The ribs will be found most useful for staking chryanthemums or other stocky plants. Raffia is better than string for tying up the plants.

By Degrees.

"Gimme some soft-boiled eggs."

"Better have an omelet, sir," suggested the waiter. "Them eggs ain't extraordinary fresh."

"Al right; make it an omelet."

"And sir—"

"Well, waiter?"

"Better have a Spanish omelet."

The order was then switched to chops.—Kansas City Journal.

His Solicitude.

The Dominie—Why are you anxious for me to dine with you on Thanksgiving, my young friend?

Freddie—'Cause dad said he wouldn't go to the expense of a turkey unless some one should come to dinner.—Puck.

Hiss Silly Question.

Him—Am I the first man you were ever engaged to?

Her—Don't insult me. You know perfectly well that I am 25 years old. Do I look like a lemon?—Cleveland Leader.

Discriminating.

"Do you believe in the literal ideas of future punishment?"

"Not for myself," answered Mr. Sirius Barker. "But I favor it for a lot of people I know."—Washington Star.

Clarence Hand, of Fairview avenue, has returned to Cornell, after spending the holiday season at home.

NO TRADING STAMPS. BUT MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

January White Sale Begins Wednesday Morning

SPECIALS---Muslin Underwear, Embroideries, White Goods

Thousands of Pretty Fresh Garments of Undermuslins. Eight Thousand Yards Embroidery. Fifteen Cases White Goods

These were collected the past several months, at intervals whenever we were able to secure something better than usual; for we intended months ago that this white sale should attract your attention and its values that we meant to attract it with, such values as will call to your attention and impress you with our motto—No Trading Stamps but more for your money.

The low grade merchandise, the unworthy kind, that are made up especially for sales to catch the eye and not for wear, finds no room here. We recommend everythng we sell, and stand back of our recommendation. The white goods and embroideries will especially commend themselves to those who purchase now—because of the economy and the variety of the first selection.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

The final settlement of the minor league troubles that threatened a baseball war was ratified at a brief session of the National Baseball Commission Wednesday. The National Association of Minor Leagues and the protesting Eastern League and American Association had agreed on the terms, and when the commission met the formal agreement was submitted to that body and at once approved.

As announced the Eastern League, American Association and Pacific Coast League will now be in Class AA, with the right to draft players from the Southern and Western leagues now in Class A, as well as from all the lower classes. All players drafted by major league clubs from the smaller leagues cannot be sent back to such leagues without passing through the AA leagues.

It was agreed that all internal affairs of the Class AA clubs shall be decided by themselves without reference to the present national board, and that all disputes between AA clubs and other minor league clubs shall go first to the board of arbitration, with right of appeal to the commission in every case. This makes it impossible for any dispute to be absolutely decided by the minor league board, if it involves any Class AA club.

The national association was willing that these three organizations be placed in a separate organization as a third party to the national agreement, but the commission would not grant this request.

Quite a number of baseball men left Cincinnati Wednesday night, but most of the minor leaguers remained over until the agreement was signed and certified by the national commission.

At a meeting of the American Association it was decided to open the champion season of that organization on Wednesday, April 14. The season will extend over five months and a half, instead of five months, as heretofore. At the close of the season post-season series of games will be played with the Eastern League.

No additional announcement of players purchased or exchanged has been made. A deal by which Brooklyn would secure Dahlen from Boston was discussed by the managers of the two clubs, but no agreement could be reached.

—The January meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital will be held Monday night.

FURNISHING A ROOM.

We should think of lights and shadows and exposure when choosing tints for a room.

There is just a certain wedgewood blue that is exquisite with a putty colored wall. It is not well to use this combination in a north light, which needs the warmer colonial yellow, but it may be held in reserve for the room having a southern or western exposure, with its softer light.

The putty color is colder and less yellow than the colonial shades—as if a touch of gray had been decided if a touch of gray had been dashed in—but there is still enough of the creamy tone left to blend with the wedgewood blue of the hangings.

These curtain goods may be found in such inexpensive materials as galatea, cotton poplin and Japanese crepe—all of which are more recent arrivals on the decorator's counter than denim and burlap.

Several pieces of old mahogany, a peacock screen and a bowl of polished brass are the needed touches in this chaste little room.

THE WARDROBE.

Slip a bit of gold lace under your net chemisette. This glint of gold through the transparency is one of the important touches.

Cashmere de soie, with a surface as glossy as satin, is a pronounced nevelty in dres goods.

Shoes present one aspect coming and another aspect going—backs match the dress, while fronts are of conventional patent leather.

A narrow band of gold or silver ribbon, with a rose at each end, makes a becoming hair ornament on the Grecian order.

Many of the prettiest hats are almost smothered in downy marabout; its soft effect is becoming to almost every woman.

Nets May Be Dyed.

Fascinating little dance frocks may be fashioned of dyed net, braided with soutache to match.

A simple little dress of this sort was of old blue net in rather coarse mesh. The modest round corsage was edged with a Greek key braiding of soutache, easily done at home and the same simple design bordered the little sleeves and decorated the high emplire waistline. Tucks finished the foot.

In blue, mauve, maize, palest canary or the smoke and taupe grays these simple net frocks are really delightful, both for their simplicity and the ease and economy with which they can be devised at home.

For Embroidering.

Arts and Crafts cloth, but which is also called "crafts cloth" at the busy counters, is a new material for embroidery and general decorative purposes. It is like burlap in weave, but woven of rough wool and dyed in the best art shades, which are necessarily less crude than those of the cotton burlap. It is desirable for plain and embroidered portieres, table and couch covers and cushions. Its durability recommends it for college boys' rooms and dens, for library use and general sitting-room wear.

Appropriate Music.

Canon Ball occupied the pulpit in the morning, and the rector in the evening. Both at the morning and evening services the anthem was "Sleepers, Awake!"—Peterborough (Eng.) Express.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

A special election at Holy Beach to decide whether or not the voting machine should be continued in use at the elections resulted in its rejection by a vote of 154 to 18.

The Atlantic County Board of Freeholders has agreed to permit laying of a new water main across the meadows along the meadow boulevard. The main will be of wooden stave pipe.

An overheated stove caused a blaze yesterday in the sorehouse of John C. Bogert, a dealer in flour, at 558 Henderson street, Jersey City. The damage is estimated at $1,000.

Ocean Grove, by a vote of 139 to 27, has abolished the voting machine there. The principal objection came from old men who couldn't or wouldn't familiarize themselves with operating the machine.

George Nagle, of 22 East Twelfth street, Paterson, was arrested yesterday charged with the embezzlement of $22.50 from his former employer, Austin Van Kirk, an ice dealer, residing at 84 Mercer street.

In the Atlantic County Court at Mays Landing yesterday Thomas Slaughter, who had confessed the theft of lead pipe and copper wire, was sentenced by Judge Higbee to three years at hard labor in State prison.

That the present police force of Bayonne is not able properly to patrol the city is asserted by Chief Yore, and he has asked the Common Council to appoint twelve additional patrolmen. The question has been referred to the police committee.

Climbing over a roof from an unoccupied house, thieves entered the home of Freeholder George W. Whyte, at 909 Cooper street, Camden, and succeeded in carrying away jewelry and other articles to the value of several hundred dollars.

"Straw bail" bondsmen are to be forced out of business in Atlantic City and county, under a resolution adopted by the County Board of Freeholders yesterday, promising support to Prosecutor Goldenberg in his efforts to compel payment of forfeited bail bonds.

William Butler's ardent lovemaking was not reciprocated by Mrs. Fannie Fields, a young colored widow, living at 71 Godwin street, Paterson, and when she accepted attentions from others, Butler assaulted Mrs. Fields with a stick. Constables have been unable to locate the impetuous admirer.

An ordinance was passed yesterday by the Bayonne Council prohibiting the sale or use of air rifles and other firearms, under a penalty of $20. This action was prompted by an accident to William Walsh, one of whose eyes was shot out a year ago by a bullet from an air rifle, and a week ago his artificial eye was shattered by the same kind of a weapon.

Anxiety of Samuel Sternfield, Jr., of Atlantic City, to get his eight-year-old brother Charles on time for school saved the lives of the lad and his mother, who were unconscious from gas fumes in their bed when the elder boy found them yesterday. The father, Samuel Sternfield, who has a dairy, had left home before daylight while the family was still sleeping.

Formal attack on the manner of taxing beach front land was made by George Bourgeoius, counselor, representing the owners of the Auditorium Pier, Atlantic City, before the Atlantic County Tax Board yesterday. The lawyer contended the law forbids taxing of piers at a heavier rate than other property outside the boardwalk, and the matter will probably be carried to court.

PERSONAL.

Jack Peacock, graduate N. P. H. S., Class '06, has returned to Princeton, following a vacation of two weeks.

Miss Irene Duschene, of Somerset street, has returned to her studies at Mt. St. Mary's College, after the holiday season.

William Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, a student at Holy Cross College, has returned after spending two weeks at home.

Miss Catherine Huntington, of Carlton avenue, has returned to Vassar College, after spending the holiday vacation at home.

T. E. Cursin, Jr., paying teller at the First National Bank, has recovered from a severe injury to his foot received several weeks ago.

Miss Edith Ewart, of Columbus, Ohio, has returned after spending two weeks with her uncle, Oliver Ewart, of Rockview avenue.

Miss Anna Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, a student at St. Elizabeth's College, Madison, has returned after spending two weeks at her home.

Miss Addie Weaver, who is visiting her father, Deputy Sheriff P. V. Weaver, of the New Madison, has about recovered from a recent severe illness.

Miss Mary J. Dennis, a teacher at the Irving School, who recently recovered from an attack of typhoid fever, is rapidly gaining strength and in the near future expects to return to her position. A substitute teacher is now filling her place.

"VOLCANOES OF ITALY"

Lecture Delivered by L. V. F. Randolph at the Relief Fund Benefit.

Following is the able lecture delivered by former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph at the earthquake relief benefit last night at the First M. E. church, when an outpouring of citizens expressed their sympathy for the sufferers in a substantial way:

Some of the colloquialisms, or vulgarisms, in modern conversation have high authority; for example, it is common to hear on our streets the word "kick" used in the sense of protest, or obstinate refusal. This use of the word appears to be justified in the figure employed by the Heavenly Voice in addressing Saul of Tarsus, persecutor, to whom came the significant rebuke: "It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks."

Southern Italy is always in this mind of obstinate refusal to recognize an overshadowing danger likely at any moment to develop into an appalling calamity. Her inhabitants are always "kicking" against the inevitable.

It might be said that the attitude of Italy in this regard is illustrated by her figure on the map of the world. It is the figure of a huge human leg, whose calf extends from Rome to Ancona on the Adriatic, and whose ankle is at Naples. The foot's Calabrian toe seems always in the act of "kicking" a certain great thorn emerging as a Sicilian headland. This thorn is the city of Messina, with its vicinage.

But the real thorn or 'prick" is not so much the point of land emerging just north of Messina, as it is the fierce "horn of the unicorn" of Mt. Etna, which lifts itself a few miles to the southward of the ill-fated city. In Etna we have, if not the father of volcanoes, at least the one from which the entire family is named. In Etna, as was believed by the ancients, stood the forge of the mighty Vulcan; hence the word "volcano;" and so, all superheated subterraneap regions whose sparks and flames now and again shoot forth into the calm skies were called "volcanoes."

Of these mighty mischief-makers there are many, and it would also seem that they were literally banded together in a cause of cruelty. From Etna their fierce array stretches away westward under the Mediterranean—and under the Atlantic to the Carribean; and thence, across the Panama Isthmus, to the line of Andes and Sierras, which form the backbone of our own continent; and, from Etna again, the volcano line stretches eastward to the Caspian, and to the Himalayas, and to the coast of Japan. The Pacific Ocean itself has a complete rim of these monsters, whose line thus makes an oval, running through the frozen regions of the north, and resting upon the islands of the South Seas.

Earthquakes have doubtless been largely and chiefly of volcanic origin and connection. The most advanced students of geology have not yet reached a conclusion touching the causes in control of earthquakes and volcanoes. Prof. G. K. Gilbert, in referring to the fact (in a recent article) that the stores of volcanic material manifestly lie many miles below the surface of the earth, says: "The cause of volcanic action, having its seat in regions remote and inaccessible, is shrouded in mystery; and attempts to discover it have been far from satisfactory."

Camille Flammarion, writing since the news of the destruction of Messina arrived, adverts to "numerous theories which still divide the most learned savants." A hundred years ago there was a good deal of theorizing about fire, on the one hand, and water, on the other, as being responsible for volcanic eruptions and for earthquakes therewith connected. Since then geologists have written much and learnedly of the contraction of the earth's surface, and of the pressure and fractures caused by the pent-up heat coming closer to the surface in certain regions, and of the pressure and disturbance brought to bear upon internal conditions by the movements of the earth itself, and upon the pressure and disturbance also induced by the movements of the tides, and (more especially) upon the leakage, through "faults" of volcanic rock, of sea water, resulting in vast and mighty accumulations of steam in otherwise vacant volcanic areas and beds. It has been noted that a very large proportion of volcanic action, (though not all) has been near the sea, and the hypothesis has gained ground that the percolation of sea-water into these hot subterranean regions has had much to do with the somewhat rythmic, though not regular, returns of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions.

It is to be regretted, perhaps, that what might be called (and has been one or two persons been styled) the "Science of Geonomy" that is, the science of the laws which govern the earth and its physical conditions and subterranean actions and manifestations, has not made better and further progress. Perhaps at this point the forward movement of our educational system has, as in some other directions, lacked practical purpose and effort. This lack of the best practical aim on the part of scientific research has been noted and criticised by Prof. Jaggar of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at Boston. He refers within the past few days in a published article on this new catastrophe at Messina, to the convention of American geologists recently held in Baltimore, and intimates that hardly half a dozen members of the society thus convened have any technical or mathematical knowledge of earthquakes. Their study is on the lines of the earth's history. In urging what he considers to be a line of study more practical and humanistic, he stops to imagine a conversation which might take place between an astronomer from Mars who, recognizing the efforts of the astronomers of our earth to know more of the history of the planets of our system, might be permitted to converse with our men of science here, and in such a case he imagines a dialogue something as follows:

"Where you know the heavens so well, of course your own earth is to you an open book?"

"Yes," (reluctantly).

"You have observatories for the recording of all earth phenomena?"

"No."

"What! Did you not learn everything about local terrestrial motions before you studied the stars?"

"No, we do not know anything about terrestrial movements."

"Do you mean to tell me that you have not many instruments for observing them?"

"We have the seismograph, but none of us understand it, and as for other earth motions, all we know we have learned from the physicist and the astronomer."

"But you live on the earth, and must have to meet every crisis as it arises; can you foretell nothing?"

"Well, you see, we don't think of it that way. We treat it historically, and make notes, and use a hammer and a compass, and are very much interested in the bones of Jurassic reptiles and in making maps of the rocks, and in finding out all about iron and coal. But we have no such precise knowledge as the astronomer."

"But, surely in teaching your young men in the universities, you begin by precise instrumental study of the present earth and its processes, and have a vast accumulation of experience concerning those processes, in the form of tables, measurements, formulae, curves, diagrams, and computations?"

"No, almost nothing has been done in accumulation of experience or empirical data, except of the Japanese. When a volcanic eruption or an earthquake occurs we send a geologist to study the results, and he writes a thick and learned report. We do not know anything about what the conditions were during the months before the disaster. We teach our young geologists first a little physics and chemistry, and a few generalities about earth process, and then set them to work mapping ancient rocks. The highest development of geology is the unravelling of the history of the past. We have not much time to go into predictions and humanistic geology."

Whilst this line of criticisms on the part of Prof. Jaggar may be quite in point at the present time, it is fair to say that there are at least a few men whose best thought and work are given to the study of this mighty mystery of earthquake and volcanic action.

In Naples last winter it was my privilege to meet Prof. Frank Alvord Perret, and to talk with him of his studies and current labors along the lines of solving these seismic problems. I was much impressed with his intelligence, high purpose, courage, and altruism. He had studied Vesuvius under circumstances of great personal exposure and peril. He told me he felt sadly sure of a tremendous outburst at and about Mt. Etna to take place during the year 1908. He predicted that it would be such a catastrophe as had not heretofore been known. He had already written his prediction on this subject and it had just been published in the magazine called "The World's Work." In that article he had said: "By rational methods of scientific research we know that a great eruption of Mt. Etna is impending." He had done his best to advise the world of the disaster which, as a scientific investigator, he believed that he could forsee. For the results of his work on Vesuvius the King of Italy had thanked and decorated Prof. Perret.

But, after all, it was but one man's prophecy, and even if many wise men had ventured upon prophecy it is hardly likely that the calamity at Messina and on the Calabrian coast would have been much less terrible in its effects than it proved to be. The time may come, however, when such prophecies, as Prof. Perret and the Japanese investigator, Prof. Omori believe it is possible to make in advance of destructive earthquake and volcanic outbursts, will have widespread and beneficent influence in the prevention of human suffering—though they cannot avert the physical disaster hanging over the doomed coasts.

It would almost seem that the many calamities, to which the group of South Italian volcanoes has made liable the southwestern shores of Italy, would somewhat deter people endowed with average human caution from settling and confidently living in such dangerous neighborhoods. Consider, for example, Vesuvius, whose lid was blown off a little more than two years ago to the extent of nearly 300 feet, and whose record of destruction goes as far back as the reign of Nero, when the prosperous country about the mountain was subject to a most destructive calamity. Pompeii, which was partially destroyed by that outbreak, had been rebuilt within the next sixteen years, and was then, by the furious eruption of Vesuvius, or of its twin mountin, Somma, (from which Vesuvius is really a branch, or cone) wiped out of existence and buried deep beneath volcanic ashes. We know of another eruption of Vesuvius in the reign of Septimius Severus, in the year 203 A. D.; and still another fearful eruption occurred in the year 472 A. D.; and seven more outbursts are recorded down to the year 1500. Then, for a spell, Vesuvius slept; and doubtless many thought the monster dead; but in the year 1631 came an eruption of unexampled terror, with earthquake convulsions, and huge lava streams, and clouds of ashes and steam, and this outbreak caused the death of fuly 3,000 persons. Another alarming eruption occurred in 1707, and others still in 1737, 1760, 1767, 1779, 1794, 1804, 1805, 1822, 1850, 1855, 1856, 1871, 1872. Since 1885 there have been slight eruptions, and in the aggregate a very considerable flow of lava, and in 1906 the great outburst took place which Prof. Perret studied so well and conscientiously.

With Mt. Etna the record begins as far back as the account by Pindar of the eruption which took place 476 years before the Christian era. Of this great center of disturbance there have been about 80 eruptions chronicled. One of the most stupendous was that of 1669. In 1693 the volcanic eruption was accompanied by an earthquake which destroyed forty towns, and brought about the loss of nearly, or quite, 100,000 lives. During the nineteenth century there were nineteen eruptions of Etna. M. Camille Flammarion considers Etna responsible for the terrible catastrophe which has just occurred, that of Dec. 28, 1908. He says: "But this volcanic soil had been severely tried three years ago by the violent earthquake of Sept. 7-8, 1905, which caused the death of more than 400 persons. These fearful movements of the soil are not calculated to surprise geologists, who remember that Sicily is the country of Vulcan, whose forge was under Etna. It is probable that the end is not yet, for the whole district dominated by Etna, Stromboli and Vesuvius is of essentially volcanic constitution."

And so we come back to our wondering question, why it is that hundreds of thousands of people choose to fix their homes and practice their vocations over the thin crust which must remain liable to be destroyed at any moment by disturbances so sudden and so unspeakably terrible? Various answers, all true, might be given to such question. One of these reasons may be found in the responsiveness of the volcanic soil to the labor of the agriculturist, and this argument becomes the stronger in a country in which the best and most practical knowledge and methods of agriculture do not exist. In Sicily especially, scientific farming is unknown. Farmers there are poverty stricken and landlord ridden to a degree. There, and on the Calabrian coast, such results as are gained are achieved with the least possible of human ambition and labor. Water sources are cunningly watched and developed by the inhabitants, and thus their fruits are raised. The soil, in general, is but thinly stirred, and, when it gets tired of bearing, is allowed to lie fallow. Fortunately the average of this soil is fairly good, though not so good as if it were better cared for, and the people who live on it prefer to live where the necessity for effort of mind or body is reduced to a minimum.

But there is another and better reason for the Sicilian and Calabrians to stay, so far as they are permitted, in their old home, and this reason is because it is their home and has been the home of themselves and their ancestors for many generations and centuries. A thousand ties of life and love and tradition bind them to their birthplace. Moreover still, and within the past half century especially, a national consciousness has entered the Italian mind.

The Calabrian is an amalgam of various countries and nationalities, and the Sicilian is still more of a composite. In his veins flows the blood of the Celt and of the Iberian of pre-historic ages; of the Greek and Cathagenian of the Periclean age; of the Norman of the 11th and 13th centuries; and of the Saracen of the 9th and succeeding centuries. The Sicilian worshipped the Gods of Greece; then on his soil, at Syracuse, in the south of Sicily, St. Paul landed on his way to Puteoli and to Rome. During the third century of the Christian era, the Sicilian was becoming a Christian. During the Ninth century he was in course of being forced into Mohammedism, and in the Middle Ages Christianity had again come into power, and all Sicily and all Italy were Catholic. Perhaps in Sicily the Saracen type of countenance and character is today more in evidence than any other. Under the rule of the descendants of Ishmael Sicily had measurably flourished and become prosperous. In the black eyes and brown complexions and lithe bodies, and sudden emotions of many modern Sicilians can be seen much of that Saracen alertness and impetuosity which once almost dominated the world.

But in these later days and under the impulse of the Garibaldian spirit, Sicily is Italian, as all Calabria and all Italy are intensely Italian in pride and purpose. A new age has dawned. The hopes of Italy are bright. Better is life in Southern Italy, with the hazard of living on a volcanic coast than emigration. True, in these later days many have emigrated to our own shores, but the majority of the population love their own land. If they come away from it even for a time, they think of it fondly, and return to it when they can. Whilst in Italy I met a number of men in various vocations who had lived in free America, and who honored America and loved it, and who spoke in very good English of their respect for us and of their experiences amongst us, but they loved Italy better. It was the land of their birth and of their hope. In them had been born the national consciousness.

And, once more, it is the very lightheartedness of the people of Italy, and more especially of its southern people, and of the Sicilians, which makes them content to live where they do, and to take all the chances of life and death there. Cicero said of Sicily that it was a land in which every day of the year was more or less blessed with the sunshine. It is truly a land of sunshine, and whatever faults its people have, (and they are sufficiently manifest without being dwelt upon) they are a people through whom the sunlight infiltrates; whose happiness is, like their grief, quick and sudden and intense, though it may be short-lived. From the appearance of the crater of Stromboli the fishermen of the Italian coast guess the weather, as the English people guess it from the barometrical glass. The changes of that indicator are hardly less frequent than the changes which [illegible] impulses of [illegible] pass over the [illegible]ese care free Italians. Most of them are quite devoid of property accumulatons; without a single Lira "laid by in the locker," and without so much as the assurance of the next breakfast. They literally "take no thought for the morrow." They expect their dear church to take care of their souls. They make no calculations for the particular care of their bodies, and they simply revel in the sunshine which floods their lovely land.

Of course the American traveler does not quite see life through the same spectacles as does the Southern Italian. The traveler also enjoys the sunshine, especially in the winter season and early spring. He enjoys the strangeness of people, and of scenery, and of costumes and customs. There is a never failing delight and relish in seeing new things.

My own reminisences of Southern Italy are those of unmingled amusement and delight. At Naples it was pleasant to wander out and loiter by the bay, where fishermen draw their nets, or ride through streets of fine shops, stopping betimes to look up a steep lane, or up a street of stairs, of which each step was a segment of a flower-market. It is pleasant to recall the delicious confections and the fair oranges and other fruits, by whose purchase one could get rid of his money. One is almost glad to be rid of it. It is such money as we must needs take from our banker in exchange for our draft. But, sad to say, it is "filthy lucre,"—this Italian money; discolored, paper, cut, torn, ragged, greasy. True, there is an alternative in silver offered, with all sorts of chances that the innocent traveler will take bead pieces made to resemble silver; and one must not forget to carry a pound or two of copper pieces, of 5 and 10 centimes each, for "tips" to cabmen. But in all these various sorts of money there is grossness and burden, of which one feels well rid when they are all successfully put away.

Perched in the fourth story balcony of our hotel on the Corso Vittoria Emanuele we feel that Naples is at our feet. Naples is a saddle, and we are in the saddle. We look down on red roofs and gray walls, and on the beautiful bay into which Castle Uovo (Egg Castle) protrudes toward the southeast. Southward is Capri, and eastward, and so near that with a rifle we could almost send a ball into its upturned yawning mouth, is Vesuvius. Vesuvius sleeps, but breathes hard in its sleep, and its hot breath curls away into the purer circumambience. When not content with the loftines of our perch we take the "lift" of a higher hotel hard-by and go up a couple of hundred feet and have our tea served as in a balloon floating near sunset in the clouds. Or perhaps we bargain with an extortinate Jehu for a ride to San Martini for another sunset, and go bumping skyward along the Via Tasso. On another day we board the tram which passes through a tunnel cut in the soft Tufa rock beneath our saddle of Naples, and rest not until we reach the old settlement of Puzuoli, or Puteoli, as it was caled in New Testament times, when (as related in the 28th Chapter of Acts) St. Paul landed here on his way to Rome to appear before Nero-Caesar. Pozzuoli was a great mart before our era. Here came the argosies of Greece and Egypt, and with them came not only the art, but the religion of those centuries. We visit the Temple of Serapis, with its marvelous Lippolino columns, which have been moved up and down by earthquake forces. Then we whirl away from the pagan temple to a Romain play house, our carriage wheels rattling over the great flat pavements which were laid by the ancient Romans themselves. Of this building we find the subterranean parts in better condition than those of the monster Colosseum we had seen at Rome; and so we descend and wander through vast passages which in ages gone were traversed by wild beasts and desperate men. Then we ride forward to the crater of Sol-fatara whose last important eruption took place more than seven centuries ago, but whose huge basin still gives forth steam, hot mud, boiling sand, and sulphuretted gases enough to suggest the most terrible possibilities. With the odors of this inferno still rankling in our nostrils we turn away to the vineyard and beautiful orange groves of Cardby for refreshment. Later, we ride [illegible] toward another inferno, this one famed in classic literature. We stand above what the ancients believed to be the mouth of Hell. We take out Virgil's Eneid and read (from the sixth book) of the terrors and horrors which beset those who dared this Avernus. "Easy is the descent to Avernus," and so we find it, and who has not? But to return, to find again the light and joy of Heaven! This task is too great to achieve unaided! And here is the veritable Avernus of Virgil; a pre-historic volcanic basin, which in a later day gained in gruesomeness and in gloomy grandeur from the dark forests which surrounded it, and from the fierce beasts here living unrestrained. No wonder that under Virgil's poetic touch Avernus became not a symbol merely, but the very gate of Hell itself.

We spend some instructive hours in reading sermons in the stones of Pompeii. These sad and desolate stones are all that are left to tell of the glories and beauties of the overwhelmed city.

But you have not come tonight to be instructed or amused, but to express your deep sympathy with Italy in her affliction. The ancient city of Messina, in which last month a hundred thousand gay-hearted people dwelt, whose bay was the finest in Italy and whose commerce was world-wide, is tonight a charnel house, the abode of the vulture, the abomination of desolation.

The American heart is a big heart. Wherever humanity suffers, the Yankee sentiments of love and generosity find expression. Americans, too, appreciate courage and love and generosity wherever they find it. In these days of dreadful tidings, our hearts have been stirred to admiration by the courage and devotion of the rescuers at Messina and Reggio, and amongst these, the foremost and noblest figures have been those of the King and Queen of Italy. The gentle and graceful Madonna, whom the Italians love and worship, has in these modern days had no more lovely and worthy imitator and exemplar than the gracious Queen, who forsook her palace to minister to the needs of her stricken people.

Southward lay our journey from Vesuvius and Solfatara and Avernus, sailing near Stromboli, a Gorgon-like figure, standing in the sea and perpetually chewing the cud of bitter reflection; and on we steamed toward Messina and Reggio, the condemned cities, all unconscious of their doom. But how shall I describe the sublime beauty and placidity of Etna as I saw it last January: The giant rested and was at peace. Aye more; his air of tranquility and majesty was supreme and supernal. He stood on that sweet sunny winter day a veritable archangel of serenity and benignity.

Marie" by S. Saint Saens, which was highly appreciated, and Percy Mygrant, accompanied by Miss Louise Mygrant on the piano, rendered as a cornet solo "There is a Green Hill Far Away," in his usual finished style. The final numbers on the program were orcehstral selections. Their superb music made a decided impression and added greatly to the success of the affair.

The orchestra consisted of Arthur Mosher, violin, leader; Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, bass viol; Whitney Frace, cornet; Garrett Dunham, trombone; Elmer Wheeler, flute; Dr. J. Berg, 'cello; Ernest Higham, G. W. V. Moy and Herbert Smith, violins; J. Edmund Skiff, organist.

Alden E. Moore, chairman of the active committee, was congratulated on all sides for his painstaking and thorough management of the entertainment.

PERRINE COUGHED UP PIECE OF COPPER WIRE.

A small piece of copper wire came from the throat of Richard Perrine, of Fritz place, yesterday during a coughing spell and thus was explained a mystery of several weeks standing. The man is a sawyer employed in the wood working shop of R. McCullough on Steiner place. One day last month an overhead belt broke and the end of it struck Perrine on the side of the neck, leaving a small red spot which gradually became more inflamed. Three different doctors were consulted but none of them could benefit him or explain what the trouble was. His throat swelled and caused such pain as to prevent the man from working. Yesterday, however, relief came on the coughing up of a one and three-quarter inch wire, which had worked its way through to the windpipe. The broken belt had been spliced with wire instead of leather thongs.

HIS TRIP INTO HAUNTS AND HOMES OF THE INDIANS

Egerton R. Young.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church invites all the children of the city to hear Egerton R. Young, the famous traveler, author and lecturer, in his illustrated lecture on "A Trip by Dog Train and Canoe Into the Haunts and Homes of the Indians," tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Vincent chapel. The admission will be free and parents and friends are also invited.

There is probably no more interesting lecturer today than Mr. Young. Not only for years has he been famous as a writer of stories for young people, but he has the happy faculty of telling a story as it should be and his lectures are always full of wit and genuine humor.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL WINS FIRST GAME IN SERIES.

Watchung Concil, K. of C.'s bowling team defeated the delegation from Hope Council, of Jersey City, in the first of a home-and-home series on Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night. The Plainfielders were in good shape and rapped out a bunch of nice tallies, the aggregates being over 800 in the two games. No one reached the 200 mark but Chief Kiely. He made 197 and 199 and O'Keefe chalked up 195. The best score for Hope Council was a 182 made by Boylan.

The next games in the series will be rolled at Jersey City:

The scores:

Watchung Council.

Franklin Council Install Officers.

Past Councilor Frank Platts installed these officers-elect of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., last night: Past Councilor, George Wilson; councilor, Charles S. Wilson; vice-councilor, John Kliner; recording secretary, Frank Hartpense; assistant recording secretary, LeRoy DeCamp; financial secretary, Ephraim Compton; warden, T. E. Currin, Jr.; conductor, William Nolte; inside sentinel, Percy Ross; outside sentinel, W. J. Firstbrook; representatives to State Council, T. E. Currin, Jr., and LeRoy DeCamp.

A Dark Secret.

Dorothy Ebson, a lady of color, called at police headquarters late last night and said that Charles Mitchell, of the same hue, had biffed her in the eye at Central avenue and Second street. She failed to state why Charles had been so ungallant but told Captain Frederickson she most certainly wanted him apprehended. The captain told her to appear in court this morning to make complaint but she failed to show up and the cause of the attack will probably remain a mystery.

Funeral of Miss Manning.

The funeral of Miss Katharine Manning was held yesterday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. Catharine Manning, of Dunellen avenue. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss and was followed by burial in Hillside cemetery.

Valuable Horse Runs Away.

In another part of The Daily Press today, Jacob Schwenzer, of Terrill road, advertises for a valuable horse which ran away from his farm, last night, while his boy was hitching the animal to a wagon. The horse is a bay with a short tail and anyone finding it is requested to either return it to the owner or notify B. Heim, proprietor of the Maplewood Hotel, Fanwood, telephone number 409.

Recovers from P. S. C.

Samuel Smith, formerly of Plainfield, was yesterday given a verdict for $6,500 in his action against the Public Service Corporation, before Judge Lloyd, in the Supreme Court, at Flemington. The plaintiff based his suit on the fact that he was passing along Park avenue, near Fourth street, April 30, 1906, when a trolley car frightened a horse causing it to knock him down, inflicting severe injuries.

Hundreds Profit By Our Great Clearance!

Not a Winter Suit That is Not Selling at Half and Less!

Most gratifying results have attended our sweeping clearance of women's suits, coats and furs. Hundreds came the first day and again yesterday. The Cloak Store was thronged with eager buyers and the speedy selling clearly indicated how delighted our patrons were with the wonderful values we were giving them. The number of suits to be sold is yet large, and the variety practically as great as at the start because we could not bring forward all the good things we had prepared for the feast. Those who come tomorrow will find suits of almost every kind in this season's best styles marked at half and less than half what they were intended to sell for. It is the big-gest bargain event of the kind Newark has known in years. No women having use for a winter suit, if only for a couple of months' wear, can afford to miss this opportunity.

PARROT'S CRIES SAVE SLEEPERS FROM FIRE.

A wise parrot saved a row of frame tenements and many lives early yesterday morning at Jersey City, but came near losing its own life. Patrolman Fennessy was passing the corner of Wayne and Colgate streets shortly before 1 o'clock when he hard a cry of fire coming from the apartment above the dry goods store of David Feingold. The cry caused him to investigate.

He saw a fine thread of smoke issuing from above the store door and smoke coming from an open window in the apartment. He yelled to John Clancy, who was half way up the block, to send in an alarm of fire, and dashed into the house to rescue the occupants.

Fennessy broke in the doors of the apartment above the store, but found no human being. The occupants of the top floor were routed, and made their escape to the street. There came from upstairs again a cry "Come here!"

Several firemen, led by James Manning, Jr., rushed into the building. They could not see, but groped about, and finally found the parrot.

"Come here!" "Come here!" it yelled until the firemen rescued it, and kept shouting until it reached the open air. The fire was soon put out.

Miss Margaret Kenney, of East Second street, has returned to Barnard College, after an enjoyable holiday vacation at home.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The members of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a business meeting tonight, followed by a social hour.

"A Question of Daily Bible Reading" will be the subject of the week of prayer service at the Park Avenue Baptist church tonight.

The week of prayer service will not be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight, the Young People's Association taking the evening for its Bible study classes.

"A Tenderfoot Minister" will be the subject of a delightful lecture to be given by Rev. Dr. E. A. Woods, of Somerville, before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, Monday night at 8 o'clock.

Stole Policeman's Uniform.

Miolo Delpresco, an Italian sneak-thief, was arrested early yesterday morning by Policeman Jennings, of Cranford, with a bundle of clothing, which proved to be the uniform of Policeman Otto Behnert, who resides in Burnside avenue. The thief also had a suit of clothing belonging to Richard Kuhlenschmidt, a neighbor of Behnert. Justice of the Peace W. W. Mendell held the prisoner for the grand jury.

Mr. and Mrs. John Torney and daughter, Margaret, of New York, who have been visiting Mrs. Torney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Jackson avenue, have returned home.

Final Clearance of Women's, Misses' and Children's Coats and Suits

AT HALF AND LESS is the stirring offer we make in the Final Clearance of many of this season's best models. With the best part of the winter before us, in which to wear these garments, this surely is a most extraordinary opportunity.

The policy of this house is, and has always been, not to carry over garments into another season—therefore we take the loss cheerfully, and give our patrons the benefit in savings.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Willis Maxwell Goodhue's merry comedy, "Hello Bill," after ten years of successful touring of the United States, Canada, Australia and South Africa, will be seen for the first time in this city at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. Although Mr. Goodhue's merry comedy is a household word almost everywhere, for some strange reason it has never been seen in this city, and its first appearance here will be in the nature of an event. It comes with nearly all the original company, and should be greeted by the banner house of the year.

For the first time in the history of the American stage, a first class dramatic production is on tour with a number of celebrated circus acrobats and clowns playing leading parts. The play is Frederic Thompson's big production, "Polly of the Circus," by Margaret Mayo, with Miss Fay Wallace playing the leading part. "Polly of the Circus" deals with a girl bare-back rider who is injured during a performance in a small town and is left behind to recuperate. Her period of convalescence is spent in the home of the village preacher, with whom she falls in love. Later for reasons explained in the play, she returns to the circus which makes it necessary to present a tent show in full operation on the stage of the theatre. To give the necessary touch of realism the management has engaged a number of the most famous circus folk in the world of white tops. The play will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night.

"Polly" and Her Horse in "Polly of the Circus," at New Plainfield Theatre Saturday Matinee and Night.

The four act play which has been so cleverly adapted from the novel of "Jane Eyre" is meeting with the unqualified approval of theatre-goers everywhere. The staging is beautiful, the costumes worn by the ladies in the cast are handsome and the people in the company are capable in every requirement. "Jane Eyre" is a comedy drama of the higher class, clean-cut and attractive. Miss Cuba Niblo has been especially engaged to play "Jane" and E. Daniel Layton to play "Rochester." This play will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

Scene from "Jane Fyre," at New Plainfield Theatre Monday night.

Fred Niblo, the American tourist, will present the third of his delightful series of Travel-Talks at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday evening. This timely offering will unquestionably prove the most intensely interesting of the series, the subject being "Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps," including all that is worth seeing in ancient and modern Italy, Rome of long ago and as it is today, as well as many pictures taken personally by Mr. Niblo last summer while in Southern Italy, graphically portraying, picturesque character study and scenes in and about Messina, Reggio, Catania and other towns in Sicily, which have recently been visited by the most disastrous earthquake of modern times. Those who enjoyed Mr. Niblo's able presentation of Africa and Egypt need not be told of the pictorial excellence of the Travel-Talks. Suffice to say that Italy offers a wealth of illustrative material unsurpassed by any other offering of the series.

MINUTES OF THE LAST SESSION OF FREEHOLDERS.

(Official).

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, December 3, 1908, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed the following members present—Director King, Freeholders Adams, Cady, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Fay, Jones, Krouse, Maurer, McGovern, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Robison, Smith, Stephan, Swain, Wilbur and Woodruff—20.

On motion of Rreeholder Cady it was ordered that the reading of the minutes be dispensed with and that the same be aprpoved as per printed copies on the members' desks.

COMMUNICATIONS.

New York, Nov. 7, 1908.

Bo... Chosen Freeholders of Un... N. J.:

L... Referring to your applicatio... dated October 27, 1908, for extension of the time limit of the permit of the Secretary of War, dated August 15, 1907, for the construction of a South First street bridge over the Elizabeth River, at Elizabeth, N. J., I have to say that I am authorized to inform you that under date of November 3, 1908, the Secretary of War aprpoved your application for extension of the time limit for the completion of this bridge to June 1, 1909, as requested.

Yours very respectfully,
D. W. KIRKWOOD,
Col. Corps of Engineers.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, received and placed on file.

From Willswood Farm Dairy Company, November 7, 1908, to the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, Elizabeth, N. J.

Dear Sirs—We enclose copy of bill for damages to our horse by reason of an accident which occurred on September 6 about 4:30 a. m. The horse in going over the bridge put his foot through a hole in the bridge which tripped him, and in falling with a wagon behind him he cut both knees so badly that he was laid up from September 7 to October 11. We notified the Freeholders for the district in which the accident occurred, in Somerset and Union counties, this Sandford avenue bridge on which the accident occurred, being between Union and Somerset counties at Plainfield.

We send this bill to you, presuming that you are the proper one, and have also sent a copy of the same to the clerk of the Board of Chosen Freeholders for Somerset county.

Yours truly,
WILLSWOOD FARM DAIRY CO.

Attached to the foregoing was a bill claiming damages in the amount of $75.83.

On motion of Freeholder Pierson, received and referred to the Freeholders from the city of Plainfield and the County Attorney.

The following petition was presented and read:

Westfield, N. J., Nov. 18, 1908.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—The undersigned, being the owners of land along the line of the improvement petitioned for, and residents and taxpayers of the town of Westfield and borough of Garwood, respectfully petition your honorable body to cause the street known as Chestnut street, extending from North avenue in the borough of Garwood to Mountain avenue in the town of Westfield, and connecting two improved highways, to be made a county road and permanently improved as in the manner provided by an act entitled "An act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State (revision of 1905 with amendment of 1906)."

Respectfully submitted,
EMANUEL ECKEL,
MRS. HELEN E. HOWELL
and twenty-one others.

On motion of Freeholder Smith, received and referred to the Committee as a Whole.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the Committee as a Whole:

Whereas, HHeretofore, on November 3, 1908, the various applications and petitions presented to this board requesting this board to take steps looking to the macadamizing of the road know and designated as "Edgar Road" was referred to the Committee as a Whole; and

Whereas, Such committee has inspected said premises and considered the surroundings and advisability of constructing said road; and being of the opinion that a macadamized road at said location is needful and necessary, and would be of great benefit not only to the local residents in the immediate vicinity of said road, but to the public at large;

We would therefore respectfully recommend the buliding of said road and do hereby present the following resolution for adoption at the regular meeting of this board:

Resolved, That Washington avenue, from its intersection with Grove street, in the city of Elizabeth, thence running in a generally south westerly direction along Washington avenue, Edgar Road and Lennington street (being partly in the city of Elizabeth, partly in the township of Linden and partly in the city of Rahway), to the intersection of Lennington street with Milton avenue, in the city of Rahway; thence running in a westerly direction, along Milton avenue in the city of Rahway to a p oint where said avenue is paved, or near the bridge over the Rahway River, said road being at least sixty feet in width and about four and one half miles in length; be improved by the construction of a macadamized roadway in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled: "An act providing for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State." (Revision of 1905), and the supplements and amendments thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That the clerk of this board be directed to forward a copy of this resolution to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval and that upon the approval of the same by the State Commissioner of Public Roads the County Road Committee be and is hereby authorized and directed to cause a survey of said road so to be improved to be made, and plans, cross sections and specifications of the work to be done on the same to be prepared; and that the same be submitted to this board for its approval or rejection, and if approved by this board the same then to be submitted to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval or rejection.

Dated December 3, 1908.

Respectfully submitted,
BENJAMIN KING.

Chairman of Committe as a Whole

Freeholder Cady moved that the foregoing be received and adopted which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the all Committee:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J.:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Jail Inspection would respectfully report that they have visited the jail and inspected the books of the warden. During the month of November sixty eight prisoners were committed; sixty-three are now confined in the jail. The number treated by jail physician, eight.

As the matter of installing padded cells in our jail was referred back to this committee for further consideration and investigation, your committee would respectfully report that they have carefully studied and thoroughly investigated the matter and are more than ever convinced of he necessity of this humane addition to our county jail. As proof of the necessity of the padded cells we would call your attention to the fact that in Pennsylvania the State Board of Charities and Correction requires them in all county jails. In New York the State Prison Commission requires them in all county jails almshouses and hospitals for the insane.

Your committee would therefore recommend that two padded cells of the latest improved construction be installed in our jail at a cost not to exceed $185.

Respectfully submitted,
E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
J. LOGAN FAY,
Committee.

Freeholder Wilbur moved that the report be received and the recommendation adopted which was so ordered on roll call by unanimous vote

By Committee on New Church street Bridge, at Rahway, N. J.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders

Gentlemen—Your committee on the above named matter would respectfully report that they have examined the bridge above named and would recommend that no wing walls be built on the bridge on Plainfield avenue.

They would further recommend that four wing walls be built on the bridge on New Church street to retain the filling, the cost of the work not ti exceed the sum of $950.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
NOAH WOODRUFF,
HAENRY KROUSE,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
D. P. McGOVERN,
Committee.

Freeholder Stephan moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee on Soldiers' Headstones, etc:

Resolved, That the salary of the supervisor of the burial of deceased soldiers, sailors and marines, be and hereby is fixed at the sum of $300 per year, payable monthly, and that said salary be in full of all compensation for said services.

Respectfully submitted,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
J. N. CADY,
THOMAS J. PIERSON,
CHARLES A. SMITH,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
Committee.

Freeholder Pierson moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By the Committee on Soldiers' Headstones, etc.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—The undersigned committee heretofore appointed would respectfully report that they have taken up for investigation the matter of the expendiure of county money under and by virtue of an act entitled "An act respecting the burial of the bodies of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, the marking of their graves with suitable headstones and the care and preservation of their graves," (approved March 20, 102), and we find that J. C. Ogden, a former member of this board, has for many years last past been superintending the burying of such soldiers, sailors and marines mentioned and referred to in the aforesaid act, and has kept a complete record of the same, and which record tallies with the record of the same kept by the Clerk of this board.

We nave further ascertained that the stones or markers for the graves of such deceased soldiers, sailors and marines have been furnished by eGo. McGee, of the city of Elizabeth, at the price of $8 each, and that said stones and markers have been paid for by this board.

We also find that in several instances stones or markers have been furnished by said McGee, but rejected either by the cemetery authorities where said soldiers, sailors and marines were buried, or by families of the deceased, and that said stones so rejected are either now in the possession of said McGee, or in the various cemeteries where delivered.

In order, therefore, that the furnishing of said stones or markers and the placing of the same may be done in a more systematic way and business-like method, your committee would respectfully recommend that this board designate and appoint Brigadier-General J. Madison Drake to investigate and supervise the work required to be done under and by virtue of the provisions of the act above referred to within the county of Union, and that said work and supervision be done under the direction and supervision of the committee of this board having said work in charge.

Respectfully submitted,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
THOMAS J. PIERSON,
J. N. CADY,
CHARLES A. SMITH,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
Committee.

Freeholder Woodruff moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered without dissent.

By the Auditing Committee:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlmen—Your Auditing Committee would respectfully report that they have had a meeting with John F. Kenah, City Clerk of the city of Elizabeth, relative to the items in his bill of $317.67 and $604.30 and which items were deducted from the bill rendered by him to this board at its last meeting ($2,070.12). We would now recommend that the said items of $317.67 and $604.30 be paid when a bill for the same is presented by Mr. Kenah and approved by the Auditing Committee.

JOHN N. CADY,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
NOAH WOODRUFF,
Committee.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

New Business.

By Freehalder Wilbur:

Resolved, That Jefferson avenue, from its intersection with the centre line of West Front street, the same being he dividing line beween the counties of Union and Middlesex, and extending northwesterly along said line between the said counties of Union and Middlesex, to Greenbrook; all lying within the city of Plainfield, county of Union, and the borough of Dunellen, county of Middlesex; the entire length thereof being partly in the county of Union and partly in the county of Middlesex, being sixty six feet in width and about 2,100 feet in length, and forming a connection with permanently improved roads, be improved by the construction of a macadamized roadway, is accordance with the provisions of an act entitled, "An act providing for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State," (Revision of 1905), and the supplements and amendments there to; and be it further

Resolved, That the clerk of this board be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval, and that upon the approval of the same by the State Commissioner of Public Roads, the County Road Committee be and is hereby authorized to, in conjunction with a committee to be appointed by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Middlesex county, cause a survey of said road so to be improved, to be made; and plans, cross-sections and specifications of the work to be done on the same to be prepared; and that the same be submitted to the respective boards of Chosen Freeholders of the counties of Union and Middlesex for their approval or rejection; and if approved by said boards, the same then to be submitted to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval or rejection.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse received and referred to the Committee as a Whole.

By Freeholder Stephan:

Resolved, That the collector be authorized to pay the bill of Archibald W. Stiles for repairing bridge on Hazelwood avenue, Rahway, when signed by the committee in charge of same, and certified by the engineer in charge; amount, $475.

Freeholder Jones moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Perry:

Resolved, That Springfield avenue, and the extension thereon, known as the Old Road to Springfield, and the Mill Town Road, beginning at the point where the northwesterly line of Cranford Township intersects the said Springfield avenue, and running thence northwesterly, norterly and northeasterly, to the intersection of the said Old Road to Springfield with the Mill Town Road, at or near the lands of Richard Trivett, and running thence along the sail Mill Town Road northwesterly to the line of the present Westfield avenue, county road, which above described roads lie in the town of Westfield, the borough of Mountainside and the township of Springfield, and which roads are at least thirty-three feet in width, and at least two miles in length, be improved by the construction of a macadam or telford road, under the provisions of chapter 58, of the Laws of the State of New Jersey, session of 1905; and be it further

Resolved, That the clerk of this board be directed to submit a copy of this resolution to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval and that upon the approval of the same by the State Commissioner of Public Roads, the County Road Committee of this board be authorized hereby to procure a survey of the above described roads and to have prepared plans, cross-sections and specifications of the work to be done on the same.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek received and referred to the Committee of the Whole.

By Freeholder Darby:

Resolved, That the bill of James G. Moore, amounting to $315, for work done and materials furnished on county road bridge in Mountainside borough, be paid when the same has been properly audited by the committee.

Freeholder Jones moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Pierson:

Whereas, J. C. Ogden, of the city of Elizabeth, a former member of this board, has for many years last past had supervision of the burial of deceased soldiers, sailors and marines coming under the provisions of the act of 1902; and

Whereas, Valuable services have been rendered by him to the county in the supervision of said matter for a nominal consideration; therefore be it

Resolved, That the thanks of this board be unanimously etxended to J. C. Ogden for the services so ren-

COMMUNICATIONS.

Kenilworth, N. J., Dec. 16, 1908.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, County of Union:

Gentlemen—At a meeting held by the Mayor and council of the borough of Kenilworth Tuesday, December 15, 1908, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Be it resolved bby the Mayor and council of the borough of Kenilworth that we petition the honorable members of the County Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union for the building of a county road in and through the borough of Kenilworth, said road to start at the junction of Faitoute and Westfield avenues, Roselle Park, to the Chester avenue and Union road in Union Township, and it is the prayer of the petitioners that your honorable body favorably consider the proposition.

Passed by the council, Decembe. 15, 1908.

Approved December 15, 1908.

CHARLES C. BOYD,
Mayor.

Attest:

CHARLES KNUDSON,
Borough Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Adams received and referred to the County Road Committee.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the Committee of the Whole:

The Committee of the Whole begs leave to report that it has inspected the road beginning at the intersection of the northwesterly line of the township of Cranford with the line of Springfield avenue; and running thence along Springfield avenue to the old road to Springfield in a north easterly direction, through the town of Westfield, borough of Mountainside and the township of Springfield to the old Milltown road northeasterly, crossing Westfield avenue, through the township of Springfield to the city of Summit, to the intersection of the Milltown road with Morris avenue, in the city of Summit; and application having been made for the improvement of the same under the State Aid Road Act, and the Committee of the Whole being of the opinion that said road should be so improved under and by virtue of the provisions of said act, we will therefore recommend the adoption and improvement of said road, and do hereby present the following resolution, and recommend its adoption:

Resolved, That the road beginning at the intersection of the northwesterly line of the township of Cranford, with the line of Springfield avenue, and thence running along Springfield avenue and along the old road to Springfield, in a northwesterly, northerly and northeasterly direction and running through the town of Westfield, borough of Mountainside and the township of Springfield, to the old Milltown road or shunpike at the lands of Richard Trivett; and thence still running along said old Milltown road or shunpike [illegible] northwesterly direction. [illegible] present Westfield [illegible] crossing the road, and passing [illegible] avenue county the Ba[illegible]ing the clubhouse of [illegible]rook Golf Club, and running through the township of Springfield and the city of Summit, to the intersection of said old Milltown road or shunpike, with the line of Morris avenue, a former county road at East Summit, in the city of Summit, (said road being at least thirty-three feet in width and about three and three-quarter miles in length, and forming a connection with permanently improved roads), be improved by the construction of a macadamized roadway of an act entitled "An act providing for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State," (Revision of 1905), and the supplements and amendments thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That the Clerk of this board be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval, and upon the approval of the same by the State Commissioner of Public Roads, the County Road Committee of this board be and is hereby authorized to, cause a survey of said road so to be improved to be made, and plans, cross sections and specifications of the work to be done on the same to be prepared, and that the same be submitted to this board for its approval or rejection; and if approved by this board the same then be submitted to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval or rejection.

Dated December 19, 1908.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) BENJAMIN KING,
Chairman of the Committee of the Whole.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report be received and resolution contained therein adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee of the Whole:

The Committee of the Whole begs leave to report that it has inspected the road beginning at the intersection of the Terrell road with the Raritan road, Two Bridges, in the township of Fanwood and extending easterly through the township of Fanwood, town of Westfield and township of Clark to the intersection of Westfield avenue with the present county road at the southerly end of Cedar lane, opposite Andelfinger's Hotel, in the township of Clark; and application having been made for the improvement of the same under the State Aid Road Act; and the Committee of the Whole being of the opinion that said road should be so improved under and by virtue of the provisions of said act; we would therefore recommend the adoption and improvement of said road, and do hereby present the following resolution, and recommend its adoption:

Resolved, That the road beginning at the intersection of the Terrell road with the Raritan road at Two Bridges, in the township of Fanwood, said Terrell road being a road heretofore adopted for improvement by this board), and from said beginning point extending along Raritan road in a general easterly direction through the township of Fanwood, town of Westfield and the township of Clark to the intersection of Raritan road with Westfield avenue in the township of Clark; thence still along said Westfield avenue in a southeasterly direction and through the township of Clark, to the intersection of said Westfield avenue with the present county road at the southerly end of Cedar lane opposite Andelfinger's Hotel in the township of Clark, said road being at least thirty three feet in width and three and three-quarter miles in length, and forming a connection with permanently improved roads, be improved by the construction of a macadamized roadway in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An Act Providing for the Permanent Improvement of Public Roads in this State," (revision of 1905) and the supplements and amendments thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That the Clerk of this board be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval, and upon the approval of the same by the State Commissioner of Public Roads, the County Committee of this board be and is hereby authorized to cause a survey of said roads so to be improved to be made, and plans, cross sections and specifications of the work to be done on the same to be prepared, and that the same be submitted to this board for its approval or repection; and if approved by this board the same then be submitted to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval or rejection.

Dated December 17, 1908.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) BENJAMIN KING,
Chairman of Committee of the Whole.

Freeholder Cladek moved that the report be received and resolution therein contained adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee of the Whole:

Whereas, Application has heretofore been made to this board for the improvement of Jefferson avenue, lying partly within the city of Plainfield, county of Union, and partly within the borough of Dunellen, county of Middlesex, under and by virtue of the provisions of the act entitled "An act Providing for the Permanent Improvement of Public Roads in this State," (Revision of 1905), and the supplements and amendments thereto; and

Whereas, Application was received from the Committee of the Whole [illegible] Committee of the Whole [illegible] and being desirable [illegible] improved, you [illegible] port favorably [illegible] and recommend [illegible] following resolution:

Resolved, That Jefferson avenue, from its intersection with the centre line of West Front street, the same being the dividing line between the counties of Union and Middlesex, and extending northwesterly along said line between the said counties of Union and Middlesex, to Green Brook; all lying within the city of Plainfield, county of Union and the borough of Dunellen, county of Middlesex, the entire length thereof being partly in the county of Union and partly in the county of Middlesex, and being sixty-six feet in width and about twenty one hundred feet in length and forming a connection with permanently improved roads, be improved by the construction of a macadam roadway in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act providing for the Permanent Improvement of Public Roads in this State." (Revision of 1905), and the supplements and amendments thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That the clerk of this board be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval, and that upon the approval of the same by the State Commissioner of Public Roads the County Road Committee be, and is hereby authorized to, in connection with a committee to be appointed by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Middlesex county, cause a survey of said road so to be improved to be made, and plans, cross sections and specifications of the work to be done on the same to be prepared, and that the same be submitted to the respective boards of Chosen Freeholders of the counties of Union and Middlesex for their approval or rejection; and if approved by the said boards, the same then to be submitted to the State Commissioner of Public Roads for his approval or rejection.

Dated December 17, 1908.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) BENJAMIN KING,
Chairman of the Committee of the While.

Freeholder Woodruff moved that the report be received and resolution therein contained adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

THE LION'S SHARE

Nothing loath, Archie told his story. Left outside while Tracy went into the office with a policeman, to whom he gave his assumed name, he remained for hardly two minutes before a gentleman and a "cop" came up to him, and the latter ordered him to descend from the machine—but not until they had found it impossible to move the vehicle. When they did discever that the key was out and gone, the man in citizen's clothes hailed a cab and the officer curtly informed Archie that Gardiner (Tracy's traveling name) had been taken to another court and he was to follow. He didn't suspect anything beyond a collision with the speed regulations of the city, but had he seen a chance to dive under his escort's arm the boy would have taken it. Such chance was not afforded him, and all he was able to do was to lean out suddenly as they passed the Palace and to wave at Randall. "I wanted them to stop and let me get some one to pay my fine," said Archie, "but they said I was only a witness. They wouldn't let me stop; they run down the curtain—at least so far as it would run. It was like all those hack curtains, you know—all out of order."

"Archie," the colonel interjected here, "was one of the men a little fellow, clean-shaven, with a round black head, blue eyes—one of his eyes winks a little faster than the other?"

"Yes, sir. How did you know?"

"I didn't know; I guessed. Well, get on; they wanted to pump you when they got you safely out of sight?"

"Yes," Archie said, "they put me into the sweat-box, all right."

"Did you tell them anything?" asked Mrs. Winter.

Archie looked at her reproachfully. Did she think that he had gone to boarding school for nothing? He explained that, being a stranger in the town, he could not tell anything about where he'd been. There was an agent at the house trying to sell stoves, and they let him take him off back to the hotel. The man seemed to know all about who he (Archie) was, and about his having gone away. The men asked him an awful lot of questions about how he was taken away. He said he didn't know, and he'd promised not to tell. He couldn't tell. They said he would have to go to jail if he didn't tell, because the men who had him were such bad men. But he didn't tell.

"Did they try to frighten you—to make you tell?" said Mrs. Winter.

"Oh, they bluffed a little," returned Archie, carelessly, yet the keen eyes on him—eyes both worldly-wise and shrewd—noted that the lad's color shifted and he winced the least in the world over some remembrance.

"But they didn't hurt you? They didn't burn you or cut you or twist your arms, or try any other of their playful ways?" Mrs. Winter demanded; and Janet began feeling the boy's arms, breathing more quickly. The colonel only looked.

"No, they didn't do a thing. I knew they wouldn't, too," Archie assured her, earnestly. "I told them if they did anything Uncle Rupert and you would make them pay."

"And you weren't frightened, away from every one—in that hideous quarter?" cried Miss Smith. "Oh, my dear!" She choked.

"Well, maybe I was a little scared. I kept thinking of a rotten yarn of Kipling's; something happened to him, down in the underground quarter, in just such a hot, nasty-smelling hole, I guess, as I was in; you remember, Miss Janet, about the game of cards and the Mexican stabbing a Chink for cheating, and how Kipling jumped up and ran for his life, never looking around; and don't you remember that nasty bit, how he felt sure they had dealt with the greaser their own way and he'd never get up to the light again—"

"I've been remembering that story all this afternoon," answered Miss with a shudder.

"Agreeable little tale," said Aunt Rebecca, dryly. "Archie, you must have had a right nasty quarter of an Smith with a shudder.

"Why, a Chink came and called the little man off; and there was a lot of talking which I couldn't hear, and the cop was swearing; I think they didn't like it. But, in a minute the Chinaman—he was an awful nice little feller—he came up to me and took me out, led me all sorts of ways, not a bit like the way I came in, and got me out to the street. The other fellows were very polite; they told me that they were my friends and only wanted to find a clew to my kidnapers; and the burning holes in me was only a joke to give me an excuse to break my word under compulsion—why, they wouldn't hurt me for the world! I pretended to be fooled, and said it was all right, and looked pleasant; but—I'd like to scare them the same way, once, all the same."

The boy caught at his lip which was trembling, and ended with a shaky laugh. Miss Smith clenched the fist by her side; but she dropped the arm near Archie, and said in a matter-of-fact, sprightly tone: "Archie, you really ought to go dress—and wash for dinner; excuse me for mentioning it, but you have no idea how grimy you are."

The commonplace turn of thought did its errand. Archie, who had been bracing himself anew against the horror which he remembered, dropped back into his familiar habits and jumped up consciously. "It's the dust, motoring," he offered, bashfully. "I ought to have washed before I came up. Well, that's all; we came straight here. Now, may I go take a bath?"

Aunt Rebecca was fingering a curious jade locket on her neck. She watched the boy run to the open door.

"I wish you'd go into your room, colonel," said Miss Smith, "and see that nothing happens to him. It's silly, but I am expecting to see him vanish again!"

The sentence affected the colonel unpleasantly; why need she be posing before him, as if that first disappearance had had any real fright in it? Of course she didn't know yet (although Aunt Rebecca might have told her—she ought to have told her and stopped this unnecessary deceit) that he was on to the game; but—he didn't like it. Unconsciously, his inward criticism made his tone drier as he replied with a little bow that he imagined Archie was quite safe, now, and he would ask to be excused, as he had to attend to something before dinner.

Was it his fancy that her face changed and her eyes looked wistful? It must have been. He walked stiffly away. Hardly had he entered his room and turned his mind on the changed situation before the telephone apprised him that a gentleman, Mr. Gardiner, who represented the Fireless Cook Stove, said that he had an appointment with Col. Winter to explain the stove; should he be sent up?

Directly, Endicott Tracy entered, smiling. "Where's the kid? I know he's back," were his first words; and he explained that he had been hunting the kidnapers to no purpose. "Except that I learned enough to know they put up a job with the justice, all right; I got next to that game without any Machiavellian exertions. But they got away. Who is it? Any of Keatcham's gang?"

"Atkins," said the colonel, concisely.

Tracy whistled and apologized. "It's a blow," he confessed. "That little wretch! He has brains to burn and not an ounce of conscience. You know he has been mousing round at the hotels after Keatcham's mail—"

"He didn't get it?"

"No, Carey had covered that point. Cary has thought this all out very carefully, but Atkins has got on to the fact that Cary was here in this hotel with Keatcham. But he doesn't know where we come in; whether Keatcham's gang is just lying low for some game of its own, or whether we've got him. At least, I don't believe he knows."

"You ought not to be talking so freely with me; I haven't promised you anything, you know," warned the colonel.

"But you've got your nephew back all right; we have been on the square with you; why should you butt in? I know you won't."

"I don't seem to have a fair call to," observed the colonel.

"And I think the old boy is going to give in; he has made signals of distress, to my thinking. Wanted his mail; and wanted to write; and informed Cary—he saw him for the first time to-day—that he had bigger things on deck than the Midland; and wanted to get at them. We're going to win out all right."

"Unless Atkins gets at him to-night," the colonel suggested. "You oughtn't to have come here, Gardiner. Don't go home, now. Wait until later, and let me rig you up in another lot of togs and give you my own motor car. Better."

Tracy was more than impressed by the proposal; he was plainly grateful. He entered with enthusiasm into the soldier's masquerade—Tracy had always had a weakness for theatricals and some of his Hasty Pudding "Portraits of Unknown People We Know" had won him fame at Cambridge. Ten minutes later, there sat opposite the colonel a florid-faced, mustached, western commercial traveler whose plaided tweeds, being an ill-advised venture of Haley's which the colonel had taken off his hands and found no subject of charity quite obnoxious enough to deserve them, naturally did not fit the present wearer, but suited his inane complacence of bearing and might pass for a bad case of ready made purchase.

"Now," said the adviser, "I'll notify Haley to have my own hired motor ready for you and you can slip out and take it after you've had something to eat. Here's the restaurant card. Haley will be there. Leave it at the drug store on Van Ness street—Haley will give you the number—and get home as unobtrusively as possible. You can peel off these togs in the motor if necessary. You've your own underneath except your coat. Wrap that in a newspaper and carry it. I don't know that Atkins has any one on guard at the hotel, but I think it more than likely he suspects some connection between our party and Keatcham's. But first, tell me about Atkins; what do you know about him? It's an American name."

"America can take all the glory of him, I fancy," said Tracy. "He's been Keatcham's secretary for six years. He seems awfully mild and useful and timid. He's not a bit timid. He's full of resource; he's sidled suggestions into Keatcham's ear and has been gradually working to make himself absolutely necessary. I think he aimed at a partnership; but Keatcham wouldn't stand for it. I think it was in revenge that he sold out some of Keatcham's secrets. Cary got on to that and has a score of his own to settle with him, besides. I don't know how he managed, but he showed him up; and Keatcham gave him the sack in his own cold-blooded way. I know him only casually. But my cousin Ralph Schuyler, went to prep. school with him, so I got his character straight off the bat. His father was a patent-medicine man from Mississippi, who made a fair pile, a couple of hundred thousand which looked good to that section, you know. I don't know anything about his people except that his father made the 'Celebrated Atkins' Ague Busters;' and that Atkins was ashamed of his people and shook his married sisters who came to see him, in rather a brutal fashion; but I know a thing or two about him; he was one of those bounders who curry favor with the faculty and the popular boys and never break rules apparently, but go off and have sly little bats by themselves. He never was popular, yet, somehow, he got into things; he knew where to lend money; and he was simply sickeningly clever; in math. he was a wonder. Ralph hated him. For one thing, he caught him in a dirty lie. Atkins hated him back and contrived to prevent his being elected class president, and when he couldn't prevent Ralph's making his senior society the happy thought struck Atkins to get on the initiation committee. They had a cheery little branding game to make the fellows quite sure they belonged, you know, and he rammed his cigar stump into Ralph's arm so that Ralph had blood-poisoning and a narrow squeak for his life. You see that I'm not prepossessed in the fellow's favor. He's got too vivid an imagination for me!"

"Seems to have," acquiesced the colonel.

"I think, you know"—Tracy made an effort to be just—"I think Atkins was rather soured. Some of the fellows made fun of the 'Ague Busters;' he had a notion that the reason it was such up hill work for him in the school was his father's trade. No doubt he did get nasty licks at first; and he's revengful. He hasn't got on in society outside, either—this he lays to his not being a university man. You see his father lost some of his money and put him to work instead of in college. He was willing enough at the time—I think he wanted to get married—but afterward, when he was getting a good salary and piling up money on his tips, he began to think that he had lost more than he had bargained for. Altogether, he's soured. Now, what he wants is to make a thundering big strike and to pull out of Wall street, buy what he calls 'a seat on the James' and set up for a southern gentleman. He's trying to marry a southern girl, they say, who is kin to the Carters and the Byrds and the Lees and the Carys—why, you know her, she's Mrs. Winter's secretary."

"Does—does she care for him?" The colonel suddenly felt his mouth parched; he was savagely conscious of his mounting color. What a fiendish trick of fate! he had never dreamed of this! Well, whether she cared for him or not, the man was a brute; he shouldn't get her. That was one certainty in the colonel's mind.

"Why, Cary vows she doesn't, that it was only a girlish bit of nonsense up in Virginia, that time he was prospecting, you know. But I don't feel so safe. She's too nice for such a cur. But you know what women are; the nicest of them seem to be awfully queer about men. There's no betting on them."

"I'm afraid not," remarked the colonel, lightly. But he put his fingers inside his collar and loosened it, as if he felt choked.

Because he had a dozen questions quarreling for precedence in his head, he asked not one. He only inquired regarding the situation; discovering that both Mercer and Tracy were equally in the dark with himself as to Atkins' plans, Atkins' store of information, Atkins' resources. How he could have waylaid Tracy and the boy without knowing whence they came was puzzling; it was quite as puzzling, however, assuming that he did know their whereabouts, to decide why he was so keen to interrogate the boy. In fact, it was, as Tracy said, "too much like Prof. Santa Anna's description of a German definition of metaphysics, 'A blind man hunting in a dark room for a black cat that isn't there.'"

"In any event, you would better keep away from me," was the colonel's summing up of the situation; "I don't want to be inhospitable, but the sooner you are off, and out of the hotel, the safer for your speculation."

"Friends will please accept the intimation," said Tracy, good-humoredly. "Very well, it's 23 for me. I'm hoping you'll see your way clear to run over as soon as the old man has surrendered; I'm going to invite him to make us a proper visit, then, and see the country. I'm always for letting the conquered keep their side-arms."

He went away smiling his flashing smile, and turned it up at the hotel as walked out; the colonel made no sign of recognition from the window whence he observed him. Instead, he drew back quickly, frowning; it might be a mere accident that only a hand's breadth of space from the young Harvard man was a dapper little shape in evening clothes, a man still young, with a round black head; if so, it was an accident not to the colonel's liking.

"Damn you!" whispered Rupert Winter very softly. "What is your little game?"

At once he descended, having telephoned Haley to meet him at the court. When he entered and sent his glance rapidly among the little tables, by this time filled with diners, he experienced a disagreeable surprise. It did not come from the sight of Sergt. Haley in his Sunday civilian clothes, stolidly reading the Call; it came from a vision of Atkins standing, bowing, animatedly talking with Janet Smith.

Instead of approaching Haley, Winter fell back and scribbled a few words on a page of his note-book, while safely shielded by a great palm. The note he dispatched to Haley, who promptly joined him. While they stood, talking on apparently indifferent subjects, Miss Smith passed them. Whether because he was become suspicious or because she had come upon him suddenly, she colored slightly. But she smiled as she saluted him and spoke in her usual tranquil tone. "You are going to dine with us, aren't you, colonel?" said she. "I think dinner is just about to be served."

The colonel would be with them directly.

Haley's eyes followed her; he had returned her nod and inquiry for his wife and little Nora with a military salute and the assurance that they were both wonderfully well and pleased with the country.

"Sure, ain't it remarkable the way that lady do keep names in her mind?"

"An' Don't She Walk Foine and Straight?"

cried he. "An' don't she walk foine and straight? Oi've been always towld thim southern ladies had the gran' way wid 'em; Oi see now 'tis thrue." The unusual richness of Haley's brogue was a sure sign of feeling. The colonel only looked grim. After he had taken Haley to a safe nook for his confidence, a nook where there were neither ears nor eyes to be feared, he would have made his way upstairs; but half-way down the office he was hailed by the manager. The manager was glad to hear that the young gentleman was safely back. He let the faint radiance of an intelligent, respectfully tactful smile illumine his words and intimate that his listener would have no awkward questions to parry from him. The colonel felt an ungrateful wrath, a reprehensible snare of temper which did not show in his confientially lowered voice, as he replied: "Mighty lucky, too, we are; the boy's all right; but San Francisco is no place for an innocent kid even to take the safest-looking walk. What sort of a police system have you, anyhow?"

The manager shook his head. "I'm not bragging about it; nor about the Chinese quarter, either. I confess I've felt particularly uncomfortable, myself, the last day. Well—if you'll excuse the advice—least said, you know."

The colonel nodded. He proffered his cigar-case; the manager complimented its contents, as he selected a cigar; and both gentlemen bowed. A wandering, homesick Frenchman, who viewed their parting, felt refreshed as by a breath from his own land of admirable manners. Meanwhile, the colonel was fuming within: "Confound his insinuating curiosity! but I reckon I headed him off. And who would have thought," he wondered forlornly, "that I could be going to dine with the boy safe and sound and be feeling so like a whipped hound!"

But none of this showed during the dinner at which Millicent was in high good humor, having obtained information about most astounding bargains in the Chinese quarter from Mrs. Wigglesworth. Her good humor extended even to Miss Smith, who received it without enthusiasm, albeit courteously; and who readily consented to be her companion for the morning sally on the distressed Orientals, whose difficulties with the customs had reduced them to the necessity of sales at any cost. Aunt Rebecca listened with an absent smile, while Archie laughed at every feeblest joke of his uncle in a boyish interest so little like his former apathy that often Miss Smith's eyes brightened and half timidly sought the uncle's, as if calling his attention to the change. Only a few hours back, his would have brightened gratefully in answer; now, he avoided her glances. Yet somehow, his heart felt heavier when they ceased. For his part, he was thankful to have his aunt request his company in a little promenade around the "loggia," as she termed it, overlooking the great court.

TO FRESHEN YOUR LAST YEAR'S WARDROBE.

If there are grease spots on your white felt hat brush them thoroughly with a brush dipped in a hot solution of soda or ammonia. Then cover the hat with a paste composed of pipe clay and awter mixed with a little precipitated chalk. Leave this paste on until it is thoroughly dry, when it may be brushed off.

A black dress may be freshened by sponging with alcohol mixed with water in the proportion of one part alcohol to three of water. Sponge on the right side, and press on the wrong.

Hot vinegar is said to cleanse black silk perfectly.

Chiffon may be washed in a soap lather by rolling and pressing between the hands, and afterward it may be rinsed in clean water and stiffened in gum water mixed in the proportion of one tablespoonful to a quarter of a pint of water. Roll in a cloth to absorb a part of the moisture, and iron along the selvedge of the wrong side.

To clean old steel buckles, take some emery powder, and make it into a paste with some oil. Apply this carefully to the buckles, and leave it for a few moments, so that it may soak well into the rust. Remove thoroughly with a soft rag dipped in oil, and finally polish with a clean cloth.

White plumes may be cleaned by letting them soak in gasoline until the soiled spots are loosened, when they should be thoroughly rinsed in clean gasoline. Another method is to rinse the plumes in a large mouthed bottle containing a suds of castile soap and lukewarm water. Change the suds as often as may be necessary, and afterward dry by waving in the air and curl with the back of a knife blade.

Silver sequins may be cleansed by mixing one-fourth cup whiting, one-fourth cup water and one-half ounce of liquid ammonia, and after shaking these well together by applying to the sequins by means of a piece of flannel. They hould afterward be polished with a clean rag.

Light velvets may be cleaned by rubbing gently with a piece of flannel that has been dipped in kerosene oil. To clean the wrong side, first raise the pile by darwing a hot iron over it.

Velvets may also be washed or dyed like other goods if care be taken not to rub or wring them. If it is a large piece pin it to the clothesline where the wind will whip it; but if the pieces are small, then baste them to a piece of cloth before putting them on the line. The wrinkles will come out, and the velvet when dry will look like new.

"This," said the dear girl, as she led the way into a secluded little nook in the conservatory, "is what papa calls his 'match-box.' Everybody comes in here to propose."—Life.

THE HOUSEKEEPER MAY ECONOMIZE.

Many housekeepers are unaware of the little points that make for economy in the home. Care and thought will save many, many pennies.

Pillow cases will last longer if, when they begin to wear, they are unripped at the bottom and before being seamed up again, are folded so that the seam at the sides now comes to the middle. In this way the whole pillowslip will get about the same amount of wear.

A safety pin makes a capital substitute for a bodkin when running a tape in casing. In fact, it is sometimes superior to a bobkin for the purpose, for the point of a bobkin is apt to pierce thin materials, and its eye often comes unthreaded. The plan is to put the tape on the pin and then to use the closed pin as a bodkin.

White kid gloves may be rubbed with cream of tartar, and if only very little soiled it will make them look like new. Really soiled gloves should be rubbed with a piece of flannel dipped in benzine. Allow the flannel to almost dry before using it, and afterwards rub the gloves till clean with bread crumbs, changing the crumbs directly they become soiled.

FAVORITE FABRICS OF THE SEASON.

Ottoman silk is used for the construction of "between-time" hats. They serve for afternoon wear, and can be worn at the restarants.

Velvet embossed chiffon will have an inning this winter in house dress.

Parma violet cloaks are worn by younger theatre-goers. The trimming consists of fine fur.

A single artificial rose, set in a rosette of gold, is used to adorn the trim little evening bodice to the one-piece garment.

Black and brown are combinations found upon the modish hat of today. It is really a good combination when properly placed and suits well a tailored style.

The sash holds its own these days and while ribbons are natural sash decorations. Satins cut in shapes to outline the girdle are now the accepted sash and girdle trimmings.

Cut balls of wine-colored glass are seen as settings upon hatpins.

A red cashmere dress for the little girl will be dainty iwth a white lace yoke and lace-trimmed sleeves. A few gilt buttons would look well upon the bertha, especially if lace decorated other portions.

Test the Green.

In selecting a paper for a room never get one in the shade of green that contains arsenic, neither select a dress of green which contains this poison. It is very easy to detect whether either article contains arsenic. A drop of ammonia will cause such greens to turn blue.

1909 FORD, 4 Cylinder, 20 H. P., with Magneto and 3 Lamps, $850; Roadster $825; Landaulette $950. F. O. B. DETROIT

SPECIFICATIONS.

ENGINE—Four-cylinder, 3¾ bore x 4-inch stroke, 20 H. P. conservative rating.

CYLINDERS—Cast in one block, top removable, affording easy access to all parts of the engine. In case you should let your engine freeze and crack a cylinder, you can buy the entire block of 4-cylinders for the very low price of $25.00. This price is less than most factories charge for one cylinder, and removes the only possible objections a man could have against this method of construction.

IGNITION—Ford low tension magneto generator, built as part of the fly wheel. No gears, belts, brushes or contact points to give trouble. So simple in construction and so positive in operation, that it looks as though it would last forever without any attention from the owner. This system removes all battery trouble, one of the most annoying and expensive troubles.

STEEL—Heat treated Vanadium steel throughout. No car at $5,000.00 has higher grade, for none better can be bought. We defy any man to break a Ford Model T spring, axle, shaft, gear, or other part with any test less than 50 per cent more severe than would be required to put any other steel in the junk pile.

It has taken Ford two years and cost him $200,000.00 to acquire the analysis and the heat-treating and quenching formulas of this wonderful steel, as they are his own secrets.

LUBRICATION—No pumps, tubes or glasses to give trouble. The fly wheel acts as the distributing agent, and as long as there is a drop of oil in the tank your engine and transmission is sure to be taken care of.

TIRES—Ford Model T weighs only 1,200 pounds, therefore will take you more miles and cost you less for tires than any other five-passenger car in the world. The tire cost is really about the only expensive part of the running of an automobile. Be sure and give this subject your most critical examination before buying a car, as it means a good many DOLLARS in your pocket every time you wear out a set of tires.

HERE ARE THE FACTS—If a manufacturer designs and makes his car so heavy that he must equip it with a 32x4-inch tire,
It will cost you for a set of four tires $129.00
Four tires for a Model T Touring Car will cost 74.50
Difference saved every time you must buy a set of tires .... $ 54.50

This will buy a lot of gasoline and oil. All tires, regardless of size, are guaranteed by the tire manufacturer to run the same number of miles. So do not let anybody tell you differently. Ask them to show you the tire guarantee and it will show for itself.

DELIVERIES—We are booking orders for deliveries in rotation as received, or by placing a small deposit with your order we will deliver you a car when you want it in the spring.

BE SURE TO SEE the Ford exhibition at the Grand Central palace auto show January 1 to January 7.

WE guarantee all new cars sold by us free of repairs for three months.

MR. TOWNSEND'S MESSAGE

Mayor Makes His Annual Recommendations to the North Plainfield Conucil.

DWELLS ON CONSOLIDATION.

He Urges Joint Action, Holding that City and Borough Will Eventually Be United.

Following is the annual message of Mayor Samuel Townsend delivered to the North Plainfield Council last night:

"North Plainfield, N. J.,
"January 8, 1909.

"Gentlemen of the Council:

"I shall at present briefly discuss some few questions of borough interest, leaving other important ones for a later communication.

"It is gratifying to state that the general good order of the borough during the past year has been of a high character. Our police force has been efficient, and considering the size of it, remarkably so. It speaks well for our people when we consider the figures of the recorder giving the small number of arrests and convictions for crime.

Fire Department.

"The freedom from disastrous fires during the past year is a cause for congratulation. The fact that we have been so fortunate is no guarantee that we shall continue to be so favored. Therefore, it is the part of wisdom to see that our organization is kept up to the highest state of efficiency consistent with our means.

"It is gratifying to know that when called upon our firemen have always responded promptly, and have done good work.

Streets.

"I recommend that on the business portion of Somerset street there be used this year a preparation for preserving the macadam and keeping down the dust. As these preparations have now been used quite extensively, the experience of other municipalities should be of value in making a selection.

"I would call your attention to the fact that above Greenbrook road there is no direct way of travel between Somerset street, and the fairly well built up section of the borough lying to the westward. I suggest that a very desirable improvement could be made by opening up either Stony Brook place or Fritz place through to Grove street, connecting with Cedar or Walnut street.

"I would ask you to consider the advisability of grading and macadamizing Watchung avenue above Coddington avenue and also the laying of a storm sewer sufficient in size to take care of the surface water. The cost of such improvements to be partially assessed against the property immediately fronting on the proposed new portion of the street.

"As the petition to the Board of Freeholders asking for the acceptance of Greenbrook road has been favorably acted upon, I would suggest, when the work of macadamizing has been done, that West End avenue from Rockview avenue to Greenbrook road be macadamized, provided that a fair proportion of the expense be borne by the property owners benefited.

"I recommend the laying of a storm sewer on the lower portion of Rockview terrace to take care of the surface water flowing to the brook along this street.

Assessors' Maps, Street Grade Maps and Street Numbering.

"I called your attention sometime ago to the condition of the assessors' maps which have not been revised since the year 1897. The work of revision was authorized, but on investigation I found that the method of locating property by block and street number which we are using, is a system that is now being used in communities of our size. The modern method is by street number and this method I think we should adopt; but in order to have it done properly, our whole system of street numbering should be revised. To do this will cause some inconvenience, but once properly done, it should be for all time.

"I suggest for your consideration the advisability of having made new grade maps for the streets. The ones we now have were made in the year 1887. Since that time the grades of a number of streets have been changed, and where they have not been, the methods now used are so different that the old maps are of little use. The result being that in giving a grade for a curb or a sidewalk more time is consumed by the engineer with consequently greater expense to the borough.

Greenbrook.

"The control of the stream that is the dividing line between the borough and the city of Plainfield seems

FAVOR EARLY CLOSING

Pending Passage of Ordinance Borough Saloonkeepers to Close at Midnight.

TO SIGN AN AGREEMENT.

Joseph A. Blatz Appears Before North Plainfield Council on Liquor Dealers' Behalf.

The borough's "eleven o'clock closing" ordinance was withdrawn last night at the meeting of the Council. It had passed the first and second readings at the December meeting and would no doubt have passed the final reading last night, to go into effect on January 31, but Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed had advised that there might be some question as to the legality of an ordinance partly passed by one Council and finally passed by another, the reorganization for the new year having taken place since the ordinance was first acted upon. It was therefore withdrawn and later introduced by Councilman Smalley, without any change except in the time for its going into effect, which provides for a later date, March 1.

Before a vote was taken on its adoption, there was some discussion as to whether the closing time should not be extended one hour. Counsel Reed was of the opinion that if this was done there would be no opposition in the courts from the liquor dealers, whereas the 11 o'clock hour would probably stir up strife, and as there was some doubt about whether the New Jersey courts would uphold this method of regulating the sale, he feared that the ordinance might be defeated entirely.

Joseph A. Blatz, proprietor of the Chatham hotel, addressed the meeting in a plea for the 12 o'clock closing hour. He said that he voiced the sentiments of the other saloonkeepers of the borough in that, though the law now permits them to remain open all night if they so desire, they would be perfectly satisfied to shut up at 12, and they were willing to promise that there would be no noise or disturbance in the streets fifteen minutes after that time. He said he felt that by 12 o'clock he had done enough for one day and would be content to sacrifice the hours between that time and morning for which the county licenses him to sell.

There would be no objection, he thought, from the Plainfield dealers and argued that as his patronage between 11 and 12 was the after-theatre crowds, it would be depriving good citizens of the privilege of having a drink before going home.

On being questioned by Counsel Reed, Mr. Blatz stated that all of the dealers in the borough would agree not to fight the ordinance if it were made to read the later hour, which the counsel declared was a point worth considering as, if the ordinance stood for one year it would be safe. While the chances were in favor of the 11 o'clock closing ordinance being sustained, he could not say that it would stand. The question would come as to whether the restrictions are reasonable, the borough in this case being up against Plainfield, which closes at 11, giving the borough an hour longer. Counsel Reed said that he had reason to believe Plainfield would extend its closing time to 12 o'clock if the borough should determine on that hour.

Mayor Townsend suggested that the borough saloonkeepers sign an agreement to close voluntarily at 12, beginning next Monday night, and see how it is carried out; in the meantime acting upon the passage of the 11 o'clock ordinance and it could be changed to 12 o'clock before the final reading if the plan was found practical. The mayor wanted to treat the dealers fairly in the matter, especially those who comply strictly with the law. "Mr. Blatz is a good citizen," said he, "and keeps order in his place. If all were run as he does his there would be no trouble."

It was finally decided to carry out the plans suggested by the mayor, Mr. Blatz promising to secure the signatures of the others to the agreement, and the ordinance, on being re-introduced by Councilman Smalley, was adopted on the first and second readings. It provides for 11 o'clock closing but can be changed before its final passage at the next meeting.

Proctor's Fine Program.

There will be an unusually fine program at Proctor's theatre this evening. There will be a monologue by James Morton, one of the high grade monologists reproduced by the camerphone, and an entirely new program of life motion pictures. A change of illustrated songs and lecture.

DAVID W. ROGERS DEAD IN SIXTY-SIXTH YEAR

David Westcott Rogers, for many years one of the leading business men in the city, died shortly after 7 o'clock this morning at his home on West Second street. He had been ailing for a long time with Bright's disease but had been confined to his bed only for the past three weeks. His condition has been serious for several days and the end was not unexpected.

Mr. Rogers was born at Prescott, N. Y., sixty-five years ago and was the son of Nathan and Experience Rogers. Shortly after attaining his majority he came to Plainfield with his father and they engaged in the sea food business on West Second street in the store where James Clawson now conducts a grocery. The father afterward retired and the place was continued under the firm name of Rogers & Brothers, C. Albert Rogers being the new member. The brothers later dissolved partnership and David Rogers established a meat market in the Coriell building on West Front street but he conducted it but a short time. He returned to West Second street in the building where he had been before but in the next store and again began the sea food business. He continued it with great success until ten years ago when he retired because of his health. His business career had extended over a period of thirty-three years.

Mr. Rogers was a member of the old volunteer fire department in Plainfield and at one time was foreman of No. 2 Engine Company. He also served a term as a member of the Board of Fire Commissioners. He was a member of Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, but outside of that was affiliated with no organizations. He leaves a wife and one son, R. Burnett Rogers, of West Fifth street; also one brother, C. A. Rogers, of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Titsworth.

The funeral will be held at his late home on Monday afternoon at 2:30.

Benevolent Council Installs.

Past Councilor Runyon installed these officers of Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., last night: Councilor, A. L. Trenchand; vice-councilor, Edward Honeyman; junior past councilor, W. H. Cubberly; chaplain, Joseph D. Moon; recording secretary, James Compton; assistant recording secretary, George Cole, Jr.; financial secretary, G. A. Ballantyne; treasurer, Henry Adams; warden, A. M. Ferris; conductor, Clark Lowery; inside sentinel, Raymond Carver; outside sentinel, G. S. Martin; trustees, A. Carter, A. G. Adams, A. N. Wyckoff. The installation was followed by speeches and a collection.

Boys' Cases Put Over.

In the city court, this morninf, William Schorb and Amos Stites, owners of the peanut vending machines broken open and robbed, preferred separate charges against the three boys arrested for the offense, George Martial, Walter Foster and Howard Scott. Because of the absence of Mrs. Williamson, the probation officer, the cases were adjourned until Monday morning and the boys were released in the custody of their parents until that time. The machines and contents belonging to Stites that were stolen were valued at $60, while Schorb's loss is placed at $30.

STATE'S CHILDREN WORK

Hugh F. Fox Tells What New Jersey is Doing for the Unfortunate Young.

WARDS PLACED IN HOMES.

Movement to Raise Prohibited Age Limit for Labor to Sixteen Years.

"The Children of Good Fortune," was the subject of an interesting talk given by Hugh F. Fox, of this city, before the Plainfield Mothers' Association, last night. The meeting was held in the parlors of the Plainfield Public Library and there were at least forty members present.

During the course of his remarks, Mr. Fox, who is the president of the State Board of Children's Guardians, gave an excellent idea of the dependent, delinquent and defective children in New Jersey, showing what has been accomplished in this State, especially in places where parents have failed to realize their full responsibility in the care of their children.

The speaker paid deserving tribute to former Governor John L. Griggs, who, when the State executive, fifteen years ago, refused to sanction institutional work for children, it being his idea that they should be placed in private homes, rather than huddled together in an institution.

Since that time fifty-two per cent. of such children have been adopted in various homes throughout New Jersey and the other remaining forty-eight per cent. have been boarded in country homes by the State, paying $1.50 a week for each child thus placed. Mr. Fox also referred to the manner in which the State Board of Children's Guardians, follows up these children and good results alway follow. The highest tribute was paid to New Jersey for this work, Mr. Fox adding that there is no State today that is in advance of this one in the care of such children. He said that the question had resolved itself into a business proposition and there is now much civic pride evidenced.

Reference was also made to the child labor laws of the State, which prohibits the employment of children under fourteen years of age. An effort is now being made to secure legislation that will also prohibit the employment of children under sixteen years of age at night work. This is intended chiefly to stop the practice of the proprietors of glass factories in New Jersey employing such labor.

Mr. Fox explained that sometime ago it was found that workingmen employed in these glass factories were constantly making application for children at the headquarters of the State board, and an investigation disclosed the fact that while they would not risk the lives of their own children in these factories, they were sending other children obtained through the State into the factories to work. A stop was put to this at once.

Attention was also called to the conference to be held in Washington soon, at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, for the establishment of a National Children's department. He said that our representatives in Congress stand ready to carry out the will of the people and he urged those present to send letters to them requesting them to favor a law which will effectually stop this night work on the part of children under sixteen years of age.

HOPE BIBLE CLASS HOLDS ANNUAL DINNER

The Sunday-school rooms of Hope chapel were the scene of a very pleasant social affair last night, when Judge William N. Runyon's Bible class tendered the annual dinner to the leader. It was attended by thirty members of the class and officers in the chapel and was continued from early in the evening until midnight.

The dinner was excellent in every way and its close addresses were made by Judge Runyon, G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of the Sunday-school; I. W. Travell, the assistant superintendent; Rev. L. R. Howard, the pastor, and William H. Webster, who is soon to go to Labrador with Dr. Grenfell. During this part of the program, the judge was presented with a handsome, enlarged group picture of the class, Benjamin Evans making the presentation. The judge responded in a happy vein.

For an hour after the speech making, the guests enjoyed vocal and instrumental selections, the class leader contributing a number of them. The dinner is an annual affair conducted by the class and is one of the season's social events at the chapel. The committee in charge last night comprised William Baker, Harry Keen, James Harris, Hugh B. Sweeny and Alfred B. Marsh.

HOT STOVE STARTS A FIRE; LOSS REACHES $100.

An alarm of fire was turned in from box 42 shortly after 10 o'clock last night for a blaze in an auxiliary building of the Synagogue on New street and located directly in the rear. It was caused by the placing of a stove too near the wall on the second floor, the laths becoming ignited and spreading flames to the roof.

The apartments in the structure are occupied by Morris Gilman, the janitor of the Synagogue, and he gave the alarm. With the arrival of the apparatus only the chemical engine was used in putting out the blaze. The loss is placed at $100 and is covered by insurance.

Install Perseverance's Officers.

District Deputy Smalley and staff, of Bound Brook, installed the following officers of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., last night: Chancellor Commander, Charles A. Peterson; vice-chancellor, R. H. B. Dailey; prelate, Fred Douglas; master of the work, B. J. Schreiner; master at arms, Joseph Baker; inner guard, Frazee Putnam; outer guard, Peter Stram; keeper of records and seal, Clarence B. Rittenhouse; master of exchequer, Thos. Osment; master of finance, Edward Bowman.

Mrs. Caulfield's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Cormack Caulfield was held in St. Mary's church this morning, and was attended by one of the largest gatherings of relatives and friends at a requiem mass in a long time. The service was conducted by Rev. Father Bogan, assisted by Rev. Father Hogan and Rev. Father Schiolla. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

IN HONOR OF LINCOLN

Program of Union County Celebration for Martyr-President's Centennial.

AT ELIZABETH ON FEBRUARY 12

Chancellor Magie to Preside—Father Gessner and Others to Take Part—Singing Society Engaged.

The Lincoln Association of Union county through its executive committee has completed arrangements for observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The exercises will be held in the historic First Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, Friday night, February 12, at 8 o'clock. Former Chancellor Magie will preside, the invocation will be offered by the Rev. Dr. Whitaker, pastor of the Presbyterian church in that city, and the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. Father Gessner, pastor of St. Patrick's church.

The organist will be Wenham Smith, and the Liedercranz Society will sing appropriate patriotic songs, in which, to a certain extent, the audience will be asked to join. Professor Bierbeck, a well-known elocutionist of New York, will read the "Gettysburg Address" and an appropriate poem. The orator will be the Rev. Dr. George E. Strobridge, of New York, one of the most eloquent orators of the Methodist Episcopal church. As a speaker on Lincoln, those who have heard him declare that he is unsurpassed.

After long and patient consideration of every possible plan for seating the audience, and after consultation with leading citizens, the committee has finally determined to reserve every seat in the church, which will accommodate about 1,200 persons and to sell the tickets there for at twenty-five cents each. Tickets will not be sold at the church, but at convenient points in Elizabeth, and elsewhere, to be announced later. None of the proceeds will be devoted to the defraying of expenses, but all will be given to some charity or charities to be hereafter selected. No person will be admitted without a ticket.

There are many expenses in the way of music, printing, decoration, payment for services, and other things, which make it necessary to raise about $600, the members of the committee feeling assured that this patriotic city and county would not pardon them if they provided a celebration at all unworthy of the great occasion; and to make it thus worthy requires considerable money. The committee desires to assure the public that it has sought to avoid extravagance on the one hand and niggardliness on the other, and that its estimate of required cost is a conservative one.

William W. Willett has consented to act as chairman of the finance committee in the collection of funds, and a cordial and liberal response is confidently expected, as he or his assistance may call upon the people of the county. There are those who believe that the people will be so eager and generous in their giving that Mr. Willett will have to ask them to stay their hands.

The members of the executive committee are: Ira B. Wheeler, chairman; Augustus S. Crane and Palmer H. Charlock, all of Elizabeth; State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield; Hamilton F. Kean, of Union, and H. B. Rollinson, of Rahway. The address of Mr. Willett is 440 Jefferson avenue, Elizabeth, and he would be glad to receive contributions even before he has the opportunity for personal appeal.

It is the desire and intention of the committee that this celebration shall be excelled by none in all this broad land on the coming centennial day; and if the people stand by them, as they surely will, this achievement is inevitable.

Able Speaker to Men.

An address of vital interest to every man who wishes his life to count for the most will be given in Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock by Irving E. Vining, of Columbia University. Mr. Vining's subject will be "Character and Character Types." The lecture is a discussion of the essential qualities of a sucressful character based upon thorough study and presented with clearness and force. Miss Lelia Druse will sing. All men are welcome.

G. O. P. to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Republican City Committee will be held at headquarters Tuesday night, when reports for the year will be presented and officers elected. The present officers have served during the past year with satisfaction and it is said that it is the intention to re-elect them for another term. A caucus will be held tonight.

RELIEF FUND NOW $781

Since Yesterday $86.50 Has Been Received for the Cause by This Paper.

MORE MONEY FROM BENEFIT.

Total Receipts of Entertainment $189.50—Individual Contributions Today Acknowledged.

Plainfield is responding splendidly to the appeal for aid for stricken Italy and expectations are now that the total fund to be sent in the name of the people of this city through the New Jersey Red Cross Society will probably reach $1,000. Today, $86.50 was added to the fund. Of this amount $19.00 represents belated returns from the sale of tickets for the benefit entertainment, bringing the total from that source up to $189.50.

The Daily Press acknowledges these contributions to the fund being raised through this paper.

ANOTHER GOLD MEDAL FOR THE PRUDENTIAL.

Phominent Life Insurance Company Receives Highest Award for Its Exhibit at International Tuberculosis Congress.

Newark, N. J.,—The Prudential Insurance Company of America has just been awarded a gold medal for its exhibit of charts and diagrams at the International Congress of Tuberculosis recently held at Washington, D. C.

The exhibit of The Prudential consisted of a series of charts illustrating, in a graphic form, the mortality from consumption in thirty different trades. The charts are derived from the extensive mortality experience of the Company, and no similar facts of occupation mortality have heretofore been made public by health authorities, or by other life insurance companies. The exhibit emphasizes the vast amount of ill health among workmen, resulting from continuous exposure to the different varieties of dust, and naturally has attracted considerable attention.

The carts are now on view in the Museum of Natural History, Central Park West, New York, and they will subsequently be shown in a number of cities throughout the country, as part of a travelling exhibit of the National Society for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, to which the same have been presented by the Company.

The award of a gold medal by the International awards for former exhibits made by The Prudential, and for which a gold medal was received at Paris in 1900, the grand prize at St. Louis in 1904, and a gold medal, also the highest award,. from the Jamestown Ter-Centennial exhibition in 1907.

BOY WHOSE FALL BROKE ANKLE MAY LOSE EYE.

While standing on the top of a ladder mending a basket on the basketball courts at the Washington High School Thursday afternoon, Dudley Green, son of Rev. Dr. Rufus Green, of the Boulevard, Westfield, lost his foothold and fell to the floor, the ladder falling on top of him.

He received an ugly cut over his left eye, which, it is feared, will result in the loss of the eye. His ankle was broken. Young Green was brought to the offices of Dr. Frank Ard, in this city for treatment.

The Short and the Best.

"John," said a minister to his beadle one morning, "I would seem to have been more than usually successful in pleasing the congregation on Sabbath. To which of the three heads of my sermon would you attribute my success?" "Weel, sir," replied the beadle, with something like a leer in his eye, "to tell ye the truth, congregations noo-a-days concern themsel's less about the heids than the tails o' sermons. The ane you preached on Sabbath was considerably shorter than the general rin o' yer discoorses, and therefore a'body was weel pleased wi't."—Scottish-American.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY. DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION.

To all to Whom These Presents May Come, Greeting:

Whereas, It appears to my satisfaction, by duly authenticated record of the proceedings for the voluntary dissolution thereof by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders, deposited in my office, that the D. & I. Company, a corporation of this State, whose principal office is situated at No. 315 Watchung avenue, in the City of Plainfield, County of Union, State of New Jersey (Frank T. Ostrom, being agent therein and in charge thereof, upon whom process may be served), has complied with the requirements of "An Act concerning corporations (Revision of 1896)," preliminary to the issuing of this Certificate of Dissolution.

Now, therefore, I, S. D. Dickinson, Secretary of State of the State of New Jersey, do hereby certify that the said corporation, did, on the twenty-fifth day of November, 1908, file in my office a duly executed and attested consent in writing to the dissolution of said corporation, executed by all the stockholders thereof, which said consent and the record of the proceedings aforesaid are now on file in my said office as provided by law.

In Testimony whereof, I have hereto set my hand and affixed my official seal, at Trenton, this twenty-fifth day of November, A. D. one thousand nine hundred and eight.

S. D. DICKINSON,
Secretary of State.

(Official seal of the Secretary of the State of New Jersey.) 11 28 4oaws

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Delaware river has been running full of ice from ten to twelve inches in thickness.

Paulsboro is taking up the project for a new town hall by sale of stock, and shares are selling rapidly at $5.

The government is building a light on the jetty at Finn's Point, below Pennsville. It is to be a gas lamp, showing a fixed white light.

Nathaniel Stocker, of 31 Knickerbocker avenue, Paterson, was attended at St. Joseph's Hospital, that city, yesterday for an injury to his right eye. The physicians found that a small chip of steel was embedded in the corner. Stocker said he was at work on a lathe when one of the small pieces of metal struck him in the eye.

Harry Gilmore, the septuagenarian thief, who admits that he has spent more than thirty years in prisons for sneak thieving and working the furnished-room trick, was sentenced in the Hudson County Court by Judge Carey yesterday to eight years in State prison.

The Hudson County Republican committee will organize for 1909 tonight. There will be few, if any, changes in the official board. John Rotherham will be re-elected chairman, George M. McCarthy secretary and Henry Frank treasurer. The list of contributors to the campaign fund will be made public.

Discovery that orders given to poor folk of Atlantic City were being used to obtain cocaine led to an order by Acting Overseer of the Poor De Hart that no more orders would be given for medicines, unless his deputies are allowed to inspect the drugs. According to statements of De Hart, during his issuance of the new order some of the dupes of cocaine offered to go without food if allowed to trade the orders for the powerful drug. Investigation will be made to insure against the city furnishing the deadly poison.

Charged with brutally beating his wife, Patrick Lyon, of East Pear street, Burlington, was held under $300 bail for trial by Magistrate Smith, of that place, yesterday. The woman, it is alleged, was intimidated from preferring charges against her husband, and, although critically ill in bed, begged officers to release Lyon, lest he abuse her worse when freed. Sickened by the story told by witnesses, the magistrate expressed the hope that the prisoner, who has previously avoided arrest on similar charges, would get the law's limit.

The Civic Club of Bayonne yesterday decided to invoke the aid of Mayor Pierre Garven and the Council in securing pay-as-you-enter smoking trolley cars on the Jersey City-Bayonne line. A mass-meeting to boom the project will be held.

Becoming homesick, after being a fugitive from justice since October, 1907, Jesse Barber, a boy, who has resided in Philadelphia since the charge, planned a secret trip to his home in Bridgeton, but shortly after his arrival was arrested by Constable Edward Reeves, who committed him to the county prison to await the court's action.

Edward Hendrickson, seventy-six years old, and one of the best-known farmers of Mullica Hill, was walking beside one of his teams yesterday when he slipped and fell, the wheels of the heavily-loaded wagon passing over his leg, fracturing the bone. He was also cut in the head. His injuries were not thought to be serious, but Dr. Carr urged his removal to a hospital. The injured man was brought here to get a train for Camden, and while waiting at the station he expressed the hope that he might not survive the injury. In a few minutes a change overcame him and before restoratives could be administered he died.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Charles E. Waldron, who has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Brookdale Reformed church, Essex county, is now the pastor of the Methodist church at Phillipsburg, where he has been located for several years.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, has received a fine photograph of the late Fred Gray, and after he has an enlargement made of it will present it to the Holy Cross Boys' Club, of which the young man was president.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church announces the following cabinet for the year: President, Arthur R. Humble; first vice-president, Miss Ada B. Stark; second vice president, Mrs. I. Hart; third vice-president, Mrs. C. G. Sherwood; fourth vice-president, Miss Frances E. Weed; secretary, Edwin A. Brown; treasurer, Leslie Leland; Junior League superintendent, Miss May Randolph.

Whitehouse Station Hotel Sold.

The Union Hotel at Whitehouse Station, one of the oldest established hostelries in Hunterdon county, was sold last night by William C. Quirk, the owner, to Cleveland Shuster, of Blairstown, who will take possession about March 1. The consideration is said to have been $14,000.

NO TRADING STAMPS, BUT MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

January White Sale Begins Wednesday Morning

SPECIALS---Muslin Underwear, Embroideries, White Goods

Thousands of Pretty Fresh Garments of Undermuslins, Eight Thousand Yards Embroidery, Fifteen Cases White Goods

These were collected the past several months, at intervals whenever we were able to secure something better than usual; for we intended months ago that this white sale should attract your attention and its values that we meant to attract it with, such values as will call to your attention and impress you with our motto—No Trading Stamps but more for your money.

The low grade merchandise, the unworthy kind, that are made up especially for sales to catch the eye and not for wear, finds no room here. We recommend everythng we sell, and stand back of our recommendation. The white goods and embroideries will especially commend themselves to those who purchase now—because of the economy and the variety of the first selection.

LITERARY

"Instead of the Japanese gongs, which have so long been popular, a fad just now is to use a string of half a dozen or so old-fashioned sleigh bells," says Woman's Home Companion for January. "Polished, and hung in the dining room or hall, these afford a quaint ornament and a pleasant fay of summoning the family to meals. A string of them would make a charming Christmas gift and would not be expensive."

The January number of "Recreation," which brings the woods and waters nearer to the reader, is now for sale by all newsdealers. Besides containing a fascinating array of interesting and informing articles and stories for all Outdoor People, it has that other rare quality of pictorial perfection. Every one of its photographs is unusual and full of the spirit of out-of-doors. A partial list of the good things which apepar in January "Recreation" is as follows: "Hunting the Gray Wolf," by Brig.-Gen. Roger D. Williams; "Ski-Riding in America," by Frank Lynam; "Canoeing Around the Calendar," by F. M. Foulser; "The Recreation Houseboat," by Robert O'Connor.

In spite of the panic of 1908, the publishers of Lippincott's Magazine assert that the past year was one of the most successful in that periodical's long history. Many good things have been secured for the coming twelvemonth, a partial announcement of which was published in the December number. The January issue has an attractive table of contents, the leading feature of which is a complete novel, "The Flight of Robert Sevier," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, author of "Return," "The Grapple," "Of the Lion's Breed," and other popular books.

Scribner's Magazine for January, beginning a new volume, gives a good foretaste of the rich material of the coming year. The serial, "John Marvel, Assistant," is sure to be one of great popularity. Thomas Nelson Page, the author of it, has grown steadily in the hold which he has upon the best reading public. The novel, although beginning in Virginia, is not a sectional or local story. "It is primarily," says Mr. Page, "a love story, but a love story interwoven with the sterner questions of the day which are rife just now from one end of the country to the other. In my novel a young clergyman and an idealistic Jew work shoulder to shoulder in the effort to uplift humanity."

Ralph Henry Barbour has surpassed even the charm of his own previous efforts in the rapid-fire movement and absorbing breeziness of his latest novel, "A Fool's Wooing," which is published complete in the January Smart Set. To meet the conditions of an inheritance an impecunious young New York club man with bachelor propensities must marry within thirty days. The frantic search for an eligible parti, the terrific whirlwind wooing that ensues and the stormy progress of this made to order romance make a story that is one of the very greatest "thrillers" of the year.

Leading the Red Book Magazine's January contents is a startling article entitled "The Menace of the General Delivery," in which the author, Donald W. Wilkie, shows how this branch of the postal-service has become an accessory to crime. In striking contrast is a delightfully engaging and graceful essay by Richard Le Gallienne who writes of "Wives Made to Order."

In the January number of "Success Magazine," Charles Edward Russell begins a series of articles, "The Break-up of the Parties;" the first is entitled "The Republican Party—Its Glory and Decline." Robert Haven Schauffler writes on "Making ends Meet on a New England Farm." Cleveland Moffett continues his series on the waste of American wealth abroad in an article, "Fake Art and the Millionaire." Roland Phillips points out the practical phases of the forestry problem in "When the Wood is Gone."

The January Atlantic is of special interest, as it is the first issue of the new year under its new ownership.

The number is introduced as usual by the editor, Bliss Perry, with a paper entitled "The New Literature." Mr. Perry speaks again as the Toastmaster, but in a somewhat more serious vein than before. He discusses the ever-interesting question of magazine making, and its relation to our national literature.

"The Key to World Control," is the title of an article by John R. Winchell in the January number of the Metropolitan Magazine, dealing with the development of the airship as a power in war. The author claims that the United States Government is secretly experimenting with the most practical airship ever invented. He also suggests that other governments are working secretly, struggling to be the first in the field with me nof war of the air.

Ray Stannard Baker, who in the American Magazine is describing how the church is taking up the healing of the sick and how physicians are using the mind and religion to assist them in their cures, says: "The chief trouble with the church is that it does not, after all, get to people, or get into people; the same is true of the hospital. Both are discovering in our march toward democracy, that nothing, finally, can take the place of the direct human touch.

THE ONLY WAY.

Many Plainfield Citizens Have Discovered It.

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world-wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

John W. Snedeser, 244 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all persons suffering from kidney complaint. I had this trouble for some time and was in a bad way. When I awoke in the morning I felt unrefreshed and during the day suffered from a dull backache. My condition gradually grew worse and I always felt weak, tired and depressed. My mother finally to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so with the very best of results. I am now entirely free from kidney rtouble and my back does not bother me in the least."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

That delightfully sentimental play, "Polly of the Circus," with Miss Fay Wallace as Polly, will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. The circus features of the show form a spectacular background, but the play itself appears regardless of this well conceived and finely presented atmosphere.

A clever dramatization of Charlotte Brone's novel, "Jane Eyre," will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night. The play tells a story at once strong and pathetic. The interest never lags, the comedy scintillates, the situations hold and the climaxes thrill. The play is staged superbly, there being nothing melodramatic in the treatment of the play, either in the setting or the adaptation. It is a comedy drama pure and simple, with a theme that will appeal to every woman's heart, and a virility that will leave its impression on the men as well. The cast includes such well known artists as Cuba Niblo, Alberta Lee, Laura Hulbert, Sadie Cregan, Violet March, E. Daniel Layton, N. R. Cregan, Lester Alden, William Gaskell, Jack Lacy, Herbert Hawley, H. C. Allison and others.

At the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday evening, the American humorist-tourist, will present his third pictorial Travel-Talk, which will doubtless prove the most popular, as well as the most timely offering of the series. The subject will be "Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps," an illustrated zig-zag journey from end to end of Italy, old and new, including ancient and modern Rome, as well as practically all of Southern Italy, which has been so recently devastated by the most appalling earthquake distaster of modern times. Many of the pictures were taken last summer by Mr. Niblo personally, in the various cities and towns that are now mere piles of pestilential ruin. Some of the most interesting views include character studies, paroramic photographs, and beautiful colored pictures taken in Messina, Reggio, Catania and their environs. The pictorial excellence of this Travel-Talk is unsurpassed by any of the series, the moving pictures especially are particularly fine, many of them are in color and presented for the first time in America. All of the photographic views and panoramic slides used by Mr. Niblo to graphically illustrate Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps, were colored in Italy by the most expert Italian colorists.

NAEBODY KENS YE.

(An Ower True Sang.)

Are ye daen ocht weel? are ye thrivin', my man?
Be thankfu' to fortune for a' that she sen's ye.
Ye'll hae plenty o' frien's aye to offer their han';
When ye needna' their countenance, a'body kens ye;

But wait ye a wee, till the tide tak's a turn,
An' awa wi' the ebb drifts the favours she len's ye;
Cauld frien'ship will then leave ye lanely to mourn;
When ye need a' their frien'ship then naebody kens ye.

The crony wha stuck like a burr to your side
An' vow'd wi' his heart's dearest bluid to befrien' ye.
A five-guinea note, man! will part ye as wide
As if oceans an' deserts were lyin' between ye.

It's the siller that doesn't, man! the siller! the siller!
It's the siller that breaks ye! and mak's ye, and men's ye;
When your pockets are toom, and nae wab i' the loom,
Then tak ye my word for't, there's naebody kens ye.

But thinkna I mean that a' mankind are sae;
It's the butterfly frien's that misfortune should fear, aye—
There are those worth the name, Gude send there were mae!
Wha, the caulder, the blast, aye the closer draw near ye.

The frien' wha can tell us oor faults to oor face,
And aye frae oor foes in oor absence defen's us,
Leeze me on sic hearts, o' life's pack he's the ace
Wha scorns to disown us when naebody kens us. —Contributed.

BASEBALL.

Connie Mack has enough collegians on his squad to place a whole college team on the field.

Question: If George Moriarty is wanted so badly by other teams, why isn't he a good man for the Highlanders to keep?

Catcher Wilson of the New York Nationals is said to be a "diamond in the rough." It is to be hoped he doesn't stay rough.

Whoever gets Kid Elberfeld this year will get an infielder with one of the most powerful whips that ever burned the air with the horsehide.

Arthur Eagan, the new catcher of the Athletics, is one of ten brothers, and a few years ago the brothers formed an all-Eagan nine of no mean ability.

As Mike Donlin is keeping in condition by gymnasium work every morning, there is reason to believe that he intends to play ball again the coming season.

Jimmy McAleer, it is said, has instructed Harry Howell to leave his spit ball behind him when he starts South next spring. Fine! No doubt Ed Walsh will do the same thing and Mathewson will cut out his fast ball, slow ball and fadeaway.

It wouldn't have been such a bad move by Stanley Robison if he had traded his whole team for Roger Bresnahan. He had to start out by getting a manager whom he thought capable of building up a winning combination in time, and he started out the right way. There isn't a man in the business who can stand behind the bat and direct a ball game better than Roger, and it is reasonable to suppose that a man of his ability is a good enough judge of material to build up a team with a fair chance. There's one thing sure, his men will be playing ball to the last minute, and if he finished well up in the second division this year look out for him next year.

Frank J. Farrell, president of the New York Americans, has arrived home from the big baseball powwow in Cincinnati. He said that the reinstatement of Hal Chase, his star first baseman, had been postponed until the next meeting of the National Commission in February because Chase's formal application had not been delivered to the commission in time for action. Farrell said there was no doubt that Chase would be restored to good standing but that the player would probably have to pay a stiff fine. Farrell was well pleased over the acquisition of Joe Ward, the Tri-State League infielder. He said that Ward had been represented to him as a star ballplayer and that when he closed the deal with Altoona for his release all of the baseball men in Cincinnati tendered their congratulations. The settling of the minor league tangle, Farrell declared, was an excellent thing for baseball as it removed all traces of friction and prevented trouble in the shape of a threatened invasion of some of the major league cities. Farrell declined to say whether any of the New York Americans would be traded or released, saying that such matters would be looked after by Manager Stallings.

never to have been definitely fixed, consequently it has been used as a receptacle for rubbish or various kinds including an occasional dead animal. As it is impossible to know from just which side the offense is committed, nothing is done to correct the nuisance. To be effective any corrective measures should be undertaken by some one responsible body representing both municipalities with full power to act. If our present laws are not sufficient, steps should be taken to secure legislation giving the power. Our borough Board of Health has recently taken this up, and I would be glad if they would meet and discuss the matter with the Plainfield Board of Health, and if the Borough Council would also co-operate with them to further the work.

Sewers.

"Negotiations with the city of Plainfield looking to the use of their sewer beds by the borough were halted by the suggestion of the Mayor of Plainfield, that an investigation be made of the advisability of constructing a main trunk sewer to some distant point. Acting on the recommendation, the borough joined with Plainfield and other municipalities and employed Messrs. Hering and Fuller, engineers, to do the work. A report is expected in the near future, and it is hoped that some practical plan will be the outcome.

Consolidation.

"You have recently received a communication from the Commission that has investigated and reported in favor of t he consolidation of the borough and city with the annexation of the borough to Union county. If the Council of the city of Plainfield will join with us, I think there should be prepared a bill to present to the Legislature designed to bring about such consolidation. That the two communities will eventually be one, I do not for a moment question; but the only way to hasten it is to bring the matter before he law making body.

"Respectfully submitted,
"SAMUEL TOWNSEND,
"Mayor."

Christian Optimism

A series of Sermons by

Rev. Dr. Chas E. Herring

Stop Worrying

In the first sermon our Lord preached, the sermon on the Mount, He warned His hearers against worry. Four times, in that short discourse did He say: "Be not overanxious about things, for your heavenly Father is constantly interested in your welfare." Be not over anxious about what ye shall eat and drink, about your raiment or about tomorrow, for about all these things do the Gentiles worry." Who are the Gentiles? Those who do not possess your faith. You are a Christian man and profess faith in God, then don't be overanxious, for your heavenly Father knoweth all your needs. We are apt to think of worry as peculiar to this age, but it is very evident from the repeated warnings of our Lord in this sermon that it was a great disturber of the peace of the men of His time.

There is a distinction between wise forethought and over anxiety. It is instinctive to make wise provision for the future. The lower orders of creation lay by for a rainy day, and why should not man make wise provision for the future? Christ does not speak against forethought but against worry. Forethought gathers from our past experience in order to more wisely plan for the future. Worry has been compared to a squirrel in a revolving wheel, it never gets beyond the place where it started, but worry is more than that. It saps a man's mental, physical and moral strength. It unfits him to cope successfully with the difficult problems of his life.

The story is told of a business man who, during a financial panic so worried over the outcome of his own business that he felt he could no longer keep it from absolute ruin. He was troubled not only for himself but for all those who must suffer loss with him. The writer who tells this story says that "his mind was enveloped in such a fog of worry, that he was fast losing his perspective and his capacity for decisive action just as he needed them most." His salvation came as he went into a lardge publishing house to telephone. At the side of the telephone he saw this motto: "When you get into a tight place and everything goes against you, until it seems you cannot hold on a minute longer, never give up. That is just the place and time that the tide will turn." The words fascinated him. He read them a second time. They suggested a new mode of thought and action and he repeated to himself, "I believe that's so, I believe that's so." He did believe it, and he left that office with a faith that he did not possess before; a faith that so cleared his mind that he fought his way successfully through the adverse circumstances of the time and saved his business. The panic had not changed in the slightest, but his attitude had changed, and it was that attitude of faith that saved the day for him. If he had kept worrying about the possible outcome of the panic, he would have unfitted himself to successfully deal with his financial problem. Worry is, therefore, a foolish expenditure of nerve force and it makes us less efficient.

Dr. McComb, in an excellent article in Harper's Bazar, tells us that the first need of a man who is ruining his life physically, morally, and spiritually with worry is "a philosophy which will harden his moral fibre and enable him to face life's emergencies with strength and resolution." Is not that philosophy a practical, positive belief in Providence—a belief that God is a living God, and that you cannot get away from His power and His love? Dr. McComb well says that "worry, in its ultimate analysis, is practically atheism." This is what our Lord meant when He said, "don't be over anxious. Don't worry about what you shall eat, what you shall wear, or whether you will have sufficient to keep you in your old age." Turn to the sixth chapter of Matthew again and read these words of the Master, "your heavenly Father knows what things ye have need of." Your future will probably, not be as dark as your imagination pictures it, for you have trained your imagination to be frightened over a telegram, or to read worse things between the lines of a letter than the letter was ever meant to convey. We really do "suffer in anticipation," and what we anticipate never happens.

Here is another remedy for worry. Think of the blessings of your life. Keep your mind fastened on them until you grow to appreciate them at their true value. You exaggerate the evil. You have a distorted view of life. You can get rid of the evil by dwelling on the good.

Horace Bushnell wrote his great sermon on "The Expulsive Power of a New Affection" because of an experience he had only a short time previous. He was riding on the top of a stage coach, when all at once he noticed the driver use the whip on one of the horses without any apparent reason. He asked why, and the driver explained that the horse was apt to shy at something in that part of the road, so he used the whip to give him a new idea. This suggested a new idea to Bushnell, and he wrote on the theme that if you would drive out the evil, expel it with the good. If you would stop the drain on your life by your constant worry, just think of the many rich blessings God has given you.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., re-elected its old officers at its meeting held Thursday night in the Library rooms. The officers for the term are Harry Goodwin, councillor; Harry Wade, vice-councilor; Charles Elliott, corresponding secretary; William Guest, financial secretary; William Spicer, warden; John Frazee, conductor; George Baldwin, inside sentinel; Squier Reick, outside sentinel; James Johnston, trustee.

Miss Louise Meyer entertained the members of the Epworth League at a social at her home on Front street last night. The members were out in force and several hours were pleasantly spent playing games and enjoying music. Refreshments were served.

The regular service will be held at the Baptist church tomorrow morning, preaching at 10:45, B. Y. P. U. meeting at 3:30, followed at 4:30 by the vesper service.

"Polly of the Circus," one of New York's best attractions last season, is Manager Counihan's offering at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

Miss Myrtle Shackleton, who has been spending several weeks with relatives at Oxford Furnace, N. J., has returned home.

Isaac Cruse, who has been visiting friends in town, has returned to his home in Rahway.

Rev. Mr. Dieterick will lead the weekly prayer meeting tonight at the Methodist church.

John Falery is visiting at his home at Dover for a time.

FORESTERS INSTALL AND HOLD SMOKER

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at last night's meeting accepted three applicants and initiated one, after which Court Deputy High Chief Ranger Charles J. McCarthy, assisted by Past Chief Rangers Louis J. Feiring and James M. Smith installed these officers-elect for the coming year:

Vice-Chief Ranger, Edward J. McCue; financial secretary, Joseph E. Kelley; orator, William Brown; senior woodward, Frank Winzenried; junior woodward, Martin Hansen; senior beadle, P. Harrington. The other court officers who were re-elected are as follows: Chief Ranger, Henry Hansen; recording secretary, James Patterson; treasurer, John R. Cline; junior beadle, Thomas Fitzgerald; trustees, Louis J. Feiring, John F. Casey; finance committee, Thomas Monsell, Martin Hansen; court deputy, Charles J. McCarthy; court physicians, Dr. H. H. Lowrie, Dr. C. A. Gesswein, Dr. A. K. Brennan.

After the installation the reports for the past year were presented. These showed that twenty-four members were initiated, three died, making the present membership 415. A large sum was disbursed for funeral and sick claims and the court is in good financial condition.

In the good and welfare a smoker was enjoyed by the large number of Foresters present and Deputy Charles J. McCarthy in a happy speech presented a handsome gold past chief rangers' jewel, suitably inscribed, to Chief Ranger Henry Hansen, the court's presiding officer last year and who was elected for another term. He thanked the members for their appreciation of his services. Following other remarks on matters pertaining to the court's interest a number signified their intention of attending the reception to be given by the united courts of Essex and Union counties to Supreme Chief Ranger Elliott G. Stevenson, of Toronto, on Tuesday night, January 12. During the social hour last night, refreshments were served and congratulations exchanged over the court's fine showing during the year.

ROUTINE WORK OF BOROUGH'S FATHERS

Resolutions were adopted by Councilman Smalley at the meeting of the Borough Council last night that the borough clerk, borough recorder and overseer of the poor renew their bonds of $500 each and that the tax collector renew surety bond for $10,000 and also his freeholder's bond for $2,500. The resolution of Counciman Stahl providing for the removal of the voting machines to the rear of the engine room at a cost not to exceed $5 was adopted.

Councilman Stahl also presented a resolution that the pile of old alarm wires in the rear of the fire house be sold to the highest bidder, which was adopted.

A resolution was adopted permitting W. G. Debele to make certain alterations in this property at the corner of Vine street and Park place. It is a one-story frame residence and he proposes to change it to a two and a half-story building with gables on both vine street and Park place.

The printing of the list of tax valuations was awarded to the Courier-News Publishing Co., whose estimate of $110 was the lowest. The lists must be out by February 15.

Councilman Stahl's resolution that the fire and water committee be authorized to make necessary expenditures for supplies between meetings of the Council, not to exceed $25, was adopted. Another resolution by him was adopted, authorizing the same committee to purchase three coats and five pairs of rubber boots, the cost not exceed $40.

The stationery committee was authorized to employ two men to make up a complete typewritten list of the tax valuations from the assessor's books, for the printers.

The report of the street department for 1908 showed a total expenditure of $5,993.43. Of this amount, $3,269.63 was expended for labor; time sprinkling, $568.74; sprinkling, water, $240; sundry expenses, $1,915.54. The receipts from various sources amounted to $284.29.

A list of the delinquents on the tax books was ordered prepared to be ready by the first Tuesday in February and the assessor and collector will be required to appear before the next meeting with the list and the reasons why the delinquents have not paid.

RECEPTION IN HONOR OF REV. DR. E. R. YOUNG

Samuel Bingaman, of East Ninth street, entertained a company of about sixty friends at his home last night, the guests including about twenty members of his Sunday-school class at the First M. E. church. Among others present were Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Joy, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rittenhouse, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Alpaugh.

It was an informal affair and an added pleasure was the presence of Dr. Egerton R. Young, who is to speak at Vincent chapel tonight. He gave an interesting talk on his experiences among the Cree Indians in Manatoba, and the description of many thrilling experiences held the closest attention of all throughout. During the social hour, refreshments were saved.

Dr. Young is perhaps one of the best known writers of stories for boys and girls and tonight he will give an illustrated lecture in Vincent chapel under the auspices of the Junior Epworth League. Today he is the guest of Dr. McCrea and tomorrow morning will preach at the First M. E. church.

Charles Houston, of Somerville, who has many friends here, and who has been an engineer on one of the two-hour trains between New York and Philadelphia for several years, has been transferred to the South Branch road of the New Jersey Central.

SCHLEIF PRESIDENT OF GESANG AND TURN VEREIN

One hundred men were present at the annual business meeting of the Gesang and Turn Verein in Sangerbund hall on Thursday night, when the yearly reports were read, showing the affairs of the organization to be in an excellent condition. These officers were elected: President, Stephen H. Schlief; vice-president, Frank Zellig; secretary, Walter Koeppel; financial secretary, August Wolf; treasurer, B. A. Paroubek. Installation will take place Tuesday night, January 19.

It is proposed to give a benefit banquet during the month for the families of Frank Soukup and Auguest Melcher. Another important event for the near future is an invitation masquerade ball to be held on the Monday after Ash-Wednesday.

MR. RENT PAYER

If you are tired of paying rent and want to own a home of your own, subscribe for some shares in the new series to be opened, Monday Evening, Jan. 11, by the

Union Building & Loan Association

Office 146 Park Avenue

For example, a loan of $2,000 costs $20.84 a month and it is estimated that a series will mature in eleven years, during which time you pay the association.

132 Months at $20.84, Total $2,750.88

A straight loan of a like amount at 5 per cent. interest costs

Interest 11 years	$1,100.00
Return of Principal	2,000.00
Total	$3,100.00

Showing a difference of $349.12 in favor of the association.

As an investment The Building Loan is the safest and best for the wage-earner or person of moderate means. Its funds are loaned but to its members on first bond and mortgage and they repay it in monthly installments together with the interest. The earnings are far greater than Savings banks or similar institutions. For the past ten years the earnings of this Association have averaged over nine Per Cent. Your money can be withdrawn at any time and after the first year with a certain percentage of the profits.

FATAL KIDNEY ILLS

Creep on People Through Neglect Symptoms.

Watch out for the forerunners of fatal kidney troubles, and you will be able to ward them off entirely by prompt action. Gravel or any sediment in the urine, bladder pains, smarting sensations, headaches, bearing down pains, etc., are everyday symptoms, as everyone knows. Soon other more serious symptoms appear as the kidneys grow worse—neuralgia, dropsy, rheumatism, dizziness, insomnia, heart trouble, pimples on face, bad blood, etc. All this shows blood impurities which the sick kidneys are too feeble to remove. Make them well and help them do their work by conscientiously using Menks Reno Pills, nature's marvelous aid. A single trial of them will prove things to you. At all drug stores or send fifty cents for a box postpaid to CHARLES W. MENK, Newark, N. J.

AMUSEMENTS.

A member of the William Collier company timidly approached the Frohman star lately, and on meeting with an unexpectedly cordial reception, stated that now the "The Patriot" is running smoothly, he wondered if he "might have a temporary leave of absence." The actor assured Mr. Collier that his nerves are in bad shape and that he feels the need of a rest in some quiet spot for a few weeks. "Well, I think that can be arranged," answered Mr. Collier; "Where do you think of going?" "Why, to Paris," said the actor. "Paris! for a rest?" yelled Mr. Collier. "Now I tell you what to do. You need not go as far as Paris. There is a nice iron foundry down here on Eleventh street. You go down there and I give you my word you won't be able to hear anything."

The end of the old year and the beginning of the new found the New York Hippodrome in the midst of the most prosperous season in its history. Since the season's opening in September an average of 82,000 people a week have been amused at the big playhouse. Two performances are given a day and no place of amusement in the world has a record of entertaining so many people. The Hippodrome itself is almost a township, for counting all of its various employees and adding them to the playing company, the chorus, ballet and circus over a thousand people are on the payroll. Every nationality is represented in the company, which, because of its permanency of location, seldom changes a member in the run of a season. The summer months are devoted entirely to the making of new productions. The bill for this season has proven the most successful since the Hippodrome was opened. It includes two big spectacles, the ballet and a complete circus.

Mrs. Fiske enters next Monday upon her ninth week in "Salvation Nell," her timely popular play of slum life, at the Hackett Theatre. The tremendous grip of the play and its realism have been generally recognized. Discussion of the play, its vivid pictures of underworld life, its powerful love story, its wonderful characterizations, its startling presentation of grave phases of life—is a chief topic of conversation in all New York—on the Bowery as well as Fifth avenue. Never has Mrs. Fiske had a finer part, or acted more convincingly than in the part of Nell who rises from a life of degradation to one of inspirational and spiritual heights. Nothing more illuminative of the spirit that prompted Mrs. Fiske to give "Salvation Nell" to the world could be found than the following extract from a letter written by Mrs. Fiske to a friend: "I 'am told that the truth of 'Salvation Nell' is disturbing to some persons. Perhaps some of those persons would digest, without difficulty, the sauve vulgarity of the sexual society play. My heart has always been in the slums and with dumb animals. The poor and the dumb know the truth about life. The others barely skirt it. In the luxurious quarters of the cities there are tragedies enough, but for the most part they are of our own making. They are born of the demons within, of our vanities and passions. There is in them more fantasy than truth. But down there in the under world they know. Down there we find the 'bitterness and cruelty' of life, but we find there other things besides—cheerfulness and happiness, and many beautiful things, among them generosity—almost an unknown quantity save among the very poor."

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps have extended invitations to the posts and corps in Elizabeth, Rahway and other nearby places to attend the joint installation of officers on Tuesday night at Reform Hall.

The Tricksters.

Mayor Speer, of Denver, was talking the other day about a pair of political tricksters.

"They gave themselves away," he said. "Don't tricksters always give themselves away? It reminds me of the two men who wanted to sell their corpses for dissection.

"These two men, miserably clad, called on the dean of a medical college in New York.

"'We are both on the verge of starvation, sir,' the spokesman said. 'We are well on in years, and it is clear that we haven't much longer to live. Would you care to purchase our bodies for your dissecting room.'

"The dean hesitated.

"'It is an odd proposition,' he muttered.

"'But is occasionally done,' said the spokesman in an eager voice.

"'Well,' said the dean, 'we might arrange it. What price do you ask?'

"'Over in Philadelphia,' said the spokesman, 'they gave us $40.'"—New York Tribune.

The Fur Toque.

Each week the turban grows in favor.

It is made of any kind of fur, is something of a shapeless mass, and rests well down on the head. It comes as low as three dollars and as high as forty. Its only trimming is a knot of satin, of gold or silver ribbon, or a bunch of flowers.

One can buy the latter and adjust them to the turban at home, and the total cost is slight. This headgear is worn with a fishnet veil caught on with an ornamental bar pin.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

We may be glad a man has made progress in religion, but better than progress is sincerity.—Rev. Bradford Leavitt, Unitarian, San Francisco.

World Growing Better.

The world is going from bad to better. Today is the best day in the history of the world, but tomorrow will be a better day.—Rev. C. F. Aked, Baptist, New York.

Gospel of Joy.

The gospel of Jesus was ushered in to give men and women happiness and joy without going to the world, the flesh and the devil for it.—Rev. F. W. Cox, Presbyterian, Providence, R. I.

Conversion.

Nothing but conversion can make the soul of man into a vast cathedral, and no man who understands the human heart will marvel that we must be born again.—Rev. A. H. C. Morse, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Cleaning Up.

A cleaning up should be a cleaning up and not a moving around. It will not mean anything, as a whole, to shovel up a load of filth from one place and simply move it to another.—Rev. Charles E. Guthrie, Methodist Episcopal, Washington.

Things That Make Life Fragrant.

The gentle traits, the modest qualities, the quiet tastes, the unobtrusive deeds, the unselfish attitude, the little attentions—it is just these small things which render our life fragrant, giving genuineness and character to our religion.—Rev. Abram S. Isaacs, Hebrew, Paterson, N. J.

What Christianity Does.

Christianity puts a man in the way of realizing the right kind of ambitions instead of the wrong kind. It warns us against seizing the shadow and letting go the substance. It gives us a scale of values which helps us against mistakes of judgment.—Dr. A. T. Hadley, Presbyterian, New Haven.

God's Purpose.

The purpose of God through this revelation for us is not knowledge alone. Men devote their lives to science and philosophy. His purpose is not physical power. It is not wealth and luxury. God comes through his word to give us eternal life and pardon from the power of sin.—Rev. Clayton E. Delamater, Methodist Episcopal, Providence, R. I.

Christianity and Labor.

It is my belief that the solvent for all our social ills is found in the words of Jesus and in the spirit he brought to this world. Christianity will help more than any other agency to solve the problem of capital and labor. It is my firm belief that in time the laborer will own the tools with which he labors and will hire from the capitalist what money he needs. The workingman, instead of working for the capitalist, will have the capitalist's money working for him.—Rev. Lyman Abbott, Congregationalist, New York.

Rendering Tribute to Christ.

There are three ways of rendering tribute to Christ—with the mind, the heart and the will. I do not appeal to your minds. No man of sense today denies the Christ. That day is past. I do not appeal to your hearts and work on your sympathies. It's easy enough to make women cry and get into a state of ecstasy so often mistaken for real surrender to Christ. I appeal to your will, for it's with the will alone that you must answer that great question, "What think ye of Christ?"—Rev. John Balcom Shaw, Presbyterian, Chicago.

Mankind's Need of the Church.

Man needs the church as a resting place for both body and soul. Many a man today would be a thousand times better off had he served more faithfully his God in the church when he was young, with a world of opportunities before him. It is not easy to live as we earnestly desire, even in the church, with all its hallowed influences thrown about us, but it is far more difficult to resist temptations independent of the church. It may be argued that some go to church in the morning and into the world the remainder of the day, but, even so, they are far better for the experience of having been in the presence of God and are kept the better from doing the things for which they would be sorry the next day.—Rev. Dr. L. M. Zimmerman, Lutheran, Baltimore.

The Clean Heart.

What is the clean heart? It is the heart which has a spontaneous delight in the triumph of truth wherever it takes place. The clean mind, the clean heart, belongs to the man who persuades himself that he shall do his share and is never envious because another at the end of the day's work has garnered more. He is interested not so much in the reapers as in the harvest, and whenever truth triumphs, whenever beauty is brought out of ugliness, wherever holiness is disclosed out of wickedness, his heart rejoices. The clean mind is the mind that has spontaneous delight in the true, the good, the beautiful, wherever found. The clean mind is the mind which continually puts the emphasis on the best things of its own life, that learns by experience what are its best impulses and ever more and more puts the emphasis on the very best side of its nature. That is the clean man, the man who looks for and believes the best in other people. He has no secret joy when some high idol is smashed. He has no morbid delight in recording moral accidents and prejudices. His heart has kept its native appetite, its fondness for clean, wholesome food. It is touched with that love which findeth the things that are worth finding.—Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, Unitarian, Washington.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 10, 1909.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Living for the day or eternity.—Heb. vii, 15, 16; Matt. xvi, 24-27.

God has given us a choice between two worlds—the present and the future. To give each the supreme place in our hearts and lives is impossible. We may have whichever we desire, but no man can have both. We cannot live supremely for both the present and eternity. The question, therefore, as to which one we shall live for becomes a most serious one. Shall we live for today or for eternity? Each one must answer that question for himself. There is no escape from it. We cannot dodge the issue. We cannot ignore it or neglect it.

It would seem that as between two such issues there would be no doubt as to our choice. When we compare time with eternity we would suppose that all would naturally say, "We will live for eternity." But the fact is that the natural tendency of mankind is to live for today, for the present. The present is seen, it is so real to us, and eternity seems so far away. Many therefore conclude that the present is sure and they will live for it and run the risk of there being an endless life beyond the grave. Yet what an awful mistake! The invisible is not unreal. Indeed, the unseen things even in this life are often the most real and most powerful. What power on earth is greater than gravitation? It holds the universe together. Yet it is invisible, unseen. What is more real and more inspiring than a mother's love? Yet who ever saw a mother's love? If we can believe in the reality of the unseen in this life, much more should we believe in the reality of the future life, though unseen, upon the testimony of God's word and upon the cravings of our own hearts for immortality and since the immortality of the soul demands an eternity.

The temporality of this life should inspire us to live for eternity. "The things which are seen are temporal." All things that we see have been made. Once they did not exist, and hence they will at some time cease to exist. Therefore we should "look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen, for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." How temporal worldly things! Wealth, pleasure, fame, power, position, all may fade away in a day, and if they do not leave us we shall soon leave them and may be called to do so at any moment. What folly, then, to bound our lives by the cradle and the grave when their boundaries may be eternal! If we could gain all this present life it would not pay us if the price we paid were the eternal loss of our lives. Through Jesus Christ alone we may obtain eternal life. Let us accept it in Him and through Him give eternity the supreme place in our lives.

Eternity! Eternity!
How long art thou eternity?
As long as God is God, so long
Endure the pains of hell and wrong,
So long the joys of heaven remain.
Oh, lasting joy! Oh, lasting pain!
Ponder, O man, eternity!

Christian Endeavor's Firm Friend.

Rev. Jesse Hill is the new pastor of Williston church, Portland, Me., the church of which Dr. Clark was pastor when he organized the first Christian Endeavor society. Mr. Hill is forty years old. His boyhood was spent in Pennsylvania and Illinois, where he made muscle as a coal breaker boy and a farmer's helper. The son of a minister, he decided for this greatest of all callings and graduated from Oberlin seminary in 1893. Until he went to Williston church a few months ago his entire ministerial life had been passed in Ohio, where he was one of the most eloquent and able of ministers. He was made moderator of the State Congregational association, and other high church honors were bestowed upon him. Mr. Hill was a man of great influence in the community. A courageous and ardent advocate of temperance, he made insistent and effective war on the saloons, and he won the admiration of every one for his frank manliness. Mr. Hill's oratorical powers and buoyant good cheer will make him a favorite among Christian Endeavorers everywhere. He has always been a firm friend of Christian Endeavor.

She took him aside to tell him her afternoon experience, and to ask his opinion of the enigmatical appearance of Atkins. He was strongly tempted, in return, to question her frankly about Miss Smith, to tell her of seeing the latter with Atkins only that evening. He knew that it was the sensible thing to do—but he simply could not do it. To frame his supicions past or present of the woman he loved; to discuss the chances of her affection for a man loathsomely unworthy of her; worse, to balance the possibilities of her turning betrayer in her turn and chancing any damage to her benefactress and her kinsman for this fellow's sake—no, it was beyond him. He had intended to discuss his aunt's part in the waylaying of Keatcham, with calmness and with the deference due her, but unsparingly; he meant to show her the legal if not moral obliquity of her course, to point out to her the pitfalls besetting it, to warn her how hideous might be the consequences of a misstep. Somehow, however, his miserable new anxiety about Miss Smith had disturbed all his calculations and upset his wits; and he could not rally any of the poignant phrases which he had prepared. All he was able to say was something about the rashness of the business; it was like the Filipinos with their bows and arrows fighting machine-guns.

"Or David with his ridiculous little sling going against Goliath," added she. "Very well put, Bertie; only the good advice comes too late; the question now is, how to get out with a whole skin. Surprising as it may be, I expect to—with your help."

"Honored, I'm sure," growled Bertie.

"There is one thing I meant to ask you—I haven't, but I shall now. Instead of making it impossible for me to sleep to-night, as you virtuously intended in order to clear your conscience before you tried to pull me out of the trap I've set for myself, suppose you do me a favor, right now."

"You put it so well, you make me ashamed of my moral sense, Aunt Becky; what is it you want?"

"Oh, nothing unbefitting a soldier and a gentleman, dear boy; just this: Cary has to have some money. I meant to give it to Stoves, but you hustled him off in such a rush that I didn't get at him. You know where he is, don't you? You haven't sent him straight back?"

"I can find him, I reckon."

"Then I'll give you the money, at once."

How weak a thing is man! Here was an eminently cool-headed, reasonable man of affairs who knew that paws which had escaped from the fire unsinged had no excuse to venture back for other people's chestnuts; he had expressed himself clearly to this effect to young Tracy; now, behold him as unable to resist the temptation of a conflict and the chance to baffle Atkins as if he were a hot-headed boy in plain shoulder-straps!

"I'll do better for you, Aunt Rebecca," said he. "I'll not only take Fireless the money, I'll go with him to the house. I can make a sneak from here; and Atkins is safely downstairs at this moment. He may be shadowing Fireless; if he is, perhaps I can throw him off the track."

Thus it befell that not an hour later Rupert Winter was guiding the shabby and noisy runabout a second time toward the haunted house.

"Nothing doin'," said the joyous apprentice to crime; "I called old Cary up and got a furious slating for doing it; but he said there wasn't a watch-dog in sight; and the old man had surrendered. He was going to let him into the library on parole."

"You need a guardian," growled the colonel; "where did you telephone? Not in the drug store?"

"Oh, dear, no, not in such a public place; I've a shrinking nature that never did intrude its private, personal affairs on the curious world. I used the 'phone of that nice quiet little restaurant where they gave me a lovely meal but were so long preparing it I used up all the literature in sight, which was the Ladies' Home Journal and a tract on the virtues of Knox's gelatine. When I couldn't think of anything else to do I routed out Cary—I've smoked all my cigarettes and all my cigars but one which I was keeping for after dinner. And Cary rowed me good and plenty. There wasn't a soul in the room."

"Has any one followed you?"

"Not a man, woman or child, not even a yellow dog. I kept looking round, too."

"It was a dreadfully risky thing to do; you don't deserve to escape; but perhaps you did. Atkins may have come to the Palace for some other purpose and never have noticed you."

"My own father wouldn't have got on to me in that dinky rig."

Winter was not so easy in his mind. But he hoped for the best, since there was nothing else for him to do. They were in sight of the house now, which loomed against the dim horizon, darker, grimmer than ever. Where the upper stories were pierced with semi-circular arches, the star-sown sky shone through with an extraordinary effect of depth and mystery. All the lighter features of the architecture, carving on pediment or lintel or archivolt, delicate iron tracery of rejas, relief of arcature and colonnade—all these the dusk blurred if it did not obliterate; the great dark bulk of the house with its massive buttresses, its pyramidal copings and receding upper stories, was the more boldly silhouetted on the violet sky; yet because of the very flatness of the picture, the very lack of shadow and projection, it seemed unsubstantial, hardly more of reality than the giant shadow it cast upon the hillside. Electric lights wavered and bristled dazzling beams on either side of the street; not a gleam, red, white or yellow, leaked through the shuttered windows of the house. In its blackness, its silence, its determined isolation it renewed, but with a greater force, the first sinister thrill which the sight of it had given the man who came to rifle it of its secrets.

"Lonesome-looking old shanty, isn't it?" said the Harvard boy; "seems almost indecorous to speak out loud. Here's where we cache the car and make a gentle detour by aid of the shrubbery up to the arroyo to the north side of the patio. See?"

He directed the colonel's course through an almost imperceptible opening in the hedge along sharp turns and oblique and narrow ways into a small vacant space where the vines covered an adobe hut. Jumping out, Tracy unlocked the door of this tiny building so that the colonel could run the car inside; and after Winter had emerged again, he re-locked the door. As there was no window, the purpose of the hut was effectually concealed.

"Very neat," the colonel approved; whereat Tracy flashed his smile at him in the moonlight and owned with ingenuous pride that he himself was the contriver of this reticent garage.

From this point he took the lead. Neither spoke. They toiled up the hill, in this part of the grounds less of the nature of a hill than of an arroyo or ravine through which rocks had thrust their rugged sides and over which spiked semi-tropical cacti had sprawled, and purple and white flowered vines had made their own untended tangle. Before they reached the level the colonel was breathing hard, every breath a stab. Tracy, a famous track man who had won his H in a wonderful cross-country run, felt no distress—until he heard his companion gasp.

"Jove! But that hill's fierce!" he breathed, explosively. "Do you mind resting a minute?"

"Hardly,"—the colonel was just able to hold his voice steady—"I have a Filipino bullet in my leg somewhere which the X-ray has never been able to account for; and I'm not exactly a mountain goat!"

"Why, of course, I'm a brute not to let you run up the drive in the machine. Not a rat watching us to-night, either; but I wanted you to see the place; and you seem so fit—"

"You oughtn't to give away your secrets to me, an outsider—"

"You're no outsider; I consider you the treasurer of the band," laughed Tracy. They had somehow come to an unexpressed but perfectly understood footing of sympathy. The colonel even let the younger man help him up the last stiff clamber of the path. He forgot his first chill, as of a witness approaching a tragedy; there was a smile on his lips when the two of them passed into the patio. It lingered there as he stood in the flower-scented gloom. It was there as Tracy stumbled to a half-remembered push-button, wondering aloud what had become of Cary and Kito that they shouldn't have answered his whistle; it was there, still, when Tracy slipped, and grumbled: "What sticky stuff has Kito spilled on this floor?"—and instantly flooded the court with light. Then he saw the black, slimy pool and the long slide of Tracy's nailed sole in it; and just to one side, almost pressing against his own foot, he saw a man in a gray suit huddled into the shape of a crooked U, with his arms limp at his side and his head of iron-gray fallen back askew. The light shone on the broad dome of the forehead. He had been stabbed between the shoulders, in the back; and one side of the gray coat was ugly to see.

"Good God!" whispered Tracy, growing white. "It's Keatcham! they've killed him! Oh, why didn't I come back before!"

CHAPTER XIII.

Whose Feet Were Shod with Silence.

"Get out your revolver," ordered the colonel; "look sharp! there may be some one here."

But there was not a sign of life revealed by the search. Meanwhile, Winter was examining the body. His first thought was that Keatcham had tried to escape and had been struck down in his flight. Kito would not scruple at such a deed; nor for that matter, Mercer. But why leave the man thus? Why not dispose of the body—unless, indeed, the assassins had been interrupted. Anyhow, what a horrible mess this murder would make of the affair! and how was he to keep the women out of it! All at once, in the examination which he had been making (while a dozen gruesome possibilities tumbled over one another in his mind) he stopped; he put his ear to the man's heart.

"Isn't he dead?" asked Tracy, under his breath.

"No, he is not dead, but I'm afraid he'll never find it out," returned the colonel, shrugging his shoulders. "However, any brandy handy? And get me some water."

"I know where there is some brandy—I'll get it; there is some water in the fountain right—Cary!"

"What's the matter?" demanded Cary Mercer in one of the arcade doorways of the patio. "What's happened? The devil! Who did this?" He strode up to the kneeling soldier.

"You are in a position to know much better than I," said the colonel, dryly. "We came this moment; we found this."

"Cary, did you do it?"—the young man laid his hand on Cary's shoulder; his face was ashy but his voice rang full and clear. "If you did, I am sure you had a reason; but I want to know; we're partners in this thing to the finish."

"Thank you, boy," said Cary, gently; "that's good to hear. But I didn't hurt him, Endy. Why should I? We'd got what we wanted."

"Who did?" asked the colonel.

"I didn't and Kito didn't. He went away to see his only brother who is sick. He hasn't got back. I don't know who did it; but whoever stabbed him must have done it without warning him; for I didn't hear a sound. I was in the library."

"He's breathing a little, I think," murmured the young man, who was sopping the gray mask of a face while Winter trickled brandy drop by drop into the sagging mouth, "and—look! somebody has tried to rob him; that's a money belt!"

The waistcoat was open and Winter could see, beneath, a money belt with buttoned pockets, which had been torn apart with such haste that one of the buttons had been wrenched off.

"They seem to have been after money," said he; "see! the belt is full of bills; there's only one pocket empty."

"Perhaps he was interrupted," explained Mercer. "Push the brandy, colonel, he's moving his eyelids, suh!"

"We've got to do something to that hole in him, first," said the colonel. "Is there any doctor—"

"I daren't send for one."

"Tony Arnold might know one we could trust," suggested Tracy. "I can get him over the long distance."

"We want somebody now, this minute," declared the colonel.

"There's Janet Smith," said Mercer, "my sister-in-law; she's Mrs. Winter's companion; she used to be a trained nurse and a mighty good one; she could be trusted."

Could she? And how the terms of his distrust had changed! He had fought against an answer in the affirmative this morning; now his heart was begging for it; he was cold with fear lest she wasn't this conspirator's confederate.

"Send for them both," said he, with no sign of emotion.

"I'll call up Aunt Rebecca," said Mercer. "Isn't he reviving? No? Best not move him till we get the wound dressed, don't you reckon, colonel?"

But the colonel was already making a rough tourniquet out of his handkerchief and a pencil to stanch the bleeding. The others obeyed his curt directions; and it was not until the still unconscious man was disposed in a more comfortable posture on the cushions which Tracy brought, that Winter sent the latter to the telephone; and then he addressed Mercer. He took a sealed package from an inner pocket and tendered it, saying: "You know who sent it. Whatever happens, you're a southern gentleman, and I look to you to see that she—they are kept out of this nasty mess—absolutely."

"Of course," returned Mercer, with a trace of irritation; "what do you take me for? Now, hadn't I better call Janet?"

"But if this were to be discovered—"

"She wouldn't have done anything; she is only nursing a wounded man whom she doesn't know, at my request."

"Very well," acquiesced the colonel, with a long sigh as he turned away.

He sat down, cross-legged, like a Turk, on the flags beside the wounded man. Mercer was standing a little way off. It was to be observed that he had not touched Keatcham, nor even approached him close enough to reach him by an outstretched hand. Winter studied his face, his attitude—and suppressed the slightest of starts; Mercer had turned his arm to light another electric bulb and the action revealed some crimson spots on his cuff and a smear on his light trousers above the knee. The lamp was rather high and he was obliged to raise his arm, thus lifting the skirts of his coat which had previously hidden the stain. He did not seem aware that his action had made any disclosure. He was busy with the light. "That'll be better," said he; "I'll go call up Sister Janet."

How had those stains come? Mercer professed just to have entered. Vainly Winter's brain tried to labor through the crazy bewilderment of it all; Mercer spoke like an honest man—but look at his cuffs! How could any outside assassin enter that locked and guarded house?—yet, if Mercer had not lied, some one must have stolen in and struck Keatcham. Kito? But the Jap was out of the house—perhaps! And Janet Smith, what was she doing talking to Atkins? Had she given that reptile any clew? Could he—but it was his opportunity to rescue Keatcham, not to murder him—what a confounded maze!

And what business had he, Rupert Winter, who had supposed himself to be an honorable man, who had sworn to support the constitution and the laws of the United States, what business had he to help law-breakers and murderers escape the just punishment of their deeds? He almost ground his teeth. Oh, well, there was one way out, and that was to resign his commission. He would do it this very night, he resolved; and he swore miserably at himself, at his venerable aunt who must be protected at such a sacrifice, at Atkins, at the feebly moaning wretch whom he had not ceased all this while to ply carefully with drops of brandy. "You everlasting man-eater, if you dare to die, I'll kill you!" he snorted.

Thereupon he went at the puzzle again. Before any answer could come to the telephone calls, a low, mournful, inhuman cry penetrated the thick walls. It was repeated thrice; on the third call, Tracy ran quickly through the patio to a side door, barred and locked like all the entrances, released and swung it open and let in Kito. A few murmured words passed between them. The Jap uttered a startled exclamation. "But how can it to be? How? no one can get in! And who shall stab him? For why?"

He examined the wounded man, after a gravely courteous salute to Winter; and frowned and sighed. "What did it?" said he; "did who stabbed, take it 'way, he must give stiong pull!"

"Whoever did it," said the colonel, "must have put a knee on the man's back and pulled a strong pull, as you say." In speaking the words he felt a shiver, for he seemed to see that red smear above Mercer's knee.

He felt the shiver again when Mercer returned and he glanced at him; there was not a stain on his shining white cuffs; he had changed them; he had also changed his suit of clothes and his shoes. His eyes met the colonel's; and Winter fancied there was a glint of defiance in them; he made no comment, for no doubt a plausible excuse for the fresh clothes was ready. Well, he (Winter) wouldn't ask it. Poor devil! he had had provocation.

For the next half-hour they were all busy with Keatcham.

"He is better," pronounced the Jap; "he will not live, maybe, but he will talk, he can say who hult him."

"If he can only do that!" cried Mercer. "It is infernal to think that any one can get in here and do such a thing!"

"Rotten," Tracy moaned.

The colonel said nothing.

They were all still working over Keatcham when a bell pealed. Tracy started; but Mercer looked a shade relieved. "They've come," said he.

"They?" repeated the colonel. He scrambled to his feet and gasped.

Miss Smith was coming down the colonnade, but not Miss Smith alone. Aunt Rebecca walked beside her, serene, erect and bearing a small handbag. Miss Smith carried a larger bag; and Tracy had possessed himself of a dress-suit case.

Barred and Locked Like All the Entrances.

"Certainly, Bertie," remarked his aunt in her softest tone, "I came with Janet. My generation believed in les convenances."

All the colonel could articulate was a feeble, "And Archie? and Millicent?"

"Haley is staying in your room with Archie. Millicent had retired; if she asks for us in the morning we shall not be up. She has an appointment with Janet, but it isn't until half-past eleven. Randall has her instructions."

"But—but—how did you get here?"

Aunt Rebecca drew herself up. "I trust now, Bertie, you will admit that I am as fit as any of you to rough it. If there is one mode of transit I abominate, it is those loathsome, unsanitary, uncivil, joggy street cars; we came as far as the corner in the street cars, then we walked. Did we want to give the number to a cabman, do you suppose? Bertie, have you such a thing as a match about you? I think Janet wants to heat a teaspoonful of water for a strychnine hypodermic."

Death of G. L. Volck.

The funeral service of George L. Volick, cousin to Chief T. O. Doane, John H. Doane and J. Hervey Doane, of this city, will be held at 7:15 o'clock tonight from his home, 455 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, where he died on Thursday night in his sixty-fifth year. Mr. Volck was formerly a city weigher in New York. He was a native of Strasbourg, France, and came to this country in early life. He was a Civil War veteran and a veteran of the Twenty-third Regiment. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter. Chief Doane, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Doane and Mrs. J. Hervey Doane will attend the service tonight.

ELK BOWLING TEAM MAKES NEW RECORDS

The Elk's bowling team made things hum on Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night, when it met the Saengerbund delegation in a Fraternal league series. Beside winning the three gamse, the representatives of Plainfield lodge, No. 885, broke the high team score and one of the members, Francis J. Blatz, established a new individual record, a 247. The series was witnessed by a big delegation of rooters and both sides got plenty of applause for good plays.

DR. RAMSEY'S AUTO TURNS CLEAR OVER

New Brunswick, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Ramsey, wife of Dr. William E. Ramsey, of Perth Amboy; Miss Alice Brennan, of Brooklyn, niece of Colonel C. C. Weber, of Metuchen, and Alexander Conquest, a chauffeur, of Perth Amboy, are recovering from painful injuries received in an automobile accident on the Metuchen road, near the Hotel Pines, Thursday night.

Mrs. Ramsey was driving her husband's car at the time of the accident. In an effort to avoid the wagon of Harry Levine, a peddler, who was driving in the opposite direction, her car skidded into a rut. It is alleged that the peddler was asleep at the time and that his horse, unchecked, became frightened and got in the way of the machine. The car was turned over, and Mrs. Ramsey was pinned beneath it. She is at the hospital at Perth Amboy suffering from a fractured collarbone. Miss Brennan was bruised about the face and suffered concussion of the brain. The chauffeur escaped with a slight concussion of the brain. The car, a Buick, was wrecked.

Editors in Wrangle.

T. Thomas Fortune, who recently leased the Morning Daily Press, of New Brunswick, but who has not started the publication of the paper as yet, has preferred charges against William B. Prickitt, former editor of the paper, and Henry Austin, who had charge of the mechanical department, alleging that they have used the equipment of the office since he gained possession. Justice Sedam took the complaint, but no papers have been served. There is a dispute over the property. Mr. Prickitt claiming some of the equipment which has been leased to Mr. Fortune, and the dispute will have to be settled in the courts.

Rev. Dr. E. R. Young to Preach.

Rev. Dr. Egerton Ryerson Young, the noted author, lecturer and preacher, will preach at the First M. E. church, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The Epworth League service at 7 o'clock will be led by Miss Annie Perry. The topic will be "For Us Who Are Lost." The pastor, Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, will preach in the evening.

Henry Hess, of Spooner avenue, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia and the grip, is improving.

E. M. F. "30" 4 CYLINDER 30 h. p.

f. o. b. Detroit WITH Magneto, 5 Lamps, Generator and Horn.

If you are versed in the mechanical lore of motor car construction, you will find all you desire here. If you don't know, then you know someone who does know—and the more he knows about points that spell superiority in a car, the stronger will be his verdict in favor of the E. M. F. Read specifications below.

SPECIFICATIONS

HORSE POWER—30.

TYPE. 4 cylinder, Vertical, 4 cycle. Cylinders cast in pairs with water jackets integral. Water space between cylinder ensuring uniform expansion and contraction. Valves all one side. Mechanically operated. Interchangeable.

CYLINDERS. Bore 4-inch. Stroke 4½ inch. Compression—moderate. All experience has proven these cylinder dimensions to be nearly ideal for all kinds of service. They give a motor of moderate speed—which means long life. Cooling, lubricating and all other troubles which arise from short stroke, excessive bore, small exhaust valves and short bearings are entirely eliminated in the E-M-F. "30."

VALVES. Are extra large—2⅛ inches—made from special steel, drop forged. Stems and seats ground. Valve guides machined and pressed into place instead of being cast integral with cylinders easily replaced when worn.

All engineers agree that large valves not only make for efficiency, but also for economy. A four cylinder motor of 4 inches x 4½ inches may, by scientific design, accurate workmanship and large valves be made to develop 30 to 35 horse power at 1000 revolutions per minute, or it may develop 16—if valves are undersize or the design faulty in other ways.

VALVE OPERATION. Single cam-shaft made from high grade steel, drop forged with all cams integral. After milling, cam-shaft is case hardened, and all cam surfaces as well as bearings are ground to micrometrical accuracy—guarantees silent running and consistent performance at all times.

CRANK SHAFT. Is off-set ¾ inch from centre line of cylinders—still another increase in power efficiency with minimum of wear on cylinder walls and pistons. Crank shaft, drop forged from special steel. Three main bearings—all large and extra long. All bearing surfaces ground. Flange, forged integral on crankshaft carries fly-wheel—ground to ensure perfect centre. Fly-wheel is also given a running balance at maximum motor speed to ensure accuracy and absence of vibration.

PISTONS. Extra long—5-inch—ensuring good compression and long life. Each piston ground, fitted with four rings, and each set is weighed to ensure perfect balance of reciprocating parts—a talking-point with some makers—a matter of course with us.

PISTON PIN. Special case-hardened steel ground; drilled hollow to ensure perfect lubrication. Pistons, connecting rods, crank-shafts and all reciprocating parts are mechanically balanced to eliminate vibration.

LUBRICATION. Oil reservoir integral with aluminum crank case, maintains oil at a fixed level in crank case too much or too little oil impossible. Radius on one filling 400 miles.

COTTER PINS, lock-nuts, keys and taper pins are used at every point to guard against any part getting loose.

OIL CUPS. Are provided for every joint that may at any time require lubrication—steering knuckles, spring connections, operating shafts, etc.

IGNITION. Double system, consisting of a splipdorf magneto and battery. The magneto is not an extra or "special equipment." It is as much part of the E-M-F. motor as the valves, and is included in the list price of the car. Gears and all moving parts enclosed in oil tight, dust and water proof case. In this regard the E-M-F. car sets a pace for the world, high priced cars included.

ENGINE GEARS. Cam-shaft and Magneto gears all enclosed and separated from crank chamber. Gears lubricated by non-fluid grease—not cylinder oil.

COOLING. Is by large centrifugal pump—high efficiency at slow engine speeds ensuring cooling in hill climbing and hard pulling over muddy roads. Belt driven, stamped steel fan mounted on engine—not attached to radiator. Eccentric belt adjustment.

CARBURETOR. Improved simple float feed, single jet—our own design. Very flexible and economical.

CLUTCH. Improved expanding-ring type. Leather faced. Contained in fly-wheel. Oil groove in flywheel with holes drilled for escape of oil obviates all liability of clutch slipping from this cause. Takes hold gently—and holds when engaged. Adjustment, accessible and easy.

TRANSMISSION. Type—Selective sliding gear. Gear case integral with differential housing in rear axle—"the unit power transmission system" so generally approved by engineers of late. Gears made from E-M-F. formula special steel. Accurately cut and oil treated. Details of construction heretofore known only to the highest priced cars.

SPEEDS. Three forward and reverse—direct on third.

GEAR RATIO. Standard, 3¼ to 1. Speed of car, 50 miles an hour, down to 2, (you won't believe it till we show you) on high.

DRIVE. Direct through universal jointed propeller shaft to bevel gear on differential. Two universal joints. Pressed steel torque shaft. Gears extra large accurately cut and made from special alloy steel.

REAR AXLE. Live, semi-floating, E-M-F. exclusive design. Right and left housing sections drawn from sheet steel and heat treated, giving extra strength. Fitted with truss rods. Hyatt Roller Bearings in hardened and ground removable sleeves carry load. Differential thrust bearings, babbit between ground steel washers. No balls to split—no adjustment to get out of order. Made right to stay right. Thrust of drive pinion supported by Timken Roller Bearing.

All gears—transmission and differential—as well as all shifting mechanism, are immersed in an oil bath. And the transmission-axle case as well as motor crank-case are absolutely oil tight—no mucking of floor boards or dripping on pavements. Provision is made to prevent the oil working out at the axle ends when the car is left standing on an incline. Liberal road clearance.

FRONT AXLE. I-beam type. Drop forged in one piece—not welded in centre. Heat treated. Spring perches forged integral. Liberal safety factor. Steering knuckles and all connections drop forged from steel—no castings. Two-point ball bearings in hubs and all joints bronze bushed.

STEERING GEAR. Irreversible, worm and sector made from special steel case hardened. All bearing surfaces ground. Connection from steering arm, at right, to left knuckle arm, obviates all tendency to "crankiness" on rough roads.

TIRES. 32 inches x 3½ inches on all wheels. Morgan & Wright. Universal quick-detachable rims.

BRAKES. Four—all acting on rear hubs—none on transmission. Both sets double acting.

MUFFLER. E-M-F. design, silent. Silences by radiation—not by obstruction. Absolutely no back pressure.

FENDERS. Enameled steel in the newest style, most approved enclosed full length of the car type.

MATERIALS. Cylinders made from special formula highest grade, fine grain, gray iron. Intake pipe, brass. Exhaust pipe, gray iron. Crank case, aluminum. Frame, gears, springs, axels and driving shafts all made from special steels—each from an alloy best suited to its peculiar service, and all from E-M-F. formula. Operating levers, spring supports, spring clips, shackles, brackets, rod-ends, etc., steel, heat treated. All smaller parts, not drop forged, are pressed or stamped steel—no malleable castings enter into the construction of the car—maximum strength with minimum weight, and absolute assurance of the safety factor desired.

TOURING CAR. 5 passenger, roomy tonneau with liberal leg-room. Latest style, most approved, straight-line type. Handsomely finished.

The "SUBURBAN"—an E-M-F. innovation. A classy 4-passenger car. Rear seats detachable, leaving room for trunks and baggage. A rumble seat is included in regular equipment; when attached makes a natty 3-passenger roadster.

WHEEL BASE. 106 inches. TREAD. Standard—56½ inches.

WEIGHT. Touring Car, slightly under 1800 pounds.

GASOLINE CAPACITY. 15 gallons. OIL, 1 gallon.

COLOR. E-M-F. Red.

PRICE. With standard equipment, pair acetylene headlights, and generator; side oil lamps, tail lamp, lamp brackets, tube horn, tire repair kit and tools—magneto included of course—$1,250. F. O. B., Detroit, Mich.

We are selling these cars at a rate that promises to sell our entire allotment for 1009 in a very short time, and we strongly advise you to place your order without delay. Arrange for demonstration.

We guarantee all new cars sold by us free of repairs for 3 months.

FUND LEAPING UPWARD

Contributions Today Making Total Amount Received by This Paper, $826.

MRS. J. T. BAKER GIVES $10.00.

Y. M. C. A. Men's Meeting $6.30; Father Bogan $5.00. Councilman Herbert Buxton $5.00.

Indications are that the fund being raised by this paper for the New Jersey Red Cross Italian earthquake fund will aggregate $1,000, as in exactly eight days $826.80 has been contributed. On Saturday the total amount received was $783, and this was augmented today by the addition of $43.80.

Mrs. John T. Baker sent her check for $10.00. Councilman Herbert Buxton was the first representative of the municipal government to come to the aid of the stricken Italians, subscribing $5. As a result of a special collector at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting yesterday afternoon, General Secretary Parker turned in $6.30. Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's, sent his check for $5, with this note:

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"Please accept my donation herein enclosed for the suffering people in Italy. With congratulations and best wishes for your good work.

"Sincerely yours,
"B. M. BOGAN."

Jan. 9. 1909.

Frank Caruso, who has been doing good work by collecting principally among his fellow-countrymen, reported $5.50 today, "M. J." contributes $4.00, while "A Friend" gives $2.00.

The Daily Press acknowledges these contributions to the fund being raised through this paper.

HIS LIFE AMONG INDIANS

Dr. E. R. Young Takes His Audience Into Homes and Haunts of the Red Men.

IN HUDSON BAY TERRITORY.

Shows Some Fine Views Taken During His Forty Years Labors Among the Cree and Soto.

Rev. Dr. Egerton R. Young, famous as an author, lecturer, preacher and missionary among the Indians, gave an illustrated lecture in Vincent chapel, Saturday night, before a large audience, on his experiences as a missionary among the Indians of the Hudson Bay territory, preached at the First M. E. church, yesterday morning, giving further interesting details of his work and in the afternoon he spoke before the Sunday-school telling a number of stories of especial interest to the children.

In connection with his thrilling lecture on Saturday night, Dr. Young exhibited about one hundred fine views giving all an excellent idea of the territory where he worked as a missionary to the Cree and Soto Indians, relating many of the hardships encountered by him and his wife. Dr. Young was a pastor of the largest Methodist church at Hamilton, Ontario, when he was called to undertake the missionary work and his labors were most successful. He said that in all his experience with the Indians he had never found one that was faithless, not one had taken an article worth twenty-five cents from him.

On the other hand the Indians were always faithful and true and could be depended upon every time as friends. Dr. Young said that he was called upon to be doctor, dentist, surveyor, peace-maker, preacher and match-maker to the Indians and his experiences were often very amusing as well as serious.

During his talk Saturday night, Dr. Young presented one of his own books to Howard Hile as a reward for bringing the greatest number of new members into the Junior Epworth League, under whose auspices the lecture was given.

Dr. Young, instead of attempting to preach yesterday morning, devoted the hour to a recital of interesting stories of his work among the Indians and his remarks were encouraging to the members of the missionary societies present, showing that the money expended for sending missionaries to that people is well invested. In the afternoon Dr. Young delighted the children with Indian stories, speaking more particularly of the Sunday-schools established for the Indian boys and girls and how eager they are to learn about Christ.

COMPTON'S BUILDING SELLS FOR $40,000

The most important realty deal in business property since the sale of the Jackson building has just been closed; Cornelius K. Compton having disposed of his property on West Front street, known as the Compton building, to the Monarch Investment Company. The consideration was about $40,000. The purchase was made for investment purposes.

The property includes that part occupied by W. W. Warnock, the baker, and that used by H. A. Bonn, the milliner, together with several apartments above. The property and site is considered among the best in the business section. It was originally owned by the late L. L. Compton, for many years a well-known baker and confetioner, and since his death has been in the possession of Cornelius K. Compton. It is understood that there will be no change in the tenancies for the present. Mr. Warnock has a lease which has two years yet to run and Mr. Bonn also has a long lease.

Committed to Reform School.

Walter Foster, one of the boys arrested in connection with the peanut machine thefts, was committed to the Jamesburg Reform School by Judge Runyon this morning, his father stating that it was impossible to make him behave. Howard Scott and George Martial, the other two boys implicated, were turned over to the probation officer and some decision regarding their case will be announced on Wednesday.

Dedicated to John Leal.

"When Stars are in the Quiet Skies," is the title of a musical composition, the work of Clarence R. Lawrence, of this city, which is attracting favorable comment, especially because it is dedicated to John Leal, at whose school Mr. Lawrence was a student. The words are by Ed. L. Lytton.

FOUGHT WITH GUN IN A SUNDAY ROW

As a result of a fight yesterday afternoon which involved a number of negro men and women, "Pomp" Chandler, is now in the borough jail awaiting a hearing tonight to answer to the charge of assault with intent to kill, preferred by Lucey Dormley, the keeper of the boarding-house, located near the Mountain avenue brick yard, in which the fracas occurred.

The trouble started by Chandler remarking to the landlady that a certain man who had just come in with a young woman was married and had a family, and he didn't think it proper for the fellow to be out with other women. To this statement the Dormley woman took exception and received a "biff" on the ear. The complainant does not state what she threw, but named various articles of crockery, which she said Chandler used as missiles, and that he then ran up stairs and got a revolver. He snapped the gun three times in her face before it exploded, she declared, missing her by a narrow margin, and when she ran out of the house he chased her with a razor.

Chief George Weiss arrested Chandler this morning at the corner of Richmond and Fifth street, as he was delivering a load of coal for his employer. This prisoner admitted to the chief that he had used a gun, but declared that it had been necessary to protect himself; that the entire crowd of three women and several men attacked him and most surely would have killed him.

MR. LIE TO EXHIBIT HIS WORKS ABROAD

After a series of successful exhibitions and after completing some decorative work now on hand, Jonas Lie and Mrs. Lie, will sail for Europe by the Scandinavian American Line, February 4. They will arrive in the "Land of the Midnight Sun" at the height of the winter season, which Mr. Lie loves so well to paint and which has given him the enviable reputation amongst American artists which he holds today.

Mr. Lie is planning to paint largely in his own country and after completing some commissions for paintings in Christiania and having gathered material in the mountains and valleys, amongst peasants and fisherfolk, in the early fall will begin a series of exhibitions in Christiania, Copenhagen and if arrangements can be made, in Berlin, London and Amsterdam.

In order to show in his exhibitions abroad some of his American work, Mr. Lie will take with him "The Last Gleam," and "The Storm," recently exhibited in the National Academy, New York, where they attracted much attention. "The Heart of the Woods," at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and the "Witches Pool," at the Corcoran exhibition in Washington, will be left behind to go to the exposition in Seattle in June.

Mr. Lie has been requested by a number of admirers of his work to open his studio informally to the public before he leaves and he has consented to place on view the pictures still at his studio the third week in January, beginning January 17 and closing on the 23. A secretary will look after his interests here while he is abroad.

MRS. ANNA M. VANDER VOORT DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Anna May VanderVoort, widow of Francis Vander Voort, died early this morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien C. Sheppard, of Somerset place. She had been ailing for many years with heart trouble but had been confined to her bed only for the past two months.

Mrs. Vander Voort was born at Glen Gardner in 1869, but had lived in the city or borough practically all her life. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school and until her health interfered was a regular attendant and prominent worker. She was of a patient, Christian character and her long illness was borne without complaint, always ready to extend cheery words to those about her and adding more friends to her large circle. She leaves beside her parents, one sister, Mrs. Elmer Garretson, of Allentown, Pa., and two brothers, Edgar F. and Luther Sheppard.

The funeral will be held at her late residence, Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Bible Class Meeting.

Rev. A. E. Finn's Bible class of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold its annual business meeting on Monday night, January 25, at the parsonage.

PRISON IN MAN'S MAKEUP

Secrets of Inner Life Locked in Cell, Hiding True Character, Says Vining.

ALL HAVE CRIMINAL INSTINCT.

Irving E. Vining, in Talk at Y. M. C. A. to Men's Meeting, Defines Character and Character Types.

"Every man has a prison within him, locked in which are the secrets of his life, which he hides from the world." So said Irving Vining, of Columbia University, speaking to men at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon on the subject, "Character and Character Types." A man lives inwardly his own life; outwardly, he puts on a show of convention, the speaker declared. A boy lives an outward care free life from inward inspiration, and so his true character can be determined, but a man must be judged behind a mask.

"Many a man carries wounds within of which we do not know," declared Mr. Vining, "and we must know his inner life before we can judge him aright. A somewhat startling declaration was that, to be interested in the story of a murder or theft is an indication that one has a murderous or theiving instinct though subdued and locked tightly within; that it was natural for everybody to possess that istinct to a slight degree but it would require a powerful force to bring it out." He had no criticism or condemnation for the unfortunate people of the East Side in New York, who commit crimes, because they are forced to live with only one object, to preserve life.

A demonstration of the different stages of life showed that the character is formed in the first stage, between the ages of one and six. At that time the two instincts, love and fear predominate. The instinct of love gives courage, faith and self esteem; while fear develops anger, hate, leads to temptation, theft and lies. From six to eleven is the fancy free age; everything is bright and joyous and there is no responsibility; the habits then are based on instinct. At eleven the boy had become an old man, entering a new state of childhood. At this stage he had reached perfection in intellect and rounded out body. Between eleven and fourteen he is becoming child to the man. From fourteen to eighteen his character is aggressive; cannot be told anything. At eighteen to twenty-one the fear instinct comes in; his footsteps are guarded by fears; he questions his own ability. This is believed to be the check in his life provided by nature that he may be restrained from making rash moves and missteps.

On passing this stage his permanent habits begin to form and he exercises his will to do or not to do. Of the four types of character, the first was the forceful character, marked by impulsiveness Such a man loves risk and danger, and the doing of exciting things. The second type was the convival, a man who likes to have friends and be around where others are doing things. The third type is the austere; conscientious, an anchor of strong movement, thinks deeply and is given to moral reforms. The fourth is between the convivial and austere; rationally conscientious.

The lecture was lengthy but the speaker held the close attention of the audience which was one of the largest that has attended the afternoon meetings. He will speak again on Sunday, January 26, on the subject: "Development of Positive and Negative Character." Miss Lelia Druse sang two selections, accompanied by Dr. J. H. Buchanan.

CELEBRATED NINETEENTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Williams, of West Front street and Plainfield avenue, entertained a number of friends at dinner at their home Saturday night, in honor of the nineteenth anniversary of their wedding. An elaborate dinner was served, after which the evening was spent in a social way and Mr. and Mrs. Williams received the congratulations of their guests.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hoagland, Elston Hoagland, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Cadmus, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shotwell, Mrs. and Mrs. Freeman Shotwell and Mrs. and Mrs. Campbell MacKillop.

Fred Niblo on "Italy."

Don't forget Fred Niblo's graphically illustrated lecture on "Italy" at the New Plainfield theatre on Wednesday night. His superb views of the Italian cities will be supplemented by motion pictures. A percentage of the receipts will be donated to the quake fund being raised by this paper.

ROBERT NEWTON CRANE WEDS MISS CLARA PENN

In the presence of only the immediate relatives of the two families, Miss Clara May Penn, of Philadelphia, was made the wife of Robert Newton Crane, of East Second street, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's brother, Albert C. Penn, of West Seventh street, and was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Penn, attired in a becoming traveling suit of gray, was given away by her brother. Dr. Arthur B. Crane, of Washington, D. C., a brother of the groom, acted as best man, otherwise there were no attendants. While the words that united them were being pronounced, the young couple stood before a pretty arrangement of palms and ferns.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served in the dining room, the decorations being in pink, the bride's favorite color. There were twenty guests in all. Mr. and Mrs. Crane left later for a wedding trip that will include several points of interest and will return the latter part of the week.

Mr. Crane is a graduate of the Yale law school, class '07, and is one of the city's most successful young attorneys. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. U. B. Crane and is a member of several fraternal organizations and social clubs. His bride is a native of Philadelphia but has been visiting relatives in Plainfield for several months. Both young people received many handsome gifts.

COUNTY COMMITTEES' ANNUAL MEETINGS

The Union County Democratic Committee will meet for organization tonight at headquarters in the Lyceum building, Elizabeth. William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, is slated for re-election to the presidency Charles H. Moore, of Elizabeth, will again be the vice-president of the organization; Fred Zior, of Elizabeth, will be chosen secretary for another term and J. Williams Crane treasurer.

Few men have held office in a political committee so long as Mr. Zior. He has been secretary for the Democratic organization in this county for about fifteen years. On him has devolved the duty of looking after much committee work also. He is especially active in preparing each year for the annual outing and has already made arrangements for hiring a steamer for the outing to be held next summer.

The Union County Republican Committee will organize Monday evening, January 18. At the meeting to be held in the Dix building, Elizabeth, Frank H. Smith, of this city will be chosen for another twelve months to guide the destinies of the party in Union county. Mr. Smith has been for years at the head of the committee. He succeeded Hamilton F. Kean in that position. James C. Calvert will be made vice-president once more and James Warner secretary. Durward S. Smith, the treasurer last year, will not seek re-election to that office again. No one is spoken of as his successor yet.

MULDOWNEY OVERSLEPT; COURT CASE IS CONTINUED.

The case of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Muldowney and Mrs. Bertram Sherman, who were arrested two weeks ago Saturday as a result of a quarrel between the three at Front and Somerset streets, was called in the city court, this morning. The two women were on hand, but Muldowney was mising and no one present could give any explanation as to his whereabouts. Judge Runyon heard the stories of the wife and Mrs. Sherman and decided that they were not in the wrong, and dismissed the charge. Mrs. Muldowney stated that she and her husband had practically patched up their differences and preparing to live together again, the two having been separated for sometime.

The magistrate gave the police instructions to take Muldowney in custody as soon as he could be located, but shortly after the court session closed he came dashing into headquarters at a 2:40 clip. His appearance indicated that he had either been pulled through a knot-hole or had been exposed to the weather, and he explained it by saying that he had overslept and hurried to the station without taking time to get straightened out. The cops told him where he could borrow three alarm clocks and sent him home with instructions to return tomorrow promptly at 9 o'clock.

STIR IN CITY COMMITTEE

R. H. Mc Cready Charges H. C. Tracy with Posing as a Dictator.

GETS AFTER LOVELL, TOO.

Alleged Attempt to Force Townsend Out, Prompts McCready to Talk Plainly.

Declaring that Howard C. Tracy and Leander D. Lovell refused to support the appointment of a member in his district, thereby throttling the good work in that ward, Robert H. McCready made a stir at a caucus of the City Republican Committee on Saturday night. He followed up this assertion by alleging that these two men posed as rulers in the Second ward and sought to dictate to the other members what should be done.

The discussion arose over the plan to re-appoint William R. Townsend a member of the committee from the second district of the Second ward. Last year the constitution was amended to allow the appointment of additional members to the committee in each ward, but Mr. McCready asked for a ruling on the amendment. He said that the question resolved itself into one of whether each district and ward were to be allowed to make their own selections for membership in the committee or whether members from other districts are to dictate.

It was then that Mr. McCready declared that Mr. Tracy seeks to control the city committee by refusing to aprpove the confirmation of appointed members from other districts who would appear to be friendly to the organization. This fact, he said, he deplored deeply and held that such action would be contrary to the spirit and purpose of the party in Plainfield. The impression seemed to prevail that an effort is bing made to "drop" Mr. Townsend and elect one of the New Idea members in his place as secretary and treasurer of the committee. It being impossible for the members to agree on the appointments to be made, Mr. McCready's motion prevailed that the meeting adjourn until the amendment to the constitution is made clear on this point. The matter will come up at the annual meeting of the city committee tomorrow night and it is probable that the question will be settled at that time.

Former Mayor J. F. Buckle acted as chairman of the caucus, and the other members present included Howard C. Tracy, Robert H. McCready, Herbert Buxton, Amos Andrews, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., Harry C. Runyon, E. B. Cox and Leander D. Lovell.

TELLS OF HER WORK AMONG THE INDIANS

Miss Isabel Crawford in Indian costume delighted the Junior Missionary Society of the First Baptist church and their many friends Friday afternoon in the lecture room when she told them of the Kiowa Indians among whom she lived fourteen years. She described the Christmas festivities, on which occasion the Indians gave generously to their church and even missions because they believed that gifts should be given to Jesus on His birthday.

Miss Crawford's account of visiting the Sioux Indians who take part in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, was full of interest to young and old. She described in her inimitable way the surprise and delight of the Red men when a white woman addressed them in the Indian sign language. Her rendering of the 23rd Psalm in their sign language was most impressive. The Junior Society sang a number of hymns and repeated in concert the 23rd Psalm.

Miss Crawford was entertained at the home of Mrs. Reuben Knox and Friday night she left for Washington, D. C.

A Pleasant Surprise.

A surprise party was tendered to Miss Ella Cook, of West Third street, Friday night, when a large company of young folks spent the evening playing games and enjoying vocal and instrumental music by Miss Dorothy Hutchcroft, Miss Edith Swartz and Paul Buzby. There was also a vocal duet by Miss Elizabeth Seals and Miss Ella Cook; also violin selections by Miss Cook.

CONDEMNS SOME SHOWS

Rector Warner Declares Many Local Moving Picture Exhibitions are Immoral.

HE WANTS THEM REGULATED.

Refers to False Modesty of Parents in Not Telling Children Things They Ought to Know.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, addressed his congregation yesterday morning on public amusements in Plainfield. He severely censured some moving picture shows, stating that they had an evil influence on the youthful mind and that a large proportion of the audience are made up of children. He pointed out that proper films had a great educational advantage and that the motion picture shows for that reason should be encouraged but that they should be properly regulated by the city so far as the type of pictures they use are concerned.

Mr. Warner said in part:

"I feel it my duty to speak plainly and to the point concerning public amusements, particulary those which are offered to and patronized by children. In this frank appeal to you I would present the case with sane common sense, and as free from sensational utterance as possible.

"The theatre and the moving picture shows are of educational value of a distinct order, particularly the latter, where the appeal is made by way of object lesson presented in rapid motion, answering to the child's unconscious desire for action. The extent to which the educational side of the picture show can be used is being rapidly seized upon by educators and used to decided advantage. It is deplorable that the public venders of amusement, who are in the business for a legitimate financial profit and rightly so, should present that to the public which is neither amusing or instructive but on the contrary coarse, suggestive and postively immoral. There has been seen in moving picture places in this town a beautiful motion picture of the Life of Christ. In the same little theatre I saw two suggestive coarse exhibitions from French films that it was a disgrace to present to American people.

The suggestiveness of those films was indescribable and must have left their mark upon the minds of an audience which by actual observation was made up of two-thirds children. During holiday week I dropped in a new amusement place just opened, taking with me a boy to give him a holiday treat. During the performance the films presented in action one murder preceded by an action play depicting lust, treachery, conniving at crime and murder; another portrayed an attempted suicide; ghastly in detail, a third presented a picture of deceits and lies, of passion for gain, culminating in a suicide; at the same performance a moving picture tipsy man appeared in a bar room song and sang what is known in vernacular as a booze song. At the same performance some funny pictures and an instructive lecture met with much approval. After the performance I counted at least a dozen little fellows, without parent or guardian, coming from the gallery. They were judging from size and appearance, from seven to eleven years of age.

"Do the parents of Plainfied realize how serious is the problem of regulating a child's amusements? Are they aware of the harm of these object lessons of the base side of life as presented on the picture screen? If so, they are equally culpable with those who for profit imagine the public wants a picture not fit for children to see. There is so much in life by way of natural normal and healthful amusement for a child; out of doors, books, games, athletic sports, the things that can be enjoyed without money. To allow a child to attend school from 8:20 in the morning until nearly 3:00 in the afternoon and then hie to the close atmosphere of a theatre for an hour or more is a crime against health and children.

"I do not favor drastic abolition of such amusement places, rather I would favor a regulation of them which should be careful and effective.

"And now, just a word on another subject. There is a great deal of false modesty and cant among us; to such an extent that children are being deceived and lied to concerning the great mystery of human life and being. Fathers and mothers are shirking, delaying, avoiding the responsibility of securing the confidence of children and satisfying a natural and healthy curiosity. Only too often and deplorable in after results, the child secures the information desired at the hands of a coarse

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The trolley company has failed to bring proceedings against the man who terrorized a car load of passengers on New Year's Day by flourishing a revolver. It was said that he could not be found by the officer who went to arrest him but it seems that he has been working every day since at his old job. His offense was committed while under the influence of liquor. He had amused himself by riding back and forth through town, refusing to pay his fare each time. One conductor finally threatened to put him off and it was then the gun was brought out which caused the passengers to rush to the opposite end of the car for safety. The man left the car at Jefferson avenue unmolested.

There was an attendance of almost two hundred at the New Market firemen's masquerade ball Friday night in Friendship hall, netting a respectable sum for the new organization. Many Dunellen people were there and the other nearby towns were also well represented. Forty-five couples participated in the grand march, which was led by Miss Luretta Thornton and George Rinehart.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Failing in his efforts to buy Bill Dahlen from the Boston club President Ebbets lost no time in hunting up Harry Lumley and appointing him manager of the Brooklyn baseball forces for the coming season. Ebbets stopped at Syracuse on his way home from Cincinnati and met Lumley. There after a talk the arrangements were completed whereby Lumley is to assume the post of piloting the Brooklyns in 1909. Lumley said he was willing to undertake the task and would do the best he could, "and that," said Ebbets, "is all I can ask." The president informed Lumley that he would have to put forth his best efforts and make the team a winner, or he (Ebbets) would have to look for somebody else.

Lumley was captain of the Brooklyns last year. He has been playing right field for the Brooklyns for several years, coming from the Pacific Coast to join them. He is a natural hard hitter and a home run slugger of renown. He is a well appearing, well behaved chap and popular with his mates. Ebbets says he always has been set on having a player manager.

Lumley did fine stick work for the Brooklyns in 1906 and 1907, but fell off last season. In the fall of 1907 he broke his leg in sliding, but other players who have sustained similar injuries have come back and hit the ball hard, notably Mike Donlin. The Brooklyn outfield will consist of Lumley, Sebring and Hummel, and President Ebbets is willing to wager a beaver hat that this will be one of the fastest and hardest hitting outfields in the National League.

The Los Angeles Times contains the following: "Speaking of Chase, it brings a smile to his face whenever he reads all of the rot sent out of the East about his returning. Just stick a pin here and remember that he will be at first base for Moreing in San Francisco the coming season at a salary that will be more than any two men are drawing from the Coast League. Chase is through with organized ball unless there is no more of the outlaw hereafter."

GOLF.

These officers were elected at the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association, held at Sherry's, New York: President, Herbert Jaques, Boston; vice-presidents, S. H. Strawn, Chicago, and Milton Dargan, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary, R. C. Watson, Jr., Garden City; treasurer, W. F. Morgan, Baltusrol; committee, Jarvis Hunt, Chicago; C. T. Jafray, Minneapolis; J. S. Clark, Philadelphia, and A. M. Robbins, St. Andrews.

There were thirty-eight associate clubs represented by delegates or proxies, including Leighton Calkins, of the Plainfield Country Club. There is a complete change of officers, scarcely anyone out of the old list being retained. Secretary Morgan read Treasurer Heebner's report. It showed total receipts of $6,308, of which $4,470 was from dues, $438 as entry fees for the open, $724 for the amateur and $240 for the women's championship. Deducting all outlays the report showed $1,608 on hand besides the investment in New York bonds.

school boy or girl only half acquainted with the true facts of being. The great reverence, tact and delicacy springing out of a parents love which should surround the explanation of being is wanting and the adolescent youth or girl says why was I left in ignorance. Are the men who leave for business at an early hour and return late conscious of the young lives of their children, lived apart in their own little world; do they know what is going on in it.

"Ahe the men so money mad, or so indifferent and the women so society mad and irresponsible that they cannot realize the value of the little ones committed to their keeping. Christ said "take heed that ye offend not one of these little ones, for I tell you that their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven. If any offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he be cast into the sea."

In the City Court.

In the city court this morning, Harry Hussey, of West Front street, near Rock avenue, was fined $5 for disorderly conduct at his home Saturday afternoon. He was arrested on his wife's complaint. Walter Jenkins, arrested Saturday night, for intoxication, got off on suspended sentence.

Emil Closs Will Entertain.

The Men's Club of the Congregational church will hold its January meeting tomorrow night. An informal social evening will be spent with Emil Closs, of New York as the entertainer. Refreshments will be served and several maters of importance to the club will be considered.

Auction Sale of Furniture.

P. H. Latourette, auctioneer, will conduct an auction sale of household furniture at 602 Central avenue, tomorrow morning beginning at 10 o'clock. The list of articles to be sold is a large one and everything is in first-class condition.

Stole a Motorcycle.

The Westfield police notified the local authorities today to be on the lookout for an Indian motorcycle, stolen last night from Victor Bedell, of that place. The license number is 318 and that of the machine 3,-754.

REAL AUTOCRAT OF THE ROAD.

Commodore Vanderbilt Sole Ruler of His Railway Lines.

Commodore Vanderbilt, at the age of 80, was the greatest railroad autocrat this country has known. Nowadays railroad ownership is a complicated affair; Vanderbilt made it a one-man affair.

He managed his properties, spent many millions in their reconstruction, and manipulated their securities with absolute independence of all minority stockholders. That the public had any legitimate concern with his railroads would have struck the commodore as absurd. Once, upon the witness stand, he repeatedly replied: "None of your business," to a regularly authorized inquisitor who was attempting to get certain first-hand information concerning the Central's affairs. Before he obtained control of the Central its official reports were fairly complete; afterward they did not furnish the most rudimentary information. He had the utmost contempt for the law and its representatives. "Law!" he once roared, "what do I care about the law? Hain't I got the power?" Once observing that a Central director had not voted for a certain proposition which had been under consideration he asked the reason why. "Don't you know, commodore," his friend replied, "that each and every one of those transactions is absolutely forbidden by the statutes of the state of New York?" "My God! John," caid Vanderbilt, "you don't suppose you can run a railroad in accordance with the statutes of the state of New York, do you?"—Burton J. Hendrick, in McClure's.

LETTER GOT TO DESTINATION

But How It Did So Without an Address Is Not Explained.

A New York man who belongs to a Brooklyn club had an experience the other day that has impressed him with the ability of the post office.

The club sends out regular monthly statements of indebtedness in envelopes which have a piece of transparent paper set in so that the name of the bill shows through and thus saves work in directing the envelope. Occasionally notices of forthcoming club events are included in the envelope.

The last monthly statement the New York man got was fixed up so that only the printed lines announcing a club concert showed through the transparent part. The name on the bill didn't show at all, because that card was turned toward the back of the envelope.

There seemed absolutely no way, barring opening the envelope, by which the name of the person for whom it was intended could be discovered. The envelope arrived apparently as it had been posted, and the club man is wondering yet how the post office folks did it.

The Peculiar Camel.

A peculiarity of the camel is his dislikes—likes he has none, save for mimosa thorn and perhaps for dying. He hates red, and when in the first Nile expedition in 1884 some bright genius equipped the squadrons of the camel corps with bright crimson saddles, the animals so resented the outrage that numbers of them gave up the ghost in sheer disgust. He always, of course, hates man, and sometimes displays his vindictiveness in no uncertain manner. I have seen a dignified and elderly British officer, footing it all around the camp in blue silk pajamas, closely pursued by his own animal growling horribly, with its long neck stretched to the utmost and its savage mouth much too near that sleeping suit to be pleasant. At length a fatigue party was summoned who, with telegraph poles, young trees, railway sleepers and such affectionate cajoleries prevailed upon the foe to desist.—From T. P.'s Weekly.

A Queer Census.

"When I was last in India," said the globe trotter, "they were taking the census. The returns were most remarkable. In the Allahabad census 35 citizens described themselves as 'men who rob with threats of violence.' There were 226 'flatterers for gain.' There were 25 'hereditary thieves.' There were 29 'howlers at funerals.' There were 145 'ear cleaners.' There were 76 'makers of crowns for idols.' There were 14 'hereditary painters of horses with spots.' There were nine 'professional false witnesses.'

"It seems remarkable, doesn't it? Maybe, though, if we, too, told the strict truth to the census taker, our own census would seem quite as quaint as that of India."

Why Musicians Wear Long Hair.

"Why do musicians wear long hair?" said the barber. "Pshaw, I thought everybody knew that. They wear long hair to protect their ears, of course—their sensitive ears. All depends, with musicians, on the ears, the same as all depends on the eyes with painters. And the ears of musicians are delicate, liable to take cold, liable to aches, inflammations and what not. So they protect them with long hair, and you have no more right to laugh at the mane of a pianist or violinist than at the protective shields and pads of your favorite halfback."

Just Like a Man.

"Queer thing about the laughter of the average man," remarked the woman who observes things.

"What's queer about him?" asked the sweet girl graduate.

"Nearly every time he laughs it is at something he has said himself," replied the feminine observer.

The following appeal has been today received from the New Jersey Red Cross Society, on whose behalf The Daily Press solicits contributions in this city:

Editor, The Daily Press:

"The executive committe and officers of the New Jersey State Branch of the American Red Cross, met in Trenton on Thursady, and directed that a further appeal for funds be made for the Italian earthquake sufferers, who will require continued assistance in their distress, for many months. Will you in your next issue make a further appeal to the public and ask all banking houses, in your locality to act as depositories for Red Cross contributions, except where your municipal authorities have previously designated certain banks. All amounts collected to be forwarded by them to Hon. Daniel S. Voorhees, State Treasurer of New Jersey. Mr. Voorhees, who is also treasurer of the Red Cross, reports $4,248.80 which is in addition to the $1,000 previously sent from New Jersey to the National Red Cross Society in Washington.

"Very truly yours,

MR. RENT PAYER

If you are tired of paying rent and want to own a home of your own, subscribe for some shares in the new series to be opened, Monday Evening, Jan. 11, by the

Union Building & Loan Association
Office 146 Park Avenue

For example, a loan of $2,000 costs $20.84 a month and it is estimated that a series will mature in eleven years, during which time you pay the association.

132 Months at $20.84, Total $2,750.88

A straight loan of a like amount at 5 per cent. interest costs

Interest 11 years	$1,100.00
Return of Principal	2,000.00
Total	$3,100.00

Showing a difference of $349.12 in favor of the association.

As an investment The Building Loan is the safest and best for the wage-earner or person of moderate means. Its funds are loaned out to its members on first bond and mortgage and they repay it in monthly installments together with the interest. The earnings are far greater than Savings Banks or similar institutions. For the past ten years the earnings of this Association have averaged over nine Per Cent. Your money can be withdrawn at any time and after the first year with a certain percentage of the profits,

EARLY MORNING FIRE IN THE RINK BUILDING

Timely discovery by the watchman, Jerry O'Connor, probably prevented a serious fire in the skirt factory in the old rink building on Watchung avenue, early this morning. An overheated smokestack had started a merry blaze in the boiler room and the flames were making rapid headway when O'Connor's attention was attracted.

A still alarm was turned in at 2:40 and the apparatus was on the scene in a few minutes. Two lines of hose were streached in from the chemical engine and others were attached to hydrants but were not used. The flames were extinguished after a twenty minute fight. The loss is placed at $100, covered by insurance.

The rink building is one of the largest in the city and is so situated that should a fire get a good start it would lead to a big conflagaration. Chief Doane realized the fact as soon as he reached the place this morning and had the greater part of his apparatus on hand for any emergency.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Falling upon an icy step at her home in South Millville, Mrs. Somers Johnson fractured a hip.

George A. Birkhead, of Beverly, a former manufacturer, has gone to San Francisco to engage in business.

The annual meeting of the Gloucester County Historical Society will be held in the courthouse at Woodbury Tuesday.

The Vineland Firemen's Relief Association has elected Frank B. Potter president for the twenty-seventh consecutive year.

The engagement is announced of Miss Bertha Robbins, of Millville, and Rev. Horace S. Miller, pastor of the Heislerville Methodist church.

A turkey buzzard with a sleigh bell fastened on its neck has been seen flying about the vicinity of Canton the last few days.

While sawing wood with a circular saw Charles Hazelton, of near Woodstown, sustained a broken arm when a flying piece of wood struck it.

Playing with fire in front of a stove at her home Saturday afternoon, Annie Hulber, si years old, of 211 Berkeley street, Camden, was badly burned in the face.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Pearls must never be wetted, but should be exposed to the air as much as possible. Turquoises, too, are likely to change color if allowed to get damp. Opals must be kept from fire and heat, as a high temperature renders them liable to split and fall from their setting. Coral may be washed with soap and water.

Placing a mirror in a place where the sun's rays fall upon it often makes it look cloudy. The rays falling directly on the glass injure the mercury, and this causes the cloudy appearance.

Rub the stained parts of ivory, bone, etc., with a small piece of wet flannel dipped in powdered salt. Rub gently for a few minutes, and the stains will disappear.

Persevering Hunter.

"How did you find the steak, sir?" asked the waiter at the cheap restaurant of the man who had dined.

"By perseverance," was the reply, "It was hiding under a brussels sprout, but I tracked it down."

Morgan T. Townsend, of North Plainfield, was registered at the New Bingham Hotel, Philadelphia, on Saturday.

CONVINCED BY THE STATISTICS.

Point That Satisfied Maiden Aunt as to Expedition's Safety.

For five minutes after the automobile stopped before the door the rest of the family coaxed and argued before they could persuade the maiden aunt to get in.

"I am afraid the thing will blow up or something," she said, "and I certainly don't want anything to happen that will prevent my getting up to New Rochelle. I haven't seen Jennie for six months. I don't want to be fooled out of my visit to-day."

"Oh, you'll be all right, Aunt Mary," laughed the man who wore goggles and a mask. "You are not coming back, you know, and we are sure to get up there. Most automobiles get to their destination in safety. It is on the return trip that the machinery cuts up high jinks. Statistics on motoring prove that. Nobody attempts to explain the situation, but it is a fact that nine-tenths of the accidents that befall motorists happen when they are coming home. It seems as if Providence meant folks who own automobiles to have a good time and then pay for it on the way back."

Before he had finished talking Aunt Mary had climbed into the machine.

"Well," she said, doubtfully, "if you are sure about that I suppose I might as well go."

FLED FROM THREATENED WRATH

Conscience Must Have Worried Men Who Eavesdropped.

Two boys were out picking nuts, and they wanted to divide them equally between them, so they went over the fence into the cemetery and sat down among the tombstones to count out the nuts. While going over the fence they dropped two nuts, but didn't stop to pick them up. A man came along and heard them and stopped to listen and heard them saying: "One for you and one for me." "One for you and one for me," and he became badly frightened and ran away down the road, and met another man, who said: "What's the matter?" The first man said: "The devil and the Lord are up in the cemetery dividing up the people," and the second man said: "Oh, no, that couldn't be!" The first man says: "Yes, they are; I heard them." The two men went back to the fence to listen and heard them saying: "One for you and one for me." "One for you and one for me; now that's all;" and the other boy says: "Except the two at the fence, and that will be one for you and one for me." The two men ran away as fast as they could.—The News.

Comfort More Than Salary.

A man who happens to know that a stenographer who is earning hardly more than seven dollars a week is worth a great deal more than that to business men who require painstaking service, was wondering the other evening why she did not try to advance. From the girl's relatives it was learned that she lacks ambition, and that her salary, with some extra money she earns in outside work, is more than enough for her wants. More than that, she likes her employer and his methods of work and does not care to change.

In that frame of mind the girl would be unwise to seek a new position, for comfort is worth something in this life. The man who makes money his idol forgets that and he misses most of the sweetness of life. It is far better to ignore the matter of salary and work where we can be comfortable and happy than to earn a handsome salary under distressing conditions.

A Clubwoman's Troubles.

One of the annoyances of the clubwoman's life lies in the tickets that are pressed upon her and from which there seems to be no escape.

It is not unusual for the president of a prominent organization to find from 50 to 80 of these "invitations" in her daily mail, each inclosing from one to a dozen tickets, which she is expected to either purchase herself or dispose of among friends.

What is the victim to do? She cannot ignore the matter—there have been cases where the sender attempted to enforce payment for tickets not returned. "It is serious enough," says one of these grievously offended ones, "to be bombarded at receptions and teas, but when one has to sort over dozens and dozens before getting to one's personal notes, it is too much."

Dogs Didn't Last.

Sir Leopold McLintock, the Arctic explorer, who died recently, was once giving an account of his experiences amid the ice fields of the north. "We certainly would have traveled much farther," he explained, "had not our dogs given out at a critical moment." "But," exclaimed a lady who had been listening very intently, "I thought that the Eskimo dogs were perfectly tireless creatures." Sir Leopold's face wore a whimsically gloomy expression as he replied: "I—er—speak in a culinary sense, miss."

Healthful Bath.

A bath much favored by the Kneippists, along with the bare-feet habit, is formed from a solution of pine needles and pine cones. Cover with cold water about a pound of fresh pine needles and pine cones, broken in small pieces. Boil for half an hour, strain and add the solution to the bath. If you do not want to use the entire amount at once it can be bottled and kept for future occasions. This has a tonic effect both on the nerves and the skin. It can be used on alternate days with a bath of sea salt.

SLICK SWINDLER SCARES THE WHOLE FAMILY

Miss Nellie Ewing, daughter of Captain Isaac Ewing, of 37 Remsen avenue, New Brunswick, received a call from a stranger while in the office in which she was employed at 126 Fifth avenue, New York, Thursday, who told her that he had come from the morgue with the information that her father had been drowned and that he wanted her to go to identify the body. Miss Ewing almost fainted and some of the men in the office wanted to kick the fellow out for his brutal talk.

"Why, that ain't nothing," said the fellow, "I've got four more people to notify the same way."

The stranger described the captain exactly and said that he had fallen from his boat that morning and had been drowned. He also said that he had been to New Brunswick and had seen Prosecutor Berdine about it and he had told him to go to the New York office. The man was anxious to get money to ship the body to New Brunswick, but Miss Ewing called up her brother, William T. Ewing, who is employed at the Guggenheim office at Perth Amboy, who at once went to New York. Before the stranger left he got $3 for his expenses to New Brunswick.

When the son arrived he spent several hours trying to locate his father's body, and finally succeeded in reaching his father on the 'phone. In the meantime word had been sent to this city of the supposed death, the children had been recalled from school and the father was being mourned as dead. The stranger disappeared. Prosecutor Berdine, who is endeavoring to get track of the author of the cruel hoax, believes that he is a New Brunswicker, familiar with the family.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will hold the weekly sewing meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Edwin B. Maynard, of North avenue, preached in the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, Watchung, last night.

Rev. Dr. E. A. Wood, of Somerville, will lecture before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, tonight, on the subject of "A Tenderfoot Minister."

The local Christian Endeavor Union will hold a mass meeting at Trinity Reformed church, Thursday night, when Rev. C. A. R. Janvier, a noted missionary, will make an address.

Rev. W. E. Foote, of Freehold, who preached at the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday, also addressed the Sunday-school in the afternoon. There was special orchestral music.

Special meetings were held in the Salvation Army Hall, East Second street, Saturday night and all day yesterday, under the direction of Adjutant Mabee, Captain Larkin and others from New York. There was good music, singing and speaking.

The first anniversary celebration of the conversion of William Wright was held at the Plainfield Rescue Mission Friday night. Rev. Dr. Lane made the address, taking for his subject, "The Power of God." Superintendent LeMatty and others made helpful remarks.

The Plainfield Sunday school Teachers' Union will meet at Vincent chapel, tonight to listen to an address by Rev. W. E. Foote, of Freehold, State superintendent of teacher training. Superintendents and Sunday-school teachers are invited. There will be no meeting at the Y. M. C. A.

The combined choir and Cranford Choral Society which gave the oratorio "Elijah," at Cranford last week, will repeat the same at Grace church, early in February under the direction of William E. MacClymont, organist of Grace church. He had charge of the musical at Cranford, being director of that society.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and act on several applications for membership.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps will hold a joint installation of officers tomorrow night.

Governor Has Toothache.

Considerable amusement was created at the State House at Trenton, Friday, by reason of the fact that the Governor had to leave his offices before noon to go to a dentist, it being intimated that the trouble with his teeth was due to the dinner at Lakewood Thursday, when he had the members of the Senate for his guests.

Leo Kenney, of the borough, has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. Michael Moynihan, of Bound Brook.

George Horn, of Hackensack, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Horn, of the borough, has returned home.

Miss Loretta B. Snyder, principal of the public school at Keyport, and a former resident of this city, is the guest of Miss Marian C. Williams, of Putnam avenue.

PianoExtravagance

Consists Only in Buying the Wrong Piano at Any Price

As home entertainment is a necessity for the welfare of the family circle, and the fact that a good piano is the best investment you can make for increasing the pleasure of your home, the only mistake you can make is in buying the WRONG PIANO AT ANY PRICE. The purchase of a

Hallet & Davis Piano

is economy personified. You want your dollars to go as far as possible. You want the best at the right price. This is what you get in a Hallet & Davis, to say nothing of the quiet joy and satisfaction that inheres in the ownership of good and beautiful things ---this makes Hallet & Davis pianos true bargains.

Our small payment plan makes piano buying easy. Write for catalogues of pianos and special offerings in Player Pianos.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS

are the new Records that play twice as long as the regular Edison Records. Thus Amberol Records can be used on your present Edison Phonograph by the addition of a simple attachment or gear, and you can still play the Records you have.

Amberol Records not only play longer than any other Record now made, but they play better, their tone quality being richer, clearer and more delicate than has been possible in the past.

Let us put an attachment on your Phonograph or sell you an Edison Phonograph that will play both Records.

J. F. MARTIN INSISTS THAT HE WAS ELECTED

The Elizabeth Republican City Committee met last night, and after electing officers took a vote as to who should be recommended to Judge Atwater for morgue keeper to succeed John S. Sheler. There were thirty-three of the thirty-four members present. On the third ballot John F. Martin received 17 votes to 16 in favor of John J. Engle. The opponents of Martin claimed that a majority of the full committee was necessary to a choice, and the chair so ruled. Martin held his seventeen votes up to and including the ninth ballot. The next two were ties, and on the twelfth ballot Engle got eighteen votes and was declared the choice.

Mr. Martin will contest the result. He claims that as only a majority of those present are necessary under the constitution to pass an amendment to the constitution, and as eight members constitute a quorum, he was legally the choice of the committee.

The officers chosen were as follows: James White, president, and George J. Stewart, vice-president, both re-elected; Neil McLeod, secretary, and former Assemblyman John R. Moxon, treasurer.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Jane Eyre," a very ingenious dramatic version of Charlotte Bront's famous novel, by Peter G. Piatti, contains a broad message to all kinds and conditions of people. It is broad in its appeal, and touches upon one of the great questions of the day, viz: the mariage tie. This it does in a quiet, delicate manner, without shock to the sensibilities or offence to the most fastidious. "Jane Eyre" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tonight. Miss Cuba Niblo is the leading woman, portraying the character of Jane Eyre, and E. Daniel Layton as Rochester.

Those who had the pleasure of accompanying Fred Niblo on his personally conducted zig-zag journeys through Africa and Egypt recently, will welcome the announcement that Mr. Niblo will present the most timely Travel Talk of his interesting series at the New Plainfield theatre on Wednesday evening. The subject will be "Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps," and will include many interesting pictures of the principal cities in Southern Italy recently destroyed by the most appalling calamity of modern times. Messina, Reggio, Catania and their environs are all graphically portrayed. The emphatic success achieved by Mr. Niblo in his former Travel-Talks at this theatre has resulted in a constantly increasing demand for seats for this interesting zig-zag journey through the most picturesque land of perpetual sunshine and present over-whelming sorrow. Mr. Niblo will take his audience on a picture pilgrimage throughout Italy, old and new, embracing both ancient and modern Rome,, as well as all that is worth seeing throughout the length and breadth of Italy from Vesuvius to the Alps. Owing to the absolutely perfect climatic conditions prevalent at the time Mr. Niblo secured his photographs last summer, he was enabled to secure a wealth of illustrative material that far exceeds the pictorial features of any of his other Travel-Talks. The moving pictures especially, as well as the snapshot photographs are excellent. All views have been carefully colored by Italian artists. For the first time in America, Mr. Niblo will show a series of motion pictures in color.

CONTEST WIDOW'S WILL.

Children Object to Bequests for Religious Uses.

Because Bridget Krieg, of Elizabeth, at her death, left large sums of money to St. Michael's Catholic church, the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, St. Mary's Church, St. Mary's Guild, all of that city, and Bishop John J. O'Connor, her children are contesting the will on the ground that she was of unsound mind when she made it.

It is claimed by counsel for the beneficiaries under the will that Mrs. Krieg followed out the wishes of her dead husband in bequeathing her estate to charity. Timothy M. Kelly represented the beneficiaries of the will.

TUMBLE INTO CREEK.

Man, Wagon and Horses Roll Down 25-foot Bank.

Robert Brady, a contractor's driver, and a team of horses turned somersaults down a twenty-five-foot embankment at Trenton yesterday, and landed in Assanpink Creek, breaking through the ice and nearly drowning. John Heater, an East Trenton man, risked his life to rescue Brady, and then returned to the water and led the horses to shore in safety.

The accident happened while Brady was trying to dump refuse down the bank. Beyond a shaking up and a cold bath, neither Brady nor the horses suffered injury.

CHAPTER XIV.

From Mrs. Melville's Point of View.

The Palace Hotel, San Francisco, March 24, 1906.—My Dear Husband: Although I sent you a postal yesterday, I am writing again to-day to try to keep you in touch with our extraordinary series of events. Nothing has been heard from Archie except the letter,the letter—if he wrote it—which tells nothing except that his kidnapers use the same kind of writing paper as Miss Janet Smith. I grow more suspicious of her all the time. You ask (but of course you wrote before the recent mysterious and tragical occurrences), you ask do I like Miss Smith any better, now that I am thrown with her so closely. No, Melville, I have not the fatal credulity of the Winters! I distrust her more. She has, I admit, an engaging personality; there is a superficial amiability that would be dangerous to one not on her guard. But I am never off my guard with her. I'm sorry to say, however, that your brother seems deceived by her plausible ways. And, of course, our poor aunt is still her blind dupe. Aunt Rebecca has failed a good deal this last year; she is quite irritable with me, sometimes, but she does not appear to realize the full horror of this kidnaping. Miss Smith actually seems to suffer more; she looks pale and haggard and has no appetite. I do not think it all pretense, either; I dare say much of it is remorse! The situation is dreadful. Sometimes I think Aunt Rebecca will not yield to the demands of these wretches who have our poor boy, and that he will be mutilated or murdered; sometimes I think that they have murdered him already and are writing forged letters to throw us off the track. You can imagine how my nerves are shaken! I have seen hardly anything of the city; and of course have not gone into society at all. Indeed, I have met only one pleasant person; that was the secretary of the great financier, Mr. Edwin Keatcham, who was here, next to us. The secretary is a pleasing person quite comme il faut in appearance. I met him here in the court where he nearly knocked me over; and he apologized profusely—and really very nicely, using my name. That surprised me, but he explained that they had been on the train with us. Then I remembered him. His name is Horatio Atkins; and he is very polite. He is on a two weeks' vacation and came here to see Mr. Keatcham, not knowing he was gone. He was really most agreeable and so sympathetic about poor dear Archie. He agreed with me that such a nervous temperament as Archie's suffers much more from unkindness. I could see, in spite of his assumed hopefulness, that he shared my fears. He has met quite a number of our friends. He may (through Mr. Keatcham) be a most valuable acquaintance. Didn't you tell me, once, that Keatcham was the leading benefactor of the university?

He (Mr. Atkins) got his vacation on account of his health; and he is going to southern California. I don't wonder. I have never suffered more than in this land of sunshine! It is not so much the cold of the air as the humidity! Do pray be cautious about changing to your summer underwear. Don't do it! I nearly perished, in the bleak wind yesterday, when I tried to visit a few shops. Be sure and take the cough medicine on the second shelf of our bathroom medicine closet; don't mistake rheumatism liniment for it; they are both on the same shelf; you would better sort them out. You are so absent-minded, Melville, I haven't a peaceful day when I'm away from you; and do for heaven's sake try to bow to Mrs. Farrell and call her by her right name! You certainly have been to the president's house often enough to know his wife on the street; and I don't think that it was a good excuse which you gave to Prof. Dale for calling "Good morning, Katy!" to Mrs. Dale (who was born a Schuyler and is most punctilious) that you mistook her for our cook!

I miss you very much. Give my love to all our friends and be sure to wear your galoshes (your rubbers, you know) when the campus is wet, whether it is raining or not.

Your aff. wife,
M. WINTER.

THE SAME TO THE SAME.

The Palace Hotel, March, 25, 10 P. M.—My Dear Husband: What do you think has happened? I am almost too excited to write. Archie is back! Yes, back safe and sound, and absolutely indifferent, to all appearances, to all our indescribable sufferings on his account! He walked into the parlor about six or a little after, grinning like an ape, as if to disappear from the face of the earth and come back to it were quite the usual thing. And when we questioned him, he professed to be on his word not to tell anything. And Bertie upheld him in this ridiculous position! However, I was told by the detective whom Bertie employed, rather a decent, vulgar, little man, that they (Bertie and he) had cornered the kidnapers and "called their bluff," as he expressed it; but I'm inclined to think they got their ransom from our unfortunate, victimized aunt who is too proud to admit it, and that they probably managed it through Miss S——. I know they called up the room to know if the boy was back; and I puzzled them well, I fancy, by saying he was. I may have saved our poor aunt some money by that; but I can't tell, of course. Melville, I am almost sure that Miss J. S.—— is at the bottom of it, whatever the mystery is. I am almost sure that, not content with blackmailing and plundering auntie, Miss S—— is now making a dead set at poor, blind, simple-hearted Bertie! I have reasons which I haven't time to enumerate. Bertie will hardly hear a word of criticism of her patiently; in fact, I have ceased to criticise her to him or to Aunt Rebecca—ah, it is a lonely, lonely lot to be clear-sighted; but noblesse oblige. But often during the last few days I have thought that Cassandra wasn't enough pitied.

Your aff. wife, M.

THE SAME TO THE SAME.

Casa Fuerte, San Francisco, Cal, Wednesday.—Dear Husband: This heading may surprise you. But we are making a visit to Mr. Anthony Arnold (the Arnold's son) in his beautiful house in the suburbs of the city. It was far more convenient for me at the Palace where I found Mrs. Wigglesworth most attentive and congenial and found some great bargains; but you know I can not be false to my Trust. To watch Aunt Rebecca Winter (without seeming to watch, of course, for the aged always resent the care which they need) is my chief object in this trip; therefore when Mr. Arnold (whose father she knows, but the old gentleman is traveling in Europe with his married daughter and her family) when the young Arnold urged us all to come and spend a couple of weeks with him, I could not very well refuse. Though a stranger to me, he is not to auntie or Bertie. The house is his own, left him by his mother, who died not very long ago. At first, I remained at the Palace with Bertie and Archie; Bertie seemed so disturbed at the idea of my going and Aunt Rebecca was very liberal, insisting that I was just as much her guest as before, it was only she who was running away; and the end of it was (she has such a compelling personality, you know) that she went with Randall and J. S. to Casa Fuerte (Strong House—and you would call it well-named could you see it; it is a massive structure!) while we others remained until Sunday. On account of what I have hinted in regard to the designs of a certain lady I was not sorry to have Bertie under another roof. He has a fortune of his own, you know, and a reputation as well. Wealth and position at one blow certainly would appeal to her, an obscure dependent probably of no family (it is not a romantic name), and Bertie is very well-bred and rather handsome with his black eyebrows and gray hair and aquiline nose. I have been very, very worried, but I feel relieved as to that. Melville, she is flying at higher game. In this house is a multimillionaire, in fact the fourth richest man in the United States, Edwin S. Keatcham. He is ill—probably with appendicitis, which seems to be the common lot. I asked the doctor—of course, very delicately—and he said: "Well, not exactly, but—" and smiled very confidentially, and begged me not to mention Mr. Keatcham's illness or even that he was in the house. "You know," he said, "that when these great financiers sneeze, the stock-market shakes; so absolute secrecy, please, my dear madam." Don't mention it to a soul, will you? Of course I haven't seen the invalid; but I've seen his valet, who is very English; and I have seen his nurse. Who do you suppose she is? Janet Smith! Yes; you know she has been a trained nurse. Was there ever a more artful creature! But Mr. K. is none of my affairs; he will have to save himself or be lost. Once she is his wife we are safe from that designing woman. I am quite willing to admit his danger and her fascination. Now, Melville, for once admit that I can be just to a woman whom I dislike.

This house is sumptuous; I've a lovely bathroom and a beautiful huge closet with a window. It must have cost a mint of money. I have been told that Arnold pere made a present of it to his wife; he let the architect and her draw all the plans of it, but he insisted on attending to the construction himself; he said he was not going to have any contract work or "scamping," such as I am reliably informed has been common in these towering new buildings in San Francisco; he picked out all the materials himself and inspected the inspector. It has what they call "reinforced concrete" and all the beams, etc., are steel and the lower story is enormously thick as to walls, in the genuine Mission style. He said he built for earthquakes. The house is all in the Spanish hidalgo fashion. I wish you could see the bas-reliefs and the carved furniture with cane seats of the seventeenth century, all genuine; and the stamped leather and the iron grille work—rejas they call it—all copied from famous Spanish models from Toledo; you know the ancient Spaniards were renowned for their rejas. The pictures are fine—all Spanish; I don't know half the names of the artists, but they are all old and imposing and some of them wonderfully preserved. The electric lights are all in the shape of lanterns. The patio, as they call the court around which the house is built, reminded me of the court in Mrs. Gardiner's palace in Boston, only it was not so crowded with objects and the pillars are much thicker and the tropical plants and vines more luxuriant —on account of the climate, I suppose. It is all certainly very beautiful.

There is a great arched gateway for carriages—which reminds me, do be sure to send the horses into the country to rest, one at a time; and have Erastus clean the stable properly while they are gone. You can keep one horse for golf; but don't use the brougham ever; and why not send the surrey to be done over while I am gone? Is the piazza painted yet? How does the new cook do? Insist upon her cooking you nourishing food. You might have the Bridge club of an evening—there are only the four of you—and she might, with Emily's help, get you a nice repast of lobster a la Newburg, sandwiches and chicken salad; but be sure you don't touch the lobster! You know what happened the last time; and I shan't be there to put on mustard-plasters and give you Hunyadi water. If Erastus needs any more chamois skins Emily knows where they are, but admonish him to be careful with them; I never saw mortal man go through chamois skins the way he can; sometimes I think he gives them to the horses to eat! Good-by. Your aff. wife,

M.

CHAPTER XV.

"The Light That Never Was."

The changes which Mrs. Melville had accepted so philosophically, the metamorphosis of the tragic and lonely house of mystery into a luxurious country villa, the flinging open of the shutters, the marshaling of servants, the turning, one may say, of the limelight on a rich man's ordinary life—all this had occurred as swiftly and with as little warning as a scene shifts on the stage.

Mrs. Rebecca Winter may have the credit for this bouleversement of plans. By an astonishingly early hour the next morning she was awake and downstairs, where Kito and Tracy were making coffee, toasting bread and admiring the oatmeal which had cooked, while they slept, in the Fireless Stove. Tracy had planned a surprise of brown bread, but through no fault of the Fireless, owing solely to his omitting what he called "the pick-me-up," commonly known as soda—an accident, as he truly said, which might happen to any lady—the bread was "rather too adhesive." The breakfast, notwithstanding, was a cheerful one, because Miss Smith reported the patient a shade better. She looked smiling, although rather heavy-eyed. Mercer and the colonel had taken turns sitting in the adjoining room to bring her ice or hot water or be of service outside.

INTERESTING SERIES IN TOURNEY GAMES.

An interesting series in the Fraternal Bowling League is scheduled for tonight when the Woodmen of Westfield and Miantonomo tribe of Red Men will clash.

These teams are tied for second place, each having won seven and lost two games; the outcome of the games tonight will go far toward settling which team is entitled to the position.

The Elks are leading the tourney with ten games won and two lost and seem to be in a fair way to carry off first honors.

The Knights of Pythias have made rapid strides in their recent games and are now in fourth place.

The standing of the teams is as follows:—

	Won.	Lost.
Elks	10	2
Miantonomo	7	2
Woodmen	7	2
Knights of Pythias	7	5
Saengerbund	5	7
Bicycle Club	3	9
Weumpka	0	12

CIRCUS PLAY ONE OF THE SEASON'S BEST

One of the prettiest plays seen at the New Plainfield theatre during the present season was presented to large audiences, Saturday afternoon and night, in Frederic W. Thompson's production of "Polly of the Circus." It is replete with laughter and tears mingled with scenic effevts that are a delight to the eye and gives the production a touch of the spectacular. One set, showing a circus performance in full blast, and another in which the wagons are seen at a distance leaving the town in the early morning, evoked prolonged applause.

The company presenting the play was headed by Miss Fay Wallace, a dainty and clever young actress, who gained the confidence of her audiences in the first act and held it until the last. Herbert Barrington, Walter Milton and Jules Ferrar stood out prominently in their respective parts.

REV. W. E. FOOTE PREACHES IN PASTOR FINN'S PULPIT.

Rev. William E. Foote, of Freehold, preached at the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday, in an exchange of pulpits with the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn. His morning text was from John 17:22, and concerned the glory of God as a gift to the world, transmitted through His son, Jesus.

Taking his evening text from Prov. 16:17, he brought out the point that as servants of God, we must please our employer and that it is for our best good to conform to His requirements, just as it is for the best good of the wage earner to please the one who gives him employment. We could please God by accepting Jesus, he said.

Proctor's Tonight.

Alfonzo Dandette's stirring tragedy L'Arlesienne has been produced by a company of well known Italian artists in moving pictures. Pathe Freres, the French manufacturers, at great expense took their camera to Rome, where the scene of action was layed, and with the help of their marvelous dissolving apparatus have presented to the public a wonderful drama. Messrs. Proctor and Sanderson after much trouble have secured Pathe's famous L'Arlesienne and will present it to patrons tonight. This is undoubtedly the most finished product of cinnamatography ever produced, and owing to this fact the reel could be secured for one night only.

Giovanelli on the War Path.

Police headquarters received a hurry call for a cop at 8 o'clock, last night, to put the kibosh on a man who was flourishing a gun and threatening to shoot up the residents at 406 East Fourth street. Roundsman Higgins went out and brought in Giovanni Giovanelli as the bad actor who wanted to pump lead. Rum was the cause of it all. He was arraigned in court this morning, but at the request of his counsel, John Owens, the case was laid over until tomorrow.

Has Son Arrested.

Edward Seader, seventeen years old, was arrested by Chief George Wiess, of the borough police, this morning, on the complaint of his father, who charge that the boy has become unmanageable, running away from home and refusing to go to school. The father wishes him sent to a reform school. He will be given a hearing before Recorder Dolliver tonight.

A free Bible lecture will be given in the W. C. T. U. rooms Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, by A. M. Saphore. The subject will be "The Overthrow of Satan's Empire." Christians and honest skeptics are invited.

UNION COUNTY'S JAIL HOUSED 1,000 PRISONERS

Communications received from Sheriff Kirkland and the committee on jail inspection by the Union County Board of Freeholders at its monthly meeting show that the Union County jail is considered to be one of the best managed jails in the State of New Jersey. A copy of a highly commendatory communication from the secretary of the State Board of Health accompanied a report of the work at the jail during the past year.

The report of the committee on jail inspection stated that the prisoners were daily employed about the county jail building in doing the janitor work, the cooking, etc., and that the general health of the prisoners had been good. There was one death, it stated, in a total of 1,074 prisoners. The Union county jail is recognized as a model institution of its kind being highly recommended and having received the compliments of the grand jury of this county, the report says. It was announced that Dr. Shangle had been appointed as jail physician for the coming year at a salary of $250.

Following are the jail statistics given for last year: Number of prisoners in the jail January 1, 1908, 64; number received since then to date, 1,010; whole number in custody during the year, 1,074; number discharged, 1,013; number at present in custory, 61; average number in custody each date, 65; whole number of days board of prisoners, 23,685; average term of individual imprisonment (in days), 22.

The communication from the secretary of the State Board of Health which Sheriff Kirkland transmitted to the Board of Freeholders reads as follows:

"An inspection of the Union county jail was made by a representative of this board on December 10, 1908. It is the custom of the State Board of Health when there are any sanitary defects in an institution which require remedying to call the attention of those charged with the supervision of said institution to these defects for the purpose of securing improvements, but the report of the inspector shows that there are no objectionable features in the institution. The report closes with these words: "The cleanliness which prevails and which extends to every room and department of the jail denotes intelligent, careful and consistant supervision and good management.'"

The letter was signed by Bruce S. Keaton, secretary of the State Board of Health.

NO HIGHER SALARY FOR THE REFORMATORY HEAD.

It is not expected that there will by any immediate action to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Superintendent Martin at the Rahway reformatory. According to reports from reliable sources a temporary appointment will be made while one is being decided upon.

State Senator Ackerman has told the politicians that he will oppose any effort to have the salary raised from $3,000 as had been planned. He has also stated that he believes that there are some employees at the institution competent to fill the vacancy at least temporarily.

Party for Miss Ada Mills.

Miss Ada Mills, of Grandview avenue, was tendered a birthday party at her home, Thursday night, there being about thirty guests. The affair was arranged by Miss Alice Mills and the Misses Florence and Justina Smith. The home was elaborately decorated for the occasion. Dancing, parlor games and music combined to afford all a pleasant evening and supper was served at midnight. Miss Sadie Schultise, of New Brunswick, furnished music for dancing.

First Dance of the New Year.

The first public dance of the new year will be given by the Ladies Auxiliary of Division No. 4, A. O. H., in Saengerbund hall next Thursday night. Parobek's orchestra will furnish the music and will be supplemented by Tim O'Connor, the famous Irish piper from New York. The auxiliary has extended invitations to the organizations in other cities and a large attendance is expected.

C. A. Miles Sells His Business.

Charles A. Miles, of 33 Somerset street, North Plainfield, has sold his business to Louis Morrel, real estate broker, and Ernest Mack, who was associated with Mr. Miles, has opened a store of his own at 403 West Front street, where he has engaged in the sale, wholesale and retail, of incandescent lights. Mr. Miles' future plans are not known.

Day Nursery Anniversary.

The third anniversary of the Plainfield Day Nursery will be held Friday afternoon, January 22, from 3 to 6 o'clock at the nursery, 444 West Third street. As on previous occasions of this kind, each person attending is requested to bring something for the store-room.

Owing to a severe cold Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss was unable to preach at the First Baptist church, last night, and there was no service.

If you are versed in the mechanical lore of motor car construction, you will find all you desire here. If you don't know, then you know someone who does know—and the more he knows about points that spell superiority in a car, the stronger will be his verdict in favor of the E. M. F. Read specifications below.

SPECIFICATIONS

HORSE POWER—30.

TYPE. 4 cylinder, Vertical, 4 cycle. Cylinders cast in pairs with water jackets integral. Water space between cylinder ensuring uniform expansion and contraction. Valves all one side. Mechanically operated. Interchangeable.

CYLINDERS. Bore 4-inch. Stroke 4½ inch. Compression—moderate. All experience has proven these cylinder dimensions to be nearly ideal for all kinds of service. They give a motor of moderate speed—which means long life. Cooling, lubricating and all other troubles which arise from short stroke, excessive bore, small exhaust valves and short bearings are entirely eliminated in the E-M-F. "30."

VALVES. Are extra large—2⅛ inches—made from special steel, drop forged. Stems and seats ground. Valve guides machined and pressed into place instead of being cast integral with cylinders easily replaced when worn.

All engineers agree that large valves not only make for efficiency, but also for economy. A four cylinder motor of 4 inches x 4½ inches may, by scientific design, accurate workmanship and large valves be made to develop 30 to 35 horse power at 1000 revolutions per minute, or it may develop 16—if valves are undersize or the design faulty in other ways.

VALVE OPERATION. Single cam-shaft made from high grade steel, drop forged with all cams integral. After milling, cam-shaft is case hardened, and all cam surfaces as well as bearings are ground to micrometrical accuracy—guarantees silent running and consistent performance at all times.

CRANK SHAFT. Is off-set ¾ inch from centre line of cylinders—still another increase in power efficiency with minimum of wear on cylinder walls and pistons. Crank shaft, drop forged from special steel. Three main bearings—all large and extra long. All bearing surfaces ground. Flange, forged integral on crankshaft carries fly-wheel—ground to ensure perfect centre. Fly-wheel is also given a running balance at maximum motor speed to ensure accuracy and absence of vibration.

PISTONS. Extra long—5-inch—ensuring good compression and long life. Each piston ground, fitted with four rings, and each set is weighed to ensure perfect balance of reciprocating parts—a talking-point with some makers—a matter of course with us.

PISTON PIN. Special case-hardened steel ground; drilled hollow to ensure perfect lubrication. Pistons, connecting rods, crank-shafts and all reciprocating parts are mechanically balanced to eliminate vibration.

LUBRICATION. Oil reservoir integral with aluminum crank case, maintains oil at a fixed level in crank case too much or too little oil impossible. Radius on one filling 400 miles.

COTTER PINS, lock-nuts, keys and taper pins are used at every point to guard against any part getting loose.

OIL CUPS. Are provided for every joint that may at any time require lubrication—steering knuckles, spring connections, operating shafts, etc.

IGNITION. Double system, consisting of a splitdort magneto and battery. The magneto is not an extra or "special equipment." It is as much a part of the E-M-F. motor as the valves, and is included in the list price of the car. Gears and all moving parts enclosed in oil tight, dust and water proof case. In this regard the E-M-F. car sets a pace for the world, high priced cars included.

ENGINE GEARS. Cam-shaft and Magneto gears all enclosed and separated from crank chamber. Gears lubricated by non-fluid grease—not cylinder oil.

COOLING. Is by large centrifugal pump—high efficiency at slow engine speeds ensuring cooling in hill climbing and hard pulling over muddy roads. Belt driven, stamped steel fan mounted on engine—not attached to radiator. Eccentric belt adjustment.

CARBURETOR. Improved simple float feed, single jet—our own design. Very flexible and economical.

CLUTCH. Improved expanding-ring type. Leather faced. Contained in fly-wheel. Oil groove in flywheel with holes drilled for escape of oil obviates all liability of clutch slipping from this cause. Takes hold gently—and holds when engaged. Adjustment, accessible and easy.

TRANSMISSION. Type—Selective sliding gear. Gear case integral with differential housing in rear axle—"the unit power transmission system" so generally approved by engineers of late. Gears made from E-M-F. formula special steel. Accurately cut and oil treated. Details of construction heretofore known only to the highest priced cars.

SPEEDS. Three forward and reverse—direct on third.

GEAR RATIO. Standard, 3¼ to 1. Speed of car, 50 miles an hour, down to 2, (you won't believe it till we show you) on high.

DRIVE. Direct through universal jointed propeller shaft to bevel gear on differential. Two universal joints. Pressed steel torque shaft. Gears extra large accurately cut and made from special alloy steel.

REAR AXLE. Live, semi-floating, E-M-F. exclusive design. Right and left housing sections drawn from sheet steel and heat treated, giving extra strength. Fitted with truss rods. Hyatt Roller Bearings in hardened and ground removable sleeves carry load. Differential thrust bearing, babbit between ground steel washers. No balls to split—no adjustment to get out of order. Made right to stay right. Thrust of drive pinion supported by Timken Roller Bearing.

All gears—transmission and differential—as well as all shifting mechanism, are immersed in an oil bath. And the transmission-axle case as well as motor crank-case are absolutely oil tight—no mucking of floor boards or dripping on pavements. Provision is made to prevent the oil working out at the axle ends when the car is left standing on an incline. Liberal road clearance.

FRONT AXLE. I-beam type. Drop forged in one piece—not welded in centre. Heat treated. Spring perches forged integral. Liberal safety factor. Steering knuckles and all connections drop forged from steel—no castings. Two-point ball bearings in hubs and all joints bronze bushed.

STEERING GEAR. Irreversible, worm and sector made from special steel case hardened. All bearing surfaces ground. Connection from steering arm, at right, to left knuckle arm, obviates all tendency to "crankiness" on rough roads.

TIRES. 32 inches x 3½ inches on all wheels. Morgan & Wright, Universal quick-detachable rims.

BRAKES. Four—all acting on rear hubs—none on transmission. Both sets double acting.

MUFFLER. E-M-F. design, silent. Silences by radiation—not by obstruction. Absolutely no back pressure.

FENDERS. Enameled steel in the newest style, most approved enclosed full length of the car type.

MATERIALS. Cylinders made from special formula highest grade, fine grain, gray iron. Intake pipe, brass. Exhaust pipe, gray iron. Crank case, aluminum. Frame, gears, springs, axels and driving shafts all made from special steels—each from an alloy best suited to its peculiar service, and all from E-M-F. formula. Operating levers, spring supports, spring clips, shackles, brackets, rod ends, etc., steel, heat treated. All smaller parts, not drop forged, are pressed or stamped steel—no malleable castings enter into the construction of the car—maximum strength with minimum weight, and absolute assurance of the safety factor desired.

TOURING CAR. 5 passenger, roomy tonneau with liberal leg-room. Latest style, most approved, straight-line type. Handsomely finished.

The "SUBURBAN"—an E-M-F. innovation. A classy 4-passenger car. Rear seats detachable, leaving room for trunks and baggage. A rumble seat is included in regular equipment; when attached makes a natty 3-passenger roadster.

WHEEL BASE. 106 inches. TREAD. Standard—56½ inches.

WEIGHT. Touring Car, slightly under 1800 pounds.

GASOLINE CAPACITY. 15 gallons. OIL, 1 gallon.

COLOR. E-M-F. Red.

PRICE. With standard equipment, pair acetylene headlights, and generator; side oil lamps, tail lamp, lamp brackets, tube horn, tire repair kit and tools—magneto included of course—$1,250, F. O. B., Detroit, Mich.

We are selling these cars at a rate that promises to sell our entire allotment for 1909 in a very short time, and we strongly advise you to place your order without delay. Arrange for demonstration.

We guarantee all new cars sold by us free of repairs for 3 months.

Total Amount Received by This Paper for Italian Relief Fund Now $907.55.

CONTRIBUTIONS TODAY $80.75.

F. L. C. Martin's Employees, Patrolmen's Association, Seminary and Individual Contributions.

The Italian earthquake relief fund, being raised by The Daily Press for the New Jersey Red Cross Society took another big leap upwards today when an addition of $80.75 was subscribed. This makes the aggregate fund to date $907.55. The $1,000 to be sent in the name of the people of Plainfield should be realized before the end of the week at the latest. So send in your contributions now if you want to help the sufferers.

The largest contribution received today was from the employes of the F. L. C. Martin Automobile Company enclosed with this letter:

"Editor, The Daily Press:

"Herewith kindly find check for $25.75 subscribed by the employes of this company to the Italian relief fund.

"I congratulate you upon the noble work The Daily Press is doing in this most worthy cause.

"Cordially yours,
"F. L. C. MARTIN."

The Plainfield Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, through President Messler, has subscribed $10, and $5.00 has been given by the Plainfield Seminary, of which the Misses Kenyon and Arnold are the principals. O. T. Waring and I. W. Rushmore have also each given $10. Individual contributions of $5.00 each were received today from M. C. Van Arsdale and Albert B. Beers. J. F. Zerega, "M." and C. H. English have donated $2.00 apiece. One dollar donations have been made by "Richmond Street Friend" and "E. D. Y.," and $2.00 has been added to the entertainment receipts.

The Daily Press acknowledges these contributions to the fund being raised through this paper.

NEARLY 100 MEMBERS IN THE KENNEL CLUB

The Plainfield Kennel Club, recently organized, is nearing the one hundred mark in membership. At the meeting at Truell Hall last week, Irving K. Taylor, of New York, one of the members, offered a handsome silver cup to be offered at the first annual bench show to be held here in June and this act resulted in five other valuable cups being offered for the same purpose. If continued along present lines the club will be one of the strongest in the country. Names are being added daily to the club's roster.

The president has appointed these committees for the coming year:

Bench show—Edmund L. Mackenzie, chairman; A. G. Hooley, Edward Rushmore, E. H. Hobbie, A. C. Wilmerding. Auditing—E. E. Bigoney, chairman; Milton Mendel, C. E. Faber. Admissions—E. H. Deknatel, chairman; L. E. Waring and H. E. Butler. The club has appointed Dr. E. R. Voorhees, of Somerville, as official veterinarian.

While the exact date for the first annual bench show is not yet known, it will undoubtedly be held either just before or immediately following the annual horse show and will be held at the show grounds of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, considered an ideal place for the exhibition.

OFFICERS CHOSEN BY PLAINFIELD'S S. P. C. A.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was held yesterday at the law offices of Reed & Coddington. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson was in the chair. Reports for the past year showed the society to be in a flourishing condition and the annual session was characterized by a feeling of enthusiastic determination to protect dumb animals.

These officers and members of the executive board were elected:

President, Dr. F. C. Ard; vice-presidents, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, W. P. Buttfield and Charles J. Fisk; secretary, Mrs. Edgar S. Hyatt; treasurer, Mrs. Frederick W. Butler; executive board, Mrs. Daniel Rapelye, Dr. Carpenter, Mrs. J. S. Hanson, Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., and Miss Edith Smalley; counsel, William A. Coddington.

$5,000 APPARATUS FOR NEW FIRE HOUSE

Matters pertaining to the equipment of the new East End fire-house were informally discussed last night, at a meeting of the Councilmanic fire committee. It is practically settled that the new house will be equipped with a combination hose and engine apparatus of the automobile type. Such an apparatus may be purchased for $5,000 and the committee believes that it would be cheaper than purchasing horses, together with bearing the cost of their keep as well as the services of extra men.

The committee has been inquiring into the advisability of purchasing an automobile apparatus and is more convinced than ever that it would be a wise move. However, no definite action will be taken until the Common Council as a committee of the whole has had an opportunity to consider and discuss the proposition. Such a caucus will be arranged for soon.

This was the first meeting of the committe since the 1909 Council organized, and among the business was the selection of Frank L. Holt as its secretary. Robert E. Hall is the chairman.

B. & L. Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association was held last night, when the sixty-third series were opened and a great many shares subscribed. It was the end of the association's fiscal year and the secretary gave some interesting details in reference to the year's work. Several applications for loans was received and acted upon. The association expect to mature a series this year and the members are anxiously looking forward to that event.

Athletics for Working Boys.

A class for employed boys is being organized by C. B. Batchelor, of the Y. M. C. A. All youths under seventeen, who are engaged in some occupation, will be admitted and the class will be given the same gymnasium and other privileges as the Sunday-school and high school classes.

EXCISE PROBE EXPENSIVE

Commission's Bills Will Total $16,000 and Will be Sent to Legislature.

GOV. FORT NOT TO "O. K." THEM.

Detective Work Forms A Big Item As Do Automobiles and the Hotel's Charges.

The State Excise Commission's bills will total about $16,000 according to a report from Trenton. It is considered improbable, however, that the account will stand any sort of show being paid in their entirety it is said.

There is one bill not yet submitted by President Charles J. Fisk, of this city, and which has been made out, but which has been called back for revision. Chief of Police P. S. Kiely, of this city, who accompaned the commission on most of its travels about the State, has put it in, and it is understood it will total more than $1,000. Of this amount it is understood that $500 represents expenses incurred by Chief Kiely in his work for the commission. However, his bill, it is said, will be fully reviewed this week, and will reach the Governor for scrutiny and presentation to the Appropriation Committee next Monday night.

Mr. Fisk's bills for automobile trips en tour, it is understood, have not yet been put before the Governor. Among the other big items in the excise bill and which are already in Governor Fort's hand are an account submitted by the Cosgrove Detective Agency of Newark for $2,490 and one by the Benjamin Murphy Agency of Jersey City for $700. These are for expenses incurred by private sleuths in gathering information in the numerous places visited by the commission. The Cosgrove bill inclues one item of fifty-three operatives one day in Atlantic City. Then there are bills for printing, other items for individual detectives and for serving subpoenas and summonses.

The Governor has refused to approve any of the items, with the exception of the few personal expenditures for traveling and hotels, and declared yesterday he would refer all of the accounts to the Appropriations Committee of the Legislature without recommendation.

PLANS FOR MARRIAGE OF REV. DR. HERRING

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Miller, of Indian Orchard, Mass., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice Catherine Miller, formerly of this city, and Rev. Dr. Charles Edward Herring. The ceremony will be performed Tuesday afternoon, February 2, at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 53 Worcester street, Indian Orchard.

A reception to the couple will be given on Thursday night, February 28, at the First Presbyterian church, this city, from 8 to 10 o'clock. Dr. Herring is the pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Miss Miller has been a teacher in the Franklin Public School and during her residence in Plainfield has been an active member of the church of which Dr. Herring is the pastor.

LARGE GATHERING AT DAVID ROGER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of David W. Rogers, whose death occurred Saturday morning after a long illness, was held at his late home on West Second street, yesterday afternoon, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. A large number of floral offerings included a set piece from Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., of which he was a member.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: L. B. Woolston, James F. Buckle, Walter L. Hetfield, Charles W. Tallman and Jeremiah Van Winkle, of Unity Lodge, and Asa D. Pope, of Perseverance Lodge.

Preparing Annual Budget.

The Councilmanic finance committee, of which Herbert Buxton is the chairman, is now busily engaged in getting the city finances in shape for the annual budget to be presented to the Common Council early in March. Each committee has been requested to furnish to the finance committee a statement of the amount thought to be needed during the coming year and the various amounts will be passed upon by the finance committee and then the whole Council.

GOP SAVES THE INDIANS

Headed Off a Blood-Thirsty Quartet Bound for the Western Prairies.

HE PREVENTS A SLAUGHTER.

Members of the Avenging Band are Locked Up at Headquarters Pending a Conference With Their Parents.

A few thousand Indians scattered over the reservations west of the Mississippi will get together and forward a vote of thanks to Patrolman George Dobson, of the local force, as soon as they learn that he probably saved them from annihilation by heading off an expedition headed their way this morning. The cold, clammy hand of the law which the officer represents descended upon a quartet of Plainfield youths, primed and cocked with an aggregate of $15 in cash and a determination to slay every copper-colored varmint drawing rations from the government. They were established in a camp along the railroad near Terrill road and were busy discussing the quickest way of hitting the long trail toward the Rockies when the Redskins' savior got a bead on them.

An inglorious ride in the police patrol wagon to Sycamore street headquarters and their subsequent locking up in cells brought the boys to a relization that the cops have no sympathy for Indian killers. They may have a chance to think it over a great deal more as their parents and Chief Kiely are now holding conferences as to what is to be done with them. The band was composed of Harry Ashton, 16 years old; Albert Vail, Merle Todd and Louis Fulton, all 14 and residing in the East End. Shortly before noon, Vail and Todd were allowed to go home but the other two are still in cells.

The boys first started off yesterday morning and hopped a freight train near Richmond street. They went as far as Allentown, Pa., by way of experiment and then started back to reconnoiter and get a line on a proper outfit. They landed in Plainfield late last night and bunked in a freight car at the Richmond street yards. Shortly after daylight they moved up to Terrill road, where the camp was established and where they busied themselves examining a trapper's guide which showed how to get from Bound Brook to Cheyenne, Wyoming, with only a bowie knife and a trusty rifle. The parents of the boys informed the police of their disappearance last night, and when Patrolman Dobson saw the smoke of the camp fire he knew he had the quartet for which the entire force had been searching.

There are still quite a few Apaches, Sioux and Blackfeets left in the boundless West and it is terrible to think of what fearful execution would have been accomplished but for Dobson's discovery.

DIRECTORS ARE CHOSEN FOR TWO LOCAL BANKS

The shareholders of the City National Bank and of the First National Bank held their annual meetings this afternoon. The following directors were re elected by the City National Bank: Louis K. Hyde, W. Palmer Smith, Thomas J. Mumford, Henry G. Runkle, William F. Arnold, Francis de Lacy Hyde, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Floyd T. Woodhull and J. Fred MacDonald. These officers were then chosen by the directors: President, Louis K. Hyde; vice-president, W. Palmer Smith; vice-president and cashier, William F. Arnold; assistant cashier, Arthur E. Crone.

These directors were elected at the First National Bank:

A. J. Brunson, J. A. Smith, David N. Runyon, William R. Codington, B. Frank Coriell, Joseph A. Hubbard, Elias H. Bird, Dr. P. J. Zeglio and C. Frank French. The directors selected these officers: President, Augustus J. Brunson; vice-president, J. A. Smith; cashier, David N. Runyon.

Regular Vaudeville at Proctor's.

The owners of the Proctor theatre sprang something new on the public yesterday afternoon by putting on two very clever vaudeville acts. These new acts greatly took with the large audiences and made the entertainment much more interesting than ever before, for at the conclusion of each act the audience applauded so long they called for the performers to appear before the curtain again.

HONORS FOR ACKERMAN

Prest. Robbins Gives Union County Senator Most Important Assignments.

CHAIRMAN ON CORPORATIONS.

Chairman on Finance, Member of Appropriations and Municipal Corporations.

In the disposition of committee assignments the members of the Legislature from Union county fared particularly well. Senator Ernest R. Ackerman is now one of the senior members of the Senate and is looked upon as one of the leaders of his party. His work in the past for the passage of reform measures has brought him among the front rank of legislators and President Robbins evidently appreciated this when he made up his list of committees.

The Senator from Union is chairman of the committee on corporations and is second member of the appropriation committee, and a member of municipal corporation committee. He is also chairman of the finance committee. Of the joint house and Senate committees Senator Ackerman is chairman of the committee on passed bills and a member of the committees on the State Village for Epileptics and Sanitarium for Tuberculous Diseases.

Assemblyman Kirstein is the chairman of the bill revision committee and a member of the municipal corporation and bill files committee. Of the joint committees he is on the printing and New Jersey reformatory. Assemblyman Pierce is the chairman of the revision of laws and a member of the incidental expense committee. He is also on the joint committee for the Sanitarium for Tuberculous Diseases. Assemblyman Swartz is a member of the ways and means committee of the house and a member of the stationary committee. Of the joint committees he is on the State Village for Epiliptics.

Senator Ackerman has twice been a member of the corporations' committee; three times on appropria tions and four times on finance.

TENDERFOOT RELATES EXPERIENCES IN WEST

The lecture of Rev. Dr. E. A. Woods last night before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, with California as the subject, differed from the discriptions in the railroad pamphlets of the Golden State in that he did not rhapsodize on the wonderful climate and other things, but gave a plain statement of facts as he had found them. The title of his discourse was, "A Tenderfoot Minister in California."

Rev. Woods, now a resident of Somerville, was pastor of a church at San Francisco, Cal., for a number of years. He had observed that throughout the west the people were afflicted with what he called "hyperbolia." He admitted that there is no such word in the dictionary, but it was the best name he could find for the mania which the westerners have for exaggeration. If they described anything, it was overdrawn and enlarged upon; there seemed to be something in the atmosphere which made things seem larger to them. It was the same way in what they did. Everything was done on a big scale, as for instance, the large ranches, vineyards, public buildings and colleges.

Nature, too, had supplied her wares in exaggerated form, notably the immense trees and gigantic mountains. He had seen churches built entirely of the lumber from one tree. A Californian, he said, would add that there was enough lumber left to build several houses. He had found none too much religion in California and Sunday laws were unknown.

The residents had no fear of earthquakes. In fact, San Francisco would not have been damaged much and business would have been resumed in a few days had it not been for the fire. He stated that a $50,000 surplus from the relief fund had been sent to Italy to relieve the sufferers there. So great had been the response at the time of San Francisco's calamity, that more than $10,000,000 had been raised, and the sum sent to Italy was what had been left over.

Farbman Trial Postponed.

The trial of Morris Farbman, proprietor of the Arlington Hotel, charged with maintaining a disorderly house, was set down for trial at Somerville yesterday morning, but was put over for one week.

WEDDED 2 YEARS AGO; ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Edna Ward Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Randolph, of Central avenue, and Dr. Edwin Irving Smalley, of North Plainfield, but now a practicing dentist in Jersey City. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. P. Simpson, curate of St. Clement's Episcopal church, New York, on January 21, 1907.

The young couple, for reasons not explained, decided to keep the wedding a secret and no intimation of the ceremony was given until it was announced this afternoon by Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which the bride is a member.

Members of the immediate family together with a few intimate friends were invited to Mr. Shaw's home, where he presented the couple as man and wife and announced the fact that they were married nearly two years ago. The bride has been a resident of this city all her life and has been a constant attendant at the Seventh Day Baptist church. Dr. Smalley is the son of the late Daniel Smalley and for several years practiced dentistry in this city.

The couple left this afternoon for a wedding trip to Washington and upon their return will live in Jersey City for the winter.

RESIGNS FROM STAFF; HONORED BY BOARD

Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, who was one of the first members of the medical board of Muhlenberg Hospital, being appointed on November 26, 1880, a year before the hospital was opened, and who has been in active service at that place for more than twenty-seven years, tendered his resignation last night at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the hospital. It was accepted with deep regret. After the resignation was acted upon, Dr. Tomlinson was elected consulting physician at the hospital.

The medical director reported patients for December as follows:

Remaining at last report, 36; admitted, 51; total number treated, 87; discharged cured, 56; improved, 7; died, 4; remaining, 20; hospital days, 989; operations; 47. In the dispensary—Patients, 52; visits of patients, 95; operations, 6. In the isolation ward one case of contagious disease was treated.

NEGRO SHOOTER FREE; HE AIMED AT FLOOR

"Pomp" Chandler, colored, who was arrested yesterday for having shot at his housekeeper, Lucy Dormley, during a row on Sunday afternoon, was discharged by Justice Mundy at the hearing held last night at the borough police station.

The negro admitted the shooting but said the shots were not directed at the woman. "I cu'd a hit 'er eezy, Judge, ef a'h'd wanted to. She was only two feet away f'om me. Ah tells yu, Jedge, ah only shot through the floah." He offered to take the judge to the place and show him the bullet holes. He declared that he had defended himself with his fists until two other men piled in and it was then he "got de gun."

Edward Hand, of Fanwood, who employs Chandler as a driver, was present at the hearing and spoke well of his reputation. The colored man had worked for him for eight years and had always conducted himself properly heretofore, he said.

On examining the other witnesses it was evident to the judge that the defendant had not been altogether to blame and he decided to release the man, his employer promising to stand sponsor for his future good behavior, but with the understanding that the man and woman should part company.

The Dormley woman told the court that there was mighty liable to be another scrap when it came to dividing up their household goods, as the house had been furnished jointly and much stuff had accumulated during the five years they had lived there. Justice Mundy agreed to go to the "hut" tonight, with Chief Weiss, and assist in dividing up the "junk."

The row started Sunday afternoon when Chandler remarked to his housekeeper that one of her callers, another negro, was a married man with a family of his own. At this the woman told him to mind his own business. Further words led to a general fight in which men and women, all joined.

Miss Adele von Ohl, of this city, has been spending the holiday season with Mrs. Dr. Woodins, of New York city.

POLICE ASK SHORTER DAY

Petition Councilmanic Committee to Grant Them an Eight Hour Trick.

ASK FOR OTHER CONCESSIONS.

Representatives Speak for One Day Off in Ten and Regular Shift from Night to Day Duty.

Preliminary agitation for a change in police department regulations that will give the patrolmen an eight-hour day and regular shifts from night to day duty, also one day off duty out of every ten, was made at a special meeting of the Board of Police, last night. President William Messler and Charles Flynn, representing the recently organized Plainfield Patrolmen's Benefit Association, appeared before the members and made application to this effect, declaring that the granting of all three would be in compliance with the State law. The board informed the committee that the matter would be taken under advisement and that although the members were willing to do anything possible to benefit the officers, the efficiency of the department could not be crippled.

In connection with their application in behalf of the association, Messrs. Messler and Flynn presented a working table arranged by the men themselves, showing how the various posts and "tricks" could be so arranged as to allow them the eight hours and the regular day off without adding any more officers. Under the present schedule, the patrolmen work ten hours straight and are off duty only one day a month. Most of them now begin work at 7 o'clock at night while others go out at various hours until morning.. The new table, as prepared, makes the "tricks" as follows:

Eight hours day: 4 men out at 8 a. m., 4 men out at 4 p. m., 10 men out at 8 p. m., 2 men out at midnight, this making 14 men out from 8 p. m. to midnight, 12 men out from midnight to 4 a. m., 2 men out from 4 a. m. to 8 a. m. and 4 men out from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m.. The table also showed just how the city would be covered and the manner in which the posts could be arranged in order to give the one day off in ten.

In their address to the board, Messrs. Messler and Flynn said that what the men asked is only what has been allowed the officers in other departments through the State and that the trend is similar throughout the country. They compared the Plainfield force with those in other places and showed by figures secured that the local men work longer hours and for less pay than the most of them.

The petition will have to be thoroughly discussed by the board and should it decide in favor of the men it will be brought to the attention of the Council as a whole.

The only other business to come before the board was a discussion of the new police headquarters building and a conference with the architect and contractors relative to increased heating facilities. The latter agreed that they would make a number of improvements without extra cost.

BOY PUT ON PROBATION TO REPORT TO REV. WARNER.

Edward Seader, the seventeen-year old boy against whom his father, Peter Seader, made complaint to the borough authorities yesterday, with the request that he be sent to the reform school, was released from custody of the police last night following his hearing before Recorder Dolliver.

Mayor Townsend and Rev. George A. Warner, had become interested in the case, and thought the boy should have another chance. Accordingly, he was put on probation by the recorder, with orders to report to Rev. Warner once a week. The father was glad to have his boy at home again under those conditions.

Will Spend Winter Abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Runkle and daughter, Miss Mary Grey Runkle, of West Eighth street, will soon go abroad. Their plans are to spend the rest of the winter in Southern France, having leased a handsome villa there. They will return to Plainfield about the first of May. In the meantime their home here will be closed.

Approaching Wedding.

The marriage of Miss May Alice Bird, daughter of Mrs. J. Bird, and August H. Windham, Jr., both of the borough, will be celebrated at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Harvey Apgar, 23 Summit avenue, Wednesday night, January 20, at 7:30 o'clock.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

NORTH BRANCH.

Raritan Valley Grange No. 153, Patrons of Husbandry, of South Branch, has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Master, A. G. Van Nest; overseer, John H. Studdiford; chaplain, Mrs. Fremont K. Shafer; lecturer, J. D. Quick; steward, Charles S. Phillips; assistant steward, James L. Haver; lady assistant steward, Mrs. James L. Haver; secretary, Mrs. C. S. Phillips. These will be installed at a meeting to be held in the near future.

A young son of Manning Coddington, of Mt. Horeb, was painfully injured recently. He was loading straw when the horses were suddenly startled and ran away. The boy was thrown under the wheels and his scalp was badly torn. It was necessary to have a physician to sew it up.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Hoffman and son Harold, Mrs. Anna Hodge and son Leonard and Mr. and Mrs. Herman D. Hageman, of Bound Brook, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Compton, at Pluckemin.

Miss Reber, principal of the public school at Flagtown, has been suffering from a severe attack of the grip, and Supervising Principal Charles S. Hamilton, of New Centre, has been substituting in her place.

Miss Tillie Van Nest, of South Branch, entertained a number of her school chums at a party the other evening. Games were played and refreshments served.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Van Pelt, of North Branch, have returned from a visit to Matthew Van Pelt, in Bound Brook.

A. S. Moore, of North Branch, has returned from a visit at Stapleton, Staten Island.

SOMERVILLE.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Grace Crater, well known here, but now residing in Ocean Grove, to Armsted George Wilson, of Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. George I. Mitchell have had as their guests for a week Mrs. Sarah A. Mitchell and daughter, of Hamilton Square.

Miss Jeannette Nevius has returned to Blair Hall, after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Nevius.

Nightly meetings will be held in the Second Reformed chapel this week under the direction of Rev. A. A. Pfanstrehl.

The Misses Myra May, of Baltimore, and Amy Springer, of Easton, were guests at the home of Charles Schwed.

Colby Barclow, a member of the Board of Freeholders in Mercer county, has been visiting friends here.

Thomas J. Edgar has returned from a visit to his mother, Mrs. Emma Edgar, in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Crescentia Koehler has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Emma Allen, of Rockport.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dalrymple have returned from their wedding trip.

Miss Linda Brink has been spending some time at Stanton.

Miss Carrie Wilcox has been a visitor at Flemington.

The Misses Lukens, of Trenton, have been spending a few days with Prosecutor and Mrs. John F. Reger.

Mrs. Ireland and daughter Florence, of Elizabeth, have been guests of Mrs. Fred Grech.

Mrs. Catherine Smith has had as her guests Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Weaver, of Plainfield.

Daniel H. Coleman, of Newark, has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Charles Smith.

Mrs. E. F. Williams has gone to Brooklyn to care for her sister, Mrs. George Crane.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Turner have returned from a week's visit in Stroudsberg, Pa.

Mrs. Walter Carpenter and son, of Newark, have been visiting Mrs. W. N. Adair.

Miss Margaret Campbell, of Newark, has been a guest of Miss Jennie Hickey.

Mrs. Luke Fox, of Trenton, has been a guest of Mrs. Thomas Enright.

Charles Musgrave, of Philadelphia, has been visiting friends in town.

WESTFIELD.

A New York manufacturing concern has applied to the Westfield Board of Trade for information concerning a site for a factory. The works employ about one hundred and fifty hands. The trustees of the board have taken the matter up with the applicant.

Dudley Green, of Westfield, who was injured by falling from a ladder at Washington School, is recovering. Dr. Ard, of Plainfield, has succeeded in saving the patient's eye, the loss of which was threatened.

Mrs. Jennie Muir, of Elizabeth, district deputy, will install the new officers of Westfield Council, Daughters of Liberty, next Thursday evening.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. M. French, 18 Craig place.

Bertram Tallamy and Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis, of the First M. E. church choir, have returned after being detained at home by illness.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet this afternoon in the church parlors. Mrs. J. S. Zelie will be in charge of the program.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet Friday evening with three classes under the teaching of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Miss Colton and W. Lester Glenney.

The sewing meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock in the church parlors. Work will begin on the new mission boxes.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, preached at Mt. Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass., on Sunday, and his pulpit was occupied by Rev. William Adams Brown, of Union Theological Seminary.

Under the auspices of the social committee of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church "A Belated Picnic" will be held Friday night in the basement of the church. A novel program has been arranged and all are invited.

The officers of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church hope to have the repairs completed so that the remodelled edifice can be reopened Sunday, January 24. The opening service will be the observance of the Lord's Supper.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Pop Warner, the coach of the Carlisle Indian football team, was in New York last week on his way to Boston to see the Harvard people about a game between the Redmen and the Crimson next season. He is working on his schedule and had a talk with Fred Knowles as to a game at the Polo Grounds between the Indians and some strong team. The Princeton faculty is opposed to allowing the Tigers to play games hereafter except on college grounds, and so a Princeton-Dartmout or Princeton-Indian game in New York place of such a game a battle benext fall is not likely. To take the tween the Indians and Dartmouth at the Polo Grounds has been suggseted and may be arranged. It would prove a big attraction because the Indians are popular in New York, and the Dartmouth men showed their skill to New Yorkers last season when they drubbed the Tigers.

As for the Pennsylvania-Indian game in Philadelphia next season, it probably will come later in the campaign than heretofore. Pennsylvania wants to play it later, and Warner has suggseted to the Quakers that they give the Indians the date usually reserved for Michigan and play the Wolverines earlier. Warner regards the Indians as bigger opposition for Pennsylvania than Michigan. Fordham wants a game with the Indians, and Warner has that under consideration.

Like every other coach, Warner has ideas of his own on the forward pass. For one thing he thinks it is too much restricted. One of his ideas is that the rules committee would do well to abolish the restriction that a forward pass must clear the line of scrimmage five yards from the centre. What he thinks would be still better than that, however, would be to eliminate the forward pass entirely and supplant it with a rule that a kicked ball may be caught on the fly by either side.

"With this latter permissible," he said, "the game would be football entirely and not with anything of a basketball nature. To allow a man of the kicker's side to catch the ball on the fly would call for a lot of pretty work and as it would require an open defence would serve to keep the game open just as much as the forward pass. I would have one provision, and that is if a back field man of opposing side could catch the ball before an opponent could get to it he should be allowed to do so, but otherwise the ball to go to whichever side could catch it. That would put a premium on accurate kicking and would be better than the present rule, which doesn't put a player of the kicking team onside until the ball has struck the ground. It's guesswork how the ball is going to bound and the play becomes a good deal of a scramble.

BASEBALL.

"The present system of carrying a lot of extra players is not only an expensive one but it has a tendency to make some players lazy," says James A. Hart. "My idea is to establish a rule by which all teams in the big leagues must cut down to sixteen players thirty days after the championship season opens. Sixteen good men on a team will play better ball and give more satisfaction than a team that carries from seventeen to twenty or more.

"Under the present system players find many excuses for getting out of the game, as there are plenty of substitutes on the bench to take their places. In the old days managers found eleven players sufficient for a season and I feel sure that sixteen would more than meet the requirements." It is said that there may be legislation by the big leagues in this respect before another year.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Though William C. Irons, of Toms River, is over eighty years old, he has just started on a tour around the world, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Kate Irons.

Falling from a step at his home yesterday, Michael Egan seventy-eight years old, of 653 Ferry avenue, Camden, dislocated his right shoulder. He was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

The Vineland Grange has agitated the establishment of a rural telephone so persistently that the superintendent of the Interstate Company has agreed to give them a hearing tonight.

Wasps that have made a nest in the Pensauken Methodist Episcopal church worry the women attendants by buzzing about their bonnets, the flowers on which apparently attract the insects.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson D. Wright, of Lambertville, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedded life at their home on Perry street Saturday. They were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents.

Paul Cloke, son of William Cloke, State commissioner of public reports, of Trenton, has been notified of his appointment to the professorship of physics in the State College of Pennsylvania, and will enter upon his duties on February 1.

In connection with the dedication of a handsome pulpit in memory of Mrs. Annie Culmer Boyd, deceased wife of Rev. William Boyd, pastor for more than ten years, an interesting service was held at the Second Presbyterian church, Camden, Sunday.

Harry Shailor, who a month ago shot and killed his father, Arnold Shailor, and wounded his mother, Caroline Shailor, at their home, 326 Ridgeway street, Gloucester, is now realizing his position, and sits moodily in his cell at the Camden county jail, awaiting the day of his trial, the date of which has not been set as yet by Justice Garrison.

At the Union Methodist Episcopal church, Camden, Sunday, a movement was inaugurated similar to the Sunday Breakfast Association's work in Philadelphia. Under the direction of the Union Brotherhood, coffee and sandwiches were served to poor men from 8 to 9 o'clock, and this will be a feature each Sunday during the winter.

Just before the Swedesboro National Bank closed Saturday, Frank Latter, of Salem, stepped to the cashier's window with a check. G. W. Ashton, the cashier, believing that the signature was forged, asked Latter to "wait a moment." He stepped in the telephone booth and called for Constable Garrison. Latter was arrested and committed to jail without bail by Magistrate Stratton Raids and jailing are not the way to reform drunkards and gamblers, according to Rev. Robert Elwood, formerly of Wilmington, who addressed the Y. M. C. A. meeting at Atlantic City Sunday afternoon. Surprised hearers of the minister, who raised a row in Wilmington by statements that were taken to mean his approbation of lynching of a negro who assaulted a white girl, listened while he pleaded that moral sausion and assistance be given to the victims of rum and gambling by men better able to withstand temptation.

Former Senator Jonathan H. Blackwell has just been re-elected president and Dr. William S. Lalor vice-president of the Interstate Fair Association. The nine directors elected were Henry C. Kelsey, Ferdinand W. Roebling, Sr., R. Baxter Conover, Henry J. Irick, Mahlon R. Margerum, William E. Ford, John Taylor, General Edward C. Murray and William H. Brokaw. These directors will meet next week and reelect Mahlon R. Margerum secretary. The report of the secretary showed that with all bills paid the association had a cash balance in bank of $50,000.

TRIO OF PRISONERS DIG THEIR WAY OUT OF JAIL.

Three prisoners, Alexander Carman, Duncan Carman and Frank W. O'Brien, alias Dink, escaped from the Hunterdon county jail at Flemington, last night. The men removed a portion of the floor in the bathroom, and following the pipes, crawled to the wall of the cellar under the living apartments of the courthouse. Stones in the wall were removed to permit them to crawl through. Once reaching the cellar escape was comparatively easy.

About 7 o'clock, during the temporary absence of Devuty Sheriff Jacob Dilts and his wife at the bedside of their son, who is critically ill, the prisoners raised a trap door leading to the kitchen, from which they escaped through a rear window. Three-quarters of an hour later a trusty in the jail rang the bell and reported the escape.

Warden Elmer E. Hann, accompanied by several constables, started out in search of the prisoners, but no trace of them has been found. Before escaping the men placed dummies in their beds. The men were arrested by Railroad Detective Joseph Gray a week ago, charged with burglarzing the passenger station at Whitehouse two weeks ago. The other prisoners in jail made no effort to gain their liberty.

Plainfield, N. J., January 12, 1909.

When a patrolman is on duty for eight hours, he has done a good day's work. To compel him to cover his post for ten hours, in any sort of weather, is altogether too much.

Governor Fort has approved of some of the less stringent recommendations of the State Excise Commission, but many, many of them he has not. For instance he favors a limit being placed on the number of licenses and some procedure for the revocation in case of violation. He also endorses the suggestion that all licensed places be closed between midnight and six o'clock in the morning.

The choicest plums shaken from the State Senate committees' tree today by President Robbins were gathered up by Senator Ackerman who richly deserves them. It is an unusual honor for one member to be placed at the head of two such important committees as those of finance and corporations but none too much for a man who has rendered such distinguished service to the State and has reflected such glory on Union county.

In his first annual message Governor Fort makes many excellent recommendations, some of which will probably be enacted into law by the present Legislature. He is fully aware that others will not. As the average busy citizen does not have time to wade through a document of over 30,000 words, we have carefully condensed the message so that our readers may inform themselves on its salient features in five minutes' time. These pithy pointers will be found on page one of this issue.

Remember the Day Nursery.

The City Union of The King's Daughters invites everyone interested to attend the third anniversary of The Day Nursery, Friday afternoon, from 3 to 6, at the nursery, 444 West Third street. Since the charitable work was started many children have been kept by the day while their mothers went out to work and incalculable good has resulted. Those attending the anniversary will have an opportunity to learn something of this work. Each verson is requested to bring something for the store room as the needs are constant and many.

FORT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE

Favors a Public Utility Commission, County Board of Excise and Jury Reform.

OPPOSES COUNTY TAX BOARD.

For Primary Law Changes, Personal Registration and an Employers' Liability Act.

Following is the gist of Governor J. Franklin Fort's first anuual message to the Legislature which was delivered to that body at Trenton shortly after it organized this afternoon:

Ask for the enactment of a law giving to the Governor the power of removal of public officials.

Recommends the abolition of county boards for the equalization of taxes.

Recommends the creation of departments of corporation and department of motor vehicles separate and apart from the Secretary of State's office.

Pledges himself to a maintenance of the Bishops' law.

Advocates county boards of excise appointed by the Governor. Believes in limiting liquor licenses to not exceeding one for every 500 people, with a simple and definite form of procedure to revoke a license for a violation of the law. Recommends all licensed places be closed from 12 p. m. to 6 a. m.

Urges county jury commissions to consist of sheriff and two citizens appointed by t he presiding justice of the Supreme Court.

Advocates abolition of railroad commission and creation of a public utilities commission, with rate making power, subject to court review.

Advocates State board of control for State institutions, to be composed of commissioner of charities and corrections with two other persons.

Recommends a women's reformatory and a house of detention for insane convicts.

Recommends a law to compel personal registration in all first and second-class cities of the State.

Approves of present direct primary law and wants it extended to cover the election of delegates to political committees, and also to cover nominations for Governor and representatives in Congress.

Demands that present voting machine act be repealed or amended so as to provide for elimination of party levers and the arrangement of a device so that the voter can have visual evidence of having voted for the candidate of his choice.

Advocates the adoption of a blanket ballot.

Believes automobiles should be allowed to run thirty miles an hour through the open country. Arrest and trial for automobile violations should not be summary. Suit should only be instituted by direction of the department in proper courts near the residence of the alleged offender, or at convenient point within the State for the non-resident.

Recommends the enactment of an employers' liability act.

Suggests the feasibility of the State acquiring a great potable water shed in northern part of State, at a possible cost of $50,000,000.

Recommends the abolition of the inspectors of the State prison. Insists on consolidation of bureau of statistics of labor with the department of labor. Also urges the abolition of the present State water supply commission with five members and replacing it with a department under a single head.

Approves of the ocean boulevard scheme between Point Pleasant and Cape May.

Suggests the rehabilitation of the Rahway reformatory buildings for State prison purposes, and the location of a new reformatory establishment on a large farm at some other point in the State.

Miss Christiansen a Bride.

Miss Amelia Christiansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Christiansen, and Neils S. Greve, both of this city, were married Saturday night by Justice Hezekiah Hand at his home, 711 East Sixth street. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few friends. The witnesses were Mrs. Lydia B. Hand and Charles Hand. The couple will reside at 306 East Front street. The groom is engaged in business here as a painter and decorator.

Y. M. C. A. Banquet Speakers.

Another name has been added to the list of speakers for the Y. M. C. A. banquet, January 21, the committee having received a promise from Henry A. Wheeler, of the University of New York, to be present. A former secretary of the local association, H. O. Williams, is also on the list. He is now one of the secretaries of the international committee.

Not the Same.

Askem—Where's the rich heiress you're engaged to?

Tellum—You see that lovely girl in pink at the other side of the room?

Askem—Yes; I say, old man, what a superb—

Tellum—Well, it isn't she. It's that grand old ruin in yellow sitting next to her.—Tit-Bits.

St. Mary's Offering $104.50.

The offering received at St. Mary's church on Sunday for the Italian earthquake sufferers amounted to $104.50. This is considered very good, in view of the fact that no previous notice of the intention to take such offering was given. Father Bogan commended his parishioners for their desire to help the stricken people of Italy. The sum has been sent to Bishop O'Connor.

THE WINTER GARDEN AND INDOOR FLOWERS.

There is no excuse for the lack of flowers during the winter months. Anyone can have a veritable garden with a little effort.

Various boxes may be made at home to have the indoor garden more artistic looking. A woman with the slightest skill in carpentering can contrive benches, boxes and stands at little cost.

A convenient arrangement is made by nailing two long, narrow boxes together one above the other. Two upright boards with width of the boxes are nailed to the two ends in such a way that the lower box is about six inches from the floor, the upper one being two or three feet above the lower.

These stands can either be painted dark green, or they can be entirely covered with white birth bark or ordinary bark, which can be bought in sheets.

Such a stand is especially useful for growing bulbs as those less advanced in growth can be stood on the lower shelf away from the light.

A pretty table decoration for a fern or potted plant can be made from four pieces of white birch bark, each one cut in the shape of a blunt wedge. Four holes are cut in each piece, one in each corner, and the four pieces are joine dtogether with narrow green or red ribbon or with brass clamps.

These cases may be made to fit any sized pot and as no bottom is required can be easily slipped on. The holes in the corner can be quickly punched with a card tally punch.

Old tin kettles and other kitchen utensils that have passed their usefulness can be transferred into fascinating flower pots or hanging baskets by giving them a doze of dark green or red paint and piercing holes in the bottom and sides for ventilation.

THE RADIATOR AND THE DUSTING PROCESS.

When the rooms are dusted the radiators are usually passed by with a glance and a flirt of the dust cloth and the dust remains intact.

Besides being uncleanly it is unhygienic to let dust accumulate in the crevices of steam radiators. It is a breeder of microbes which are absorbed into the lungs.

Now it is not easy as every housekeeper knows, to keep dust from radiators; the ordinary dust cloth seems quite inadequate to do more than "slick up" the surface of the pipes.

But there is a brush with a curved handle and long, slender bristles like a giant tooth brush that goes ito every part with perfect ease. These brushes not only keep radiators clean, but are just the thing to brush off the tops of window ledges, or to clean the fender of the open grate, or to run along picture moulding. They should be dampened when used, to prevent the dust flying about and settling in some other place.

Only a Hat.

The purple hat has just come over from Paris. It is large with a tsaright brim, and its trimming is nothing but yards and yards of billowy chiffon in purple shades which look exquisite. The only fault with this cloud-looking hat is the fact it is too large. To wear it is to be fashionable, so there is no doubt its kind will meet with immense favoritism.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The School Board Association of Middlesex county give a banquet at the Mansion house, New Brunswick, Saturday. Speeches will be made by Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, president of Rutgers College; J. Brognard Betts, assistant State superintendent, and Peter F. Daly, surrogate.

The Methodist church will observe Lincoln's birthday Sunday morning, February 14, with a special program, of which the Freedman's Aid Society will have charge, assisted by the Sunday-school. The pastor, Rev. E. C. Dutcher, will preach a sermon on Lincoln in the evening.

Rev. O. S. Baketel, of New York, field secretary of the Young People's Union, spoke at the Methodist church last night. His subject was "Sunday-school Work and the Young People."

VAUDEVILLE AT THE NEW PLAINFIELD THEATRE.

Beginning with tonight, Manager Counihan will inaugurate a special program of vaudeville and pictures at the New Plainfield theatre, running matinees and nights for the remainder of the week with the exception of tomorrow night. The bill includes Vaughn and Patterson, blace-face artists; Coin, the mimic; Miss Marie Elmer, high-class ballad singer, and confetti, the musical clown. In addition there will be four reels of comedy films.

The usual weekly "try-outs" will be held on Friday night and Arthur Nelson, the well known vaudeville manager, has promised six of the best acts he has yet gotten together.

Foresters Annual Entertainment.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, will hold its annual reception, entertainment and dance, Friday night in Saengerbund Hall, when a high-class vaudeville entertainment will be given under the direction of Harvey R. Thorn. There will be a short address on forestry by a supreme court officer at the close of the entertainment, after which there will be a dance. Music will be furnished by Prof. Heinmeyer, of Elizabeth. Edward J. McCue is chairman of the committee and Louis J. Feiring the secretary. Admission will be by ticket only. The court hopes to make the affair the best in its history.

Two Clever Acts at Proctor's.

The introduction of two clever vaudeville acts at Proctor's theatre, last night, was a great surprise to the capaciay audience that crowded the playhouse. The first act was a song and clog dance by John Hogan and the Rosseau Twins appeared in attractive dances and a little "Dutch Skit" that won great applause.

LEGISLATURE CONVENES

Robbins is President of the Senate and Prince is Speaker of the House.

FRELINGHUYSEN IS LEADER.

Organization Effected for 133rd Legislature—Message of Governor Is Received.

By the hands of the big clocks in the Senate and Assembly chambers it was just noon but in reality it was near 1 o'clock when the one hundred and thirty-third session of the New Jersey Legislature convened at Trenton today.

Colonel Joseph Frelinghuysen of Somerset county, who will be the leader of the Republicans in the Senate, introduced the necessary resolution and the organization of that body was quickly accomplished. Senator Samuel K. Robbins, of Burlington, is the president and Howard K. Tyler, of Cumberland county, was re-elected secretary. Senator William C. Gebbardt, of Hunterdon county, is the minority floor leader.

Following the organization of the Senate these officers were elected for the term: Assistant secretary, William C. Murphy, of Camden county; bill clerk, Charles A. Trimball, of Union county; journal clerk, John W. Cliff, of Union county; sergeant-at-arms, Gaudaloupe A. Holl, of Mercer county; supervisor of bills, Edward A. Sexsmith, of Monmouth county.

Captain Parker, the veteran clerk of the House, called that body to order. After the roll had been called Assemblyman Edward Kenny, of Hudson, a master in chancery, was elected to administer the oath to Assemblyman Henry Young, Jr., of Essex, who swore in the rest of the members.

A resolution by Leader Lewis brought Assemblyman Prince in nomination for speaker of the House. Assemblyman Mark Sullivan for the minority placed Assemblyman Kenny in nomination for the speakership. A strict party vote elected Dr. Prince and he was escorted to the chair by Kenny, Gibbs and Martin.

Captain James Parker was nominated for the clerkship by Assemblyman Lewis by the Republicans and Myron Ernst, of Hudson, was nominated by the Democrats. Captain Parker was elected and then the other offices were filled. The officials selected were: Assistant clerk, Upton S. Jeffrerys, of Camden county; journal clerk, George H. Johnston, of Union county; assistant journal clerk, Lewis R. Williams, of Mercer county; supervisor of bills, George A. Grover, of Essex county; first assistant supervisor of bills, Walter P. Pursell, of Essex county; sergeant-at-arms, William R. Swan, of Essex county; first assistant sergeant-at-arms, William S. Dey(of Middlesex county; second assistant sergeant-at-arms, William S. Dey, of Middlesex land county; bill clerk, Richard J. Chaplin, of Morris county; assistant bill clerk, Enoch S. Couting, of Cape May county. The opening prayer in the house was made by the Rev. William Fitz-Simon, of Ringwood.

A committee of three was appointed to wait upon Governor Fort and inform him that the House of Assembly had organized and was ready to proceed with business. The committee that waited upon the governor was composed of Assemblymen Gibbs, Ginnelley and Kenny. Leslie R. Fort, the Governor's son and secretary, soon appeared with the annual message of the Governor which was ordered spread upon the minutes.

ENDEAVORERS' RALLY AT TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH

The annual missionary rally meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held Thursday night in Trinity Reformed church and will be in charge of John Kriney, chairman of the missionary committee of the union. The musical program, which will be a feature, will be under the direction of Martin A. Korff and members of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra.

The pews in the centre of the church will be reserved for the thirteen societies in the union. Each society will have an allotted space which will be indicated by a card having the name of the society. The local union attendance banner will be awarded to the society having the highest percentage of active and associate members present at the roll call. This banner is now in possession of the Temple Baptist church society. The meeting will be open to the public.

The program will be as follows: Song service, "Simple Aven," orchestra; Scripture and prayer, Rev. John Y. Broek; roll call of societies, "Intermezzo Cavaleria," orchestra; presentation of banner; announcements; address, "The Prophet of Arabia and His Religion," Rev. C. A. R. Janvier; "Priest March," orchestra.

Miss Anna Bennett, of this city, has been visiting friends at Hasbronck Heights.

Miss Fritz, of Somerville, is a guest at the home of George Egel, of Somerset street.

JOSEPH H. WRIGHT GIVES "STAG" BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Joseph Wright, of West Front street, a prominent member of the Asbestos Club, gave a "stag" birthday party at his home, last night. The occasion marked the seventy-third anniversary of his birthday and he provided an elaborate "spread" for his guests.

During the evening there was a fine program of vocal and instrumental music. It was early this morning when the celebration ended. Mr. Wright was handsomely remembered by his guests who included Dr. Ralph Waldo Emerson, Dr. Rolland D. Tomlison, H. B. Paul, James L. Love, Albert Lederer, Harry Moulton and Edward Hardingham.

Lectures at P. H. S.

George N. Cross, A. M., a lecturer, who has been heard in this city, has been engaged by Principal I. W. Travell to give a series of three talks in the high school auditorium on the evenings of Saturday, January 16, 23 and 30. The subjects will be "Abraham Lincoln, the Just American;" "The Lion of St. Mark," and "Historic Castles of England." The school pupils will be admitted free, but a small fee will be charged the public.

Made an Assignment.

Charles A. Miles, of Somerset street, who was reported to have sold his business, states that because of business troubles, he has been obliged to make an assignment to B. Frank Coriell, but that in the near future he will resume business at the same place. The stock is now being sold at cost. Mr. Miles also says that Ernest Mack was only employed by him and was in no other way connected with the business.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Tomorrow night at the New Plainfield theatre, Fred Niblo will present the third of his delightful Talks of Travel in Distant Lands. The offering on this occasion will be "Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps," the most timely and vitally important of his zig-zag journeys around the world. Mr. Niblo will take his audience on a picture pilgrimage throughout old and new Italy—ancient and modern Rome—portraying everything worth seeing from Vesuvius to the Alps, including many picturesque scenes and character studies secured by Mr. Niblo last summer in Southern Italy, around and about Messina, Reggio, Catania and other cities recently destroyed by the most disastrous earthquake in history. It is indeed difficult to realize while looking at these beautiful pictures that these cities are now mere pestilential ruin. Some of the views portray scenes from cities that have literally sunken into the sea.

Fred Niblo.

While it is a rigid rule with Geo. M. Cohan not to allow his players to add a line or a bit of business to his pieces that he does not authorize, he has nevertheless written a scene in "The American Idea," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night, which forces George Beban to extemporize at every performance. In the song, "Pet Names," Trixie Frigenza continually asks: "Rhyme a name with this or that according to the lyric." In the encores, however, the rhymes are left to Behan and Miss Friganza, the latter of whom tries daily to propose an unrhymable word. Recently in New York she sang: "Rhyme a name with us," and thought she had Beban cornered. He has but two counts in which to ponder, but he came back with: "Omnibus rhymes with us," and the audience roared at the joke on the portly Trixie. This duel of wits goes on at every performance and so far Beban has managed to make rhymes in the breath of time allowed him by the score. Some night, though, Trixie will ask for a rhyme with bureau or cistern or something like that and George, who is studying a rhyming dictionary, admits that he may be caught.

Old Smith & McNeil Waiter Quits.

William Cummings, head waiter at Smith & McNeil's, New York, resigned last night after thirty-five years' continuous service. Many years back some one gave Mr. Cummings the nickname of Ike, and Ike it has been ever since. Manager Wardell said last night: "Cummings grew up with the house. In all his long service here he never made an enemy and he leaves of his own volition, with the good will and best wishes of all."

Miss Ella Byrnes, of Newark, spent Sunday with friends in Plainfield.

New Jersey's Greatest Mail Order Organization.

We are justly proud of our mail order system. We feel that it is one of the strongest links in the chain of this great store's success. We want you to use it—test it thoroughly and allow us to demonstrate its many splendid advantages. The Bamberger mail order system is not the result of a day, but the culmination of years of painstaking effort. In fact, this branch of our business is so perfectly organized that you may shop as quickly by mail as in person. There are no delays—no errors—satisfaction is snugly packed with each parcel we send out. If you are not a patron (which is highly improbable) send in a trial order and you'll quickly realize the truth of the foregoing statements.

EDISON AMBEROL RECORDS
are the new Records that play twice as long as the regular Edison Records. Thus Amberol Records can be used on your present Edison Phonograph by the addition of a simple attachment or gear, and you can still play the Records you have.
Amberol Records not only play longer than any other Record now made, but they play better, their tone quality being richer, clearer and more delicate than has been possible in the past.
Let us put an attachment on your Phonograph or sell you an Edison Phonograph that will play both Records.

THE LION'S SHARE

By OCTAVE THANET

Author of The Man of the Hour

PICTURES BY A. WEIL

(Copyright, 1907, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

The colonel had suggested calling a doctor, but Aunt Rebecca had demurred: "Janet can do everything; it is just a question of his heart; and she has digitalis and nitroglycerin and strychnine, the whole outfit of whips. She has dressed the wound with antiseptics. To-morrow will be soon enough for the medical talent." It was she, however, who, as soon as breakfast was over, took first Mercer and Tracy, then the colonel, apart and proposed calling up Keatcham's confidential associates on the long distance telephone. "Strike, but hear me, nephew," she said, languidly, smiling at his bewilderment. "Our only chance now is to exhaust trumps. Yesterday the game was won. Keatcham had surrendered, he had his partners in the deal to make no fight on Tracy's election; they could get what they wanted without the Midland; he advised them to cover their shorts and get ready for a bull market—"

"How did he do all that when he had lost his private code book?"

"How would you do it? You would use the long distance telephone. We caught them at Seattle, where his men had gone for the meeting. I don't understand why they needed me to suggest that. There the poor man was, as your Harvard stove agent calls, rubbering about the library, trying to find 'The Fortunes of Nigel' in the edition Darley had illustrated; of course, it wasn't there. He had lost it just before he came to the Palace, he thought. It seems his old cipher needs a particular book, that kind. No doubt in my mind that your theory is right and that Atkins stole it and perhaps thought he stole the key, but didn't get it. He took a memorandum of ciphers which looked like a key. There Keatcham was, with millions hanging on his wires and his modern substitute for the medieval signet-ring that would enforce the message quite lost. What to do? Why, there was nothing to do but get another cipher! They made up a temporary one, right in that library, yesterday afternoon."

"But how could Mercer be sure Keatcham would not play a trick on him? Did he hear the conversation?"

"Certainly not. He took Keatcham's word. Whatever his faults, Keatcham has always kept his word. Mercer was sure he would keep it. He went out of the room. He was in the library when Keatcham was stabbed."

The colonel drew a long, difficult breath. "Then you don't believe Mercer did it?"

"I'm sure he didn't. He didn't hurt him. Why should he kill him after he had surrendered? He had nothing to gain and considerable to risk, if not to lose. We want that bull market."

"But who did, then? Atkins? But he is trying to rescue him."

"Is he? How do we know? The rescue was only our supposition. I'm only certain none of our crowd did it."

"Kito?"

"No. Kito keeps absolutely within his orders; he knew how things stood when he went away. Mercer saw him go. He couldn't get in, either; he had to signal to be let in. They were as careful as that. Now, assuming they are all innocent, isn't it the best plan to telephone to Seattle to Keatcham's next friend there?"

"He hasn't any family, has he? His wife died and there were no children, I think."

"No, and if he ever had any brothers or sisters they died when they were little; his business associates are the only people Cary knows about. He is anxious to have word sent at once, because there are important things to do in Keatcham's own interest; he came to California and he has employed Cary in a big Portland cement investment; Cary has been working all the time on it for him—I beg your pardon—" for the colonel had raised his hand with a little gasp.

"Do you mean," said he, "that Mercer has been acting as Keatcham's agent, working in his interest all the time he was holding him a prisoner and ready to kill him rather than let him go?"

"Why not? Cary is a man of honor. This cement deal is a perfectly fair one which will give a fair price to the present owners and make a great business proposition. There are other schemes, too, very large ones, which need the man at the wheel. Now, I have talked with Cary and Endicott Tracy and my plan is to call up Warnebold, his next friend, who knows his voice and knows he is a trusty man (for Mercer has done some inquiries for him and saved him once from buying a water-logged steel plant) to call him up and—tell him the truth. We can say Mr. Keatcham was mysteriously stabbed; we can ask what is best to do. By that time we can report that we have the best medical assistance—young Arnold will get his family physician, who can be trusted. Warnebold will instruct Mercer, I reckon, to keep the fact of the assault a secret, not even mention that Mr. Keatcham is ill; and very likely he or some one else will come straight on here. Meanwhile, young Arnold can open the house, hire some servants who won't talk—I can get them for him; we all say nothing of the magnate's presence. And the bull market will come all right."

After a little reflection the colonel agreed that the bold course was the safest. Thus it came about, with amazing rapidity, that the haunted house was opened; that sleek, smiling Chinamen whisked brooms and cleaning cloths at open windows; and Haley and Kito frankly told any curious inquirers who hailed them over the lawn and the flower-beds that young Mr. Arnold was coming home and going to have a house-party of friends. The servants had been carefully selected by Mrs. Winter's powerful Chinese friend; they had no dread of white spooks, however they might cringe before yellow ones. Mrs. Winter and Randall left their hotel, after all the appropriate ceremonies, amid the lavish bows and smiles of liberally paid bellboys and porters. They gave out that they were to visit friends; and the colonel, who remained, was to take charge of their mail; hence, with no appearance of secrecy, the trail took to water and was lost, since the motor car which carried them was supplied by Birdsall and driven by a safe man of his own.

Regarding the detective, Rupert Winter had what he called "a stiff think;" he could not afford even the remote risk of his going with the picturesque assortment of information which he had obtained about Casa Fuerte and Mercer, into Atkins' employ; therefore he hired him, still, himself. He made a partial but absolutely truthful statement of the case; he said frankly: "Birdsall, I'm going to treat you fair, for I'm not going to tell you all I know, because—well, for one thing, I don't feel sure how much I do know myself. But all I'm going to ask of you is to watch the house, day and night, without seeming to watch it. You will oblige Mr. Keatcham as well as me. There is a big game going on, but it isn't what you thought. Mr. Keatcham's best helpers are right in that house. Mercer and I and young Fireless and Arnold are doing our best to guard him, not hurt him. Now, there is big money for you if you will watch out for us."

Birdsall reflected a moment before he did answer, screwing up his face: "I don't like these jobs in the dark; but I like you, colonel, and it's a go."

Keatcham's valet was next summoned from his vacation and became, in Tracy's phrase, "a dandy subnurse."

The Traceys' family physician came twice a day. He was known to be visiting one of the guests who had fallen ill. Mercer sent three or four telegrams a day to Seattle and to New York, to Keatcham's associates. Several times he held a conversation of importance over the telephone with the man who acted as distributor of intelligence. Warnebold, himself, came on to San Francisco from Seattle, and was received with every courtesy. He questioned Kito, questioned Mercer, questioned the colonel. Tracy had effaced himself and was in Pasadena for a day or two.

We'll Start You "Housekeeping"

—or if you're already "started," we'll help you refurnish! We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.

2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!

3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.

4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.

5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

MIANTONOMO TEAM NOW IN SECOND PLACE

Miantonomo tribe's bowling team moved to second place in the Fraternal league, last night, by taking two out of three games in a series with the Westfield Woodmen. The Red Men rolled in fairly good form but only pulled through each time by narrow margins. A 234 made by Skelly in the second try was very timely as Keiderling, of the same team, went below the 100 mark. Miller, of the Woodmen, smashed the wood for 207.

The Miantonomo team now has a record of nine games won and three lost while the Woodmen stand with eight games won and four lost. The Elks are in the lead with a record of ten to two.

The scores:

Miantonomo.
Radin	168	123	205
Keiderling	126	99	114
Nash, Sr.	118	114	142

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEAMS IN CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES.

Two Sunday-school League championship games were played at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium last night. The First Baptists turned the tables on their opponents, beating them 30 to 19. Both teams shot poorly.

The line-up:

SEVENTH DAYS. 1ST BAPTISTS.
Clark ..... Manning
Spicer, Whitford ..... Collier
forwards.
Davis, Spicer ..... Mackey
centre.
Burdick ..... Fountain
Jarvis ..... Fountain, Wooland
guards.

Field goals: Clark 4, Spicer 2, Jarvis 3, Manning 3, Collier 7, Woodland 4. Foul goals: Clark 1, Collier 1.

A new player in the First Presbyterian ranks was probably the chief factor in winning the game against Crescent Avenue. P. Dunning was that one, and Line also played well. The score was close, 22 to 21.

The line-up:

CRESCENTS. PRESBYTERIANS.
Randolph ..... P. Dunning
Runyon ..... Line
forwards.
Rushmore ..... F. Dunning
centre.
Campbell ..... W. Dunning
Slocum ..... Dunham
guards.

Field goals: Randolph 4, Runyon 2, Campbell 1, Slocum 2, P. Dunning 6, Line 4, Dunham 1. Foul goals: Rushmore 3. Referee, C. B. Morse.

MARTINSVILLE RESIDENT, WELL KNOWN HERE, DEAD.

Cornelius B. Waldron, a prominent citizen of Martinsville, died suddenly at his home Sunday night, of heart disease. He was fifty years of age and was well known in this city, his wife being a sister of Walter Linbarger of the borough. The funeral will be held from the residence at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. He leaves a wife and two children, Arthur and Mabel.

Only two days before, there occurred the death of his niece, Miss Leo Limbarger, at Champaign, Illinois. She also was well known here, having visited with her uncle, Walter Linbarger, as recent as last spring. She was the daughter of Silas C. Linbarger, who at one time was a resident of this city and a student at the Illinois State University. Her death followed an illness of six months duration. The funeral will be held tomorrow at the home in Champaign.

Silk Company Elects Officers.

The Watchung Silk Company held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon and elected these officers for the coming year: President, J. Fred MacDonald; vice-president, Eugene M. Laing; treasurer, William R. Codington; secretary, Henry Leifke; directors, A. B. Laing, Willis W. Vail, B. Frank Coriell. The reports showed the company to be in excellent condition with prospects for a busy year.

TO SHOW SCENES OF ITALY'S CATASTROPHE

The distinguished American humorist-tourist, Fred Niblo, returns to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night for the third of his delightful pictorial "Talks of Travel in Distant Lands." On this occasion he will present the most timely subject in his series—"Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps," and a goodly share of the receipts will be donated to the fund being raised by this paper for stricken Italy.

This offering will include many pictures taken in Southern Italy last summer by Mr. Niblo personally, portraying many scenes, character studies and panoramic views in and around about Messina, Reggio, Catania and other towns in Sicily, which have recently been wholly destroyed by the most appalling earthquake disaster of all times. Those who accompanied Mr. Niblo on his personally conducted journeys through Africa and Egypt at this theatre recently, were evidently delighted with the experience, inasmuch as the demand for seats for Italy is unprecedented for an entertainment of this character.

In this intensely interesting zigzag journey throughout the most picturesque country in the world today, this entertaining traveler will take his audience on a picture pilgrimage from end to end of Italy, old and new; along the highways and byways of ancient and modern Rome, showing its temples, its tombs, its modern architectural splendor, as well as the colossal ruins of past centuries. Aside from other notable features enumerated above, Mr. Niblo will present a vividly comprehensive portrayal of the principal cities of modern Italy as they are today. Owing to the wealth of illustrative material which will be used to amplify the interesting descriptive matter of this Travel-Talk, the pictorial features of "Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps," far surpass those presented by Mr. Niblo in his previous offerings. Many of the moving pictures are in color and will be shown for the first time in America.

YOUNG GIRLS SHOULD NOT WEAR CORSETS.

There would not be so strenuous objection to women's corsets on young girls if there were any sane reason for it based on even a moderate degree of good sense or good health. What most people "down" is usually "downed" for an apparent cause, and when a thing is upheld by the many there is apt to be sufficient good in it for our consideration.

Happily it is an accepted belief, even among the most frivolous mothers, that young girls should be clothed with some regard to their future development. Two fashionable women, who teach dozens of young people in a well-known "boarding and day school for young ladies," have made it an unvarying rule that each one entered there and placed in their care shall be measured, fitted and supplied with a nonlaceable corset. It is a small affair fastened up the front, and with no other opening, because the centre back is not laced, but consists of a row of casings into which whalebones are slipped; the whole waist is fairly supplied with removable whalebones.

It is rumored that there is smothered rebellion against this law of the Medes and Persians. What young girl, left to her own devices, will not reach the belief one brilliant day that her loveliness will be complete if she can don a really, truly corset and swathe her exterior in the extremest fashion of the day? We smile at this womanly garb (though we fain would curb the desire for that which outreaches all the canons of "good taste"), but we frown upon the armor plate beneath it. It goes without saying that youth in its mad rush toward extremes has chosen some ironclad thing with bones between each bone. —Philadelphia Press.

TO KEEP THE HAIR IN GOOD CONDITION.

In this day of false hair, when even women who never before sported any locks but their own have succumbed to the demands of "style," it is indispensable if the scalp is not to suffer, that the hair be given frequent rests.

If possible, do not don your acquisitions in the hair line early in the day. Adopt a simple morning coiffure that brings the strain on the hair in a different spot than when one is "dressed up."

It is not enough to change the arrangement of the hair; it should be allowed to hang for at least half an hour each day. The woman who has sewing or writing to do should seek the privacy of her room and, removing hairpins, should let the hair hang until the task is completed.

Whenever the hair is brushed or rearranged draw the fingers through it from the scalp outward for proper ventilation and renewed vigor.

A CELEBRATION OF A TIN WEDDING.

At a function of this kind recently the table was covered wit ha white cover and in the centre was a large mirror with a floral decoration around it. The place cards were written on little pieces of tin and all the dishes were placed in tin pudding pans, cake pans and colanders, with bows of red ribbon tied to the handles. A large board was bored full of holes, each of which would conveniently hold a funnel. The board was covered with tin foil and ice cream was served in the funnels. A small cork was inserted in the tube and paper napkins were twisted end run through the wire hanger of each funnel. Tn spoons were also tied to the funnels.

At the entrance to the hall the year of the marriage and the present year were cut from tin and back of the figures electric lights were placed to illuminate them. Strips of tin that decorated the portiers were cut at the tinner's an done end of each strip was bent over a wire picture cord and the decoration was made softer in effect by twisting smilax among the pendants of tin. Tin-like tinsel furthered the plan and all floral decorations in the parlor, hall and bedroom were placed in tin receptacles. The punch bowl was a large tin dishpan, tied with ribbons. A tin dipper and small tin cups were used in serving. After dinner mints were passed in a small saucepan, and each guest was given a souvenir—a small patty pan filled with candy. — Woman's National Daily.

FRIENDS SCHOOL CONTRIBUTES.

L. L. Manning, "Some Friends," "C. J. M.," Mr. Matarazzo and "M. E. D." Also Help the Cause.

It is characteristic of the people of Plainfield that they give hearty support to all causes that appeal to humanity, and no better illustration is afforded than is to be found in the way that they have responded to Governor Fort's appeal that through their local newspapers they contribute to the New Jersey Red Cross fund for the relief of stricken Italy. The fund collected by this paper, in obedience to the Governor's proclamation, now aggregates $930.82.

Today's contributions amount to $23.27. L. L. Manning and "M. E. D." each gave $5. From the First Day School of the Society of Friends $7.77 has been received and from "C. J. M." $3. "Some Friends" contributed $1.50. Fortunato Matarazzo, through Frank Caruso, added $1. A handsome percentage of the receipts at Fred Niblo's superbly illustrated lecture on "Italy" at the New Plainfield theatre tonight will be donated to this fund.

The Daily Press acknowledges these contributions to the fund being raised through this paper.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL TO HOLD TETE-A-TETES

The first of a series of conferences to be held during the year between the Mayor and the Common Council has been called for Friday night at the office of Mr. Fisk, when there will be an informal discussion of matters pertaining to the city's general interests. These conferences have been suggested as a means of considering matters before formal presentation at the city father's meetings, and are not intended in any sense to take the place of regular committee meetings.

Councilmen have recognized the fact that important matters have been permitted to come before the regular meetings before a mature consideration and it is this that the members hope to avoid in the future. President Tolles particularly favors such deliberations, believeing that it will minimize the difficulty so often experienced at its regular meetings when members have expressed ignorance of this or that matter up for discussion. It is possible that these conferences will be held once a month.

On Friday night there are a number of questions that will be discussed, including the equipment of the new East End fire-house. It will be remembered that the Mayor purposely made his annual message short for the reason explained, that he would prefer to present from time to time to the city fathers such matters as might demand their attention. It is expected that Mr. Fisk will be prepared to make several suggestions.

It is possible that these conferences will be held once a month.

LASSO A NUDE MAN ON THE DUKE ESTATE

A deranged man, who said his name was McMurray, was captured early yesterday after a search for some five hours with torches on the country estate of James B. Duke, at Raritan. Some time before midnight on Monday word reached Raritan that a man was causing alarm among the residents in the outskirts of the town, and William A. Green built a bonfire in the centre of the town square to give the alarm.

About a hundred citizens responded to the call and started in pursuit, with a party of firemen armed with ropes and torches. The posse finally came upon the man as he stood in a clump of bushes, entirely nude, with his arms folded.

A lasso was coiled around him by Paul Janz, one of the posse, and he fell to the ground like a log. It was subsequently discovered that his legs and arms were stiff from cold. He told his captors that his discarded clothes were in an office up the street. Overcoats were wrapped around him and he was conveyed to the office of Mr. Green in a farm wagon. On the way he said to his captors: "I would like to go to Morris Heights, but I hate to get off Broadway." After he had been thawed out an attempt was made to get an intelligible statement from him, but his talk was incohent. The authorities believe he is an escaped inmate of the State Insane Asylum at Trenton.

MEN'S CLUB PLANS FOR THE "FORWARD MOVEMENT."

The Men's Club of the Congregational church, wishing to be in touch with the newer movements of the denomination, voted last night to invite the officers of the Congregational Missionary societies to hold one of their proposed "Forward Movement" meetings here in the near future. These are to be held at central points all over the country. They are to be joint meetings and speakers from the different societies will make addresses. The purpose is to impress the unity and greatness of the work, and lead to larger conceptions of its possibilities. The club will invite the churches of Bound Brook and Westfield to attend this meeting through their men's clubs.

Four new members were elected last night.

An Approaching Wedding.

Mrs. George English, of East Seventh street, has issued invitations for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Edith English, to Hugh Samuel Jarvis, of Plainfield. The ceremony will be performed in Grace church on Wednesday afternoon, January 20, at 4 o'clock, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother.

SCOTT POST INSTALLS

Visiting Veterans Witness a Double Ceremony Conducted at Reform Hall.

SEVERAL ADDRESSES MADE.

Past Department Commander Albert Atkins, of Roselle, Acts as the Installing Officer.

The officers-elect of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps were installed jointly at headquarters in Reform Hall, last night. There was a large delegation of veterans and visiting members of the women's organizations from Kilpatrick Post and Ulric Dahlgren Post, of Elizabeth; Barry Post, of Rahway; Kearney Janeway Post, of New Brunswick; Wadsworth Post, of Somerville, while Rev. William Squires, pastor of the Christian church, was present as a representative of a Michigan Post.

The officers of Winfield Scott Post were installed first by Past Department Commander Albert Atkins, of Roselle, as follows:

Commander, H. Craig Smith; senior vice commander, Charles B. Stephens; junior vice-commander, Frederick Wenzel; officer of the day, Stephen R. Struthers; adjutant, Dr. J. F. Berg; chaplain, Nathan Pennington; officer of the guard, Edward Vanderweg; sergeant major, Isaac E. Houston; quartermaster, John R. Naylor; trustees, William C. Smith, William Hand and M. C Dobbins.

Then the veterans gave way for the women and the relief corps officers were installed as follows by Mrs. S. Elizabeth Wilkes, of Trenton, past department president:

President, Mrs. Stephen R. Struthers; senior vice-president, Mrs. Henry Frazee; junior vice-president, Mrs. Charles B. Stephens; chaplain, Mrs. Sarah Mattox; secretary, Mrs. Charles Westphal; treasurer, Miss May Smith; conductor, Mrs. Hattie Gibbons; guard, Mrs. John R. Naylor; assistant conductor, Mrs. Hattie Kirch; assistant guard, Mrs. M. S. Terry; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Frederick Wenzel; musician, Mrs. John Manley; press correspondent, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins; color bearers, Miss May E. Howlett, Mrs. Mary Myers, Mrs. V. W. Nash, Sr., and Mrs. W. C. Smith.

After the installation, Past Department Commander W. C. Smith was master of ceremonies and short addresses were made by the visiting veterans and members of the relief corps. An interesting letter was also received from Past Department Commander James Atwood, who is a member of the Post, but is now a resident of Boston. The letter was read by Commander H. Craig Smith. Interesting remarks were made by Commander Alvord Cook, of Barry Post, and Mrs. Wilkes.

During the social part of the evening Dr. J. F. Berg's orchestra rendered a popular program and the Women's Relief Corps provided a "spread" for the large company. Among those in charge of the refreshments were Mrs. W. C. Smith, Mrs. Henry Frazee, Mrs. Charles Westphal, Mrs. Hattie Gibbons, Mrs. V. W. Nash, Miss May E. Howlett, Mrs. Stephen R. Struthers and several others.

FORESTERS ATTEND A NEWARK RECEPTION

Foresters to the number of about 2,500 from Union and Essex counties, and including Past High Chief Rangers L. T. Titsworth and Dr. H. H. Lowrie and District Deputy Chief Ranger Charles J. McCarthy, of this city, attended the reception given last night at the Colosseum, Newark, to Supreme Chief Ranger Elliott G. Stevenson, of Toronto. There were also representatives present from Courts Dunellen and Westfield, as well as from courts Plainfield and Watchung, of this city.

The program, an elaborate one, included orchestral selections and vocal solos. The address of the evening was made by Supreme Chief Ranger Stevenson, who was given a rousing welcome by members of the order. There was also an address by the supreme vice-chief ranger. A considerable portion of the evening was devoted to a reception to the guest of the evening.

CITY COMMITTEE ELECTS

W. S. Angleman Again Chosen Chairman and Townsend, Secretary-Treasurer.

McCREADY VICE CHAIRMAN.

New Man In Howard C. Tracy's Position—Appointive Members Are Confirmed.

Harmony prevailed at the annual meeting of the Republican City Committee, last night, when officers were elected and the various appointed members were named for the year. The dissention which cropped out at a caucus of the committe last week, when Robert H. McCready of the Second ward took exception to the attitude of other members, disappeared and Howard C. Tracy and Arthur Lovell, who were accused of trying to be dictators, submissively bowed to the will of the majority in the deliberations of the evening.

The chief opposition was directed toward William R. Townsend, but he was again appointed and made secretary and treasurer for another year, while Winfield S. Angleman was re-elected chairman. Robert H. McCready was chosen vice-chairman in place of Howard C. Tracy.

The fact that harmony had been restored did not prevent the committee from further amending the constitution which will in the future prevent a re-occurrence of recent troubles. This amendment, which will come in for adoption a month hence, gives the elective members in each district the right to select and recommend the appointive members without interference on the part of members from other districts.

Appointive members were chosen last night from all the wards with the exception of the Third, and that will be filled later. These persons were elected:

First ward, first district—Ralph I. Tolles and S. P. T. Wilbur; second district—W. L. Gloak, C. S. Sminck. Second ward, first district—Howard H. Williams, J. Henry Crane; second district—William R. Townsend, H. C. Deknatel. Fourth ward, first district—Ralph T. Willis, Francis J. Blatz; second district—Winfield S. Angleman, Fred H. Firstbrook; third district—William E. Hutchcroft, J. H. Cook.

INDIAN FIGHTER RIFLED THE FAMILY EXCHEQUER.

Harry Ashton, Merle Todd, Albert Vail and Louis Fulton, the four Indian fighters who were rounded up by Patrolman Dobson, were released in their own recognizance today to appear at next Monday's session of the juvenile court. In the meantime, Ashton and Fulton will have to report at Police headquarters every morning before going to school. The probation officer declared that both have been playing truant at regular intervals and tabs will be kept on them by the reporting until their case has been disposed of.

The fact that the boys had $15 in their possession when their Wild West exhibition was nipped in the bud led to police investigation, yesterday, to find out where it came from. The cops gleaned the information that Vail had generously donated $3 of his savings while Todd had appropriated $12 from the family treasury while his mother wasn't looking. Only a few cents of it had been spent and the remainder was returned to the parents.

ARM CRUSHED UNDER OVERTURNED WAGON

Pinioned under his overturned delivery wagon, with one arm crushed, Peter Alexander, a wholesale peanut dealer in the borough, last night clung tightly to the lines with the other, and succeeded in holding the fractious horse until a number of men came to his relief. The horse had started to run at Race street. Swinging around the corner at Lincoln place, it swayed from one side of the street to the other until Duer street was reached, where the wagon upset in making the turn, throwing Alexander out and catching him under it.

The arm was badly crushed and will necessitate carrying it a sling for some time. The horse, a large bay, has made things interesting for owner from the time he acquired it.

Case Off for the Term.

The suit on contract and on mechanic's lien of J. S. Irving Company against Theodore Apgar, et al., builders, and Herbert C. McVoy, owner, was put off for the term in the Union county court, this morning. W. S. Angleman represent McVoy.

A MYSTERIOUS "HOLD-UP"

New Market Man Says Attempt was Made to Rob Him on Park Avenue.

POLICE DOUBT HIS STORY.

Judge Refuses to Take Complaint Against Negro He Declares to Be the Guilty Party.

Police headquarters was called up on the telephone at 9:30, last night, by Thomas Brantingham, of Avon Park, who stated that William McCullough, a New Market hay carter, had just driven into the yard of his hotel on a mad gallop and declared that he had been held up on Park avenue near the city line. McCullough was badly frightened, Brantingham said, and wanted a policeman to come out and get the full story of the occurrence.

Chief Kiely received the mesage and hustled out to the hotel by auto. He was told by McCullough that he had been in Blimm's saloon in the early part of the evening and that when he left to get his team from beneath the shed, two colored men went out by the other door. They hurried to Park avenue and Front street where they asked him for a ride as he drove by and he complied. They rode with him as far as the woods just below the trolley turn on Park avenue when the older of the two suddenly caught him round the neck and demanded his money. McCullough declared that he struck the fellow in the face, knocking him out of the wagon, whereat his companion took fright and jumped after him. Before they could renew the attack, the hay carter whipped up his team and escaped to Brantingham's.

McCullough gave a good description of the man who had grabbed him, adding that he had a small dog with him, and the chief 'phoned back to headquarters for someone to go to Blimm's in the hope that the pair might have returned. Roundsman Higgins hurried over and located his man, the dog still being with him. He described himself as Wilson Warrick, a long-time resident of the city, but stoutly denied participating in any hold-up. At headquarters, he declared in the presence of McCullough that he had been at Blimm's but that he had gotten in the hay rig there. At Park avenue and Fourth street, he said, McCullough told him to get out and he did. He was seen to alight by Patrolman Dunlop, he asserted, and when the officer was brought in he verified the statement.

McCullough was insistent, however, that Warrick had attempted to rob him and the colored man was locked up for the night. When the facts were presented to Judge Runyon, this morning, the New Marketer was not clear in several vital points about the alleged hold-up and neither the magistrate or Chief Kiely were impressed with his story. Coupling this with Dunlop's assertion that he had seen Warrick alight at Fourth street, the magistrate refused to take any complaint and the accused was released from custody.

SURPRISE PARTY ON FIFTEENTH BIRTHDAY

A birthday surprise was tendered Miss Helen Taylor, of 1336 West Third street, by her many friends last evening in honor of her fifteenth birthday. An enjoyable evening was spent by all in the playing of games, dancing, etc. Piano selections were given by the Misses Lillian and Ellen Hefto, Grace Squires and Helen Taylor, and Clarence Hoffman and Theo. Martin. Many handsome presents were received by Miss Taylor. Refreshments were served at midnight, after which they all wished Miss Taylor many happy returns of the day. The surprise was arranged by Miss Lillian Willis and Violet Medick. Among those present were:

Mrs. L. A. Martin, D. B. Martin, Mrs. Mattis, Mrs. Taylor and the Misses C. Gullberg, Ellen Hefti, Lillian Hefti, Josie Romond, Grace Squires, Helen Rockfellow, Violet Medick, Lillian Willis, Grace Ludgate, Florence Taylor, Grace Taylor, George Patterson, Alfred Patterson, Clarence Hoffman, Valentine Steenson, Walter Bowden, Ludwig Hefti, Theo. Martin, Samuel Kiney and Harvey Taylor.

Surprised William Mayhew.

The Nonpariel Social Club tendered a surprise party to William Mayhew at his home on West Fourth street, on Monday night. Mr. Mayhew has been seriously ill for sometime and is now convalescing. The club remembered him in a substantial manner.

BOROUGH SALOONS ARE CLOSED AT MIDNIGHT

All of the North Plainfield saloons are being closed promptly at 12 o'clock, midnight, not because of any law requiring them to do so, but in accordance with an understanding between the owners and the borough Council. This agreement went into effect Monday night. Though it has not been put in writing, it is being strictly carried out in order to demonstrate that 12 o'clock is the proper hour for closing.

The new ordinance regulating the closing hour, which passed its second reading at the last council meeting, specifies 11 o'clock, which hour the liquor men claim is entirely too early, and should an attempt be made to enforce it they would oppose it in the courts. In order to be sure that a nearly closing ordinance could be passed that would stand, the city fathers thought it would be better to compromise by adding one hour, as the dealers were willing to observe such an ordinance without making any trouble, and would make a written agreement to that effect.

Should the Council decide finally to make the change in the ordinance from 11 to 12, it can be done before its final passage and would go into effect on March 1. In the meantime the four saloonkeepers will voluntarily close up at midnight, to show their good will and to prove their contention that there is no more disorder on the streets by this arrangement than there would be if the hour was earlier, however much there may have been during the all night regime.

EDIFICE DEDICATED 15 YEARS AGO TODAY

Fifteen years ago today, January 13, 1894, the present edifice of the local Seventh-Day Baptist church was dedicated. The late much lamented Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, was then pastor, and preached the dedication sermon. In that discourse the following thoughts were very forcibly presented.

"No generation has a right to live and plan for itself alone. We are parts of one unbroken whole. We owe much to the past, but more to the future. These walls with all the hallowed influences and memories which they may yet enshrine, are our legacy to coming days. Through them we shall write with those who come after us in doing the Lord's work and giving honor to Him. We dedicate this house to the kingdom of Christ, of truth and for righteousness in the largest sense. We proclaim ourselves in sympathy and as desiring to aid the progress of whatever is true in all creeds, and in all reforms. We send our challenge to all that is evil. We promise to aid, as we are able, in the settlement of every problem which confronts the spread of truth and rightoeusness in the earth.

"These solid walls attest the firmness of our faith. This vaulted ceiling symbolizes our confidence in the overshadowing of divine love, set thick with the blessings of everlasting mercy. When evening comes these lights shall tell of the radience of our hope. These clustered columns bespeak our union in the brotherhood of Christ, while the arched lines which centre in the heart of the dome, unite, as we do, in Him who is the head and heart of all as his people, the ever living and ever loving Christ. The bells in the tower shall help to chime our thanksgiving, and this memorial panel shall repeat the story of our faith in immortality, until walls and ceiling shall go down in tempest shock, or shall crumble under the weight of centuries. Meanwhile, every soul seeking help and inspiration for holier living, higher endeavor, and larger hope, will find a welcome here. Every cause which uplifts society and blesses men shall find advocacy and defence from this pulpit, and these platforms. This organ, whose keys open to ten thousand imprisoned harmonies, and these voices (and others when these shall have passed into the long silence), shall sound the notes of victory when good triumps, the challenge of defiance when evil assails, and the hope-born requiem when goodness dies. Thus let this be God's house, from this time forth, and forever more."—J. D. Spicer.

APPOINTMENTS ILLEGAL?

Question Whether Andrew J. Gavett and H. B. MacDonald Can Serve on Commission.

ALLEGED TO BE INTERESTED.

Body Named by Court to Assess Benefits and Damages for Brick Pave Improvement.

Questions as to the competancy of some of the members to serve was raised last night at a meeting of the commission appointed by the Union county court to assess benefits and damages for the brick pave improvement in the business section. The commission is composed of Harry B. MacDonald, Andrew J. Gavett and Thomas J. Hughes. Both Messrs. Gavett and MacDonald it is contended are ineligible.

As street commissioner of the city, it is argued by some that Mr. Gavett is an interested party, and is therefore, not competent to act as a member of the commission. The local ordinances provide that the street commissioner shall also act as city engineer and the statute provides that the city engineer may be a member of such commission. But the contention is made that the street commissioner here does not officially hold the title of engineer.

Mr. MacDonald is also alleged to be an interested party, having become so since the court made the appointments. Within the course of a week the Monarch Investment Company, of which he is treasurer, purchased the Compton building on Front street, one of the affected thoroughfares. It is said, however, that title has not passed as yet.

Charles H. Hand, Alexander Kane and J. Fred MacDonald were the only three taxpayers to appear at the meeting of the commission last night when Mr. Hand stated that he was under the impression that Watchung avenue, where the brick pavement had been laid was in exactly the same position as Park avenue and Front street, that is that the property-owners had once been assessed for the improvement of that thoroughfare.

The commissioners were unable to find any authority for that statement, it not being indicated on the various maps or in the ordinances. Mr. Hand was not sure that Watchung avenue should be so considered, but the commissioners assured him that they would investigate the matter fully before completing their report.

Mr. MacDonald had nothing to say in addition to opinions expressed by him a week ago, but he took occasion to emphasize those and he maintained that the assessment for the brick pave should be placed on the whole city and not the abutting property owners.

While the commissioners have not expressed their opinions, it is understood that it is their disposition to be lenient with the property-owners on Park avenue and Front street in making an assessment. It is doubted by some whether the city will be able to collect a dollar of assessment from owners of property on those thoroughfares, where previous assessments have been paid for similar work. But this will be a question for Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh to decide and he will advise the commissioners how to proceed. The commissioners adjourned last night's meeting to Monday night at 7:30 o'clock to further take up their duties.

JERSEY SNAKES.

Subject of Illustrated Talk at the Y. M. C. A.

An ophiologist, or snake scientist, Allen Samuel Williams, of New York, will give a stereopticon lecture to boys at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night, January 15. His subject will be "New Jersey Snakes,' and he will display some live ones. He says there are sixteen varieties in this State, which is one more than New York or Pennsylvania can boast of, the extra one being the pine snake.

Trunk Sewer Report About Ready.

The Councilmanic public affairs committee expects to have a report ready for presentation to the Common Council probably at the February meeting. Hering & Fuller, the engineers employed by the several municipalities to make a survey and investigate the advisability of such a system, recently reported to Chairman Mygatt that they had completed the survey and are now finishing up the work of estimating the probable cost of the work. Before the report of the engineers is submitted to the Council it will go before the special sewage commission, comprising the representatives of the various towns interested.

TRY A PRESS WANT AD.

Bob Fitzsimmons' head farm hand, this week from the former pugilistic champion, who is in Paris on a theatrical tour with his wife, Julia Gifford, plainly states that the gladiator has given up all intentions of re-entering the ring. In part it reads: "Have the farm in good shape for our return next April or May. The papers are saying a lot about me fighting again, but I am contented to lead a farmer's life in the future. Don't forget to trim the berry bushes in time." Fitz has adopted berry raising as his specialty. Before he left for Europe he declared that next fall he intends to start the erection of an athletic sanitarium for business men, which will be conducted on the same lines as Billy Muldoon's famous retreat at White Plains, N. Y. Fitz said that the structure will be erected on the rear of his farm, close to the Watchung mountains, and will cost $25,000.

The boys who were taken from a freight train here by railroad detectives a couple of weeks ago, and given a hearing before Recorder David S. Campbell, came into the limelight again yesterday, in a second attempt to penetrate the mysteries of the great west, by way of the box cars. They didn't get much farther than Plainfield this time.

Cornelius B. Waldron, of Martinsville, who died suddenly Sunday night of heart disease, had many friends here. His funeral will be held from the residence tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

J. B. Olmstead, of Byers, Pa., was in the borough yesterday looking up real estate values. He contemplates purchasing several lots here.

Michael Weber, of New Market, has purchased a farm near Stelton and will move there in April.

FOOTBALL.

John Kriney, of Clinton avenue, has entirely recovered from a recent operation.

Robert Eick, of East Third street, is recovering from a severe attack of tonsilitis.

The youngest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Shaw, of Central avenue, is quite ill.

Miss Jennie Bird, of Jersey City, who has been spending a few days with Plainfield friends, has returned.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of Park avenue, has returned from Mt. Holyoke College, where on Sunday he preached to the students.

Mrs. Henry D. Bushnell, of Pittsburg, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Martin, of Hillside avenue, has returned.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith and daughter, Miss May Smith, of Grandview avenue, have returned from a visit with relatives at Keyport.

Harry Slauson, of East Ninth street, left Monday night for a month's trip in the middle west, in the interest of the Enos Manufacturing Company, of New York. He recently returned from a business trip to Maine and New Hampshire.

SUMMIT ALARMED OVER A SUPPOSED MAD DOG.

A coach dog, exhibiting all the symptoms of being rabid, caused much excitement and terror at Summit Monday afternoon and last night. The dog first appeared at the home of William Hand, in Feltville road, and after biting a dog owned by Hand, continued on its run through the city. Hand fired several shots after the dog without effect. It is not known how many dogs may have been bitten by the supposed rabid dog.

As a result of the report of the animal's appearance in the city, the children in the public schools were not allowed out for recess. Some parents sent carriages to the schools after their children.

The last heard of the dog was a report that it had been seen in Short Hills yesterday afternoon.

Last night pedestrians in the eastern section of the city carried clubs.

David Steinfeldt, of Montclair, who was appointed dog catcher a week ago, put in an appearance yesterday.

PREVENTS WIFE'S SUICIDE.

Mrs. Daniel Schwarz, whose husband is connected with the Consumers' Beef Company, and who is a member of the Union County Democratic executive committee, attempted suicide yesterday by inhaling gas in the bathroom of her home in Chestnut street, Roselle. Mr. Schwarz's children told him that they had been sent out of the house by their mother, and that the door was locked.

Calling James W. Hope, who was passing, Schwarz broke into the door of his home. Mrs. Schwarz was found lying on the bathroom floor with the gas tube in her mouth. Dr. Pierson rivived her. She will recover. No reason was given for the woman's actions.

Howell and the G. A. R.

A cannon used in the Civil War is to be given to the Grand Army of the Republic for the purpose of making official badges of the order, if a joint resolution introduced by Representative Howell, of New Jersey, at Washington, becomes a law. It is provided that the cannon shall be a dismounted and condemned one.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Now that "Joe" Ward, who played a little for the Philadelphia club one year and then flopped over to the outlaws, has been reinstated to baseball as it is regulated by the powers that be, the owners of the Philadelphia National League Club would like to know by what right Ward is transferred to the Highlanders.

Ward never was mixed up in any baseball war. He began his major league career with the Philadelphias in 1906. He played long enough to accumulate a fair batting average, and show that he was a promising player, when he decided that he did not care to make the tour around the United States with the Philadelphia National League club. One morning, when they called the roll for early practice in Philadelphia, Ward was among the missing.

The next that was heard from him was that he was playing regularly with one of the clubs of the Tri-State League, at that time an outlaw organization. Perhaps he preferred mountain dew to the kind that he got in Philadelphia. Some said that he jumped the club because a fine had been imposed against him for violating club rules, before he had been long enough with the team to become acquainted with the color of the bat bag. Anyhow he left.

GOLF.

If Jerome D. Travers carries out his present intentions of going to England in April to compete for the amateur golf championship of the United Kingdom, American golfers will follow him with their best wishes. If he can not win the coveted honor we have no man who can do it, and that he can capture it, if he plays in his best form, few men on this side of the water will doubt. But the English and Scotch players know him by reputation, and remembering their defeat by Walter J. Travers in 1904, they will be prepared to test his mettle. The tournament will take place in May on the course at Muirfield, which is said to be one to which Travers can readily adapt himself. May all the fairies be with him.

The nominating committee of the Glen Ridge Golf Club has prepared the following ticket for members of the board of governors, to be voted for at the annual meeting tomorrow night: T. G. Smith, Robert C. Thomson, W. B. Colson, R. H. Tingley, T. W. Maley, W. R. Bruyere, W. F. Beggs, N. K. Eyre and H. D. Smith. The board will select a president and captain. Plans for the coming season will be discussed and a number of applications for membership voted upon.

J. William Clark, W. Campbell Clark and W. Clark Symington were recently elected members of the Baltusrol Club.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

DOWNWARD COURSE.

Fast Being Realized by Plainfield People.

A little backache at first.

Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak.

Disorders quickly follow.

Diabetes and finally Bright's disease.

This is the downward course of kidney ills.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "About three years ago I was suffering badly from kidney trouble. There were dull, heavy pains in my back and in the top of my head. I also had dizzy spells and was subject to chills. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. They promptly did away with my trouble and I have had no symptoms of its return since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Mulburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Howard Pierson, a popular athlete of Bridgeton, recently had his nose broken in a game of basketball.

After drawing his two weeks' pay, Harry Cole, son of Herbert R. Cole, of South Millville, disappeared and cannot be found.

John P. Turner, postmaster of Iona, and his brother, H. D. Turner, of Pennsgrove, received legacies of $19,550 each through the death of a relative.

Herbert Grigg, in Bridgeton jail, charged with complicity in the murder of William Read, of Vineland, has been very ill since the conviction of Walter Zeller last week.

Albert Dallon, the aged farmer, who was found dead in his home, near Alloway, last week, was not frozen to death, but succumbed to Bright's disease and heart failure.

The First Baptist church, Bridgeton, by unanimous vote, Sunday, invited Rev. Albert H. Gage, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., to become pastor. Mr. Gage will give his answer next Sunday.

Samuel T. Mowry, one of the oldest builders in Bayonne, died Monday at his home, 577 Avenue C. He was seventy-six years old. His wife, two sons and two daughters survive him.

Edward Larkin, of New Egypt, was cutting wood yesterday when his axe glanced, sinking deep into the left foot, severing a large artery. He was found in a weak condition from loss of blood.

Cornelius Morrissey, employed at the East Burlington iron foundry, was badly injured when his arm, caught in the cogs of a giant crane, was so badly crushed that it had to be amputated. Morrissey's accident leaves a wife and eight small children temporarily without support.

The police of Gloucester were notified yesterday of the disappearance of Jeremiah McCarty, an aged survivor of th Civil War, from his home, 307 Middlesex street. On Monday last McCarty came to Philadelphia to collect some money due from an estate. He got the money, but dropped out of sight and has not been seen since.

W. Ackerman, former general superintendent of the Southern division of the Public Service Corporation, has been appointed superintendent of the Shore Fast Line, lessee of the Atlantic avenue line and the branches running to Longport and Ocean City. The new manager takes the place of S. S. Neff, who resigned yesterday after three years' service.

The Swedesboro authorities have a horse and buggy which was driven by Frank Latter, the colored man who was arrested there Saturday while trying to get a forged check cashed at the bank. Latter says the team belongs to him, but the officers believe it was stolen. The name of William Richman, a Sharptown diaryman, was signed to the $200 check, which Cashier Ashton at once discovered was forged.

There was nothing in the suspicions held by a number of Hebrew residents in connection with the death of Alter Greenberg, of Paterson, whose funeral, which was to have taken place on Sunday, was held up, in order to allow County Physician Armstrong to perform an autopsy. Greenberg's heart was removed yesterday at the post mortem and found to be badly diseased. Permission to inter the body was granted.

Hebrews of Bayonne Monday organized an independent political club, to be known as the Citizens' League. The officers are former Recorder Hyman Lazarus, president; Julius Melniker and Louis Epstein, vice-presidents; Dr. Charles Larker, secretary; Charles Grotsky, treasurer, and Messrs. Lazarus, Yarker, Grotsky and Mellinker, executive committee. It is planned to work to control the large Hebrew vote in the city.

NEW BASEBALL MANAGER FOR NEW BRUNSWICKS.

Harry Shine is no longer manager of the New Brunswick baseball club. At the annual meeting James V. Harkins was chosen in his place. There was some dissatisfaction over the way the team was run last year. Practically all the members of the team who played in the Middlesex County League last year will be on the team this coming season, along with two or three new men.

Frederick Nolan, who captained the team last year, has been chosen to act as captain next year.

These officers have been elected: President, Samuel Van Vechten; vice-president, William J. O'Rourke; treasurer, Arthur V. Harding; secretary, Robert A. Furlong.

Several matters of special interest will be considered at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., tomorrow night.

GOOD SHOWING MADE BY N.P.H.S. PUPILS

The December records of the pupils of the borough high school show that sixty per cent of the members of the senior class reached a standing above 80 in every subject. The same standing was reached by 50 percent of the junior class, 53 per cent of sophomores and 40 per cent of the freshmen.

The number of graduates in June will in all probability, be twenty, which is one-sixth of the entire number of pupils enrolled in the high school.

Miss S. Margaret Hudson, a teacher of the seventh grade, who has been ill at her home at Rouse's Point, N. Y., expects to resume her duties next Monday.

The principal and teachers of the high school and grammar departments are arranging for an informal reception to be given to the parents of the pupils of these departments on Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock in the Somerset school. Samuel St. John McCutchen will speak.

Fred Niblo.

of the receipts will be donated to the earthquake relief fund. No offering of the series is so intensely interesting and vitally important as is this graphically illustrated pictorial pilgrimage throughout the length and breadth of ancient and modern Italy, including at it does many pictures taken by Mr. Niblo last summer in several cities of Southern Italy, which are now but a memory—Messina, Reggio, Catania, and other towns in Sicily will be shown as they were before their destruction by the most direful earthquake disaster in the history of the world. Rome, the old and the new, will be shown as it is today and its massive cathedrals, palatial architectural achievements, as well as its colossal ruins of the former centuries. Photographically considered, Mr. Niblo's Italy far surpasses his Egypt and Africa. The climatic conditions under which the photographs were made, have enabled him to secure the most excellent moving pictures, as well as many superb panoramic views. All the pictorial features which graphically illustrate this "Travel-Talk" have been colored by Italian artists, and for the first time, Mr. Niblo will present numerous moving pictures in color, which are strikingly life-like and interesting.

COMMON COUNCIL NOW AWAITS MR. MARSH'S OPINION.

As yet the Common Council has taken no action regarding the petition of Miss Mary Brown concerning a barn erected on property adjoining that of hers on Washington avenue. The Council is now waiting an opinion from Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, to whom the matter was submitted. It was expected that the opinion would be received at the last meeting and efforts will be made to have it for the February session. In the meantime Max Goldstein has gone ahead and completed the structure and it is now about ready for occupancy.

It is Chief T. O. Doane's opinion that he was obliged to give Mr. Goldstein a permit to erect the barn and for that reason did so without referring it to the fire and buildings committee.

Buys Smalley Homestead.

The Smalley homstead on Craig place, one of the finest properties in that section of the borough, was sold yesterday by the owners, David C. Smalley and William L. Smalley, Jr., to W. W. Warnock, the West Front street confectioner. The residence has recently been improved and modernized throughout but Mr Warnock will make further changes before taking possession. The property is situated in the centre of the block between Somerset and Duer streets and has been the home of William L. Smalley, Sr., for many years.

Watchung Council Installs.

These officers-elect of Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, were installed last night by District Deputy W. J. O'Keefe: Grand knight, Francis J. Blatz; deputy grand knight, H. P. Greenwood, chancellor, Robert McCormick; financial secretary, Wilbur Schaffer; recording secretary, David B. Doyle; advocate, John P. Owens; warden, P. Connolly; physician, Dr. A. K. Brennan; inside guard, M. Higgins; outside guard, Edward Martell; trustees, P. Traynor, J. C. Traynor, J. J. Kenney.

"Humanscope" Made a Hit.

One of the extra attractions at Proctor's theatre, last night, was the "Humanscope," an exceedingly clever interpretation of one of the moving pictures being given by Mr. and Mrs. Downs. They worked off numerous local hits. The vaudeville numbers were well received by the large audience and the moving pictures were excellent.

Sympathy for Italy.

On motion of Senator Ernest R Ackerman, the State Senate at Trenton yesterday adopted a resolution extending the sympathy of that body to relatives and friends in this State and country of persons who perished in the Italian earthquake, and approving the action of the federal government in sending $800,000 to the sufferers.

S. P. C. A. WANTS AN AMBULANCE TO ASSIST.

Donations are being solicited during the current week by authorized members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals toward a fund for the purchase of an ambulance. The society believes this to be an absolute necessity in Plainfield, where so many fine animals are in use for purposes of business and pleasure.

A prominent physician states that several horses were injured or taken ill upon the streets during the past year and owing to lack of means for transporting them to stables for treatment, had to be killed where they fell. All persons who have not been asked personally are requested to send in their donations, however small, to Mrs. F. W. Butler, 117 East Ninth street, treasurer of the society.

PLAINFIELD TRUST CO. NAME DIRECTORS.

At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Plainfield Trust Company yesterday afternoon, these directors were elected for the coming year: J. Herbert Case, Frederick Geller, Auguustus V. Heely, James W. Jackson, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., Charles W. McCutchen, Henry A. McGee, Walter M. McGee, Charles A. Reed, Isaac W. Rushmore, Frank H. Smith, Samuel Townsend, Cornelius B. Tyler, Lewis E. Waring, Orville T. Waring. There were no changes from last year. On Thursday afternoon, January 21, the directors will meet to elect officers.

Baraca Class Elects Officers.

The annual meeting of the Baraca Bible Class of Temple Baptist church was held at the church last night, when these officers were elected for the coming year: President, Ira L. LaRue; vice-president, Christopher Meyers; secretary, Harry Bowden; treasurer, Richard Elliott; librarian, William Crow; teacher, Rev. J. W. Musson; assistant teacher, Frank Stewart; reporter, G. H. Van Nest. After the business there was a social hour and refreshments were served by a committee comprising Frank Stewart, G. H. Van Nest, David Patterson and Chris. Utzinger.

Church's Annual Meeting.

Members of the Swedish Lutheran church will meet at 122 Madison avenue tomorrow night at 8 o'clock to elect trustees and hold a yearly meeting. Rev. Dr. Beck, of Salem, who will lead, will be assisted by the pastor.

Mrs. Alfred J. Smith, of West Fourth street, who was operated upon at the hospital, yesterday, was reported today as doing well.

Mrs. Albert Brundage, a well-known resident of South Plainfield, is seriously ill at her home. The physician in charge gives little hope for recovery.

PRESBYTERY TO MEET ON TUESDAY, JAN. 19

The Presbytery of Elizabeth will hold its eighty-fourth stated meeting in the Greystone Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, January 19. The opening services will be conducted by the moderator, William Force Whitaker, of the First Presbyterian church of Elizabeth.

Among matters of importance which will come up before the presbytery at this meeting will be the request of Rev. W. W. Casselberry for the dissolution of the pastoral relation between himself and the Presbyterian church of Dunellen; the call of Rev. James B. Dare to the churches of Lower Valley and Cokesbury, and a discussion of the power and duties of the executive session, recommended by the General Assembly.

Among the committees which will make reports at this meeting are: Committee in ministerial relief, chairman, William C. Rommell, of Elizabeth; committee on Sabbath observance, chairman, Charles F. Shaw, of Rahway; committee on temperance, chairman, Rev. Dr. Jas. G. Mason, of Metuchen; advisory committee, chairman, Rev. Dr. I. Alsytyne, Blauvelt, of Roselle; committee on systemaic beneficence, chairman, Rev. William W. Casselberry, of Dunellen; committee on Presbyterian brotherhood, chairman, Rev. Dr. William Force Whitaker, of Elizabeth; committee on evangelistic work, chairman, Rev. William Stuchell, of Rahway; committee for "The Religious Instruction of Children," chairman, Rev. William Hoppaugh, of Springfield.

The spring meeting of the presbytery will probably be held in the Presbyterian church of Metuchen.

FRANKLIN W. FORT TO CARRY JERSEY'S VOTE.

Franklin W. Fort, son of Governor Fort, was selected by the electoral college on Monday afternoon to convey to the President of the United States Senate the official announcement of New Jersey's vote for Taft and Sherman. His appointment recalls the fact that this position is one which has been eagerly sought after on each occasion of the election of a President. Indeed, a perusal of the minutes of the Electoral College of New Jersey shows that many men who became famous in public life have been candidates for the office of messenger.

One of the most notable contests was in 1860, when the New Jersey electors split their vote between Lincoln and Douglas. At that tim there were four active candidates for the position of messenger. They were Joseph D. Bedle, who subsequently became Governor; Franklin Devereux, Isaac M. Tucker and William I. James. Mr. Bedle received three votes, Mr. Devereux, Mr. Tucker and Mr. James each one. The balloting was continued until the tenth ballot, when Henry Mills, a dark horse, was chosen. In 1864 there was another similar contest and after seven ballots Abraham M. Reynolds, of Essex, was selected as messenger.

The Electoral College organized yesterday by electing Frederick Frelinghuysen, of Newark, president, and Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic City, secretary.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The humorist-tourist, Fred Niblo, comes again to the New Plainfield theatre tonight, when he will offer "Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps," surely the most timely and interesting of his series of Talks of Travel in Distant Lands. This zig-zag journey throughout the length and breadth of Italy will include many of the towns in Sicily and cities in Southern Italy which are now but memories, having been obliterated by the most appalling disaster of modern times. The earthquake zone will form but a feature of the subject matter, Rome and the principal cities of modern Italy will be included in the graphically illustrated travel talk on "Italy, from Vesuvius to the Alps."

There is much of attractiveness and interest in the new musical offerings, but nothing else gives quite the satisfaction of "The American Idea," George M. Cohan's latest effort, which has set all the country humming and dancing, whistling, singing and laughing, and which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night. There is no diversity of opinion among the great and enthusiastic Cohan following as to the particular merits of the production as a Cohan standard and type. Everyone agrees that it is one of the most animated, colorful, mirth provoking and clean-cut uproarious musical comedies ever produced. The keenness of the satire with which the international marriage question is handled is agreeably fashioned after a most amusing type of farce, the music is so full of jingle and tunefulness that it is retained in memory, the characters are well drawn and well played and the big musical numbers and wonderfully agile and pretty chorus are worth going a long distance to see. As the bogus French count, George Beban has scored tellingly; Trixie Friganza has easily renewed her great popularity in the role of the gay and dashing young American widow, and Robert L. Dailey is an unctuous and robust comedian, whose clever work reminds one pleasantly of his talented brother, the late Peter F. Dailey. Altogether "The American Idea" is a sure cure for the blues and a kaleidescopic picture well worth studying.

Marked ability as both singer and actor, is rarely found blended in one person. Joseph O'Mara, the famous Irish singer and actor, who will be seen in "Peggy Machree" at the New Plainfield theatre Monday night, January 25, is an exception to the general rule. As a singer, upon the strength of his trans-Atlantic reputation, he may be ranked at the head of the Irish stars. Also he reveals extraordinary ability as an actor. The Philadelphia critics one and all enthused over him. The way he sings the good old songs of Ireland as interpolated into "Peggy Machree," stirs the Irish blood. The erstwhile Sligo man, Kerry man, Connaugh man and the Fardowns, too, take O'Mara to their hearts.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Men's Association of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will meet in the church parlors Sunday night to enjoy a special program.

"Elements of Apostolic Impulse," will be the subject of the prayer-meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight.

The various societies at Temple Baptist church have been re-organized in harmony with the rules governing the new independent body.

The Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church now has an orchestra comprising four violins, cornet, flute and piano, and the music is a decided feature of the weekly session. Elmer Wheeler, flute player, is the latest to join the orchestra.

After a conference of the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn and the officers of the Park Avenue Baptist church, it has been decided to follow the same plan for the maintenance of the repair fund as was used for the debt fund, which will be a systematic one in which every member will be requested to take part.

AMATEUR MINSTRELS AND A RECEPTION.

The Nonpariel Social Club will observe Lincoln's Birthday with an amateur minstrel show and reception in Saengerbund Hall. Van Derveer's orchestra of Elizabeth will furnish music. The members of the club are now holding rehearsals for the minstrel show under the direction of Alfred P. White, who will be musical director.

Miss Mabel Peterson will be pianist. R. B. Norwood is the coach, assisted by A. J. Lambert. The committee of arrangements comprises Robert Stevens, chairman; W. H. Jones, C. J. Mackoy, Louis Peterson, R. Thomas, H. Kearney and C. C. Irby.

No Two Cent Fare.

Judge Scott at Easton on Monday handed down an opinion in the case of the Central Railroad of New Jersey against the County of Northampton to restrain the latter from collecting fines for violating the 2-cent rate law. The court found for the railroad company and placed the costs on the county.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a quoit tournament Friday night.

THE LION'S SHARE

By OCTAVE THANET

Author of The Man of the Hour

(Copyright, 1907, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

The colonel was the star witness (at least this was young Arnold's verdict). His narrative was to the effect that he had gone out to see Mercer, who was a family connection; no, he was not alone, he had a young friend with him; confidentially, he would admit that the friend was Mr. Tracy's son; and, while he could not be sure, he had reason to suspect that he, "young Tracy," had been conducting some delicate negotiations with Mr. Keatcham. At this point the interlocutor nodded slightly; he was making the deductions expected and explaining to himself Keatcham's astonishing communication over the telephone. So, he was surmising shrewdly, that was the clew; the old man had been making some sort of a deal with Tracy through the son; well, they were protected, thanks to Keatcham's orders. Likely as not they never would know all the reasons for this side-stepping.

"I understand, then," he said, as one who holds a clew but has no notion of letting it slip out of his own fingers, "you and young Tracy got here and you found Mr. Keatcham? How did you get in? Did Mr. Mercer let you in? How did it happen he didn't discover Mr. Keatcham instead of you, or did you come in on the side?"

Mrs. Winter, who was in the room, had a diversion ready, but it was not needed; the colonel answered unhesitatingly, with a frank smile: "No, we came in ourselves; young Tracy had a key."

"Oh, he had, had he?" returned Warnebold, with a shrug of the shoulders.

"He is a great friend of young Arnold's; they were at Harvard together, belonged to the same societies."

"Yes, I understand; well—"

The rest of the interview was clear sailing. Mrs. Winter's presence was explained in her very own words. "Of course I was put out a good deal at first," added the colonel, "by the women getting mixed up in it; but Miss Smith undoubtedly saved Mr. Keatcham's life. I never saw any one who seemed to think of so many things to do. Half a dozen times, that first night, he seemed to be fading away; but every time she brought him back. I was anxious to have a doctor called in; but Mercer seemed opposed to making a stir—"

"He knew his business thoroughly," interjected Keatcham's confidant, "he undoubtedly had his instructions to keep Keatcham's presence here a secret."

"He had," said Mrs. Winter; "besides, Miss Smith is his sister-in-law and he knew that she could be trusted to do everything possible. And, really, it didn't look as if anything could help him. I hardly believed that he could live an hour when I saw him."

"Nor I," the colonel corroborated.

Warnebold, plainly impressed by Mrs. Winter's grand air, assured them both that he felt that everything that could be done had been done; Miss Smith was quite wonderful; and he would admit (of course, confidentially) that Mr. Keatcham did have a heart trouble; Mr. Mercer had recalled one or two fainting fits; there was some congestion; and the doctor found a sad absence of reaction; he believed that there had been a—er—syncope of some sort before the stabbing; Mr. Keatcham himself, although he was still too weak to talk much, had no recollection of anything except a very great faintness. Mr. Mercer's theory seemed to cover the ground.

"Except as to who did the stabbing," said the colonel.

"Has Mr. Keatcham any bitter enemies?" asked Aunt Rebecca, thoughtfully.

"What man who has made a great fortune hasn't?" demanded Warnebold with a saturnine wrinkle of the lips. "But our enemies don't stab or shoot us, nowadays."

"They do out west," said the colonel, genially; "we're crude."

"Are you in earnest?"

"Entirely. I know a man, a mine superintendent, who got into a row with his miners because he discharged a foreman, one of the union lights, for stealing ore. In consequence he got a big strike on his hands, found a dynamite bomb under his front piazza, and was shot at twice. The second time he was too quick for them; he shot back and killed one of them. He thought it was time to put a stop to so much excitement, so he sent for the second assassin—"

"And had him arrested?"

"Oh, dear, no; he wasn't in Massachusetts; I told you he wanted the thing stopped. No, he sent for him and told him that he had no special ill feeling toward him, but that the next time anything of the kind happened he had made arrangements to have not him, or any other thug who was doing the work, but the two men who were at the bottom of the whole business, killed within 24 hours. They took the hint and kind feeling now prevails."

Warnebold grunted; he declared it to be a beastly creepy situation; he said he never wanted to sit down without a wall against his back; and he intimated that the president of the United States was to blame for more than he realized. "I hope you have some one watching the house," he fumed, "and that he—well, he doesn't belong to the police force."

"No, he's an honest mercenary," said the colonel; "I'll introduce him to you."

"And you haven't found any method of entering the house?" fumed the financier.

"No," said Aunt Rebecca.

"Yes," said the colonel.

He laughed as they both whirled round on him. "You speak first, my dear aunt," he proposed, politely; "I'll explain later."

Mrs. Winter said that a most careful examination had been made not only by Mercer and the colonel together, but also by young Arnold. They found everything absolutely secure; all the windows were bolted and all the cellar gratings firm and impossible to open.

"Now, you?" said Warnebold.

"I only found out to-day," apologized the colonel, "or I should have spoken of it. I got to thinking; and it occurred to me that in a house built, as I understood from Arnold, by a very original architect, there might be some queer features, such as secret passages. With that in my mind, I induced the young gentleman to hunt up the architect, as he lives in San Francisco. He not only showed us some very pretty secret passages about the house, but one that led into it. Shall I show it to you?"

On their instantly expressed desire to see the hidden way, the colonel led them to the patio. He walked to the engaged column which once before had interested him; he pressed a concealed spring under the boldly carved eight-pointed flower; instantly, the entire side of the columns swung as a door might swing. As they peered into the dusky space below, the colonel, who had put down his arm, pressed an electric button and the white light flooded the shaft, revealing an ingenious ladder of cleats fitted into steel uprights.

"Here," said the colonel, "is a secret way from the patio to the cellar. The cellar extends a little beyond the patio and there is a way down from the yard to the cellar—I can quickly show you, if you like."

"No, thank you," replied Warnebold, who was a man of full habit and older than the colonel, "I will take your personal experience instead."

"Then if you will go out into the yard with me I will show you where a charming pergola ends in a vine-wreathed sun-dial of stone that you may tug at and not move; but press your foot on a certain stone, the whole dial swings round on a concealed turntable such as they have in garages, you know. You will have no difficulty in finding the right stone, because an inscription runs round the dial. 'Mas vale tarde que nunca;' and the stone is directly opposite 'nunca.' When you have moved away your dial you will see a gently inclining tunnel, high enough for a man to walk in without stooping, wide enough for two, and much better ventilated than the New York subway. That tunnel leads to a secret door opening directly into the cellar, so skillfully contrived that it looks like an air-shaft. This door is only a few feet from the shaft to the patio. We have found a bolt and put it on this entrance, but there wasn't any before; nor did any one in the house know of the secret passage."

The colonel went on to say that on questioning the architect he averred that he had never mentioned the secret passage to his knowledge—except that very recently, only a few days before, at a dinner, he had barely alluded to it; and one of the gentlemen present, an easterner, had asked him where he got a man to make such a contrivance—it must take skill. He had mentioned the name of the workman. The colonel had hunted up the artisan mentioned, only to find that he had left town to take a job somewhere; no one seemed to know where. Of course he had inquired of everybody. The name of the easterner was Atkins.

CLEARANCE SALE
AT THE "PARIS"

It is clearly in evidence that the Great Sale IS ON. This does not mean that our great stock is depleted by the first week's sale; far from it! We started in with a heavy stock and great variety, and are to meet the rush as the great sale continues. The month of January is a traditional month of bargains and clearance sales are the only magic back of these wonderful prices. In this relentless fight against high prices the "Paris" is filled with sensational bargains with record prices.

Last week some thought the limit reached—this week will astound our patrons at what we can accomplish in the contest to settle the assertion—that no one can successfully imitate the Great "Paris" Clearance Sale.

LOCAL RED MEN BOWLERS DEFEAT PERTH AMBOYITES.

The bowling team representing Miantonomo tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., rolled a series of two games with a delegation from Poambo tribe, No. 65, of Perth Amboy, on Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night. In the first try the Miantonomo's struck a fast gait and rolled up a total of 927, the lowest tally being 159. The Poambo's came forward with but 613 but did much better in the next game, the figures standing 797 to 773. A return series will be played at Perth Amboy in the near future.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Dr. Henson, formerly a pastor of a Baptist church, Brooklyn, and more recently of Boston, where he resigned his pastorate at the Tremont Temple Baptist church, will preach at the First Baptist church on Sunday.

The prayer-meeting tonight at the First Baptist church will be in charge of the Young People's Society. The subject will be, "Sowing and Reaping," Galatians 6: 7-9. The leader will be Fred Armstrong. An interesting meeting is anticipated.

Mysterious Prisoner.

The Morristown police have requested the aid of Chief Kiely in identifying a mysterious prisoner they have on their hands. He was caught in the belfry of a school at German Valley, where he had been living directly over the pupils, and had a quantity of valuables with him that were evidently stolen. He refused to say anything about himself and the authorities believe that he may have come from this section as a number of milk bottle tops inscribed, "Hiram Templin, Plainfield, N. J.," were in his pockets. Hiram Templin is a local milk dealer.

Noisy Auto Starts a Runaway.

Frightened by the noise of an automobile owned by Charles Pearson, a horse belonging to William De LaR. Anderson and atatched to a buggy, ran away on West Front street at 2:30 this afternoon. In front of Daley's store, the animal fell and slid under another buggy and in its atempts to rise lifted the latter vehicle in the air. There was no particular damage. John Ritter, who was driving the Anderson rig, was thrown out but escaped injury.

Grand Jury in Plainfield.

The Union County Grand Jury is today visiting the scene and further investigating the details relative to the death of Jonathan Randolph, of Jefferson avenue, the result of being run down by an automobile last month. It was on West Front street, near Jefferson avenue, that Mr. Randolph was struck as he was alighting from a trolley and the grand jurors are going over the ground at that point.

Jury, Out All Night, Disagrees.

After being locked up for nearly twenty-four hours, the jury in the contract case of V. W. Nash, Jr., trustee for the estate of W. H. Kirch against William H. Olmstead, returned to court at 10:15 o'clock this morning and reported that it was unable to agree. The court then discharged the jurors. The case was tried before Judge Vail in the Circuit Court yesterday and the jury retired shortly after noon.

LOCAL DENTAL SOCIETY DECIDES ON "BLACKLIST"

During a business session of the Plainfield Dental Society at the Park Club, last night, it was decided to establish a "blacklist" for the benefit of the members. This action was taken following a spirited discussion during which it was pointed out that a majority of the members if not all of them were the victims of bad debts. In the exchange of opinions it was learned that nearly ever dentist in the society had performed work for patrons and they never had any intention of paying their bills. The members will be "posted" concerning such people and each one will have a complete list of their names so they can be governed accordingly.

In connection with the meeting the society enjoyed a fine dinner prepared and served by Mrs. Henry Johnston of the club, and at the conclusion a social time was had. Those present were Drs. F. W. French, O. B. Whitford, Clive M. Montfort, John R. Westervelt, Frank T. Clawson, Guy Hillman, Raymond Stevens, Charles L. Moore, George Moore, C. R. Thiers, of this city; Dr. Chauncey Egel, of Westfield, and Dr. Hogan, of Dunellen.

LICENSE COMMITTEE TALKS OVER MATTERS

The Councilmanic license committee, comprising Duncan W. Taylor, chairman; W. L. Gloak and C. C. Randolph, together with Mayor C. J. Fisk and President R. D. Tolles, held its first meeting of the year last night to discuss the question of liquor licenses. The committee simply went over the situation in an informal manner. There is to be no change in the policy of the governing body regarding the granting of licenses, it is said. In other words, there will probably be no increase in the number of licensed places.

One thing is assured and that is the committee, as well as the Common Council, will insist on a strict compliance with the law by which licenses are granted. This means that one licensed for a saloon or a hotel will be compelled to meet the given requirements to the letter. As chairman of the license committee, Mr. Taylor, according to the annual custom, it is said, will make a thorough investigation into the business carried on by the several licensed places in the city, before reporting on the same to the Common Council.

The applications are received at the February meeting and are acted upon a few days before March 1, so that if granted, they become effective on that date.

MRS. SMITH ROBBED OF HER $250 LEGACY

Mrs. Lillian Smith, a former resident of this city who now lives at 132 Third avenue, Brooklyn, reported to the New York police last night, that she had been robbed of $250, presumably while she was boarding a train at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn bridge. The money was in a handbag which she carried and was the amount of her share of an estate left by her father, the late Thomas O'Gorman, of East Second street. She spent yesterday in Plainfield attending to the settlement and was on her way home when the money was taken.

Mrs. Smith was unable to state definitely where the amount was extracted from the bag but she believed it was done by one of three men of whom she made some inquiries as to what elevated train to take. In the customary bridge crush they crowded about her and were overpolite in assisting her to get an express. After it had started, she opened her satchel and the money was gone. She was positive she had it just before reaching the bridge.

Mrs. Smith is a sister to Patrol Driver O'Gorman, of the local police force, but he said today that he had received no word from his relative to the loss.

Women to Hold a Tea and Sale.

The Entertainment Chapter of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Holy Cross, will hold a tea at the parish house on Mercer avenue, Wednesday afternoon, January 27, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Home-made cake and candy will be for sale and a silver offering will be received at the door.

Anniversary on January 22.

The third anniversary of The Plainfield Day Nursery will be held at the nursery, 444 West Third street, Friday afternoon, January 22, from 3 to 6.

IN LINCOLN'S MEMORY

Winfield Scott Post Plans to Celebrate the Centenary of Martyr-President.

ON FRIDAY NIGHT, FEB. 12.

Observances in Schools—Governor to Issue Proclamation Setting Apart Day as a Special Holiday.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., in conjunction with all the Grand Army posts in the country, is active in preparing for a general observance and celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln on Friday night, February 12. Programs recommended and prepared by a National committee of the Grand Army for use in all the colleges, public schools and for all other assemblies have been issued. At the request of the Grand Army, Governor Fort will issue a proclamation recommending that February 12 be observed as a special holiday.

In connection with the general orders issued by the National commander of the Grand Army, John Foran, department commander, has caused circulars to be sent to all Posts in New Jersey. It is recommended that the commander of each department appoint immediately a committee to arrange for the celebration, that every Post shall recognize the day in a fitting manner, either in special meeting, or in attendance as a body where a public celebration is held, that the co-operation of the Women's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Sons and Daughters of Veterans and other patriotic societies be invited to participate.

The circular contains a provisional program to be used at such celebrations. While the local Post has not decided on its program, efforts will be made to secure speakers of prominence, and it is the intention of the veterans to send invitations to State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, as well as the city officials to be present and make the celebration a fitting one. Commander H. Craig Smith is in charge of the arrangements and within a few days he will appoint a committee to undertake the details. Exercises will also be held in the public schools of the city and borough.

PLAINFIELD FOLKS AT ROSELLE MAYOR'S RECEPTION

The reception given Tuesday night by Mayor and Mrs. Charles Wight MacQuoid, in the Roselle Casino, was the largest affair of the kind held in the borough in years. Nearly 300 guests from Elizabeth, New York, Newark, Westfield, Trenton, Plainfield, Brooklyn, Roselle and Roselle Park were present.

The casino was handsomely decorated. The color scheme of green and red was attained with Southern smilax, laurel and pine hemlock boughs, poinsettias, palmetto leaves and palms. The supper-room was banked with red carnations. Mr. and Mrs. MacQuoid stood opposite the main entrance to the ballroom to receive their guests. Mrs. MacQuoid was dressed in a pale blue godwn, trimmed with pale blue lace. She wore diamonds and turquoise, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The reception lasted until 10:30 o'clock. Dancing followed.

Funeral of Mrs. Vander Voort.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna May Vander Voort was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Sheppard, of Somerset place. It was conducted by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. During the service, two hymns were sung, "Will There be Any Stars in My Crown" and "The Christian's Good Night." The interment was made this morning in the cemetery at Spruce Run, near Glen Gardner, Rev. Mr. Broek officiating at the grave.

Annual Y. W. C. A. Meeting.

The Y. W. C. A. will hold its annual meeting Mondey night, January 18, at which time the New York state secretary, Miss Helen Davis, will speak on "The Social Spirit of the Association." On Monday afternoon and evening there will be on display the term's work in dressmaking, millinery and embroidery. The new term in this work will begin February 1.

Gave a Musical.

Joseph McIntyre, pianist, of this city, and Vladimir Dubinsky, 'cellist, together with Miss Edith Chapman Gould, soprano, gave a musical yesterday afternoon before the Federation of Women's Clubs at Newark. The artists delighted the large audience with their classical music and the event was a noteworthy one in the history of the club.

MISS MILDRED LYON A SOUTHERN BRIDE

Announcements have been received by friends in this city of the marriage of Miss Mildred Eaton Lyon, formerly of this city, and Arthur James Mitchelson. The ceremony was performed in the First Presbyterian church, Brunswick, Georgia, at 7 o'clock last night in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride was for two years a teacher in the Lincoln Public School. She came here from the Westfield Normal School and resigned her position three years ago to go South, where she made her home with Mr. and Mrs. George Herbert Cook, who are relatives. Mrs. Mitchelson's home was at Franklin, Mass. While in Plainfield she made many friends and she was popular as a teacher. The couple will continue to reside at Brunswick, which is also the home of the groom.

MAYOR FISK TO SPEAK TO NEWARKERS TONIGHT

The annual dinner of the Men's Club, of the North Reformed church, Newark, will be held tonight in the lecture room of the church and the indications are that the dinner will be the best the club has yet had. The Rev. Albertus T. Broek, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, Newark, a brother of Rev. J. Y. Broek, of this city, will speak on "The World's Brightest Day."

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, will tell of excise conditions in New Jersey. He will review the work done by the State Excise Commission, of which he was president, and will explain what recommendations were made in the report and why they were made.

President J. H. Abercromby will preside.

ACKERMAN PREPARES PUBLIC UTILITIES BILL

Among the first of important bills that will go into the hopper of the law-making mill when the Legislature turns on the power next Monday evening, will be propositions for an employers' liability law. Both Senator Ackerman, of Union, and Senator Osborne, of Essex, have announced their intention of framing such measures.

As a majority member, Mr. Ackerman's bill will probably be regarded as reflecting the views of the administration.

Governor Fort, in his message, declared himself in favor of an employers' liability law.

OPPOSITION TO PURCHASE OF AUTO FIRE APPARATUS.

Since the announcement that the Councilmanic fire committee favored and would probably recommend that a combination chemical engine and hose wagon of the auto type be installed in the new East End firehouse, opposition has developed. It is now said that the proposed plans are by no means certain. There are doubts in the minds of several Councilmen as to the wisdom of purchasing such an apparatus.

The saving in the cost and keeping of norses is recognized, but on the other hand there is a degree of uncertainty about the auto type of apparatus. It is argued that possibly just when the apparatus would be needed most, the motive power might refuse to work and that would necessitate the employment of horses. However, the proposition is to be thoroughly discussed before it is definitely decided.

Ceremonial Customs in Japan.

Mrs. James Allison addressed the senior and junior subject classes at the Plainfield High School, yesterday, on ceremonial customs in Japan. She spent several years in Japan with her husband, Col. Allison, of the U. S. A., and made a study of the court and ceremonial customs of the Japanese. The address proved to be exceedingly interesting and instructive and will be of much benefit to the pupils in their studies.

Street Repairs Needed.

The condition of the thoroughfare at West Front street and Grant avenue is in need of attention on the part of the street committee. The gutters as well as the culverts and crosswalks shouuld be repaired, as well as the depressions of the roadbed and trolley tracks.

Social Club Dance.

The North Plainfield Social Club will hold a dance in Saengerbund hall on Friday night, January 29.

TO BUILD ON THE OVAL

Settlement of Smalley Estate Will Mark the End of Athletic Field's Day.

USED FOR TWENTY-FOUR YEARS

Crescent Wheelmen Held Bicycle Races as far Back as 1894—Since a Diamond and Gridiron.

The heirs of the Smalley estate, owners of the property which includes Crescent Oval, are about to make a settlement, and in view of the fact, it is said, that the field will no longer be available for athletic contests. The Clinton Avenue Baseball Club, which together with the Y. M. C. A. jointly leased the field, is now looking about for another suitable property. Efforts are being made to secure the vacant land located on West Front street, owned by Brady brothers, of Bayonne. This it is considered, would make an excellent field for ball games. It is plenty large enough and besides offers the attraction of being easy of access. It is on the main line trolley and within a few minutes of the Grant Avenue station of the New Jersey Central. While the Oval was an attractive spot it was hard to reach by the single track trolley road and the general accomodations were poor.

Crescent Oval has for a great many years been the scenes of varied sports. It was originally opened by the Crescent Wheelmen and for several seasons bicycle races, with the crack racers of the country, attracted thousands of people there. Later it was leased by the Y. M. C. A., then the Alis club, the Plainfield Baseball Association and finally by the Clinton Avenue and Y. M. C. A. teams. The oval will be cut up into building lots.

It is not known what the Y. M. C. A. will do for a field, but if the Clinton Avenue's are successful in getting the Brady property, it may be able to make arrangements to use it jointly with the other club.

The Crescent Wheelmen, which developed the oval, making it one of the most famous race tracks in this part of the country, was in the hey-day of success in 1894. On June 2 of that year the oval was opened for bicycle racing. The egg-shaped track was the idea of F. A. Dunham, engineer. It was one-third of a mile in length, with 100 feet radius at the small end and about 230 feet at the large end. It was considered an exceptionally fast track and some of the best bicycle records were made there.

The officers of the club at that time were as follows: President, William H. Rogers; vice-president, L. B. Woolston; secretary and treasurer, Clarence E. Teel; captain, Joseph A. Haynes; engineer, F. A. Dunham.

ILLUSTRATED TALK ON ENGLAND'S HISTORIC CASTLES

The "Historic Castles of England" may be seen in steropticon views and their halls may be visited in imagination at an illustrated lecture to be given in the auditorium of the High School on Saturday evening. The speaker will be George N. Cross, the well-known traveler and lecturer. His attractive personality, his rich full voice and the literary charm of his address, are supplemented by a profession of beautifully colored pictures, many of which were taken specially for this address.

Those who know England and its storied castles will find the lecture a delight. Anyone will find it entertaining and instructive. The proceeds of the admission charge will go to the High School Oracle.

Church Bands Formed.

The committee on church attendance of Hope chapel held a meeting Monday night to form attendance bands. Besides the committee which comprises George Leighs, Mrs. Geo. Whyte, Miss Clara Hunter and Allen Snyder, there were present about seventy-five boys and girls. The Red band, of which Clinton Firstbrook is captain, has thirty-seven members, and the Blue band, Miss Mabel Hunter captain, has a membership of thirty-nine.

Change in Sale of Tickets.

The sale of commuters' tickets for school children and others who attend institutions of learning out of the state, will be discontinued on February 15 by the railroad companies operating in the state. This new rule is in compliance with the Inter-State law, which does not effect the sale of such tickets for use within the state.

City High School Notes.

Henry R. Hubbard, science teacher in the Plainfield High School, is detained at home by a severe attack of jaundice. Miss Lovell is taking charge of his classes.

ELKS EAT TURKEY AS GUESTS OF TOMMY TIMBO

Plainfield lodge of Elks enjoyed an extra social session after the regular meeting, last night, in conjunction with a turkey supper furnished by Tommy Timbo in honor of the tenth anniversary of his entrance to the order. The attendance included visitors from Jersey City, Orange, Somerville and a good-sized delegation from Elizabeth lodge, No. 289, to which Brother Timbo belongs.

The social session lasted until some time after midnight and the informal program comprised selections by the lodge orchestra in charge of B. A. Paroubek, piano selections and songs by Eugene Barry, of New Orleans, who is visiting in Plainfield; vocal numbers by John H. Cose and William Doud and numerous addresses. The turkey supper was declared to be the real thing and Timbo culinary stock soared some sixty-seven points in consequence. Beside the several large birds carved up for the feast, the menu included all the fixin's and cigars.

During the business session, several applications for membership were received.

PROMINENT JERSEYMEN TO GREET THE GOVERNOR

Many men of prominence in the military, civic and political life of the State will attend the reception to be tendered Governor Fort by Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, and staff at the Hotel Windsor, Trenton, Tuesday night. After the banquet there will be a review of the Second Regiment, which is in the Second Brigade, commanded by General Collins, the Governor and his staff making the inspection. Afterward the long-service and markmanship medals will be presented to the victors for 1908.

Among those who are expected to be present are General Joseph W. Congdon, of Paterson, head of the Railroad Commission; General R. Heber Brientnal, General Edward P. Menay, General C. Edward Murray, Dr. John D. McGill, General Bird W. Spencer, Colonel Austen Colgate, Major Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., Captain Oscar H. Condit, Lieutenant Nelson B. Gaskill, President Samuel K. Robbins, of the Senate, John D. Prince, Speaker of the House of Assembly; Senators Bradley and Ackerman, Assemblyman Joseph Baker, of Hudson; Major-General P. Farmer Wanser, Colonel Thomas S. Chambers, Colonel Frederick Gilkyson, Vice-Chancellor Edwin Robert Walker and Leslie W. Fort, the Governor's secretary.

NEWARKER ARRESTED ON FALSE PRETENSE CHARGE

A young man describing himself as Harry G. Freeman, 26 years old, of Newark, was arraigned in the city court this morning, charged with an attempt to obtain goods under false pretenses. The plaintiff was Samuel Rottberg, a clerk in Harry Werner's store, where the accused man picked out several shirts last night, and ordered them charged to Dr. Marcus Clawson, claiming to work for him. Rottberg refused to hand the goods over and called the physician on the telephone, learning that he had no one in his employ answering the description furnished.

While Rottberg was making the call, Freeman ran out of the store but the clerk followed as soon as possible and encountered Detective-Sergeant Flynn at Park avenue and Front street. The officer caught the Newarker as he was hurrying to the North avenue depot.

Freeman admitted the charge when questioned by Judge Runyon and begged piteously to be released. He declared he had been drinking, otherwise he would not have acted as he did. His looks showed him to be recovering from a "spree" and as Rottberg was willing to withdraw his complaint, he was discharged with a reprimand.

Salvation Army Meeting.

A musical meeting will be held in the Salvation Army hall on East Second street tonight, conducted by Major George Caslir, of Newark. The Major will be accompanied by Captain Eddy, who is a splendid musician. All are welcome.

Injured Getting Off Car.

Craven Warrick, colored, seventy-six years old, a street sweeper, was slightly injured while getting off a main line car at Watchung avenue and Fourth street Tuesday night. He claims the car was started too quickly.

RECEIVER FOR PLUMBER

Involuntary Petition in Bankruptcy Filed Against D. S. Dunavan.

V. W. NASH, JR., IS APPOINTED.

Defendant Cited to Appear Before Special Master— Court Issues Injunction.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the United States District Court at Trenton against David S. Dunavan, of this city. In the petition, which is filed by Horan H. Beals, of New York, whose claim is $879.02; Public Service Corporation's claim of $6.64, and Dunham Grocery Co. with a claim for $51.92, it is alleged that while insolvent Dunavan transferred to Simon Roth, the sum of $700, for the purpose of preferring Roth to his other creditors, and that he did also transfer and conceal other of his properties, with intent to hinder and delay payment to his other creditors.

In a petition that was filed asking for the appointment of a receiver it is alleged that Dunavan has plumbing materials, etc., worth $500, and that he has due to him from a contract on the Silbert job about $1,500, and that there is due to him from the Slonim job $400. After this petition was filed Judge Newcorn, as counsel for the petitioning creditors, applied to Judge Cross, and Judge Cross appointed V. W. Nash, Jr., as receiver and placed him under $2,000 bond for the faithful performance of his bond and gave D. W. Littell and Armstrong Mulford as his bondsmen. Judge Cross also made an injunction restraining Simon Roth and Marcus Silbert from making any payments of any money to Dunavan or his agents or attorneys until this case is finally determined.

Judge Newcorn has also filed with Judge Cross a petition asking for an order requiring Dunavan to appear before Atwood L. De Coster as a special master, for the purpose of being examined, and in his petition Judge Newcorn alleges that it will be a long time before a trustee can be appointed and that in the meantime it is necessary that the receiver should have some information about Dunavan's assets, and Judge Cross has made an order requiring Dunavan to appear before the Special Master De Coster on a day to be fixed by him. This is an unusual proceeding and is seldom used.

A notice of appearance has been filed by Robert Newton Crane as the solicitor of Dunavan, who has also filed an admission of his insolvency, and says that he is unable to meet his debts.

There has not been any statement of account filed yet, so that it is impossible to tell what are Dunavan's liabilities and assets.

There is now pending before Judge Bergen in Elizabeth a suit by Horan H. Beals against Dunavan, and these bankruptcy proceedings will now take precedence over that case and it is said it will not be tried.

David S. Dunavan was engaged in the plumbing business and has his place of business upstairs of the building, corner Park and Front street, and has been in business there for many years.

PLINY FISK INJURED.

Brother of Founder of Banking Firm Hurt by Fall.

Pliny Fisk, of Trenton, uncle of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, who is a brother of Pliny Fisk, the head of Harvey Fisk & Sons, the financiers of the Hudson tunnels, was seriously injured Tuesday by a fall on the stairs of his home. Both his ribs were broken and he was badly cut about the face. One of his ears was almost severed by striking a radiator.

Mr. Fisk is eighty-two years old and feeble. The late Harvey Fisk, his brother, founded the banking firm of Harvey Fisk & Sons.

"Peggy Machree" to Return.

Joseph O'Mara, the romantic Irish actor, and the delightful production of "Peggy Machree," which was seen at the New Plainfield Theatre Thanksgiving day, is to return on Monday, January 25, under the auspices of Watchung council, Knights of Columbus. The play is now at the Broadway theatre, New York, where it has ben having a highly successful run. It will close Saturday night, January 23, and comes direct to Plainfield with the complete cast and scenic effects.

This store recognizes no dull season. We are constantly on the alert to provide our patrons with bargain values that are out of the ordinary, and the result is that hustle, bustle and activity pervade our entire establishment. This year we think we will far surpass any previous January Sale. "The White Store's" policy is never to carry over to the next season anything but the most staple line of merchandise. We therefore say that—

NO TELEPHONE ORDERS AT THESE PRICES.

THINK WOMAN FIGURED IN DEATH OF BARBER.

Authorities of Gloucester County are searching for a woman who was with Edward Cole, a barber, last Tuesday night, when he died of violence at the home of Joseph Donnelly, in Paulsboro. Donnelly and James Drain are in the county prison awaiting the action of the coroner's jury, which will meet in a few days.

It was learned yesterday that more than a week ago Cole deposited nearly $300 in the bank, which he had received as his portion of a purchase of land by the borough for a gas plant. On Monday last he drew $100 of this, and then went on the spree in which he lost his life. There was no money in his clothing when his body was found.

VALUE IN MILK AND CREAM
Depends on Quality as well as Price.

Our Cream for instance, is worth from half again to twice as much as that of most other dealers, on the ground of richness and consequent greater cost to us.

No artificial "thickeners" or preservatives in ours either. Our cream is thicker because richer.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GENERAL SPORTS.

Dean H. Waite, who was a very capable guard on the Colgate football team last fall, has entered Syracuse University. Waite is a good basketball player and can put the shot about thirty-nine feet. He did most of the kicking for Colgate on the gridiron last season.

Marcus L. Hurley, the former Columbia basketball player, has returned from a mining trip through Montana. Hurley says there is an all star football team in Butte on which Chauncey Berrien and Shorty Grueger, two former Columbia football men, played. Some of the games are contested in two feet of snow.

Philadelphia has to have some kind of a college basketball league to offset the professional organizations. A league has been made up of Temple University, Medico-Chi, Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, Pennsylvania Dental College and Hahnemann College.

Sixty men reported for Yale's varsity crew on Monday. There are 100 candidates for the freshman boat. After two weeks the first cut will be made. Until then the time will be taken up with machine work and cross-country running.

Although Charles W. Baird is currently supposed not to have quit as director of athletics at Michigan there is a report from Chicago that he will leave his post at the end of the college year and that Philip G. Bartelme of Chicago will take his place. Michigan appears to be in an athletic slump just now, as even the track team looks to be weak. It isn't unusual for colleges to be affected that way after many seasons of success.

Lewis Wentzel, the best forward of the Naval Academy basketball team, comes from Pittsburg. In the Pittsburg H. S. he was not only a crack at basketball but also a first rate shortstop on the baseball team.

Basketball is a pretty rough game all right. In the game between the Georgetown University five and the Washington Y. M. C. A. last Saturday, Capt. Rice, of Georgetown, had his shoulder fractured. Marc Hurley says he thinks the game will have to be reformed if it is to keep its hold in the college.

Columbia's baseball manager has written to Georgetown asking the Washingtonians to play in New York on June 2. This is commencement day at Columbia, the Georgetown folks are informed, and every effort will be made to give Georgetown's players a first rate time. Georgetown is likely to accept.

BASEBALL.

So far as the reinstatmenet of "Childe Harold" Chase is concerned, it seems to be generally taken for granted that the young man will be restored to baseball standing of good repute, when his case is acted upon by the National Commission.

Also it seems to be the impression that he will not escape without a fine which will fit the offence. It is not a matter of personal antagonism to Chase that is likely to dominate the judgment of the supreme court of baseball. It is the principle which is behind the offence.

If every baseball player is to be permitted to jump his contract whenever he feels like it, and wander to some independent organization and play baseball for the remainder of a season, leaving the club in the lurch which guaranteed ample payment for his services, it is evident that organized baseball will speedily become disorganized impertinence.

Some believe that extenuating circumstances existed in the case of Chase. Extenuating circumstances are a slim excuse for deliberate contract evasion, and that Chase jumped his contract his best friend will not deny. The Highlanders may have had no chance to win the championship when he left the organization, but it is certain that after he left they had less chance. That Mr. Farrell should be willing to permit him to play again is a far greater act of forbearance than Chase's application to be reinstated is one of recompense to the man who was hardest hit when he deserted.

New Boats for Lake Hopatcong.

The annual meeting of the Bertrand Island Transportation Company, just held in the company's offices in the Parker building, Morristown, elected the following board of directors: Daniel S. Voorhees, H. A. Van Gildler, Richard J. Chaplin, John W. Mills and J. Frederick Runyon. The board met immediately afterward and elected the following officers: Daniel S. Voorhees, president; Richard J. Chaplin, vice-president; John M. Mills, secretary; Harry A. Van Gilder, treasurer. Bertrand Island is in Lake Hopatcong and the company operates a line of motor boats on the lake. At the meeting it was decided to add two new boats to their fleet next spring.

Married in Undertaker's Shop.

Fort Lee, Jan. 14.—Willing to be married in an undertaker's shop in preference to remaining single, Walter T. Hickey and Miss May Roos, of Jersey City, accompanied by Miss Anna Byrne, from the Bronx, were united in wedlock Monday night in the establishment of James F. McNully, by Justice of the Peace Michael F. Reilly. The couuple found the justice visiting with McNully, and expressed a desire to be married at once. Being assured the couple had no objection to an undertaker's shop, Reilly tied the matrimonial knot immediately, it being the thirty-seventh ceremony he had performed since he became peace justice a year ago.

Say Water Pressure is Too Low.

An effort is to be made to secure concerted action to improve water supply conditions in Carlstadt. Borough Clerk Edward Fortenbach, of that place, has sent a communication to the officials of Rutherford, East Rutherford, Woodbridge and Hasbrouck Heights. The general complaint is that the pressure is so low that certain sections are unable to get an adequate or properly delivered supply. For fire-fighting purposes, it is said, the service is very defective.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave Monday night.

The officers-elect of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., will be installed tonight. A banquet will follow.

Plainfield, N. J., January 14, 1909.

Why make the Bishops' law any more stringent when the Excise Commission has reported that its present provisions are being violated in nearly every place in the State? What seems to be needed is enforcement, not more law.

According to the annual report of Comptroller West the State's funds are so low that in all probability the receipts for the fiscal year of 1909 will show a deficiency of approximately $575,000.

So what is the use of wasting time discussing the proposed boulevard?

The joint resolution authorizing the issue of a two cent postage stamp in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln was passed by the House of Representatives yesterday. The agitation for this stamp was started by State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman of this city, who deserves the thanks of his fellow countrymen for his successful efforts.

All over the land plans are being made for the observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, the greatest American, and why has not Plainfield taken some steps in the same direction. The movement would prove immensely popular and we suggest that a committee of representative citizens meet together for such purpose. It is not too late to begin, and there is no reason why Plainfield should not be able to outdo its sister cities in New Jersey in the magnitude of its celebration.

STATE NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

The Millville Rod and Gun Club has disbanded, owing to the lack of interest.

Chief of Police Gravenor in Camden yesterday directed Dog Warden Frank Smith to capture unmuzzled canines running at large.

Frank A. Grier, one of the most active young Republicans of Salem, was appointed under sheriff by Sheriff Batten yesterday. The office pays 500 per annum.

The police in Camden yesterday were instructed to notify shopkeepers to remove all obstructions from the sidewalks, thus conforming to an ordinance passed by Council.

Rev. John R. Mason, pastor of the Collingswood M. E. church, has announced his acceptance of a call to the First church, Salem, subject to the approval of conference.

Rev. George M. Hughes, of Mt. Holly, has been asked to the pastorate of Trinity M. E. church, Bordentown, to succeed Rev. U. G. Hagaman, who will probably go to Union Street church, Camden.

Bayonne politicians of both parties heard yesterday that one of the objects of the Citizens' League, organized on Monday by Hebrews of that city, is to nominate Hyman Lazarus as their candidate for Mayor net fall.

While going to Trenton yesterday with the Paterson delegation of lawmakers, Stephen Dawson had a narrow escape. Just beyond Princeton Junction a bullet smashed the car window and passed close to Dawson's head.

For the first time in his many trips "Barney" Bogan went to the State prison at Trenton from Camden yesterday without creating a scene. "Barney" is known as the "legless terror" to the police and county officials of Camden.

Asbury Park's City Council has voted to appropriate $6,000 to be used in the erection of a building on the boardwalk, between the Casino and pier, as a publicity bureau and headquarters for the Carnival Association and conventions.

"Willie" Steigert, fifteen years old, who shot and killed Andrew J. Tilton while in the outskirts of Toms River, November 24 last, has been committed to the State Hospital at Trenton by Supreme Court Justice Voorhees, as being mentally deficient and unfit to stand trial.

Coming in contact with the deadly third rail, a steel tape line he was holding in his hand came dangerously near ending the life of Frank W. Middleton, city engineer, of South Atlantic City. Middleton was surveying near May's Landing, when the other end of the steel tape measure fell across the live rail. He received a shock and was rendered unconscious.

The Atlantic County Bar Association yesterday elected George H. Bourgeois president; Clarence L. Goldenberg and Judge Robert Ingersoll, vice-presidents; John S. Stack, treasurer; Oliver T. Rogers, secretary; Louis Reipetto, librarian. In open court, Captain Samuel R. Perry delivered an eulogy of the late Clarence Albertson, who, while temporarily insane, took his life in Atlantic City.

HELD AS WITNESS IN KUPERMAN MURDER CASE.

Newton, Jan. 13.—Henry Brink, of Montague, has been committed to the Orange County Jail at Goshen, N. Y., as a witness in the Kuperman murder mystery. The body of Kuperman was found in a thicket near the Montague Township line Saturday. His face had been crushed with a club or hammer. Brink was taken in custody at Tri-States, N. Y., yesterday. He was summoned to Tri-States and obeyed the subpoena. At Tri-States he was met by Coroner E. G. Harding, Sheriff A. L. Decker and Chief of Police W. F. Wilkin, of Port Jervis. An examination was held at Bauer Inn Hotel, and Brink was later taken to the Goshen Jail. He will be held there as a witness. The authorities will not disclose any facts as to Brink's connection with the case.

A young man living at Montague asserts that he saw the murdered peddler and another man in a wagon on Friday night, about a mile from where Kuperman's body was found, as he was on his way to an orchestra rehearsal in Port Jervis. This was about a mile and a half from where Frank Quick and John VanAuken saw Kuperman walking with his pack, and was in this county.

The family of Kuperman, who live in Port Jervis, are in a destitute condition. Jewish residents of that city raised between $80 and $90 for the expenses of the burial, and a popular subscription has been started for the family's benefit.

It is positively asserted that the murder was not committed at the spot where the body was found, and that the corpse was carried to the place in a wagon. Careful search fails to reveal any blood spots in the highway. The New York officials want the Sussex county authorities to investigate and the later will do so.

PAST YEAR NOTABLE IN SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK.

Edward W. Dunham, chairman of the publicity committee of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association, issues today some interesting and remarkable facts regarding the progress of Sunday-school work through out the State. The past year has been, in many respects, the most noted of the fifty years in the special work of the New Jersey Sunday-schools. Throughout the State advances have been made in the home department work and the adult Bible class work, and especially the teachers' training department work. In the latter departments scores of teachers' training classes have been organized in hundreds of Sunday-schools. As a result, the teaching forces of these schools will be increased and the influence of the teaching widened.

Echoes of the recent jubilee convention of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association, which was held in New Brunswick, are given in the association's year book for 1909, which was mailed last week to the officers of the county and State Sunday-school associations. The annual reports tell an interesting story of 1908's work. General Secretary E. M. Fergusson reports that the international Sunday-school convention, held in Louisville last June, adopted the graded international lesson course will be ready for use in the Sunday-schools of New Jersey next October.

Probably the most interesting feature of last year's activities was the advance made in the work of the adult Bible class department of which James E. Church, of Plainfield is president. Up to date forty-four certificates have been issued to the men's and women's Bible classes in New Jersey, and they are regularly enrolled with the State committee as organized Bible classes. Over a thousand men and women are members in these special classes for the study of the Bible. The importance of this adult Bible class work will be emphasized in Philadelphia next week, January 19 to 21, when the International Sunday-school Association will conduct an interstate Bible class conference. W. C. Pearce, of Chicago, "the Bible class expert," and other Sunday-school workers will be present and give their views on this important line of Sunday-school work. Particulars regarding the conference can be obtained through W. G. Landes, 701 Witherspoon building, Philadelphia.

THE PICKETT GIRL'S DEATH IS AVENGED.

Walking from his cell to the death chamber in the State prison, with a crucifix in each hand and unassisted, John Mantesanna, the slayer of Edith Pickett, of Caldwell, went to his death Monday night at Trenton. His conduct was marked with the same outward indifference which he displayed during the trial and for most of the time while incarcerated at the prison. About three days ago Mastesanna showed signs of insubordination and threatened to fight against the carrying out of the death sentenced. Later this mood passed. At the last moment Mantesanna was allowed to walk from his cell without a hand upon him.

While the straps and electrodes were being put in place, Rev. Aloysius Fish, chaplain of the prison, and Rev. Dr. James Griffith, of St. Mary's Cathedral, repeated the prayers for the dying. Just before the current was turned on Mantesanna spoke a few words in Italian.

The execution was conducted by Electrician Davis, of New York, and was witnessed by Dr. Edward A. Spitzka, of the Jefferson Medical College. In less than six minutes after Mantesanna entered the death chamber he was officially pronounced dead by a number of physicians who witnessed the execution. The current consisted of 1,800 volts with ten ampheres. Two contacts were given, the first of sixty-five seconds' duration and the second of seven seconds.

THINKS SHE HAS BEEN DUPED.

The police of Paterson are searching for a man, who is believed to have duped a number of persons in that city. The only victim known, however, is Mrs. Julia Herlihy, who conducts a boarding-house at 8 Jackson street in Paterson. She said that about two weeks ago a man who said he was Harry Brown, came to her home, secured a room, said he represented the Newark Arc Light Company and sold to her $25 worth of stock in the "company" he represented.

Two days later Mrs. Herlihy's suspicion was aroused and she complained to the police. Brown was taken by an officer to the station-house. There he said that Mrs. Herlihy had accused him wrongly and offered to return to her the $25 she had given him.

The police allowed him to go. Brown returned to the Jackson street house and finally convinced Mrs. Herlihy that the proposition was a good one. She says he got $75 more from her, left the house and has not been seen since. Mrs. Herlihy again notified the police, showing them some papers on which were gold seals, which her boarder had given her for the money.

Children and Dogs.

"I saw a woman coming across Stuyvesant Park," said she, "holding a string with a little white dog at the end of it. She said: 'You darling little precious baby, you!' to the dog.

"I like dogs all right enough, but about half a block from the park there are the raggedest sort of children who haven't enough to eat half the time. It seems a sort of pity thy can't dress them up in white, tie strigs around their necks and say, 'You darling little precious baby, you,' to them."—New York Press.

The Popular Amethyst.

The amethyst is the fashionable stone for 1909. It is pronounced by the prophet, Zadkiel, to be the "lucky stone."

If the love and friendship which the amethyst represents are of no account to wearers let them remember that it is also a charm against the evils of intoxication! Anyhow the art jewelers have seized upon this Oriental superstition and set the stone in a myriad of designs which make it peculiarly lovely and attractive.—Boston Herald.

Something Else Needed.

PRINCETON MEN ACTIVE ALONG LITERARY LINES.

A list of the literary work of members of the department of art and archaeology at Princeton, the mathematical department and the philosophy department in the university for the year 1908 was issued yesterday. It is understood that a review of the work of members of other departments of the university faculty is forthcoming. The object is to furnish to the university at large a correct idea of the amount of work done by faculty members in a form exerting an influence on the outside world. Books, book reviews, magazine articles and published speeches are included.

Those who are mentioned in the several departments are: Professor Allan Marquand, Professor Howard C. Butler, Professor Oliver S. Tonks, and Professor C. R. Morey, of the art and archaeology department; Dean Henry B. Fine, Professor Henry D. Thompson, Professor John G. Hunt, Professor C. R. Mac Innes, Professor Oswald Veblen, Professor C. E. Stromquist, Professor C. E. Swith and Professor F. Irwin, of the mathematical department; Professor John Grier Hibben, Professor George S. Patton, Professor Norman Smith, Professor W. T. Marvin, Professor W. H. Sheldon and Professor E. G. Spaulding, of the department of philosophy.

Convicted of Stabbing Man.

Antonio Mormile was convicted in the Somerset Court yesterday afternoon on a charge of atrocious assault with intent to kill William J. Curry, formerly a barkeeper at the Bernardsville Inn, Bernardsville. The evidence in the case showed that August 15, 1908, an altercation had taken place between Mormile and Curry in the borroom over a matter of change. Mormile threatened to throw a beer glass at Curry, who stepped from behind the bar and repeatedly knocked the Italian down. Mormile went outside of the inn and Curry followed. Mormile turned on Curry and stabbed him in the abdomen with a clasp knife. Curry was at first believed to be fatally wounded, and was in a hospital for a long time. He appeared at the trial in a week condition, and his counsel told the jury that it would be necessary for him to undergo another operation before he could recover.

Kean to Entertain Constituents.

Senator John Kean will be host, as is his custom, to the New Jersey delegation, who will participate in the inauguration parade at Washington for President-elect Taft on March 4. The Union county delegation will leave for the capital the night before. Assurances have been given by the officials in charge of the arrangements for the parade that the Union county delegation will be given a splendid position in the line of march. They will be quartered at Engel's hotel.

SOMERVILLE WITHOUT ANY WATER SUPPLY

Somerville was without water yesterday owing to the bursting of the main between that place and Raritan Tuesday night, due to excessive pressure. The break is the outcome of a dispute between the town commissioners and the water company over the amount of pressure. A day next week was fixed for a public test at the suggestion of the company.

The commissioners, however, thought they would have a test of their own, and last night a false alarm of fire was rung. The engines responded, hose was laid and connections made, but it was impossible to get a stream of any force. Then Chief Wise tried to ring in the "fire out" signal, but the big whistle of the Somerville Woolen Mills screeched out the general alarm.

The whistle was heard at the water company's pumping stations at Raritan, and then, miles away, at Somerville, the firemen felt the pressure climbing. It was still climbing when the crash came. The supply main burst between Somerville and Raritan, tearing out several sections of pipe and digging a gully twenty feet deep. The pipes in many residences had given way earlier, under the unusual pressure. Even boilers yielded under the strain, and the town's water supply was cut off completely.

MR. RANDOLPH TO VISIT EARTHQUAKE'S SCENES

Before departing on a second trip through the Mediterranean, L. V. F. Randolph, formerly president of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange and president of the Atlantic Trust Co., visited friends in the Street yesterday. Mr. Randolph intends to sail from New York on Saturday on a four months' tour through Algiers, Italy and Sicily. He expects to visit the scenes of the earthquake in Sicily and Calabria and upon his return probably will deliver lectures on the subject. Mr. Randolph was for many years among the most popular members of the exchange, where he was described by his intimate friends as a happy combination of financier, poet, traveler and lecturer. Having retired from active business three years ago, he now is enjoying life in travel and research. He owns a handsome residence in Plainfield. While at home, Mr. Randolph interests himself in amateur gardening. He has cultivated an acre of land in a unique way. In this acre, he has planted a specimen of every three, shrub bush and vine which will grow in this climate. The exhibition attracts visitors from miles around.

Mr. Randolph made a Mediterranean trip last winter, remaining abroad six months and visiting Egypt and Palestine. While in the Holy Land, he collected many photographs and relics. He had the photographs made into stereopticon slides and has used these in illustrating his lectures during the last two months. Last week, he gave a lecture on Italy in Plainfield, and closed his address with an appeal for funds for the surviving victims of the earthquake. The proceeds of the sale of the tickets in this lecture were contributed to the Red Cross relief fund.—New York Commercial.

CHILDREN SHOULD HAVE CAREFUL EXAMINATION.

It is not so customary as it was a few years ago to attribute a child's backwardness to a dull brain. Nowadays most big schools have specialists who give a careful physical examination to each pupil.

Nervous irritability, slowness of mental grasp, are often the direct results of poor eyesight.

The child of brilliant parents appeared almost an idiot, so dull was she in her lessons. Her teachers wrote despairing notes to the mother and everyone had given her up as hopelessly stupid.

One day during a recitation the teacher asked the child to spell a name on a sign across the street.

"I do not see any sign," was the reply.

Only then was it learned that the girl was very nearsignted. An occulist was visited and with proper glasses the child's brain was found to be unusually alert.

Before you berate your young son or daughter for lack of brain power see that it is not some physical lack that is at fault.

WHEN STARTING TO KEEP HOUSE.

If one has little money it sharpens one's wits to invent, and make the necessary furniture

Two girls who took two small rooms this winter were at a loss how to fit their necessary furniture into a small space. The onue room was used as a bed-room and the other had to do duty as living room, dining-room and kitchen.

Each girl owned a desk, with which she could not dispense; the box cot occupied one side of the room, a kitchenette was behind a screen in another corner and with one or two rockers there seemed to be no place for a table big enough for a comfortable meal.

The grandmother of one of the girls solved the problem by offering an old kitchen settle of yellow pine that had been in her outer kitchen for years. This quaint piece of furniture had a top that could be turned down into a table when needed, and at other times was used as the back of a seat.

The girls rubbed up the wood with a mahogany stain, and placed the settle against the wall between two doors, where it held a few pillows except at meal time, when the top was converted into a good-sized table.

If one is not fortunate to own, or to be able to pick up in some out-of-the-way place, one of these old-fashioned settles, they can sometimes be found in the modern mission furniture.

Such a settle is especially liked in bungalows or on the porches of country houses, where one room must do duty for several purposes. Even when used entirely as a table they are useful, as the seat part is often a box in which can be stored work, books or even the table ware that is in daily use.

Talked on Modern Baking.

Mr. Emery, representing a Philadelphia baking company, this morning addressed the junior class at the Plainfield High School on modern methods of baking on a large scale. In the course of his remarks he stated that the new brick oven at the State Hospital at Morris Plains, which has replaced the old-fashioned rotary oven, has a capacity of 5,000 loaves of bread a day.

$77,000,000 JOKER IN COFFEE DUTY SCHEME

A gigantic scheme by which London and American speculators and financiers expect to make $75,000,000 or more stands revealed, according to information given to the New York World, by the powerful agitation now begun at Washington for an import duty of five cents a pound on coffee.

If the plans of this syndicate go through not only will from $75,000,000 to $77,000,000 be taken from the pockets of American consumers of coffee, for the enrichment of the speculators, but the latter will have the added satisfaction of fooling the United States—inasmuch as, under the proposed scheme, this country will get, for the first year or more, practically none of the import duty which it is planning to levy.

On the contrary the import duty, or its equivalent, will flow into the hands of the syndicate, and the State of Soa Paulo in Brazil will have carried its famous "valorization" coup to a successful conclusion at the entire expense of the hoodwinked American coffee consumers.

Inside History of the Scheme.

The inside history of the whole scheme—one of the biggest and cleverest ever put up, it is said in Wall street—is in brief as follows:

Brazil produces nearly 90 per cent. of the coffee drunk in this country. Practically all of the Brazilian coffee used here is grown in the State of Soa Paulo. There was an enormaus crop in Soa Paulo in 1901. It demoralized trade. Early in 1906 there were indications that Sao Paulo would produce another bumper crop, with the probability that the market would again be glutted and prices reduced to a ruinous level. The State of Sao Paulo decided to "valorize"—in effect, to equalize the market prices, by buying and storing the surplus crop. The idea back of the scheme was that lean years would follow fat ones and that the stored berries could then be fed into the world's maw judiciously and prices maintained.

But nature disposed otherwise. Normal crops followed the abnormal one, and the stored coffee could not command the price necessary to meet the debt which Sao Paulo had contracted in order to carry the surplus. Shrinkage and storage charges and other expenses began to eat in measurably and trouble was ahead. The Brazilian Government thereupon came to téh aid of Sao Paulo and agreed to assume that State's "valorization" debt and also to float the whole scheme on its own account.

Hermann Sielcken, the millionaire coffee importer of New York, is credited with having originated the Sao Paulo valorization scheme, and it is said he was largely instrumental in inducing the Brazilian National Government to assume the plan. Accordingly, the original indebtedness of Sao Paulo, against which the excess coffee had been put up as collateral, was refunded, through the Rothschilds, Schroeders and other foreign bankers.

Bonds Issued by Brazil.

Under the enlarged plan the Brazilian Government issued $75,000,000 in bonds, pledging Sao Paulo coffee as collateral. The bonds were handled in this country by J. P. Morgan & Co. According to a statement published in Nov. 18 last, by the Interstate Grocer, of St. Louis, over the signature of Mr. Sielcken, he and Arbuckle Brothers, the Brooklyn coffee grinders, had taken over the calorization coffees.

"We are fully secured," he said, "on the advances we have made. My firm (Crossman & Sielcken) will gladly take over all the coffee at the advance made on it."

And now, when the "valorization" plan is just nicely arranged, comes the strong cry before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress for the imposition of an import duty on coffee of five cents a pound. It is regarded as deeply significant that no protest is heard from Brazil against this proposed tax. Under ordinary circumstances countries are quick to protest when the American Government proceeds to lay a tax on their imports.

NEWARK-PATERSON BOYS, HOBOES, ARE ARRESTED.

John Reilly, aged thirteen years, and Joseph Raymond, aged fourteen, professed juvenile hoboes, who exhibit a remarkable knowledge of the country, were sent to the Detention House, in Philadelphia, Monday night from detective headquarters, where they had been sent by City Hall Guard Brown, of Newark, to whom they appealed for shelter. The boys said they met while beating their way on a train near Quakertown recently, and both claimed to have traveled over the greater part of the United States. By their descriptions and unique talk they convinced the detectives that they had seen much.

Reilly says he formerly lived at 15 Summit place, Newark, but after his father's death a couple of years ago he was compelled to shift for himself. Raymond says his home was in Paterson, and that he ran away from a woman with whom he made his home after his mother died.

Poupee." The season of 1906-7 she made her first marked success in "The Belle of Bohemia," and with this piece she went to London. She was also seen in London in "The Whirl of the Town" at the Century theatre, and then returned to America to appear in "The Girl from Paris." Her later successes are "The Chaperon," "Twiddle Twaddle," "His Honor the Mayor" and "The Prince of Pilsen." The season of 1906-7 she was seen as Caroline Volkens in "The Orchid" with Eddie Foy, produced at the Herald Square theatre, New York, April 8, 1907. The season of 1907-08 Miss Friganza was seen in vaudeville.

Miss Kathleen Mathew, Father Mathew's gifted daughter, who is to appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, in her original Dramatic Recitals of the Songs and Stories of Ireland, is a native of Dublin. She comes of rare old Irish stock, being grand niece of Father Mathew the world famous Irish apostle of temperance, and cousin of John Dillon, M. P. Her uncle, Lord Chief Justice Mathew, died recently in London. Her mother was Miss Burke-Foster, of an old Clare and Galway family. Her father, Captain John James Mathew, was captain of the Northumberland Fusiliers. Miss Mathews appearance here is under the auspices of the L. A. A. O. H.

chree." Stated in a nutshell the play is written around a mock marriage. A certain Lady Margaret O'Driscoll, masquerades as a country colleen at Downwilty Fair. Barry Trevor flirts with her and finally they go through a mock marriage, but afterwards learn that they really have been married. Trevor takes the "Queen's Shilling" and goes off to the wars, while Peggy resumes her position as a country lady. Years after Trevor returns. He is at once recognized by his wife, though at first he is far from suspecting the identity of "Lady Margaret" and "Peggy Machree." In a thrilling climax they remarry and "live happily ever after." Mr. O'Mara will sing, among other songs, "Believe Me," "The Birds Fly South," "The Wearin' of the Green" and "The Exile's Return."

THE LION'S SHARE

By OCTAVE THANET

Author of The Man of the Hour

(Copyright, 1907, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"Atkins," cried Warnebold, at this turn of the narrative, "Keatcham's secretary? Why, he's the boldest and slyest scoundrel in the United States! He started a leak in Keatcham's office that made him a couple of hundred thousands and lost us a million and might have lost us more if Mercer hadn't got on to him. Keatcham wouldn't believe he had been done to the extent he was at first—you know the old man hates to own to any one's getting the better of him; it's the one streak of vanity I've ever been able to discover in him. Otherwise, he's cold and keen as a razor on a frosty morning. He was convinced enough, however, to discharge Atkins; the next news I had, he was trying to send him to the pen. Gave us instructions how to get the evidence. No allusion to his past confidence in the fellow, simply the orders—as if we knew all the preliminaries. Wonderful man, Mr. Keatcham, Col. Winter."

"Very," agreed the colonel, dryly.

By this time the warrior and the man of finance were on easy terms. Warnebold remained three days. Before he left the patient had been pronounced out of danger and had revived enough to give some succinct business directions. Mercer had been sent to look out for the cement deal; and Keatcham appeared a little relieved and brighter when he was told that Mercer was on his way.

"He will put it through if it can be put," he said said weakly to Warnebold; "he's moderately smart and perfectly honest." Such words, Warnebold explained later to Mrs. Winter, coming from Keatcham, might be regarded almost as extravagant commendation. "Your cousin's fortune is made," he pronounced, solemnly; "he can get Atkins' place, I make no doubt."

Mrs. Winter thought that Mercer was a very valuable man.

"Only always so melancholy; I've been afraid he had something serious the matter with his digestion. It's these abominable quick lunches that are ruining the health of all our steady young men. I don't know but they are almost as bad as chorus girls and late suppers. Well, Mrs. Winter, I'm afraid we shall not have another chance at bridge until I see you in New York. But, anyhow, we stung the colonel once—and with Miss Smith playing her greatest game, too. Pity she can't induce Mr. Keatcham to play; but he never touches a card, hardly ever takes anything to drink, doesn't like smoking especially, takes a cigarette once in a while only, never plays the races or bets on the run of the vessel—positively such icy virtue gives an ordinary sinner the cramps! Very great man, though, Mrs. Winter, and a man we are all proud to follow; he may be overbearing; and he doesn't praise you too much, but somehow you always have the consciousness that he sees every bit of good work you do and is marking it up in your favor; and you won't be the loser. There is no question he has a hold on his associates; but he certainly is not what I call a genial man."

Only on the day of his departure did Warnebold, in young Arnold's language, "loosen up" enough to tell Arnold and the colonel a vital incident. The night of the attack a telegram was sent to Warnebold in Keatcham's confidential cipher, directing the campaign against Tracy to be pushed hard, ordering the dumping of some big blocks of stock on the market and arranging for their dummy purchasers. The naming of Atkins as the man in charge was plausible enough, presuming there had been no knowledge of the break in his relations with Keatcham. The message was couched in Keatcham's characteristic crisp phraseology. But for the receiver's knowledge of the break and but for the previous long-distance conversation, it had reached its mark. The associates of Keatcham were puzzled. The hands were the hands of Esau, but the voice was the voice of Jacob. There had been a hurried consultation into which the second long-distance telephone from San Francisco broke like a thunderclap. It decided the hearers to keep to their instructions and disregard the cipher dispatch.

As They Peered Into the Dusky Space Below.

"And didn't you send any answer?" the colonel asked.

"Oh, certainly; we had an address given, the Palace hotel, Mr. John G. Makers. We wired Mr. Makers—in cipher: 'Dispatch received. Will attend to it,' I signed. And I wired to the manager of the hotel to notice the man who took the dispatch. It wasn't a man, it was a lady."

"A lady?"

"Yes, she had an order for Mr. Makers' telegrams. Mr. Makers gave the order. Mr. Makers himself only stopped one night and went away in the morning and nobody seemed to remember him particularly; he was a nondescript sort of party."

"But the lady?" The colonel's mouth felt dry.

"The lady? She was tall, fine figure, well dressed, dark hair, the telegraph girl thought, but she didn't pay any special attention. She had a very pleasant, musical voice."

"That doesn't seem to be very definite," remarked the colonel, with a crooked smile.

It didn't look like a clew to Warnebold, either; but he was convinced of one thing, namely: That it would pay to watch the ex-secretary.

"And," chuckled he, "there's a cheerful side to the affair. Atkins is loaded to the guards with short contracts; and the Midland is booming; if the rise continues, he can't cover without losing about all he has. By the way, we got another wire later in the day demanding what we were about, what it all meant that we hadn't obeyed instructions. Same address for answer. This time we thought we had laid a nice trap. But you can't reckon on a hotel; somehow, before we got warning, Mr. Makers had telephoned for his dispatch and got it."

"Where did he telephone from?"

"From his room in the Palace."

"I thought he had given up his room?"

"He had. But—somebody telephoned to the telegraph office from somewhere in the hotel and got Mr. Makers' wire. You can get pretty much everything except a moderate bill out of a hotel."

"I see," said the colonel, and immediately in his heart compared himself to the immortal "blind man;" for his wits appeared to him to be tramping round futilely in a maze; no nearer the exit than when the tramp began.

That night after Warnebold had departed, leaving most effusive thanks and expressions of confidence, Winter was standing at his window absently looking at the garden faintly colored by the moonlight, while his mind was plying back and forth between half a dozen contradictions.

He went over the night of the attack on Keatcham; he summoned every look, every motion of Janet Smith; in one phase of feeling he cudgeled himself for a wooden fool who had been absolutely brutal to a defenseless woman who trusted him; he hated himself for the way he would not see her when she looked toward him; no wonder at last she stiffened, and now she absolutely avoided him! But, in a swift revulsion against his own softness, he was instantly laying on the blows as lustily because of his incredible, pig-headed credulity. How absolutely simple the thing was! She cared for this scoundrel of an Atkins who had first betrayed his employer and then tried to murder him. Very likely they had been half engaged down there in Virginia; and he had crawled out of his engagement; it would be quite like the cur! Later he found that just such a distinguished, charming woman, who had family and friends, was what he wanted; it would be easy enough for him to warm up his old passion, curse him! Then, he had met her and run in a bunch of plausible lies that had convinced her that he had been a regular angel in plain clothes; hadn't done a thing to Cary or to her. Atkins was such a smooth devil! Winter could just picture him whining to the girl, putting his life in her hands and all that rot; and making all kinds of a tool of her—why, the whole hand was on the board! So she was ready to throw them all overboard to save Atkins from getting his feet wet. That was why she looked so pale and haggard of a morning sometimes, in spite of that ready smiles of hers; that was why her eyes were so wistful; she wasn't a false woman and she sickened of her squalid part. She loved Aunt Rebecca and Archie—all the same, she would turn them both down for him; while as to Rupert Winter, late of the United States army, a worn-out, lame, elderly idiot who had flung away the profession he loved and every chance of a future career in order to have his hands free to keep her out of danger—where were there words blistering enough for such puppy-dog folly! At this point in his jealous imaginings the pain in him goaded him into motion; he began furiously pacing the room, although his lame leg, which he had been using remorselessly all day, was sending jabs and twists of agony through him. But after a little he halted again before the casement window.

The wide, darkening view; the great, silent city with its myriad lights; the shining mist of the bay; the foot-hills with their sheer, straw-colored streaks through the forests and vineyards; the illimitable depths of star-sown, violet sky—all these touched his fevered mood with a sudden calm. His unrest was quieted, as one whose senses are cooled by a running stream.

"You hot-headed southerner!" he upbraided himself, "don't get up in the air without any real proof!"

Almost in the flitting of the words through his brain he saw her. The white gown, which was her constant wear in the sickroom, defined her figure clearly against a clump of Japan plum-trees. Their purplish red foliage rustled; and an unseen fountain beyond made a delicate tinkle of water splashing a marble basin. Her face was hidden; only the moonlight gently drew the oval of her cheek. She was standing still, except that one foot was groping back and forth as if trying to find something. But, as he looked, his face growing tender, she knelt on the sod and pulled something out of the ground. This something she seemed to dust off with her handkerchief—he could not see the object, but he could see the flutter of the handkerchief; and when she rose the white linen partly hid the thing in her hand. Only partly, because when she passed around the terrace wall the glow from an electric lantern, in an arch, fell full upon her and burnished a long, thin blade of steel.

He looked down on her from his unlighted chamber; and suddenly she looked up straight at the windows of the room where she thought he was sleeping; and smiled a dim, amused, weary, tender smile. Then she sped by, erect and light of foot; and the deep shadow of the great gateway took her. All he could see was the moonlight on the bluish-green lawn; and the white electric light on the gleaming rubber-trees and dusty palms.

He sat down. He clasped his hands over his knee. He whistled softly a little Spanish air. He laughed very gently. "My dear little girl," said he, "I am going to marry you. You may be swindled into helping a dozen murderers; but I am going to marry you!"

CHAPTER XVI.

The Real Edwin Keatcham.

One Sunday after Mrs. Melville Winter and Archie came to Casa Fuerte, Mr. Keatcham sent for the colonel. There was nothing unusual in such a summons. From the beginning of his illness he had shown a curious, inexpressive desire for the soldier's company. He would have him sit in the room, although too weak to talk to him, supposing he wished to talk, which was not at all sure. "I-like-to-see-him-just-sitting-there," he faltered to his nurse; "can't-he-read-or-play-solitaire-like-the-old-lady?"

Sometimes Winter would be conscious that the feeble creature in the bed, with the bluish-white face, was staring at him. Whether the glassy eyes beheld his figure or went beyond him to unfinished colossal schemes that might change the fate of a continent, or drifted backward to the poverty-stricken home, the ferocious toil and the unending self-denial of Keatcham's youth on the Pacific slope, the dim gaze gave no clew. All that was apparent was that it was always on Winter, as he curled his legs under his chair, wrote or knitted his brow over rows of playing-cards.

At the very first, Keatcham's mind had wandered; he used to shrink from imaginary people who were in the room; he would try to talk to them, distressing himself painfully, for he was so weak that his nurses turned his head on the pillow; he would feebly motion them away. In such aberations he would sometimes appeal, in a changed, thin, childish voice, to the obscure, toil-worn pioneer woman who had died while he was a lad. "Mother, I was a good boy; I always got up when you called me, didn't I? I helped you iron when the other boys were playing—mother, please don't let that old woman stay and cry here!" Or he would plead: "Mother, tell her, say you tell her I didn't know her son would kill himself—I couldn't tell—he was a damn coward, anyhow—excuse me, mamma, I didn't mean to swear, but they make me so awful mad!" There was a girl who came, sometimes, from whose presence he shrank; a girl he had never seen; nor, indeed, had he ever known in the flesh any of the shapes which haunted him. They had lived; but never had his eyes fallen on them. Nevertheless, their presence was as real to him as that of the people about him whom he could hear and touch and see. It did not take Winter's imagination long to piece out the explanation of these apparitions; they were specters of the characters in those dramas of ruthless conquest which Mercer had culled out of newspaper "stories" and affidavits and court reports and forced upon Keatcham's attention. Miss Smith helped him to the solution, although her own ignorance of Mercer's method was puzzling. "How did he ever know old Mrs. Ferris?" she said. "He called her Ferris and he talks about her funny dress—she always did wear a queer little basque and full skirt after all the world went into blouses—but how did he ever come across her? They had a place on the James that had been in the family 100 years and had to lose on account of the Tidewater; and Nelson Ferris blew his brains out."

"Don't you know how?" asked the colonel. "Well, I'll tell you my guess sometime. Who is the girl who seems to make him throw a fit so?"

"I'm not sure; I imagine it is poor Mabel Ray; there were two of them, sisters; they made money out of their Tidewater stock and went to New York to visit some kin; and they got scared when the stock fell and the dividends stopped; and they sold out at a great loss. They never did come back; they had persuaded all their kin to invest; and the stopping of the dividends made it difficult for some of the poor ones—Mabel said she couldn't face her old aunts. She went on the stage in New York. She was very pretty; she wasn't very strong. Anyway, you can imagine the end of the story. I saw her in the park last winter when Mrs. Winter was in New York; she turned her face away—poor Mabel!"

Through Janet Smith's knowledge of her dead sister's neighbors, Winter got a dozen pitiful records of the wreckage of the Tidewater. "Mighty interesting reading," he thought, grimly, "but hardly likely to make the man responsible for them stuck on himself!" Then he would look at the drawn face on the pillow and listen to the babblings of the boy who had no childhood; and the frown would melt off his brow.

He did not always talk to his mother when his mind wandered; several times he addressed an invisible presence as "Helen" and "Dear," with an accent of tenderness very strange on those inflexible lips. When he talked to this phantasm he was never angry or distressed; his turgid scowl cleared; the austere lines chiseling his cheeks and brow faded; he looked years younger. But for the most part, it was to no unreal creature that he turned, but to Col. Rupert Winter. He would address him with punctilious civility, but as one who was under some obligation to assist him, saying, for instance, "Col. Winter, I must beg you not to let those persons in the room again. They annoy me. But you needn't let Mercer know that. Please attend to it yourself, and get them away. Miss Smith says you will. Explain to them that when I get up I will investigate their claims. I'm too sick now!"

Conscious and free from fever, he was barely able to articulate, but when delirious fancies possessed him he could talk rapidly, in a good voice. Very soon it was clear that he was calmer for the colonel's presence. Hence, the latter got into the habit of sitting in the room. He would request imaginary ruined and desperate beings to leave Keatcham in peace; he would gravely rise and close the door on their departure. He never was surprised nor at a loss; and his dramatic nerve never failed. Later, as the visions faded, a moody reserve wrapped the sick man. He lay motionless, evidently absorbed by thought. In one way he was what doctors call a very good patient. He obeyed all directions; he was not restless. But neither was he ever cheerful. Every day he asked for his pulse record and his tempeature and his respiration. After a consultation with the doctor, Miss Smith gave them to him.

"Col. Winter, I Must Beg You Not to Let Those Persons in the Room Again."

"It is against the rules," grumbled the doctor, "but I suppose each patient has to make his own rules." On the same theory he permitted the colonel's visits.

Therefore, with no surprise, Winter received and obeyed the summons. Keatcham greeted him with his usual stiff courtesy.

"The doctor says I can have the—papers—will you pick out—the—one—day after I was stabbed."

Miss Smith indicated a pile on a little table, placed ready at hand. "I kept them for him," she said.

"Read about—the Midland," commanded the faint, indomitable voice.

"Want the election and the newspaper sentiments?" asked the colonel; he gave it all, conscious the while of Janet Smith's compassionate, perplexed, sorrowful eyes.

"Don't skip!" Keatcham managed to articulate after a pause.

The colonel gave him a keen glance. "Want it straight, without a chaser?"

Keatcham closed his eyes and nodded.

The colonel read about the virtually unanimous election of Tracy; the astonishment of the outsiders among the supposed anti-Tracy element; the composed and impenetrable front of the men closest to Keatcham; the reticence and amiability of Tracy himself, in whose mien there could be detected no hint either of hostility or of added cordiality toward the men who had been expected "to drag his bleeding pride in the dust;" finally of the response of the stock-market in a phenomenal rise of Midland.

Keatcham listened with his undecipherable mask of attention; there was not so much as the flicker of an eyelid or the twitch of a muscle. All he said was: "Now, read if there is anything about the endowment of the new fellowships in some medical schools for experimental research."

"Who gives the endowment?"

"Anonymous. In memory of Maria Warren Keatcham and Helen Bradford Keatcham. Find anything?"

—or if you're already "started," we'll help you refurnish! We've been doing it for thousands of others for nearly 50 years at this same old, well known "73 Market Street" address, and certainly ought to have the knack by now! There's a lot of good common sense reasons for using us, these among others:

1st—Immense stocks of latest styles in every good grade to pick from.
2nd—Whether purchase is one or a hundred dollars, your account is equally welcome!
3rd—Prices are always plainly marked—and always the lowest, owing to enormous purchasing power.
4th—As little as $1.50 a week or $6.00 a month pays for $100 worth of goods—other amounts in proportion.
5th—We want your trade—and cordially invite comparisons!

Bowling and General Sports

PARK BOWLERS WILL WIN THE LEAGUE TROPHY

The Park Club five is now practically the winner of the Central Journal Bowling League tournament, taking three games from the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. on the local alleys, last night, bringing the honors to the Plainfielders. They have now won eighteen out of 21 games and they not only win the series, but also the handsome silver trophy.

The Parks took the first game by a score of 828 to 798, the second by a score of 822 to 783, but it was in the third game that they did their best and put up the highest total score of the season, 970 against 746. In the third game, Daniel rolled 219, Ball 204, while Barlow was near the double century with 190. Mulford put up 189 and Long 168.

The local bowlers did good work in the other games, keeping a safe distance from their opponents, but it was plainly evident that they reserved their strength for the final game. The visitors bowled against great odds and they failed to get a double century during the evening. They simply could not overcome the fine work of the locals. The scores:

VICTORY FOR N. P. H. S. IN FAST GAME WITH LEALS.

Leal's five and the N. P. H. S. team met again yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. gym, and as all of the inter-collegiate games have been, was exciting and marked with enthusiasm from the crowded spectator's gallery. The high school won by a score of 27 to 16.

There was considerable rough playing throughout the contest. Twenty fouls were called against Leals and N. P. H. S. was penalized for thirteen. The high school boys displayed excellent team work and probably the best undividual playing was done by Conroy.

Leals were in the lead at the end of the first half, 9 to 7. The lineup:

N. P. H. S.	Leals.
Forwards.
C. Lawrence	Conroy
Dallas	Stein
Centre.
R. Lawrence	T. Overton
Guards.
Campbell	Steiner
Rushmore	T. Overton
Rushmore	L. Overton, Becker

Field goals: Stein 3, T. Overton 3, R. Lawrence 1, Campbell 2, Dalas 1. Fouls: Conroy 9, C. Lawrence 8. Referee, Listman; umpire, P. Collier; scorer, Doane; timer, Snyder.

BASKETBALL.

The Liberty Athletic Club, of Elizabeth, has organized a fast basketball team and is now making a schedule for the season. The club would like games with all good juniors or light weight senior teams, to be played in Elizabeth. Address all replies to Fred Brugger, manager, 17 Catherine street, Elizabeth, stating guarantee expected, also list of open dates.

Holy Cross Defeats P. H. S.

Holy Cross defeaed its rival, the P. H. S., in a whirlwind finish last night, at the Holy Cross parish house. The high school led in the first half by ten points, but in the last few minutes of the game Holy Cross went to work, and when time was called the score stood 23 to 21 in its favor. The good playing of Miller and Harriman probably saved the game for the church boys. Nash also played well.

P. H. S. Class Games.

Two class games were played at the Plainfield High School yesterday afternoon. The seniors won from the Freshmen, 38 to 22, and the Juniors won from the Sophomores, 42 to 12.

N. P. H. S. Going to Rahway.

The North Plainfield high school basketball team will go to Rahway Saturday for a game with the high school there.

WIRE THIEVVES SENTENCED IN THE UNION COUNTY COURT.

In the Union County Court of Special Sessions yesterday, Judge Atwater sentenced Sarteello, who had pleaded guilty to stealing wire from the poles of the Morris County Traction Company. His punishment requires him to stay thirty days in the county jail, and also pay a fine of $500, or stand committed until the fine is paid.

His brother Nicholas, seventeen years old, who was also implicated in the robbery, was sentenced to the Jamesburg Reformatory.

James Alexander, alias Joseph Rice, of Brooklyn, pleaded guilty to trying to rob the residence of John H. P. Keat, 747 Madison avenue, Elizabeth.

Stanley Boyd, of Cranbury Neck, N. Y., pleaded guilty to trying to pass a worthless check for $48.66 on the bartender in the Mansion House, Elizabeth. Both Alexander and Boyd will be sentenced next Wednesday.

Stole to Buy Cocaine.

Jersey City, Jan. 14.—Joseph Tolenski, sixteen years old, admitted to the police Monday that he and two other young men, all addicted to the cocaine habit, planned to plunder the tailor shop of Louis Jacobs, at 28 Newark avenue. The drug was purchased through a colored man called "Spitball." The three young men were caught by the police and will be held for further examination.

No Rabies Symptoms Yet.

Newton, Jan. 14.—Mrs. Elmer Ackerson, mother of Linden Ackerson, the five-year-old boy who was bitten while in the Wykertown schoolhouse last Tuesday by a mad dog, went to the Pasteur Institute yesterday, where her son is receiving treatment. It is understood that there has been no development of hydrophobia as yet.

Real Estate Company Incorporated.

Articles of incorporation were filed at the county clerk's office yesterday by the Plainfield Development Company, which will engage in a general real estate business. The capital is $100,000. The incorporators are Alexander Milne, Allen B. Laing, Edmund Rushmore and David B. Rushmore, all of Plainfield.

The Men's Association of Warren chapel will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night. Rev. J. O. McKelvey will address the men. Refreshments will be served.

"ITALY," THE BEST NIBLO TRAVEL TALK.

Fred Niblo, the eminent humorist-traveler, presented the third of his series of travel talks at the New Plainfield theatre, last night. "Italy" was his subject and it was by far the best of those he has given but because of the stormy weather the audience was one of the "small but appreciative" kind. The views of the southern part of Italy where earthquakes and tidal waves have recently wrought terrible devastation were especially interesting and were graphically described.

Next Wednesday night, Mr. Niblo will give the fourth talk in the series, his subject being, "Russia, from the Black Sea to Siberia."

Hoopes Settles His Case.

Cowed from his belligerent attitude of last week during which he kicked up a rumpus in the fashionable Berkshire Inn in Atlantic City, Dawson Hoopess, Philadelphia society man and figure in several escapades, secured lawyers yesterday and managed to settle the case brought against him by Miss Kathryn Willson, whom he was charged with threatening to kill during his rampage. Despite the declarations of Miss Wilson, who is a pretty New York girl, that she would prosecute Hoopes to the law's limit, she was prevailed upon at a secret conference between the parties concerned to withdraw the charge of attempted murder.

Rahway's Lincoln Committee.

Mayor C. B. Holmes, of Rahway, has appointed as a committee to arrange for the recognition of the centennial anniversary of Lincoln's birthday, on February 12, the following Rahway citizens: Rev. Drs. C. L. Cooper, N. A. Merritt, C. F. Shaw, William T. Stuchell and George F. Brown, and Edward S. Savage, A. Edward Woodruff, Frank M. Stillman, John J. Hoffman, David Armstrong. C. R. Melick is to arrange for music and H. S. Barnes will be secretary. A meeting is called for the organization of the committee Friday night of this week, at Mr. Melick's residence, in Main street.

Death of Albert M. Bulmer.

Albert M. Bulmer, a life-long resident of the city, died at his home last night after an illness of two years with diabetes. He was fifty-four years old and was the son of the late John Bulmer, who died last October. He was a contracting grader and was also a pioneer in the Sunday newspaper business in the city. He leaves one son, Harry F. Bulmer, of East Second street. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

Short Session of District Court.

Another short session of the District court was held this morning, when the only business was that of granting judgments in two or three minor landlord and tenant cases following the submission of proof. All of the rest of the cases were put off for one and two weeks. The reason for this was that the interested parties were not prepared to go on trial.

Farm Hand Loses Three Fingers.

Newton, Jan. 14—Cornelius Crist, a farm hand employed by Jacob B. Nearpass, in Montague, had the flesh stripped from three fingers on his left hand Monday afternoon while feeding a machine which shreds cornstalks. He was taken to Port Jervis and the fingers were amputated near the knuckles by Dr. C. N. Knapp.

Proctor's Attractions.

There will be another good program at Proctor's today. Two new features well worth mention are Chas. Dierk, a German comedian, who completely wins his audience in rendering one of his comic songs backwards. Little Tilley, a petite little soubrette, is heralded as most captivating.

SMOKE HOUSE CLUB HOLDS 'STAG RACKET'

The Smoke House Club, comprising fifteen men who are guests at Truell Court, gave a dinner at that place last night in honor of William Pfatischer, one of the popular officers. The dinner, a sumptuous affair, was served under the direction of the president, Robert B. Valentine. In honor of Mr. Pfatischer, a German by birth, the colors of that country were used in the decorations, while German pipes and dishes were features.

At the conclusion of the dinner, a handsome silver loving cup was presented to Mr. Valentine by Mr. Pfatischer, in a happy speech. "Pop" Langhorne, famous as a fisherman, received a mounted sea trout done in silver. In accepting the gift, Mr. Langhorne made one of the best speeches of the evening. Mr. Valentine was the toastmaster. Mr. Pfatischer is the general manager of the electric department of the Electric Boat Club, of Bayonne, and has resided at Truell Court for the past year.

SOUTHERN ETIQUETTE.

It was the third or fourth day out from Santa Marta, Colombia, and early in the morning, when one of the South American pasengers came on deck. Another South American arose from his deck chair, extended his hand, and as the men shook hands inquired after the health of the newcomer, his wife and his children.

As they had parted company only about 8 hours before in the smoking room, this seemed like unneccessary that this happened in the case of all the Colombians on board, so he asked one man about it.

"It is a custom of the country," said he. "On the occasion of meeting a person for the first time each day it is etiquette to shake hands and to make inquiries about the health of the person so greeted and of his relatives. It would not be considered polite to do otherwise."

Continuing, this man told of taking a walk one day in Bogota with a merchant of the place. They were bent on business and were to cover a distance that might be made rather easily in ten minutes. Because of the necessary stops to make the customary inquiries and to shake hands with friends of the merchant, the trip took nearly an hour.—New York Sun.

Pedigreed Dog Has Adventure.

Laddie, a Scotch collie dog belonging to Millard F. Cornwell, of Broad street, Red Bank, which had been missing several days, was returned to its owner yesterday. The dog is a year old and has a long pedigree. Recently a clam peddler from Seabright stopped in front of the Cornwell house, and Laddie followed the man to Seabright. The next day Laddie wandered from the clam peddler's yard and was captured by a fisherman living next door. The fisherman took the dog to his attic. Thorne, during the night, got a ladder and recaptured the dog without waking the inmates of the fisherman's house. The following day the fisherman coaxed the dog from the yard and put it in a stable. ornwell offered a reward for the dog's return and Thorne secured an order from Cornwell and called on Mayor P. Hall Packer, who got the dog. Yesterday Cornwell went to Red Bank with the dog and obtained the reward.

Football vs. Prayer.

Willie, aged 5, was taken by the father to his first football game. The feature that caught his chief approval, however, did not become evident till he said his prayers that night. To the horror of his parents Willie prayed, with true football snap:

"God bless papa,
God bless mamma,
God bless Willie;
Boom! Rah! Rah! —Success.

Veterans Will Celebrate.

The various Grand Army Posts in Union county, including Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, of this city, are planning to hold suitable celebrations on Lincoln's Birthday. They will be independent of the big celebration to be held in Elizabeth, February 12, which is being arranged by the citizens of the county.

Harvard's new President.

Professor Abbott Lawrence Lowell was elected president of Harvard University yesterday to succeed President Charles William Eliot, whose resignation will become effective in May.

Street Committee to Meet.

The Councilmanic street committee will meet tonight to consider matters preparatory to undertaking the year's work and deciding upon the amount of money needed.

Explained.

Policeman (to loiterer)—Now, then, what are you doing here?

Loiterer—What are you adoing here?

Policeman—Can't you see? I'm doing my duty.

Loiterer—An' can't you see I'm a-making the duty for you to do?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Man vs. Woman.

A man never does anything in the way a woman says it should be done.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. W. P. Myrant, of Fanwood, is enrolled among recent arrivals at the Martha Washington Hotel, New York.

Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, of Central avenue, has been spending a few days at the home of her daughter in East Orange.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Lie, of the Babcock building, are planning a trip abroad and will sail for Norway in the near future.

Mrs. H. Worthington Page, of Oneonta, N. Y., is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, of Grove street.

Among the guests registered at the Breakers, Palm Beach, Florida, are Miss Mary E. Brown and Miss Eliza Dunleavy, of this city.

Mrs. A. Davie, of Manning avenue, the borough, returned home last night from Staten Island, where she visited relatives for five weeks.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Past Grand Master Workman F. W. Tussey will install the newly-elected officers of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., tomorrow night. Mr. Tussey, who is also a member of the finance committee and an eloquent speaker, will have much of interest to talk about.

Gipsy Evans out of Danger.

It was stated last night at the Alexian Hospital, Elizabeth, that Wilson Evans, a member of the famous gipsy tribe of that name, was out of danger. He is suffering from appendicitis and blood poisoning. The Evans nomads camp near the Newark road, about half way between Elizabeth and Newark.

What Telephone Users Can Do to Help the Service.

Telephone users may help the telephone service:

By consulting the telephone directory before making calls, thus obviating the many errors due to calling numbers from memory.

By speaking directly into the transmitter in a clear, distinct voice.

By separating the figures of the telephone number when making a call, for example—Rector 1234, Rector one-two-three-four.

By correcting the operator if she repeats the number called incorrectly.

By holding the telephone receiver to the ear until the called party answers, or some report is given from the Central Office.

By being ready to talk when the called party answers. As a matter of courtesy, the person making the telephone call should not oblige the called party to wait his convenience.

By answering telephone calls promptly. If there is unusual delay in answering the telephone, the operator may report "Don't answer" to the party calling.

In telephone operating, the human element must be considered. The public is human. Telephone operators are human. The hastily spoken word and its inflection conveys whatever impression each gets of the other. Under such conditions, courtesy both on the part of the operating force and the public is like oil to machinery—necessary to prevent friction.

ONE STORY BUILDINGS FOR EAST FRONT ST.

Application was made this morning to Building Inspector T. O. Doane by Dr. Albert Pittis, for a permit to erect two one-story buildings on East Front street, where the American Steam Laundry, J. W. F. Bamberger's barber shop and William Beiter are now located. This property was formerly owned by J. A. Staats, but was recently sold to Dr. Pittis.

Accompanying the application for the permit were the plans for the proposed structures, and they are of the same style of architecture as other one-story buildings erected on East Front street by Dr. Pittis. According to the plans both buildings would have a total frontage of fifty-two feet and would occupy the entire space from the alley-way adjoining Roth & Co.'s market to the brick building on the west of the American Steam Laundry. The carpentry work has been given to Ambrose Smalley, but the mason work has not been contracted for as yet. Chief Doane has not granted the permit yet, but will undoubtedly do so within a few days.

GEO. C. BOUTON DIES AT A RIPE OLD AGE

George Chauncey Bouton, aged eighty-eight years, died sudenly at 1 o'clock this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ralph I. Tolles, on Westervelt avenue, where he had resided for the past three years. Death was due to a malignant growth following the extraction of a troublesome tooth two months ago. The best of medical aid was employed, but to no purpose, it being impossible to stay the progress of the disease.

Mr. Bouton was born at Bridgeport, Conn., and always lived in that city. He was a saddler by trade and followed it for a great many years. Three years ago he decided to make his home with his daughter in this city. He was for years a member of the Methodist church. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ralph I. Tolles, of this city; Mrs. Miles Standish, of Wethersfield, Conn., also one son, George Chauncey Bouton, of Bridgeport.

Funeral services will be held from the late home tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Soul's church, will officiate. The remains will be taken to Bridgeport, where a service will be held Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock and the burial will take place there.

SUCCEEDS THE LATE HARRY B. SUYDAM

The Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest met last night and the rector, Rev. Chas. Townsend, appointed Juan Babcock as president to succeed the late Harry B. Suydam, whose death occurred shortly after his election. The club now numbers forty-five, seventeen new members being added to the roll last night.

During the evening an address was given on the subject, "The Working Man and the Russian Revolution," by Henry Delonardo, of this city. This was greatly enjoyed by the large gathering of men. There were also musical selections by Harry Bennett, accompanied on the piano by Juan Babcock, and refreshments and cigars were enjoyed during a social hour. The club has decided to meet every two weeks on Thursday night.

Mayor and Council to Confer.

The Common Council and Mayor C. J. Fisk will hold the first of a series of conferences in the office of the latter tonight, when several matters to be presented to the Council early this year by Mr. Fisk will be discussed. In this way the Mayor hopes to secure the co-operation of the city fathers in advancing improvements to be made from time to time.

Mrs. Alexander Smith.

William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, the borough, received word last night from Keyport of the sudden death of his oldest brother's wife, Mrs. Alexander Smith, which occurred early in the evening from paralysis. She was eighty years old and had lived at Keyport all her life. She had many friends in this city.

Lecture to Teachers.

Superintendent of Schools O. I. Woodley, of Passaic, will lecture to the teachers of Plainfield and North Plainfield in the Somerset school on Thursday afternoon, January 21, at 3:30.

PINTO NOW A THESPIAN

Joe Weber Has Secured Talented Plainfielder to Appear in "The Climax."

OPENS AT ALBANY FEBRUARY 1.

Dramatic Production of a High Order by Edward Locke with Music by J. C. Breil.

Effingham A. Pinto, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Pinto, of this city, who on a number of occasions has appeared with great success in amateur theatricals, here and elsewhere, has joined Joe Weber's stock company. He has been named for one of the important parts in "The Climax," a dramatic production which Weber is about to make. The new play is by Edward Locke, an unknown writer. The incidental music, which plays an important part, is by Joseph Carl Breil, heretofore noted only as a composer of church music.

Two casts of players are rehearsing the play now and it will have its initial performance at Albany, N. Y., February 1. Mr. Pinto is a member of the first cast. After appearing at several of the large cities in New York State, also Montreal, it will be brought to New York.

Mr. Pinto has unusual ability and talent in the dramatic art and besides he is exceedingly clever as a dancer. His first efforts in dramatics was while a student at John Leal's School. Later he appeared in amateur productions at the Park Club, the Casino and he was one of the strong attractions at the Kirmess given at the New Plainfield theatre for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital a year ago.

It is not unlikely that "The Climax" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre during the present season according to Joe Weber's plans.

MADE TRIP WITH FLEET; WILL TELL OF TOUR

Frederick Palmer, who was correspondent for Collier's Weekly from Hampton Roads to San Francisco on the flagship of Admiral Evans and later on the flagship of Admiral Sperry on the cruise of the battleship fleet, will lecture before the Monday Afternoon Club at the Hartridge School auditorium, Monday afternoon, January 18. His subject will be "With the Flagship of the Fleet." On Washington's birthday the fleet is scheduled to complete its long cruise. In midwinter, as it approaches home shores, public interest will again centre on the ships and the men who have manned them.

To those who have read Mr. Palmer's books and correspondence in Collier's from all parts of the world for the past ten years, he needs no introduction. His work is real and first hand. He had the exceptional advantage of being aboard the U. S. S. Connecticut, flagship of the fleet. In a pleasant, talkative style he gives his hearers an inside view of the workings of the great organization as seen from the cabin of the Commander-in-chief.

MRS. HAMMEL'S FUNERAL IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH.

The funeral of Mrs. Ann E. Hammel, who died at her home on Plainfield avenue, South Plainfield, Wednesday morning, was held in St. Mary's church, this morning. It was conducted by Rev. Father Dunphy, of Dunellen, and was followed by burial in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Hammel was seventy-five years old and had lived in this vicinity a long time. Her husband died in this city three years ago next March. She is survived by two daughters, Mary Frances and Katherine E., and two sons, John M. and Charles Hammel; also a brother, W. H. Neuman.

Will Be Entertained in Havana.

Society notes of Havana, Cuba, announce that Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Vaughn are planning to welcome there on his honeymoon trip, Mrs. Vaughn's brother, Hugh Samuel Jarvis, of New York, who will marry Miss Edith English, daughter of Mrs. George English, at Grace church, next Wednesday. They will remain in Havana two weeks.

Anti-Saloon Address.

The Rev. Alexander Cairns, assistant superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, will speak in the Seventh Day Baptist church tomorrow at the usual hour of worship.

ISLAM HARD TO ANSWER

Christianity Finds the Mohammedan Religion Its Most Difficult Foe.

SO MINISTER TELLS C. E. U.

Rev. Mr. Janvier, Former Missionary, Addresses Mass Meeting at Trinity— Warren Wins Banner.

Mass meeting of the Christian Endeavor Union was held at Trinity Reformed church last night, and despite the disagreeable weather, the different societies did well, each in its effort to secure the banner which had been offered as an award to the one having the highest percentage of members present.

Warren chapel society carried off the honors, leading in the roll call with a percentage of eighty-two, having thirty-one members present out of a membership of thirty-eight. The Temple Baptist society, with fifty-three per cent., was second and Hope chapel third, with forty-eight per cent. There were ten societies represented. They were: Warren chapel, Temple Baptist, Hope chapel, Dunellen Presbyterian, Seventh-Day Baptist, Trinity Reformed, Park Avenue Baptist, First Baptist, First Presbyterian and Congregational.

William Kriney was chairman of the meeting. Clarence La Rue, president of the C. E. U., presented the banner to the winning society. The devotional service was led by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. He read a scriptural lesson from Philippians, third chapter, concluding it with a prayer. A letter of regret from H. A. Kimpost, secretary of the Young People's Department of the New York Dutch Reformed church, and president of the New York State C. E. S., who was to have delivered an address, but was unable to be present, was read by the secretary, Charles Windham. Letters of greeting were read from the secretaries of the Union county and the Paterson societies. Musical selections were rendered by an orchestra composed of Martin A. Korff, director; E. D. Young, cornet; Nathan Warner, clarinet; Arthur L. Titsworth, organist.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. C. A. R. Janvier, pastor of the Hollond Memorial Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, having for his subject, "The Prophet of Arabia and His Religion." Rev. Janvier served fourteen years as a missionary in India, and in fact the greater part of his life has been associated with that country, having lived there during his childhood while his father was a missionary. He was therefore able to talk interestingly on the Mohammedan religion, called by the natives Islam. Mohammedanism is a factor to be reckoned with by Christianity, he said, as it dominates Persia, Arabia, India and Turkey, and there are mosques in London and other European cities. It was also a question whether Africa should not accept it.

Islam was declared to be the only progressive religion beside Christianity, and in fact, was its next kin, as the beliefs were the same in many particulars, which included Christ's birth and his miracles. The Mohammedans claim that their prophet superseded Christ, but nevertheless they are willing to accept Christ as the son of God, to whom they are very loyal. So devoted were they that no man would dare be heard using such profanity as is used in this country. Many of their doctrines are so plausible that they are hard to answer, and because of that, Mohammedanism is Christianity's most difficult opponent. Being stubborn to an excessive degree they were hard to convince. They believed in the books of Moses and in the gospel, with modifications.

Speaking of the sources of Mohammedanism, Rev. Janvier said that Mahomet, the prophet, originally an honest, conscientious man, had come in contact with a degenerate Christianity which was in vogue at that time, and that this was to blame for Mohammedanism. Digressing from his subject, the lecturer took occasion to say that Christian Science would not now be as it is had it emphasized the spiritual side of its base.

Mahomet was declared to have been an honest man so far as he followed the truth as revealed to him. He began to have spiritual messages and finally the time came when he was tempted. He was led up into a mountain, figuratively speaking, and unlike another, yielded to powers of evil, to conquest and lust.

What Mohammedanism lacked was an adequate conception of God's love and holiness, and also of sin. It admitted no need of a Saviour or of an atonement. It was a fatalistic religion. When a follower sinned he declared that the command

GREENE'S FIRM EXPELLED

N. Y. Stock Exchange Drops Brokerage Concern of which J. H. Greene is a Member.

FIRST CASE IN MANY YEARS.

Members of the Firm Say They Can't Explain the Expulsion—Unfair, Says Cohen.

Considerable surprise was occasioned in the Street yesterday, when further disciplinary measures by the Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange was taken in the case of Clarence M. Cohen, floor member of the firm of Cohen, Greene & Co., and Mr. Cohen was expelled by the committee. Cohen's partners include John H. Greene, Jr., of West Seventh street, this city. The firm was not organized until March 11, 1902, and one of the members said yesterday that they had no knowledge of any irregularity in Cohen's application for membership. Cohen would not explain what the misstatement was of which the Exchange authorities complained.

Following the expulsion of Mr. Cohen the explanation was made in a statement given out by Secretary Ely that this action was taken because Cohen made "a statement on a material point" in his application for membership on September 27, 1900.

No decision has yet been reached by the other partners as to forming a new Stock Exchange connection and continuing business. Mr. Greene is prominent here, being a member of the Fair Acres Riding and Driving Club. He formerly owned several fast horses and is now the possessor of a handsome automobile. Before engaging in the stock brokerage business he held a responsible position with the New York Telephone Company.

WANT GREAT MEN TO SPEAK AT BANQUET

The Board of Trade banquet committee will meet tonight to arrange for the annual affair to be held within a short time. There will be reports from the sub-committees relative to the time and place of holding the banquet and the speakers. The committee on place, is in favor of holding the dinner at Truell Hall, Mrs. J. R. Truell having offered a finer menu than last year and having assured the committee that nothing will be left undone in the preparation and serving.

The names of several prominent men have been suggested to the committee on speakers which will include those never heard before in Plainfield. Efforts are being made to secure Wiuston Churchill and Job Hedges, and there is no doubt in the minds of the committee that both or either one would be a strong enough atraction to make the affair the best ever. The name of Mayor George B. McClellan has also been sent to the committee and it is possible that he may be heard here. Another name suggested is that of Mark Twain.

In fixing a date for the banquet the committee having charge of that will select a time that will not interfere in any way with the dinner to be given by the Plainfield Merchants Association. Already there is a demand for tickets for the Board of Trade affair, although they have not been placed on sale yet.

LADIES' AUXILIARY, A. O. H., DANCE COMPLETE SUCCESS.

The annual dance of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Division No. 4, A. O. H., was held in Saengerbund Hall, last night, and despite the disagreeable weather was a complete success. The attendance was large and the program arranged by the committee was greatly enjoyed.

Paroubek's orchestra furnished the music and in addition accompaniment for Irish jigs and reels was provided by John Fitzpatrick, of Jersey City, one of Erin's best pipers. Tim O'Connor, of New York, who has been a feature in other years, was engaged for the occasion but died suddenly at his home yesterday morning. Fitzpatrick's piping was all that could be desired, especially his rendition of "The Wind that Shakes the Barley."

The committee in charge of the affair comprised the Misses Kate Keogh, Kate McGrath and Bridget Gillespie. Edward McCann was floor manager and Robert McCormack was in charge of the door.

THE WEATHER.

Threatening with snow or rain tonight or Saturday; colder. Maximum, 32; minimum, 31.

MISS CHARLOTTE M. CAVE BRIDE OF ALBERT SCHOMP

In the presence of only the immediate families, Miss Charlotte Augusta Cave, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Cave, of East Front street, was married yesterday afternoon to Albert Linden Schomp, of West Front street. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride at 5:30 and was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. There were no attendants.

The parlor was tastefully decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers, the young couple standing before a background of green and white in bower form.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Schomp left for a wedding trip to be gone until February 1. On returning they will reside in Plainfield.

Both Mr. Schomp and his bride are well known in the city and borough. The former is the son of Mr and Mrs. Winfield Schomp and is employed by a New York wholesale house. Both young people received numerous handsome presents.

MISS ANNIE G. FISK MAKES HER DEBUT

A charming affair of yesterday was a tea and reception given for Miss Annie Grey Fisk, by her mother, Mrs. Charles Joel Fisk, and her sister, Mrs. Lewis E. Waring. It was the occasion of the formal introduction of Miss Fisk to society and during the afternoon between two and three hundred guests called. The affair was beautiful in its simplicity. Miss Fisk received a wealth of flowers from relatives and friends and her entrance into society was attended with many pleasing features.

Miss Annie Grey Fisk was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Charles Joel Fisk, Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, Miss Dorothy Fisk, Miss Elinore Waring, Miss Helen Timpson, Miss Caroline Martin, Miss Katharyn McCutcheon, Miss Natalie Wildey, of this city, and Miss Marie Cozzens, of New York.

The hours of the reception were from 3 to 7 o'clock, and it was followed by a dinner party given to about fifty intimate friends of Miss Fisk. After the dinner the young people enjoyed dancing until a late hour.

Miss Fisk is the youngest daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Charles Joel Fisk and she has been a favorite in the younger society set, taking a prominent part in all its social functions.

INSTALL OFFICERS OF ROYAL ARCH MASONS

Past Grand High Priest Peter McGill, assistant grand lecturer of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of New Jersey, assisted by Past Grand High Priest Jacob Kirkner, of this city, installed these officers of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., last night.

High Priest, Matthew H. Ewart; king, E. M. Vail; scribe, W. H. Cochran; captain of the host, C. H. Russell; principal sojourner, Dr. Clive W. Montfort; royal arch captain, Edward Nelson; past high priest, J. Hervey Doane; secretary, William McD. Coriell; treasurer, Henry Leifke; masters of the veil, George Kyte and Henry Apgar; tyler, Caspar Bolsterli.

After the business of the evening and the installation the members and their guests adjourned to the banquet room, where an elaborate spread was provided by a committee from the chapter.

Pictures the Best.

No where in the country will be seen a better class of motion pictures than at the Proctor theatre of this city. It is the purpose of the management to have thrown upon the canvass nothing but the best class of pictures, both from the standpoint of morality and education. Should any reel be sent that isn't what is considered the cleanest and best, the same will not be used, for no proprietor wants to please and educate their audiences more than Messrs. Proctor and Sanderson. The new vaudeville acts of yesterday took well. Little Tillie, the young girl comedienne, making a big hit. The humanscope pictures are also hits.

Settlement of Case.

The foreclosure proceedings begun by the Webster estate against Charles C. Brower have been amicably settled. Mr. Brower made a satisfactory and full settlement.

CITY FATHER TO RESIGN

Robt. E. Hall's Business Plans Will Make Vacancy in Common Council.

R. H. McCREADY SUCCESSOR.

Vice-President of City Committee a Probable Man—Edward E. Iremonger Also Boomed.

Having accepted an offer from one of the largest firms of contracting engineers in Pennsylvania, Robert E. Hall at an early date will probably tender his resignation as a member of the Common Council. He is one of the two ward members from the Second and during the brief period in which he has been a city father has made an enviable reputation.

Mr. Hall is chairman of the Councilmanic committee on fire and buildings and is also a member of the police committee. He has accomplished much for his constituents. One improvement for which he fought hard and successfully is the new fire house on South avenue in the Netherwood section. He enjoys the reputation among his fellow members of being a painstaking, conscientious and persevering representative and his colleagues say that he will be much missed.

When it became known that Mr. Hall had decided that his new position might seriously handicap him in his councilmanic duties and that he desired to sever his connections with that body for that reason, influential men attempted to persuade his brother, Henry L. Hall, to succeed him. The latter, who is probably better known than the councilman, declined, giving as his reason that because of his business in New York it would be impossible for him to devote the proper attention to the city affairs.

Today, Henry L. Hall confirmed the report that he had been asked to succeed his brother, but he declined to say anything about the report that Robert E. Hall had decided to resign. The latter could not be reached before going to press. The councilman has been associated with his brother, H. L. Hall, in the New York Steamfitting Company, a large corporation in Washington street, New York. H. L. Hall is president and Robert E. Hall secretary and treasurer of the concern. On February 1, the councilman will assume the positions as assistant consulting engineer and assistant to the president of the firm of Francis Brothers and Jellett, of Philadelphia, one of the best known contracting concerns in the Quaker City. It is understood that he will likely retain his residence on Park lane until the summer.

Since Henry L. Hall stated that his business affairs would not permit him accepting the honor, strong pressure has been brought to bear on Robert H. McCready, of Belvidere avenue. Mr. McCready is a New York publisher and according to his many friends is "a crack-a-jack fellow." He has been a hard worker for the Republican party in Plainfield and at the present time is vice-chairman of the City Republican Committee.

Speaking of his candidacy, H. L. Hall said today: "Mr. McCready would make a first rate councilman and would be a great credit to our ward. He is a thorough-going, hard-working and able business man. You can always tell where he stands on any matter for he has a mind of his own that is capable of arriving at the right decision every time. He would be right on his job and I hope he will be the choice of the city fathers when the vacancy occurs."

Another boom, and a strong one, has been started for another most capable and popular Second warder. He is Edward E. Iremonger, of Belvidere avenue. Mr. Iremonger was until recently a member of the City Republican Committee and also until recently worshipful master of Anchor Lodge, F. & A. M. He is in the dry goods business in New York and is a man of exceptional business ability.

Funeral of Cornelius B. Waldron.

The funeral of Cornelius B. Waldron, who was well known to Plainfielders, was held yesterday afternoon at his late home in Martinsville. The service was largely attended and was conducted by Rev. J. C. Culp, of Bound Brook, assisted by Rev. H. B. Opdyke, of Martinsville. A quartet rendered Mr. Waldron's favorite hymn, "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds." Burial was in the family plot at Bound Brook, the following acting as pall bearers: William E. Bartle, John Van Ness, John Thoms, George Zimmerman, James Beekman and Charles Codington.

3d Annual Clearance Sale in Full Swing

This store recognizes no dull season. We are constantly on the alert to provide our patrons with bargain values that are out of the ordinary, and the result is that hustle, bustle and activity pervade our entire establishment. This year we think we will far surpass any previous January Sale. "The White Store's" policy is never to carry over to the next season anything but the most staple line of merchandise. We therefore say that—

NO TELEPHONE ORDERS AT THE E PRICES.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The question of macadamizing Prospect place, Union avenue and Beechwood avenue was considered by the Piscataway Township Committee at its meeting Wednesday night. The property owners desire the township to provide the funds for the work, and they agree to repay by installments. Final action in the matter will be taken at the February meeting of the committee.

W. L. Larrabee is contemplating disposing of his property interest in New Market and locating at Ocean Grove, California, in the spring. His son, Merle, is already there and is so favorably impressed with the western country that he desires his father to join him. Several New Market people have settled at Ocean Grove during the past year, forming quite a colony.

Judge Rene P. F. Von Minden was selected for four committees at the organization meeting of the Assembly, held at Trenton, Tuesday, the Banking and Insurance, the Printed Bills, the State Home for Boys and the Miscellaneous committees.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry will preach his final sermon here on Sunday, January 31. He expects to move his household effects to Collingswood, his new charge, during the first week in February.

Rev. W. W. Casselberry and several members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church attended the C. E. N. mass meeting at Trinity church, Plainfield, last night.

—Work has been started on the erection of several houses on Sycamore avenue on land formerly owned by George White, but recently sold by him to out-of-town parties.

A MINUTE FROM MARKET STREET

To All We Extend a Cordial Invitation to Visit the McGregor Store on Saturday.

Come see the biggest store in this State devoted exclusively to the manufacture and sale of clothing at retail. Come see the handsomest decorations on Broad Street south of Market Street.

Flags and Banners will be waving and a thousand electric lights will be flashing a royal welcome.

We are enthusiastic about south Broad Street, and our enthusiasm does not date from yesterday, for far past fifty years we have been on Broad street, south of Market Street. Some folks shop in a beaten path and never get in our neighborhood. We feel their absence and they would profit if they knew us and our merchandise. To all that know us we say come renew old friendships; to those who have never visited this big clothing emporium, we extend a special invitation to visit us Saturday.

As a bit of advance information we want to tell you that we sell only the better kind of clothing, and comparison proves our prices no higher than other stores ask for the everywhere kind. Every suit offered for sale here is warranted all wool.

We cut our garments on the premises and make them in our own shops. We employ the most expert designer the clothing industry of New Jersey has ever known, and a striking evidence of the superb fit of our garments is shown by the fact that we employ the smallest force of alteration hands in this city.

We make very few alterations on McGregor-made clothing, and when a slight alteration is suggested we make it absolutely free of charge. We guarantee a fit and acknowledge your right to demand it when buying clothing ready-to-wear.

We are acknowledged leaders in the sale of clothing for Boys. As far as we can learn we are the only store in Newark maintaining an absolutely All-Wool standard in this particular branch of the clothing business.

The growth of our Boys' Department has been meteoric and this department alone is worth a visit. It is one of Newark's show places.

A corps of efficient-courteous salesmen will greet you and tell you some very interesting facts about the clothing business of Newark and of the McGregor Store in particular.

Come—everybody.

ISLAM HARD TO ANSWER

to do so had been written on his forehead and he obeyed. If he killed a man it had been written on his forehead that he slay, and on the dead man's forehead had been written that he should die. It was fate and a fatalistic belief destroyed sense of sin.

Woman's position under Mohammedanism would alone condemn it, he declared. A man could have as many wives and concubines as he wished. The only thing necessary to secure a divorce was to pronounce the word "tillah" three times. The wife had no recourse. The custom was declared to be immoral polygamy or worse.

Rev. Janvier believes that the British will continue to control India, because they have the Mohammedans on their side. When they first took possession they happened to favor the Mohammedans, which is the aggressive party against the Hindoo malcontents, who, though more numerous, are less capable.

ENGLISH CLASS TO GIVE SHAKESPERIAN PLAY.

Inspired by the success of one English class in giving amateur Shakesperian plays, Principal Ira W Travell's division of the senior English class at the high school, has decided to give two scenes from the plays they have been studying this year. One will be the banquet scene of Macbeth and the other the duel scene of Hamlet.

The play will be given in the school auditorium after the mid-year examinations in February and the pupils have been assigned parts as follows: Macbeth—"Lady Macbeth," Harriet Moody; "Macbeth," Charles Prior; "Lennox," David Thickstun; the murderer, John Lyness; "Ross," Richard Harrigan. Hamlet—"The Queen," Caroline Lambert; "Laertes," Stanley Robins; "Hamlet," Clyde Doane; "King," Guion Fountain; a lord, George Durar.

MISS HELEN A. BURROUGHS.

Prominent Worker in First Presbyterian Church Dies at Her Father's Home.

Miss Helen A. Burroughs, daughter of John Burroughs, of East Fifth street, died at 7 o'clock this morning at her father's home. She had been in poor health for a long time but had been seriously ill only for the past two weeks.

Miss Burroughs was a member of the First Presbyterian church where she was very active in the work. She taught a class in the Sunday-school and was connected with the various organizations. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. McDougal, of Westfield.

The funeral will be held at the father's residence on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be at Westfield.

PARK AVENUE BAPTIST S. S. ANNUAL MEETING

The annual election of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school was largely attended. George C. Hall presided. Secretary Henry F. Cuming submitted his report which stated: "We now have a membership of 9 officers, 19 teachers, 42 scholars in the elementary department, and 171 in the main school, making a total of 241, an increase of 16 during the year. The average attendance during 1908 was 110."

The report of the elementary superintendent, Miss Elmira C. Runyon, stated: "We began the year with a membership of 48, 14 in the junior department, 17 in the primary department, and 17 in the beginners' department, and with a cradle roll membership of 8. We have lost 12 scholars by removal, but have gained 15 new ones, and 5 new names have been added to the cradle roll. The average attendance for the year is 32. Our birthday offerings are the largest we have ever had."

Mrs. A. E. Finn reported for the missionary committee. Mrs. D. M. Runyon, superintendent of the home department, gave an interesting report of that branch of the work, stating the present membership to be 41. Six new visitors have recently been added. R. Coles Treadwell, chairman of the music committee, submitted a pleasing report in the line of vocal music.

The treasurer, Joseph M. Hawkins, reported total receipts for 1908 $933.99, and disbursements $919.96.

These officers were chosen: Superintendent, George E. Hall; associate superintendent, Miss Florence G. Hawkins; secretary, Martin B. Stutsman; assistant secretary, Henry F. Cuming; treasurer general fund; Joseph M. Hawkins; treasurer benevolent fund, Willard M. Maxim; librarian, E. Frank Vail; pianist, Miss Mary E. Clark; blackboard artist, Charles Van Winkle; superintendent elementary department, Miss Elmira C. Runyon; orchestra leader, Arthur S. Mosher; chairman music committee, R. Coles Treadwell; temperance secretary, Charles F. Dayton.

These are the new committees. Missionary, Mrs. A. E. Finn, Mrs. S. A. Krom; music, R. Coles Treadwell, Miss Mary E. Clark, Arthur S Mosher; finance, Joseph M. Hawkins, Theodore I. Runyon, D. M. Runyon; room, Charles Van Winkle, Willard M. Maxim, Joseph M. Hawkins; entertainment, Miss Florence G. Hawkins, Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Cora R. Brokaw.

At the request of the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn, each officer and teacher present attached his or her signature to a birthday letter which he had written to William Tallman, one of the deacons of the church, who has reached the age of ninety years. Following the transaction of business, refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour followed.

"Try-Out" Night at Theatre.

The popular weekly "try-out" will be held at the New Plainfield theatre tonight and six crackerjack acts have been obtained by Manager Counihan. They range from strong-armed Samsons to petite and vivacious ballad singers with buck-and-wing dancers on the side. The early part of the show will be devoted to vaudeville and pictures during which four legitimate acts will be given.

In the City Court.

Giovanni Giovanelli, the Italian who kicked up a row on East Fourth street, Sunday night, was arraigned in the city court, this morning. It was explained to Judge Runyon that the defendant and a friend had gotten into an argument at their home and that the former became unduly excited, although no damage was done. Sentence was suspended with a warning.

FLOWERS AND TRIMMINGS.

Flowers in metallic colorings shot with beautiful shades woven into gold or silver backgrounds are being used with great success for millinery purposes, and look particularly well upon the large fur toques and the hats in soft marabout which are enjoying so great a vogueu just now.

On a large turban toque of brown marabout, for instance, a spray of giant roses may be seen in gold tissue shot with crimson, or again, upon a chinchilla toque, a big bunch of silver grapes will make a most effective trimming, with three or four silver vine leaves resting lightly on the soft gray fur.

Upon other hats, carried out in smoothly stretched velvet in a rich shade of lie de vin, wreaths of roses will be arranged with centres of gold tissue and outer leaves in silver shot with pink. In the case, too, of floral garnitures for ball gowns, and wreaths for wearing with evening coiffures, these gold and silver flowers promise to be very popular, and there can be no doubt that they are quite exceptionally effective. They have another great advantage, too, from the fact that they look well with gowns in any and every color, as well as with toilettes carried out either in black or in white.—Philadelphia Record.

THINGS TO KNOW.

That wet shoes should not be dried by the fire. If there be time it is well to dry them on shoe trees, later rubbing in a little vaseline to soften the leather.

That dress goods and laces should not be measured with a tape line as it stretches the material. A yard stick is indispensable in every sewing room.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The newly-elected officers of the Methodist Sunday-school are: Superintendent, Albert Meyer; assistant superintendent, Rudolph Bruchman; secretary, Miss Eloise Goodwin; treasurer, Miss Rita De Molt.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting will be held tonight at the Baptist church. Owing to the illness of the pastor, Rev. Franklin Mathiews, the meeting will be led by one of the deacons of the church.

Willie Williams, who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital for several weeks suffering from typhoid fever, has improved so nicely that he has been able to return home.

Thomas M. Paff, Jr., who has been detained at home for several days with a severe cold, has returned to his position with the Great A. & P. Tea Co., of Plainfield.

The township snow plow was right on the job yesterday morning. All paths were made through town before the scholars were obliged to turn out for school.

The proposed contract between the Township Committee and the Public Service Corporation will be signed next week, unless some remonstrance is made.

Owing to the storm yesterday only one session of school was held, the scholars being dismissed for the day at 12 o'clock.

The weekly Bible study meeting of the Methodist church will be held tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

John Hogan, of Wood's road, had twelve geese and eight ducks stolen from his flocks last night. Mr. Hogan says that he will watch for the intruders with a gun tonight. This has happened several times.

George Solt, engineer of the local freight, will move his family from Leighton on Tuesday. Mr. Solt has rented Edgebrooke cottage from Justice Smith.

George Huff, of Leighton, has been given a position on the shifting engine in the Lehigh Valley yards recently left vacant by Harry Soffield.

Lehigh Valley Detective Frank Garverino is having considerable trouble with thieves who have been stealing brass journals.

A collection will be taken up in the Sacred Heart church next Sunday for the sufferers in Italy.

George Sanders has moved his family into the house recently vacated by P. F. Kaine.

The meeting of the Middlesex Fire Company will be held tonight at the fire-house.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank was held Tuesday afternoon. With two exceptions the same directors were re-elected, and the number reduced from fifteen to thirteen. The exceptions were A. O. Allen, of New York, and Joel Codington, of Warrenville. The present directors are Alvah Gray, P. W. Brakeley, W. L. McCauley, A. J. Hamley, Paul Reusch, H. L. Pierce, B. K. Burke, G. W. Harris, John P. Fenner, Joseph Kuldoshes, L. L. Block, L. D. Walker, Jr., Edward T. Wilson.

ECRU WAISTS THAT WERE AND ARE NOT.

Cream waists soon cease to be cream after the energetic laundresses have finished with them and not every one knows how simple a matter it is to give it the ecru tint.

The tone that it so desirable in net blouses and curtains just now must not be confounded with dirt. While this tint is more serviceable than white, washing is soon necessary.

After washing bleaching is inevitable unless means are taken to preserve the creaminess. This can be done in several ways. The easiest is to rinse the net in water to which saffron has been added until the desired shade is obtained.

Dip a small piece of net or muslin into the tawny water as a test before putting in the bigger articles, or the work of washing may have to be done over again.

Hay water is used to preserve the creamy tone. The hay is boiled and left to cool in fresh water. Strain it before using. Soak the lace or net thoroughly to remove most of the dirt before washing in the colored water.

Will Give Birthday Reception.

Under the auspices of the McAll Auxiliary a birthday reception will be held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Wednesday night, January 27, at 8 o'clock. Rev. George A. Berry will deliver an address on "The Recent Social and Religious Developments in France," to be followed by a social hour.

Tony Pastor
By Harry S. Sanderson
in "Variety."

In a recent issue of Variety, a periodical devoted to theatricals, Harry S. Sanderson, who is now associated with F. F. Proctor, Jr., in the management of the local Proctor theatre, tells an interesting story reminiscent of the late Tony Pastor. No one knew the dean of vaudeville better and in the practical operation of Pastor's theatre Mr. Sanderson was an important factor. He was associated with Tony Pastor for thirty-seven years.

"My first knowledge of Tony Pastor dates back to 1861," says Mr. Sanderson. "When quite a youth I left Wilmington, Del., to pay a visit to Philadelphia on a sight-seeing expedition. It was my first visit to a large city, and I was desirious of seeing all "the sights." At that time there flourished in Callowhill street a place of amusement known as Rivers' Melodeon, a variety theatre of the class of New York's famous "444" Broadway. There was a small auditorium with two circles and an orchestra floor, or, as called in those days, the "parquette." To my unsophisticated idea it was indeed a sort of fairy land.

"Beautiful women danced upon the stage. Ausing negro comedians created much laughter, and dexterous acrobats held me in breathless yet fearsome delight. After a while a movement in the audience presaged the coming of the principal attraction—Tony Pastor. Can I ever forget my sensations? I had read of Tony Pastor, had purchased his song books and essayed to sing his songs, and indeed had created an ideal. Fancy my surprise when a dapper little chap of about 110 pounds came on the stage dressed in the garb of a circus clown, and sang "Everything Is Lovely and the Goose Hangs High."

"I remember the song was pointed in its hits at current topics while it breathed a patriotic sentiment, and told us that "Old Abe would soon be in the White House, and everything would be lovely and the goose hangs high." Inasmuch as we were on the verge of civil war, this sentiment was cordially endorsed and re-demanded.

"Some years elapsed before I again met Tony Pastor. I was making a call on a friend when Tony came in during the conversation. The ill-fortune of a worthy old lady was mentioned, and as it was Christmas eve, comment was made on the change in her circumstances. Tony soon took his leave, and after his departure my hostess exhibited a ten-dollar bill that Tony requested her to hand to the old lady. Billy Delehanty (of the well-known Delehanty and Hengler team- remarked "Oh, that's nothing for Tony; he's always doing that." And now after forty years of close association, I can say that he was "always doing that."

"My own relations with Tony Pastor began in a most unexpected way. Happening into his theatre a day in April, 1872, he requested me to come and fill the place of his brother, Fernando, for two weeks. The connection thus begun with but few words as to terms continued thirty-seven years, except for a few intervals when my attention was called to other theatrical enterprises.

"This reminds me of an occasion when on the road with my own show I went short of funds, and ran on to New York to "raise the wind." I called upon Tony about 10 a. m. He came to the head of the stairs in his pajamas. I told my story, and he exploded. 'Do you think I keep a bank in the house?' No, I said, but I am in a hurry; good day, and I turned to leave. 'Ah, what's the matter with you?' he said. 'Don't get mad. Go to the theatre, write a check for what you need and I'll sign it.' I started for the door. He called after me: 'Say, Henry, it's all right. I would as leave have the money in your keeping as in the bank; but don't wake a fellow out of his morning nap again.'

"A striking illustration of Mr. Pastor's character was an occurrence in 1884. A mutual friend lost his wife. When I told Tony he said: 'I don't like to go into a house of mourning. You go, Henry, and express my sorrow, and take a couple of hundred dollars with you. Money is always useful at such times.' I tried to explain how embarrassed I should be if the donation were declined. 'Well, just say I thought he would not care to go to the bank at this time, and this is a loan.' I did as directed, the friend thanked me kindly but said he was in no need. I reported the fact. 'Well, then if he won't have it, put it in your pocket. Poor fellow, his heart must be sore.'

"Handicapped with a small theatre, in a rapidly declining neighborhood, with age approaching, the last few years of his carer was a struggle against odds that would have swamped even a young man. But his demeanor was ever cheerful; his hope bright; his faith abiding.

"I cannot refrain from mentioning while I have opportunity, the erroneous impression which has gone forth that Mr. Pastor lost his fortune and was deprived of his lease. Neither is true. He was simply tired, and went calmly and peacefully to rest; a righteous man; a true and noble friend, and this world is the better for having known Tony Pastor.

THE IRISH BIRD CHARMER.

Wid more or less o' tuneful grace,
As fits a Celtic singer,
I've praised the "great bird of our race,"
The stork, the blessin' bringer.
When first to my poor roof he came,
How sweetly he was sung to!
I called him every dacint name
That I could lay my tongue to.
But, glory be! that praise from me
So pleased the simple crayture
His visits here have come to be
A sort o' second nature.
I'm glad to see him now and then,
But, glory be to heaven!
If here he isn't back again,
An' this is number seven!

Och! though this gift o' song may be
In many ways a blessin',
It brings some popularity
That gets to be disthressin'.
Now, mind, I love this Irish bird—
We couldn't live widout him—
An' shure, I'll not take back a word
I ever said about him.
But now when all these mouths to feed
Ate up our little savin's,
The birds whose visits most we need
Are ould Elisha's ravens.
Begor', if they were 'round these days
I'd sing them such a song o' praise
'Twould keep them always near me.

—T. A. Daly, in Catholic Standard and Times.

LINKED EYEBROWS.

It is popularly believed that if one's eyebrows meet it indicates deceit. Charles Kingsley indorses this belief, but Tennyson has other ideas and poetically speaks of "married brows."

In Turkey meeting eyebrows are greatly admired, and the women use artificial means to bring the brows to this condition, and if art cannot induce thin eyebrows to grow they make up by drawing a black line with paste.

It would appear that the Greeks admired brows which almost met, and the fashionable inhabitants of Rome not only approved of them, but resorted to pigments to make up the lack which sometimes existed.

Some proverbs state that the person whose eyebrows meet will always have good luck, while others state exactly the reverse. The Chinese say that "people whose eyebrows meet can never hope to attain to the dignity of a minister of state" and in Greece of today the man whose brows meet is said to be a vampire, while in Denmark and Germany it is said he is a were-wolf.—London Standard.

PUTTING UP CITRON

NEW METHOD THAT HAS MANY ADVANTAGES.

Time Saved and Fruit Turned Out in Better Condition—Directions for Making the Old-Fashioned Preserves.

The old-fashioned way of putting up citron was to boil it in weak alum water until tender and green, then in clear water to extract the taste of the alum, and lastly in cold water to crisp it before the preserving was begun. The up-to-date method does away with the preliminaries. Cut off the green peel from the citron and cut in slices about an inch thick. Remove the seeds, then slice in squares or any fancy shape desired. Allow to each pound of citron three-fourths of a pound of sugar, one lemon and a small strip of green ginger. Put the sugar in the preserving kettle with water to make a sirup, and when boiling add the citron, a chipped yellow peel of lemon, taking care not to get in a bit of the bitter white pith, then the lobes of lemon, cut in thin slices, and the ginger. Cook slowly for several hours, until tender, then add a sprinkling of raisins, cook until the raisins are puffed, then pour in sterilized cans and seal. A couple of fresh peach leaves added to the sirup while cooking give a fine green color to the preserves, but should be removed before putting in the jars.

Should you prefer the old-fashioned preserves, here are directions for their making: Peel and core the citron, cut into strips and cut the edges. Soak over night in strongly salted water. In the morning soak in clear cold water, changing until freshened. Parboil ten minutes in water with a teaspoonful of powdered alum. Drain and weigh. To every four pounds of fruit allow three pounds of sugar, a lemon, an ounce of preserved or candied ginger or an ounce of green ginger root boiled in a pint of water until its flavor has been extracted. In this case use the water in which the root was cooked as well as the ginger. Make a sirup, allowing a pint of water to each pound of sugar. Boil and skim, then add the citron, cooking gently until clear and tender. Drain the fruit from the sirup and put on plates to harden

In the morning cut the lemon in thin slices and cook in water to cover until tender. Put the sirup on to boil, adding the lemon and water, if not bitter, the sliced ginger and the citron. Cook until thoroughly heated, and turn into jars and seal. Raisins seeded and cooked in the sirup may be added if desired.

Apple Mince Meat.

At this season of the year when apples are plentiful and cheap I prepare them for mincemeat next winter. Pare, quarter, core and chop the apples by running through the food chopper. To six bowls of the chopped apple add one bowl of molasses, one small bowl of vinegar, three bowls of sugar, one tablespoon of cinnamon, one tablespoon of allspice, one-half tablespoon of cloves and one nutmeg. Cook until the apples look clear, then can in fruit jars. When wanted for pie add the chopped meat, chopped suet, cider, etc., and you will find the making of mincemeat a pleasure instead of a task.

A Dainty Pudding.

On a day when fresh fruit is not easily obtained, the following pudding is a welcome dessert: To two well-beaten eggs, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of baking powder, a heaping cupful of flour and one-half cupful of raisins chopped very fine. Steam this for three-quarters of an hour and serve it hot with a sauce made as follows: After thoroughly beating the whites of two eggs, cream a cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of butter; beat this in slowly and flavor with vanilla.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Barbecued Ham.

Cut rather thick slices of cold boiled ham and lay them in a frying pan. Cook on both sides until they begin to crisp at the edges and then put on a hot dish. Add to the fat in the pan four tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a saltspoonful of English mustard, a teaspoonful of white sugar and a few dashes of black pepper. Boil up once, pour over the ham, let it stand covered for a couple of minutes and send to the table. There is no more savory method of cooking ham than this, and it wins almost universal approbation. —Delineator.

When Boiling Puddings.

Place a small plate at the bottom of the sauce pan and when you put in the pudding to boil take care that it is on the plate. If the water should boil away no harm will be done. The pudding will turn out without sticking to the cloth.

Where to Keep Jellies.

All jellies should be kept where it is cool and dark. If you have no dry cellar or dark closet, cover the shelves of any cool closet with black cotton and hang a curtain of the same over the fruit.

Savory Rice.

A savory way of cooking rice is to boil half a pound of rice until tender, then add the pulp of two or three tomatoes, and a little butter. Stir well, and grate a little cheese on the top, adding pepper and salt to taste.

FOR COFFEE THAT IS GOOD.

Beverage Easy to Prepare If Directions Are Followed.

The secret of good coffee is an immaculately clean coffee pot, fresh boiling water and good material. It is better to pay a little more for your coffee and use less in quantity than would be necessary in the cheaper grades. The coffee pot should be thoroughly washed and scalded after every meal and coffee never allowed to stand in it. If it gets discolored, put a little baking soda in it once a week or so, fill with cold water and let it come to the boiling point. Take care that the spout and strainer are perfectly cleaned. Rinse and dry thoroughly. Unlike most cooking utensils which do better work when their newness has worn off, a coffee pot is better when new, whether made of tin, granite ware, nickel or aluminum. Many good housekeepers advocate frequent renewals from the ten-cent store, discarding the old coffee pots as soon as they become discolored and strong. These are better in the end than the most expensive coffee percolator that is not kept immaculate. The time-honored rule for making coffee is a tablespoonful for each person and one for the pot. Put the coffee in the clean pot, pour in a few spoonfuls of cold water to wet it, add a clean, freshly-broken egg shell if you have it, or a teaspoonful of the white of egg, pour on the boiling water and let it just come to the boil. Take away from the fire, give a second shake or stir the grounds down, then replace and let it come again just to the boil. Do this three times in succession, then push back on the stove to settle and clear. Some persons prefer to make the coffee by the cold water method. In this case cover the coffee with the required amount of cold water, allow it to reach the boiling point, then proceed as before. The coffee must not be allowed to boil hard, but merely reach the boiling point each time. If not perfectly clear when ready to serve, pour in a tablespoonful of cold water.

Carrot Pudding.

One cupful grated carrot, one cupful grated raw potato, one cupful sugar, one cupful ground raisins, one cupful (large) of flour, two level teaspoonfuls soda dissolved in juice of potato; spice to taste; I use nutmeg. Turn pudding in buttered bucket; a five-pound lard bucket answers nicely, and place bucket in large kettle containing boiling water. Cover outside kettle and steam about 3½ hours. The water must not fall below the boiling point. Good with any kind of a good pudding sauce, vanilla, lemon or brandy sauce, or may be iced when cold and used as fruit cake.

Sauce.—Two cups milk, one third of a cupful of sugar, tablespoonful butter, tablespoonful flour; flavor with vanilla.

Apple Bread.

Make up two quarts of dough as if for rusks; when it is light roll out a cake of it, half an inch thick; spread stewed apples over it and over that another cake rolled like the first; put in a pan to lighten for a short time; bake it; have some thin slices of stewed apples, tender, when the cake is baked; lay these apples all over the top, sprinkle them well with sugar, some small bits of butter, and either cinnamon or nutmeg; put it back in the oven long enough for the sugar to form a coating on the top; take it out, and when cold slice it up. This is an excellent bread for tea.

Chocolate Walnuts.

One cup sugar, two squares chocolate (melted), two eggs (beat white and yolks separately), one cup milk (sweet or sour), four cups flour, one teaspoon soda (level), one teaspoon vanilla extract, one cup walnuts (broken, but not too fine), one pinch salt. Mix in order given above. Roll out into quarter-inch thickness and cut with small round cutter (top of a salt shaker may be used); fry in deep fat a number at a time, and as soon as they rise to the top stir with long fork so that they will cook evenly. When cool roll in powdered sugar.

Potato Dumplings.

Mash fine half a dozen good sized hot boiled potatoes or put them through a ricer and beat afterward. Add a rounding tablespoon of butter, one beaten egg, two cups of milk and let cool until lukewarm. Add a yeast cake dissolved in a little water and enough flour to make a stiff dough. Cover, let rise, shape lightly into little cakes, and let rise light again. Take up with a broad knife and lay around on top of the boiling stew or pot pie. Cover and steam until done. The cakes may also be set in a buttered pan and baked a light brown; serve hot.

Creamed Celery.

Scrape and cut the celery into inch pieces; stalks which are not sufficiently blanched for use raw or in salads will do. Drop them into boiling water and simmer until tender, about 20 minutes. Drain and to one pint of celery add one cupful of white sauce. Simmer 20 minutes.

Bavarian Pie.

Line pie tin with a rich crust. Fill with sliced apples, peaches or apricots. Beat together one cup cream, one cup sugar, one egg. Cover fruit with this mixture and bake slowly for one-half hour.

Broiled Tripe.

For this use the thickest, fattest tripe procurable. Wipe dry, rub both sides with soft butter, dust with salt and pepper and broil over a clear fire. Turn on a heated dish and lay on it bits of butter, then serve.

MARSHALL & BALL JANUARY SALE

The Greatest in Our History

Tomorrow night the whole of South Broad Street will be aglow with electric lights and colored bunting. It's to celebrate the inauguration of Newark's "Great White Way." It will be worth coming a long way to see.

But there is another strong magnet already drawing people to this section. It's the Marshall & Ball Great January Sale. Never before in the history of this unusual store have we enjoyed such a rousing and continued response to a January Sale.

The great strength of this sale lies not alone in its money- saving features, but also in the uncommon character, style and excellence of the merchandise offered. Come early tomorrow and stay late.

field theatre next Monday night. George Beban, as the bogus French count; Trixie Friganza, that delightful artiste, who is ever vivacious and clever, as the gay and dashing young American widow; Robert L. Dailey, a hearty and likeable companion who greatly resembles his brother, the late Peter F. Dailey, and half a dozen other good players, find opportunity in George M. Cohan's "musical frivolity" so-called, and the production is one of the liveliest, most luxuriously equipped, uproariously funny and carefully trained in all its details that has been seen on the stage in many long days. The feature dance of Mlle. Vanity in the third act proves one of the most popular incidentals of the performance and invariably receives several encores.

Wherever Miss Kathleen Mathew has appeared this season she has been greeted by large and representative audiences, who have accorded a reception to Ireland's brilliant and talented daughter but little short of an ovation. She has created a sensation everywhere by her charming personality — magnetism and rare dramatic gifts. She makes her first appearance in this city next Tuesday night at the New Plainfield theatre in her original Dramatic Recitals of the Songs and Stories of Ireland illustrated by stereopticon views and music. She comes here under the auspices of the L. A. of the A. O. H.

Next Wednesday evening at the New Plainfield theatre, Fred Niblo, the humorist-tourist, will offer "Russia, from the Black Sea to Siberia," illustrated with hundreds of colored views, snapshot photographs and graphic motion pictures, all of which are absolutely original, having been taken by Fred Niblo in person during his recent sojourn in darkest Russia. This picture pilgrimage throughout the Czar's domain, includes very many interesting subjects that have been hitherto absolutely unobtainable. At great expense and constant risk of personal safety, Mr. Niblo is able to present the most complete pictorial portrayal of Russia from end to end that has ever been offered in America. Those who had the pleasure of accompanying Mr. Niblo through Africa, Egypt and Italy need not be told of the excellence of the pictures or of the inimitable style of Mr. Niblo's entertainment. Truly, no offering of the series is so important, as well as delightfully entertaining, as is "Russia, from the Black Sea to Siberia."

The resignation has been accepted by the college trustees, to take effect on July 1 next.

WILL A PLAINFIELDER WIN THE BABY PRIZE?

It is possible that a Princeton graduate residing in this city may receive a handsome silver loving cup. In consequence there is unusual interest here in an announcement made yesterday by the Princeton Alumni Weekly, that William G. Wilson, '94, who died at Baltimore, on December 31, provided in his will that a member of the class of 1894 who, in 1919, the time of the twenty-fifth annual reunion of the class, shall have living the largest number of children shall receive from the estate a silver loving cup.

Mr. Wilson entrusted the awarding of the cup to a committee of classmates, consisting of William F. Meredith, George W. Williams and J. McN. Thompson. Mr. Thompson, who was at one time curator of the university, died at Albany, N. Y., five days before Mr. Wilson. There are several Plainfielders who were members of the class of 1894, including Edward Petrie and Alfred Holmes.

IMPORTANT RULING IN EXCISE MATTERS

In the Camden County Court, Judge Joline has made a ruling which is important to bottlers of malt liquors and to persons living in prohibition communities. The ruling was made after the grand jury had made its first presentation of the term to Judge Joline.

A fe wweeks ago several bottlers were held in bail, charged by agents of the Law and Order Society with selling liquor in prohibition communities. These cases were considered by the grand jury on December 10. Later it failed to return indictments.

The Rev. E. J. Kulp, pastor of the Broadway M. E. church, and a member of the grand jury, addressed the court:

"If your Honor please, may I ask you to give the grand jury instructions regarding the law covering sales of liquor in prohibition territory?" he asked.

"Do you refer to Haddonfield?"

Mr. Kulp replied that he did, and Judge Joline explained the law, saying:

"I understand, gentlemen, that with regard to Haddon township, local option prevails there, and at this time the people have declared that liquor shall not b sold in that township. It is, therefore, a place in which spirituous liquor cannot be sold except contrary to law. The law does not recognize the sale of liquor legally in that township.

"Therefore no one has a right to sell liquor in that township, as the law now stands, and any one who does sell liquor in that township, as the law stands, is liable to indictment, and if convicted upon trial, is liable to punishment.

"In 1907 the Legislature of this State passed an act concerning sales of liquor. According to this act, a sale is not complete until the goods have been delivered to the buyer or the goods have reached th place agreed upon. Then it is a sale with in the limits of that township."

Orders by agents of the Law and Order League had been delivered by telephone in Haddon township. When the driver brought the wet goods he took orders for more, and is was on the delivery of the second order that complaints were made.

The grand jury considered its action in ignoring bills against local bottlers accused of selling liquor in prohibition territory, and then found ndictments against each of those so charged. This action was the result of teh interpretation of the law given by Judge Joline in response to a question.

MEMORIAL TO DR. M'COSH.

A plan was announced in Princeton today by which it is hoped that a fitting memorial to Dr. Andrew J. McCosh, who died recently, may be established. The idea is to raise $5,000 or more and secure a launch to be presented to Dr. Winfred T. Grenfell for the mission work he is doing at Labrador.

The boat will be fitted with surgical instruments and supplies and will greatly aid Dr. Grenfel in his labors. It is expected the amount can be raised quickly by subscriptions from Princeton men who knew and loved Dr. McCosh. A Princeton volunteer crew may go to Labrador next summer to assist Dr. Grenfell.

Will Explain Wireless Telephony.
